Chapter 824 - Bodhisattva

Feng Wanba stood in the long line. It was the sixth time he was licking his lips. The scent of food that wafted from the porridge stall in the distance made him swallow involuntarily.

He finally understood what it meant for time to crawl. The people ahead of him had hardly moved.

Feng Wanba didn't dare cut in line. He feared the monks would get angry and send him home without porridge.

After a long wait, it was finally his turn. He was given just a spoonful of porridge.

Once the porridge was poured into his bowl, he couldn't contain his excitement. Ignoring the heat, he eagerly scooped it up with his hands.

The millet porridge was quite bland, with added wood shavings and minced meat.

However, Fang Wanba felt it was a gourmet delicacy. Although it was plain, he thought it was fragrant and smooth. It tasted better than anything he'd ever eaten.

He licked each of his fingers clean with his eyes closed, then slowly opened his eyes and sighed deeply.

He was still famished, but the warmth in his stomach reassured him that he wouldn't starve to death.

After licking the porridge bowl clean, he still didn't leave. He inched closer to the porridge stall and deeply inhaled the aroma wafting out.

Feng Wanba had a secret he hadn't told anyone. One could absorb the porridge's essence by inhaling the porridge's aroma. It was a trick his grandfather had taught him.

Just then, he noticed one of the monks coming out of the temple, calling for people to help move things. He immediately stopped inhaling the aroma and rushed over.

There was no reward for helping the monks move things. Anyone who felt they still had strength could join them and also stop whenever they wanted.

Feng Wanba noticed that the monk calling for help was surrounded by a crowd.

Everyone selected was excited, and some even jumped with joy.

Feng Wanba knew what they really wanted—to see the living Bodhisattva.

The people who had moved things earlier returned and spread the news. This grain was brought over by the living Bodhisattva, who had come to the mortal realm to save them!

Everyone wanted to see a real living Bodhisattva and get some blessings from them. It was rumored that those who had previously seen the Bodhisattva had all their minor ailments cured.

He wanted to meet the Bodhisattva too, so he squeezed his way in and raised his hand as high as possible.

“You, you, and you.” Feng Wanba was so excited at being selected that he could hardly contain himself.

When he arrived at Righteous Monastery, he was still buzzing with excitement and chatting with those around him.

“Did the Bodhisattva really send food? A lot of food? Does that mean we won’t go hungry anymore?”

“What does the Bodhisattva look like?”

“I heard the Bodhisattva is a man this time. Why is it a male Bodhisattva?”

“I heard the Bodhisattva was once a man and then became a woman. Maybe the Bodhisattva is androgynous.”

“Are you crazy? How dare you disrespect the Bodhisattva! What if he gets angry and stops sending food? Kneel and apologize!”

While they chatted, a hole suddenly appeared in the sky and a sack came out from it.

The rustling sound of the sack falling on the ground made Feng Wanba’s ears perk up—that was the sound of rice!

Then, one sack after another of food was sent down. One sack even burst open, and corn spilled out of it. The merciful Bodhisattva had indeed come to save them!

Feng Wanba and everyone else immediately knelt and bowed deeply to the food.

At that moment, the hole in the sky seemed like a divine manifestation to them.

Feng Wanba was overwhelmed by the scene. He didn’t even know what he was saying and was just shouting excitedly.

Everyone cried out loudly when the red-robed Bodhisattva descended from the sky.

An omnipotent, divine being was looking after them. They hadn’t been abandoned. They were going to survive!

Li Huowang directed the approaching monks. “The sacks marked with a line are seeds! The unmarked ones are food. Quickly gather people and get those seeds planted.”

The cries and shouts around him made him irritable, so he turned and yelled, “Enough noise! Stand up!”

In an instant, everyone who had been kneeling stood up. “Get the food to the granary! If it rains, everything will get soaked!”

Everyone started to move, but they still howled as they worked.

“Where’s the Abbot?” Li Huowang asked the nearest monk.

“Amitabha, the Abbot is having a meal in the kitchen.”

Li Huowang headed that way with a cold expression.

“Bodhisattva! What is your name? I’ll set up a shrine for you and offer incense daily!” Feng Wanba shouted from behind.

“Zhuge Yuan!”

Li Huowang soon found the abbot in the kitchen. He was sitting by the stove and eating meat from a large bowl.

Nearby, some monks skillfully skinned, deboned, and cleaned the innards before adding them to a steaming pot.

“You’re still eating that?”

Chan Du put down his bowl and chopsticks. “Wine and meat pass through the gut, while the Buddha remains in the heart. The Buddha won’t blame me.”

“I meant that we have grain now. Why are you still eating this?” Li Huowang frowned as he looked at the pot of simmering flesh.

“There will never be enough grain. If I don’t go to hell, who will? Let the people eat the grain. This is fine for me. Besides, I like meat.” Chan Du picked up another piece and chewed it contentedly.

“I brought seeds this time. Get people to plant them and ensure no one eats the seedlings out of hunger.”

It was not enough for him to deliver food by himself this way. The Great Liang’s food supply was limited, and the people of the Qi Kingdom needed to take action to solve their own problems.

“Amitabha. Thank you, benefactor. There’s fertile land near You Capital that yields three harvests a year. I’ll send people to plant there immediately.”

After a pause, Chan Du added, “Benefactor, in addition to seeds, could you also bring us some piglets?”

“After all, meat is our specialty. We can fatten the pigs up quickly.”

“How are you going to raise pigs when the people don’t have enough to eat?”

“Pigs can eat excrement and even human corpses. We can certainly raise them.” Chan Du replied as a matter of fact.

His words reminded Li Huowang of some things in the past.

Chapter 825 - Trouble

Li Huowang did not refute his words and replied, “There are so many people in the Great Qi. Is there no one who can make the crops grow faster?”

“Yes, we usually call such people farmers.”

“Damn it, that’s not what I meant! I’m talking about divine powers! Divine powers!”

Li Huowang paced back and forth in the kitchen, biting his fingernails. Suddenly, he stopped. “Whether it’s the remnants of the Surveillance Bureau or people from other sects, notify them all to gather here and brainstorm a solution for the Great Qi!”

“We must use all available resources. No matter how much food I bring, I can only save the people around You Capital. Everyone else is still starving.”

“Amitabha. You do not need to worry so much, benefactor. Heaven has the virtue of cherishing life. The people in other parts of the Great Qi won’t all starve. Those who survive can eat the corpses of those who perished, which should sustain them for a while.”

“As if that’s a good thing! Nevermind. I’ll go get some more pigs.” Li Huowang drew his spine sword and slashed forcefully at the kitchen wall.

He returned to the Great Liang and immediately headed to the west market of Shangjing.

“Brother Li! Brother Li!” A somewhat familiar voice called out to him.

Li Huowang turned around, and his gaze fell upon the wooden mask on the man’s face. It took him a moment to recall that this was Liu Zongyuan from Moongate.

When Li Huowang infiltrated the Surveillance Bureau, he had worked with him on a few tasks.

Liu Zongyuan was well-informed and clearly aware of Li Huowang's elevated status. As such, his attitude was far more respectful now.

He said a few words, but the shouts of the White Lotus followers nearby drowned him out, making it impossible for Li Huowang to understand him.

The two moved a bit farther away, and Liu Zongyuan immediately complained, "The White Lotus Sect was once considered evil but is now openly welcomed. How does that make sense?"

"What are they up to?" Li Huowang looked at the people in the distance.

"I've heard they're praying for the Heavenly Mater to bring down the lost Hometown of True Void to save everyone."

Li Huowang had heard from Miaomiao that they wanted to pray for the Heavenly Mater to let go of the vanished Heavenly Dao of Death. Still, the situation was more complicated than that.

Li Huowang turned his gaze back to Liu Zongyuan. "By the way, what were you trying to say?"

"Oh, I was just saying, Brother Li, it's been a while. How about I treat you to a meal to catch up?"

Li Huowang quickly lost interest when he realized it was just small talk. "Maybe next time. I'm busy right now."

"Oh? What troubles you, Brother Li? Perhaps I can lend a hand?"

"How can you help the dead?"

"The dead? That's not a problem these days. In fact, it's considered a blessing. Many people are desperate to die but can't. Why be troubled?"

Li Huowang wanted to explain, but he was too exhausted.

“Yeah, being dead isn’t great, but neither is not being dead. People are just that contradictory.”

He paid no further heed to Liu Zongyuan and went to the west market.

After quickly negotiating the prices with a pig farmer, he proceeded to prepare multiple piglets in pig cages for transportation to the Great Qi.

Upon delivering the piglets to the Righteous Monastery, Li Huowang saw the monks bringing out their wriggling Buddha statue.

The monks sat cross-legged around the Buddha statue on the lotus seat. Then, they struck their wooden fish and chanted.

“Peace and happiness to be bestowed upon the world, where the immovable heaven can see. Living beings blinded by ignorance are often lost in delusion, but the wondrous eye can understand this method. The pure and wondrous form of the Tathagata manifests in all directions and is incomparable. This body is formless and without attachment.”

Amidst the chanting, the squirming Buddha began to consume the piglets one by one, just like someone eating steamed buns.

It didn’t entirely swallow them, leaving a part of each pig’s head exposed. The uneaten pig heads let out pitiful screams.

As the chanting grew louder, the pig heads swelled, and strange bumps appeared on their bodies.

The piglets grew rapidly to adult size, but they looked bizarrely deformed, with short limbs or tumors on their backs.

The pigs were expelled with a series of plopping sounds. They immediately began climbing on top of each other while writhing frantically.

The sight made Li Huowang frown. Though the Righteous Monastery was a famous and upright sect, their methods made him uncomfortable.

At that moment, the monks arrived with carts full of corpses and buckets of feces. They proceeded to dump them onto the pigs.

The pigs ravenously devoured the mixture and rolled in the filth and blood. Their bellies gradually swelled as they ate.

“Benefactor Li, the union of male and female is a great way of interaction between yin and yang. There’s no need to feel this way. Soon, the common people won’t have to eat just grain and human flesh. They’ll also get to enjoy pork.”

“Is there any difference?” Li Huowang felt nauseous, so he stepped outside to get some fresh air.

Once he started feeling better and was about to return, Chan Du offered him a bowl of pork.

“Benefactor Li, would you like to try some?”

Li Huowang did not accept it. “This pork smells foul! How can you expect others to eat this?”

In his opinion, the pork had an overwhelming stench resembling that of a cesspit.

Chan Du picked up a piece and chewed on it. “Is it? No, Benefactor Li, this meat is fragrant. You find it foul because you’re not hungry enough yet.”

Li Huowang had nothing left to say. He drew his spine sword to prepare to transport more grain.

Chan Du called after him, “Wait, Benefactor Li. Your compassion is known to us all, but the Qi Kingdom lacks more than just food. Haven’t you noticed anything unusual about the sky on your travels?”

Li Huowang looked up at the sky, which seemed normal. He didn’t understand Chan Du’s point.

“The Dragon Vein of the Great Qi is gone, and with it, time itself. It’s been stuck at one o’clock. The cycles of heaven and earth have come to a halt.”

At that moment, Miao Guihua, who was sweeping the floor, walked by. Chan Du waved her over and handed her the bowl of pork. Guihua happily accepted it and began eating it ravenously.

Chan Du gently patted her head. "With no dawn or dusk, this little girl will never grow up and will stay like this forever."

"That's just the effect on people. The absence of time has broader consequences for the Heavenly Daos of the Great Qi."

Chapter 826 - Helpers

The Qi Kingdom requires a Dragon Vein and an emperor. Only then will the people be unified. With the Dragon Vein, the wheels of the world will turn on their own. The birds, flowers, and animals would return soon after that.”

Chan Du explained as he gently patted Miao Guihua’s head.

Li Huowang stared at the skies that were doomed to be forever bright as he listened to Chan Du. “What will happen if there’s no flow of time? How long will it take to affect everyone?”

“Is there anyone skilled in divination here in the Qi Kingdom?”

“There is. I pray that the Gan family has not died off. They are the best when it comes to divination.”

Li Huowang looked at the skies and frowned. “Then find a way to locate them! Find them!”

“Daoist Li, this low-ranked general has sent his men to go and find them.” A boisterous voice suddenly came from Li Huowang’s side.

Li Huowang turned and saw an eight-foot-tall burly man walking out from the gates of the Righteous Monastery. He was muscular and had a large beard.

Even though he wasn’t holding a weapon and was wearing civilian attire, the faint murderous aura emanating from his body proved that he was a soldier.

His facial appearance also differed significantly from that of the civilians. The muscles on his cheeks hadn’t shrunk even though he was starving.

The man clasped his fists together to greet Li Huowang. “Low-ranked General Chen Yurong greets Daoist Li!”

“A soldier of the Qi Kingdom? How many of you are left?”

“Vanguard, thirty-six. Cavalry, twenty-four. Spear-users, one hundred seventy-one. Foot soldiers, three hundred ninety-eight. Chariots, seventy-five. Elite soldiers, four. All of them are yours to command!”

Li Huowang frowned. “Is that all? Is no one else working as an official in the Palace of the Great Qi?”

“There are more people, but at this moment in time, none of them can compare to you. As the Qi Kingdom’s soldiers, we would swear our loyalty to our kingdom’s savior!”

Li Huowang realized that the soldiers were much more intelligent and adaptable than he had expected.

Li Huowang did need people to help him, even though they would only work for him for the sake of food.

“An order? Fine. Summon all of the officials to come find me. Tell them I won’t let them starve if they work for me. Also, continue your search for the Gan family. Find them as soon as possible!”

Li Huowang stood there, pondering before saying, “Wait for them to come back and we will see what we can do. Right now, we need to address the food crisis. We don’t want anyone to starve to death, even after this crisis is over. Also, the Qi Kingdom must be saved by someone from the Qi Kingdom. You cannot rely on an outsider like me.”

Chan Du replied, “Amitabha. I must now ponder whether the Qi Kingdom's destiny will be shaped by an Emperor from within, or... if it will be shaped by Benefactor Li. The choice of what to do next is in your hands.”

Li Huowang understood what Chan Du implied. “What do you mean?”

“It doesn’t mean anything.”

Chan Du was trying to use power to sway Li Huowang over. However, Li Huowang said, “I’m just a Daoist who wishes to become an Immortal. I have no use for the Qi Kingdom. Did you think I wanted something from you all by helping you?”

The Qi Kingdom was massive—as large as the Liang Kingdom, Qing Qiu, Si Qi, Hou Shu, and Nan Ping combined.

Li Huowang had told Gao Zhijian that he would become the Emperor of the Qi Kingdom, but he had said it out of spite. He just didn’t want to see so many people starve to death.

He wasn’t even from the Qi Kingdom and had to return one day. It would become a burden for him to rule over the Qi Kingdom.

However, Chan Du didn’t want him to return. He decided to reveal something else to persuade Li Huowang to help them.

Chan Du looked up at the skies. “Benefactor Li, the decision is yours. Don’t look down on the Qi Kingdom just because our current population is small. If the Qi Kingdom becomes prosperous again, it could easily overshadow the Liang Kingdom. And by then, you would have the power to determine the official religion of the Qi Kingdom with just a single sentence.”

Li Huowang followed his gaze, and a question popped into his mind. Does Ji Zai need followers?

Li Huowang was confused about his future self. It was as if Ji Zai was the only Siming without followers.

There were even devotees who worshiped Death. Why weren’t there any for Bewilderment?

It wasn’t as if Ji Zai had zero followers. Li Huowang was technically one, and Sui Sui was the other.

Li Huowang decided to ask the crucial question. “Would a Siming’s strength increase as its worshipers increase?”

Li Huowang was interested in possible methods to strengthen his future self.

If nothing else, a beefed-up Ji Zai would be more helpful if there was another threat like the Dharma Sect.

Also, compared to the other Simings, Ji Zai was still too weak.

Chan Du shook his head. "Amitabha. We monks cannot lie or make assumptions. I do not know."

"Old monk, you have become quite cunning." Li Huowang looked at Chan Du, who looked the same as the old monk. "Don't worry. I will still help the Qi Kingdom, regardless of whether it benefits me. I just don't want to see people starve for no reason."

Li Huowang unsheathed his spine sword and swung out another rift before diving into it.

Li Huowang continued to send food around You Capital for a period of time. At the very least, the monks weren't serving human flesh anymore. That meant that there were no longer people who starved to death around the You Capital.

Li Huowang was sending food and resources to help the people of the Qi Kingdom stand on their own feet again. He sent them some lambs from Qing Qiu since there was an abundance of grass in the Qi Kingdom. While the lambs would take some time to mature, the people should at least be able to drink their milk.

Li Huowang sat on a rock in a remote forest around Shangjing and looked at a buried corpse in front of him. He reached into it and pulled out the spine.

He couldn't sell it right now, but the spine of a Strayed One would still make a good weapon.

He swung it to his left, distorting and pulling the trees apart. The trees didn't break despite their distorted state. It was clear they would continue to grow like that.

Li Huowang placed the spine behind his back before he wrapped the remaining pieces of his body to exchange them for Lifespan Pills, which he would later exchange for money.

He was busy working on the corpse when he suddenly stopped.
Someone was coming.

Chapter 827 - Luck

As Li Huowang was gazing at the road, a carriage emerged in the distance.

The sound of bells filled the air as the extravagant carriage moved towards him.

Eight well-groomed horses trod gracefully and slowly pulled the carriage along. It was clear that the owner of the carriage was not someone ordinary.

Li Huowang's face lit up with joy when he saw Xuan Pin open the carriage curtains. He put down his sword and leaped onto the carriage.

However, his face fell when he saw the people inside the carriage. Xuan Pin was not the only one there. There was also the current Emperor of the Liang Kingdom, Gao Zhijian.

“Sit.” Xuan Pin pulled Li Huowang down and let him sit.

Xuan Pin stared at the two before disappearing into the back of the carriage.

“Senior Li, Shangjing’s food prices have skyrocketed because of your purchases.”

“Really? Are you sure it's not because of the Emperor's hundred and eight dishes that day?”

Gao Zhijian did not deny it. He just remained silent.

It was only when they heard the sound of people talking outside that Gao Zhijian slightly opened the curtains. They were back in Shangjing.

“To destroy the Dharma Sect, many people in Shangjing had to relinquish much of their fortune. Also, since we’ve lost a couple of divisions in a day, our calendar is obsolete now. Food is hard to grow, and since you keep sending food to the Qi Kingdom, it would be useless for us to open our granaries.”

To the left was a grain shop. Several civilians exited the place as they sighed and cursed.

Li Huowang replied, “At least they are still alive and don’t have to eat human flesh. Compared to the Qi Kingdom, the Liang Kingdom could be considered Heaven.”

“That’s true, but Senior Li, don’t forget that people in the Liang Kingdom cannot die right now.” Gao Zhijian closed the curtains, and the carriage continued trudging into Shangjing.

Soon, the carriage stopped. Gao Zhijian opened the curtains to reveal an alleyway filled with beggars. All of them were extremely skinny from starvation. Their limbs were like chopsticks, and their abdomens were engorged. They looked exactly like the hungry ghosts depicted in operas.

They were all lying on the ground without moving. Some of them were even rotting.

An old man was pulling over a cart, picking out the beggars in a more advanced state of decay and transporting them elsewhere to be incinerated.

“Senior Li, as you know, no one is born a beggar. The Liang Kingdom didn’t have that many beggars before—they were all ordinary civilians. Food prices are the lifeline of the civilians. If they increase, everything else follows suit. The higher the prices are, the more beggars there will be.”

Li Huowang looked outside and snapped, “Fine, I understand. I will go find food somewhere else.”

“Senior Li, do you really think I’m talking about food to you? When it comes to the Qi Kingdom and the Liang Kingdom, which is more important to you?”

Gao Zhijian bent his body forward. His face was serious.

“Who cares which is more important? Why can’t we make them equal and reduce the amount of deaths on both sides?”

“We cannot! Senior Li, have you ever wondered why the Surveillance Bureau imposes severe punishments on individuals who print out calendars or alter history books? The punishments even extend to three generations of their families. And also, why do you think the Surveillance Bureau was so guarded against Zhuge Yuan, the storyteller?

“It’s because the Qi Kingdom and the Liang Kingdom are not mutually exclusive! A thousand years ago, the Qi Kingdom fell. Then, the Liang Kingdom was born. If the Qi Kingdom hadn’t fallen, the Liang Kingdom wouldn’t exist. But if the Qi Kingdom is still around, then the Liang Kingdom shouldn’t exist! This is the fate [\[1\]](#) of the world!”

The carriage fell back into silence, broken only by the soft breaths of Li Huowang and Gao Zhijian.

Gao Zhijian took a deep breath. “Senior Li, do not go help the Qi Kingdom again. Let everything flow naturally. Even the Storyteller is gone. Just think of it as if they never existed.”

“I need some time to think about it.” Li Huowang turned and left the carriage, his brain buzzing from the new information.

Gao Zhijian sat in the carriage for a moment before he opened his mouth again. “You were supposed to tell him these things. Why did you need me to tell him?”

Xuan Pin’s massive frame floated down from the top of the carriage. “You’re already playing the bad guy, so you might as well do it all the way. I don’t want my father to hate me.”

“Your father is a clumsy oaf!”

Gao Zhijian sighed after venting his frustration. “Do you think Senior Li will listen to us?”

“No, but it’s time that we tell him about it. He will decide what to do.”

“Sigh. Why can’t Senior Li think about it from my position? I really don’t want to become the bad guy.”

“Again, since you are now the Liang Kingdom’s Emperor, your path is destined to be different. You just need to play your part.”

“I’m already regretting my decision. I shouldn’t have become the Emperor.” Gao Zhijian took out a bag from under his robes. Inside the bag was the flesh of a Spiritual Sin. Gao Zhijian took a heavy whiff of it.

He felt less conflicted about his decision when he opened his eyes. He was now once again the regal and authoritative Liang Kingdom’s Emperor.

“Do you think we will successfully annex Si Qi and Nan Ping into the Liang Kingdom? They are separated by Qing Qiu and Hou Shu.”

“I am the Chief of the Surveillance Bureau. I cannot interfere in the matters of the palace.”

Li Huowang walked on the road, feeling distraught as he recalled what Gao Zhijian had told him.

If the Qi Kingdom is real, then the Liang Kingdom is fake. If the Liang Kingdom is real, then the Qi Kingdom is fake. So which side is real?

The two sides aren’t parallel worlds—they’re part of a single timeline that existed a thousand years ago. It’s impossible to split them now.

But then, why is it impossible for the two of them to exist simultaneously? It’s contradictory.

“What’s going on with this world?” Li Huowang had a headache.

“That’s because it’s crazy,” someone interrupted. Li Huowang looked down and saw Ji Zai in the reflection of a pool of water.

He stared at his future self and asked, “And then?”

“Nothing else. I can’t say anything else right now since I haven't said it yet."

"Do you think I don't know this world is crazy? Do you think can't see that? Go away."

"You are indeed missing an eye." Ji Zai disappeared, and Li Huowang saw that his reflection had returned.

He squatted down and splashed his face with the water to wake himself up.

As he shook his head to remove the excess water from his hair, he realized he had traveled back to Cowheart Village.

Even though he could cultivate the "Truth," it still took him two days to reach Shangjing from Cowheart Village. However, he had somehow instantly traveled back to Cowheart Village.

Li Huowang entered the village and saw Puppy. "Senior Li, you're back early this year!"

1. Previously translated 气运 as luck, but fate would be more appropriate. 📖

2. The six ministers representing Official Affairs, Revenue, Rites, Military, Justice, and Industry. 📖

Chapter 828 - Busy

“This year?” Li Huowang’s heart beat rapidly when he heard Puppy saying that. He had an unsettling thought bubbling out from his mind.

“What do you mean?” Li Huowang approached Puppy and carried him up. “Did a long time pass?”

“Senior... Senior Li, please don’t relapse into your illness again. Not... Not much time has passed. It’s still not the Qingming festival yet.”

Li Huowang took a deep sigh before placing Puppy down. “Please speak more clearly and be specific next time.”

“Alright.” Puppy dared not get angry at Li Huowang, who was mentally ill.

“Oh, right. Senior Li, you have nothing to do, right? Do you mind managing the village if you are free? There are more and more people in the village. Without you or Senior Bai, Zhao Wu and I can barely manage it.”

“Can’t you hire someone to do it? Do you need me to say this?” However, as he observed the village, he had a realization.

“Puppy, do we have enough food in the village?”

“Of course we do. Senior Li, do you remember how the Heavenly Dog ate the sun last time? You instructed us to stockpile more food for emergencies. We did buy a lot more food. We should have enough food to feed the village for a few years.”

Li Huowang was overjoyed. “Bring me to the granary then!”

Puppy led Li Huowang to the Bai family’s ancestral hall. They twisted the bronze monkey statue and went underground.

Li Huowang saw the secret rooms of the White Lotus Sect stuffed with food. The spacious underground hall and the corridors were filled with mountains of food.

Li Huowang's eyes were wide with shock, but Puppy misunderstood and quickly explained, "Senior Bai took everything last time. Since this place was empty, we used it to stockpile our food instead. It's a very good place to keep food, with plenty of space and no water leaks. More importantly, it's also hidden. Even if the village comes under attack, it'd be hard for the enemies to find this place."

Li Huowang laughed when he saw the food in front of him. He never imagined the village would have such a large stockpile, all while he had been painstakingly searching for food.

"Puppy, call everyone in the village and bag up the food. I want to use it!"

"Use it? How?" Puppy was confused, but he still followed Li Huowang's orders.

Even though Li Huowang was rarely in the village, everyone knew that he made the decisions.

Everyone gathered around the Bai family's ancestral hall and slowly moved out the food from the secret room, bag by bag.

"You guys, keep sorting the food in the bags. Let me go check the other side." Li Huowang swung his spine sword.

He returned to the Qi Kingdom and saw a man with tattered clothes hunched over the ground.

"Niu San! What are you doing?" Li Huowang called for the man.

Niu San looked back and was surprised to see Li Huowang. "No... nothing. I'm planting some potatoes."

Li Huowang had left some food for him last time. Niu San didn't want to eat it all, so he decided to plant some.

"Stop whatever you are doing now and come help me fetch food!"

"Alright!" Niu San tearfully nodded and ran towards Li

Huowang.

Those nearby the area were once the refugees who lived in Cowheart Village. They all heard Li Huowang shouting that there was food and came running towards him. They cried and called him their savior again and again.

At the very least, there were enough people to carry the food. They sent bags of food through the rift again and again.

There was so much food that it would take days to transport all of them to the Qi Kingdom, even with the help of the entire village, especially since the secret room's corridor was tiny.

While the food was being transported, Li Huowang ran towards the You capital to meet with Chen Yurong.

He had just reached there when he met someone he had not seen before.

"This lowly one is called Liang Yuxuan. I greet the Daoist!" A disheveled elderly man greeted Li Huowang. There were several people behind him.

Chen Yurong explained, "Daoist, they are the officials that I found. Thankfully, you ordered me to find them in time, or they would have starved to death."

Li Huowang looked at the man and asked, "What kind of official are you in the Qi Kingdom?"

"I work in the Imperial Clan Court."

"What kind of official is that?" Li Huowang did not understand what the job entails.

"We take records of the palace by etching the records onto jade discs at certain time intervals. We record the family tree of the royal family and the titles of the nobles and officials. We also write down details about deaths, births, and marriages within the royal family."

Li Huowang pondered before asking, "The Qi Kingdom is in chaos now. There's no law and order everywhere. Can you temporarily form a palace in the Qi Kingdom with the people behind you right now?”

“We can!” Liang Yuxuan answered without hesitation. The price of not being able to do so was naturally starvation. He had no choice but to put together some sort of organization with whatever he had left.

Li Huowang looked at the sunken faces of the people and nodded. “Alright. Let’s get it started, then. I will talk about my ultimate goal right now. We need to revive the Qi Kingdom and make sure that the people of the Qi Kingdom can stand on their own feet. They must be able to survive even if I don’t send food here.”

Everyone felt nervous when they heard that.

“Daoist, does that mean you won’t send food from today onwards?” asked a younger official out of fear.

“Are you deaf? I said I want us to be independent. Now go and work!”

Li Huowang wasn’t sure they would be helpful, but it was better than nothing.

“Yes!” All of them bowed and retreated except for Liang Yuxuan.

He bowed towards Li Huowang once more.

“The disciple of the Minglun Hall, Liang Yuxuan, greets the Daoist.” For some reason, his aura changed completely.

“Minglun Hall?” Li Huowang stared at the man before him but wasn’t surprised.

He knew that there were people like him in the Qi Kingdom, so it was inevitable that he would run into them one day. After all, they had a higher chance of surviving after a Natural Disaster than regular people.

However, he hadn’t expected to meet someone from the Minglun Hall, a sect he hadn’t interacted with. It wasn’t the White Lotus Sect, the Moongate, the Ao Jing Sect, or the Antrabhara Temple.

Still, Li Huowang had some memories of meeting them before during his fight with the Dharma Sect.

The people from Minglun Hall all had three arms and could turn drawings into real life. He must've hidden his third arm.

Chapter 829 - Reviving The Society

“Can you enter the palace and become an official with your identity?” Li Huowang asked the old man in front of him.

“Yes. The disciples of the Minglun Hall are all disciples of Confucianism too.”

“I apologize, but with our current situation, it won’t be easy for me to contact the others. However, if we revive the palace of the Qi Kingdom, they might catch wind and come assist us.”

Liang Yuxuan paused a moment before continuing, “Daoist, when I was on my way here, I coincidentally encountered the leader from the Mo family. He had caught wind of the news in the You Capital and wanted to help.”

“Oh? Then that’s good news.” Li Huowang didn’t care who it was as long as they could help. The more, the better.

He was here to help the Qi Kingdom, and there was a limit to how much Li Huowang could do on his own.

Liang Yuxuan hesitated when he heard Li Huowang’s answer. He glanced at Chan Du, who had stopped rotating his prayer beads.

“Daoist, I’m not sure if I could say this...”

“What do you want to say? There’s no need to ask for my permission. Speak.”

“The people from the Mo family do things differently. You need to be careful.”

Li Huowang heard him and remembered what he had heard when he worked for the Surveillance Bureau. Different branches had formed within the Mo Family. The Mo family from the Liang Kingdom was orthodox, but the Mo family from the Qi Kingdom was an evil sect.

"Are they an evil sect?" Liang Yuxuan remained silent in response to the question, yet Li Huowang could tell it was a tacit agreement.

Li Huowang looked at Chan Du. If the orthodox sects are like this, I wonder how bad the Mo family must be for everyone to label them as an evil sect.

"Is the Sitting Oblivion Dao an evil sect?"

"Yes."

"I see. Go ahead and focus on your work for now."

Li Huowang decided to stay put and wait for the leader of the Mo family from the Qi Kingdom to arrive.

Li Huowang didn't care if they were an evil sect or not. He was sure that the leader of the Mo family wouldn't be stupid enough to stir up trouble in the current situation.

Li Huowang temporarily lived in the You Capital. While it didn't matter to him, it significantly boosted the morale of the people since he was their Bodhisattva.

He didn't know when, but he had somehow turned into everyone's anchor.

What Li Huowang had not expected was that the famine in the Qi Kingdom had been greatly alleviated. Surprisingly, it was not because of the Mo family—it was thanks to a sack of moldy grain with mushrooms growing on it.

"Did you plant this?" Li Huowang saw Feng Wanba busily tending to rows of mushrooms in the underground room.

"Yes, I planted them!" exclaimed Feng Wanba with great excitement, eagerly nodding as he presented the mushrooms to Li Huowang. "We were feeling quite hungry, and then I unexpectedly came across these mushrooms, so I had the idea to try eating them.

"And guess what? It worked! These mushrooms can be harvested every few days, and they just keep on growing. They're even better than grain!"

"Are you sure these are edible?" Li Huowang saw black spots on the mushrooms.

"You can fill up your belly with them, although they cause diarrhea and make your lips turn purple."

Li Huowang was confident that the mushrooms were poisonous and couldn't be eaten.

Still, it did give him an idea. Grains were hard to grow and took a long time to harvest. Mushrooms, on the other hand, were easy to grow. More importantly, mushrooms grew faster and could be harvested within a few days. Purchasing mushrooms also wouldn't increase Shangjing's food prices.

Li Huowang returned to the Liang Kingdom and bought some edible mushrooms before sending them over.

Although a lot of people had died in the Qi Kingdom, there were still enough farmers. Under their care, the mushrooms soon grew and helped alleviate the famine.

Soon, almost everyone in the You Capital started growing mushrooms. While not everyone was successful, it greatly reduced the need to eat grain.

People gathered on the western ruins of the You Capital. They were there to sell items they carried in baskets.

Li Huowang walked among the crowd and checked his surroundings. There wasn't a large selection of items being sold. While some people were selling items like straw slippers, most of them were selling food, such as wild vegetables, mushrooms, goat milk, pork, and even kaolinite.[ref]A type of clay. In ancient times, people ate it during famines to alleviate hunger. While it didn't provide any nutrients, it helped fill their stomachs.[ref]

Food was the currency here. Gold, silver, and bronze coins were useless now. No one picked them up, even if they were lying on the street.

An old man walked into the market with four catties of pearly-white rice. A crowd immediately formed around him, attracted by his merchandise.

White rice was an incredible food, and its rarity made it exorbitantly expensive. The current value of four catty of white rice in the Qi Kingdom was beyond measure.

The old man chewed on some white rice beads, making the people around him feel envious. Even so, the surrounding crowd only shouted out prices, with no one daring to steal.

There were three individuals from the military within the western ruins. They were holding swords dripping with blood to maintain order.

Li Huowang was satisfied with the scene in front of him. Even though it was still scrappy, order was slowly being introduced back to the You Capital.

“Not bad.”

Li Huowang’s praise made Liang Yuxuan bow down a little lower. “It’s just part of my duty.”

Even though it wasn’t his expertise, he had people working under him who once worked in magistrates and local administrative offices. With the soldiers and food at their disposal, maintaining order among the refugees was a relatively simple task.

"Daoist, the Qi Kingdom is too big. We don’t have enough people to extend aid to everyone, especially since we lack carriages and horses right now. Traveling would prove challenging, so I plan to first revive our society here.

“People will flock here once the You Capital is up and running again. Then, we can organize them and assign them to work in the fields to grow food.

“Our current issue is not lack of food, but rather lack of manpower. Distributing free porridge will only foster a group of lazy individuals who refuse to work. We need them to work in exchange for food. This way, we'll be able to mobilize everyone. With everyone working, the Qi Kingdom will slowly recover."

Liang Yuxuan dared not speak in jargon and explained things as simply as he could to Li Huowang.

"Then let's make it quick. The fewer people we lose, the better."

"Daoist, you are indeed right. I will do my best to chart out a path of survival for the people of the Qi Kingdom. My master taught me that those who wish to unify the land should first fix their country. To fix their country, the leader must first unify the people. To unify—"

"Shut up."

"Yes."

At that moment, a quarrel erupted in a corner of the western ruins. An elderly man was pulling on a young person, exclaiming, "You insolent child! You're not selling kaolinite! It doesn't fill up my belly!"

"Stop slandering me! I'm eating the same things I'm selling!"

Soon, a crowd gathered around them. Two soldiers approached to break up the fight.

Li Huowang wanted to leave when he saw the little altercation when he stopped. He noticed someone was observing the fight.

Upon witnessing the little altercation, Li Huowang decided to leave. However, before he did so, he came to a sudden halt as he caught sight of someone observing the fight. Li Huowang and the man locked eyes simultaneously, and Li Huowang immediately knew that the man was none other than the leader of the Mo family.

Chapter 830 - Mo Family

Li Huowang had never seen the leader of the Mo family before, but he was certain that the man in front of him was the leader, especially since he had a black bird on his shoulder.

The bird was filled with life, but something was wrong with it. Li Huowang noticed that while it looked normal, it had a strange warping sense.

Li Huowang turned his attention to the man instead of the bird. The man was wearing a cotton overall and dressed just like a woman. For some reason, he was also wearing a smiling clay puppet head.

Despite his weird attire, no one noticed him. More importantly, he had three shadows.

Liang Yuxuan whispered to Li Huowang, “Daoist, that’s him.”

As Li Huowang approached, the man also made his way towards him.

He could now see him more clearly. The man before him didn’t have his Ten Emotions and Eight Sufferings. It was as if he wasn’t human at all!

“Are you the leader of the Qi Kingdom’s Mo family?”

The man’s clay puppet head moved slightly. “What’s the Qi Kingdom Mo family? The Mo family has always been a single sect. There is only one of us.”

Since there was no Liang Kingdom in the Qi Kingdom, there was naturally no divergence between the Liang Kingdom’s Mo family and the Qi Kingdom’s Mo family.

The man bowed to Li Huowang. “Mo family leader Meng Sheng greets Daoist Li.”

Li Huowang did not avoid it but instead accepted it, “I’ve heard that you came to help me?”

“Indeed. The Qi Kingdom is in danger. The rules of our family dictate that we must save the world if it's in danger.”

Li Huowang pondered before asking, “How many people do you have?”

“We have 342 families.”

Li Huowang silently calculated. Since each family has roughly three people, they appear to have more than a thousand people.

“What is the Mo family’s specialty?”

Meng Sheng removed the doll's head, revealing a wooden mesh made from dovetail joints that formed an empty skull. The person was indeed not human.

Li Huowang frowned when he saw the doll in front of him. “You’re not even meeting me in person to offer assistance?”

Just as Li Huowang finished speaking, a dwarf suddenly emerged beneath the doll's head.

“Meng Sheng, leader of the Mo family, greets Daoist Li!” The dwarf greeted Li Huowang again.

“Call everyone here if you want to help me. You can’t save the Qi Kingdom alone.”

“I understand. I will call for them now!” Meng Sheng leaped into action as he donned the doll head and reattached it to the main body. With a swivel, the doll headed off.

Li Huowang frowned after Meng Sheng disappeared. “You said they are an evil sect. Is it because of the techniques they cultivate? I didn’t sense anything evil from him.”

From that short interaction, Li Huowang sensed that the Mo family was far weaker than the Sitting Oblivion Dao.

Liang Yuxuan explained, “No, the Mo family only uses some evil entities or treasures for their cultivation. They do not need sacrifices nor evil deeds to cultivate.”

“Then why are they evil?” Li Huowang was confused. The Mo family seemed much milder than the Righteous Monastery, an orthodox sect.

“Daoist, did you remember what I told you last time? They are not that easy to cooperate with.”

Liang Yuxuan hesitated as he tried to explain it better to Li Huowang. “Daoist, did you know where the saying ‘stuck in a rut’^[2] came from?”

Li Huowang found that Liang Yuxuan always avoided the point and didn’t give a straight answer. “Just tell me. Stop talking in circles.”

“Stuck in a rut describes someone who resists change and refuses to adapt. They will always adhere to the outdated rules. There’s also another meaning to it. It means that the Mo family will always cling to their rules. The Mo family will always abide by their own ancient rules, steadfastly following them when interacting with others, themselves, or addressing any matter. However, these rules were only suitable in the past. Abiding them now is nothing short of being evil.”

“Such as?” Li Huowang realized that they were not considered evil because of their cultivation methods, but rather because of the rules they followed.

“For instance, the Mo family has the peculiar tradition of capturing officials and braising them over a small fire until they turn into a slurry. They then consume the concoction with rainwater.

“Another unusual custom is that when a family member reaches adulthood, they must consume an evil entity and choose one of the Immortals to be their guardian. After that, they are required to sacrifice their first child to their chosen guardian.

“Furthermore, the Mo family strictly adheres to the rule of not marrying outsiders. Parents and children marry each other, brothers and sisters marry each other, and grandchildren and grandparents marry each other, following a cyclic pattern that repeats every five years. There are many other rules, but I don't know all of them since I am not a part of their family."

Li Huowang remained silent for a very long time. "Which fucking century did these rules come from?"

It was impossible for such rules to exist even a few thousand years ago. That was why the Surveillance Bureau labeled them as an evil sect. It was impossible to turn them into a righteous sect!

Liang Yuxuan was crestfallen. "I'm afraid you would have to ask their leader for more details."

Li Huowang regretted allowing the Mo family to intervene. The situation would go out of control when a large group of those weird rule-abiding dwarves were here.

"Find an empty space outside of the You Capital for them to stay at. Make sure that they are far away from us!"

"Yes."

"Also, ask your men to think about how we can use the Mo family in this situation!"

"Yes!"

Li Huowang was worried not only about the Mo family but also about the other evil sects. It would be impossible to stop them from arriving due to how the situation was evolving.

Keeping evil sects in check and using them to save the Qi Kingdom was beyond Li Huowang's expertise. He had the feeling that Gao Zhijian would be much better suited for this.

"I don't have enough people that I can use," Li Huowang mumbled.

It wouldn't be easy to restore the Qi Kingdom. He had finally encountered obstacles that even he found hard to surpass.

Li Huowang returned to the Liang Kingdom and saw that the old eunuch was already waiting for him.

Without waiting for the old eunuch to say anything, Li Huowang guessed what it was. “Go back and tell Gao Zhijian to stop nagging me! I’ve already heard what he has to say. I don’t want to revive the Qi Kingdom to destroy the Liang Kingdom!

“I just don’t want to see the people suffering there! I don’t need much. I simply want them to survive and have something to eat every day! As long as that is achieved, I won’t return!”

1. The original text here is 厌胜, a specialized field of traditional practice in warding off bad luck. The term combines “厌” (yàn), which means to dislike or dispel, and “胜” (shèng), which means to win or overcome. Typically, these practices involve rituals, charms, talismans, or specific behaviors believed to counteract negative influences or evil spirits. They can also be used for evil, in which certain items are placed or buried in different parts of a house to curse the inhabitants. 📖

2. The original text 墨守成规 is literally translated as “to cling to the rules like ink.” Mo can be the surname or the word for Ink.

Chapter 831 - Rescue

“Heaven and Earth, all things change... The sun and moon rotate while the Heavenly River swings in the sky. Spring and autumn come and go, and the four seasons change without fail. Grass, trees, wood, and the fruits of it all. Sacred crossing...”

Bai Lingmiao sat on the white lotus throne, her upper body split in half. All four of her hands formed a lotus seal, making her look like a tree.

The other devotees of the White Lotus Sect surrounded her and chanted the same mantra as her. All of them sported an expression of mercy and reverence. The white lotus motif on their forehead flickered from time to time.

The phenomenon wasn't happening at just this one location. The devotees of the White Lotus Sect in every corner of the world had set aside their work and were chanting simultaneously. The sheer number of devotees in the sect was enough to fill the entire Liang Kingdom with the sound of their collective chants.

The magnificent scene made everyone else show respect or reverence towards them. They even softened their tone when they spoke.

The ceremony ended after one division. Bai Lingmiao opened her eyes, and the hall gradually grew silent.

Everyone looked at her hopefully, waiting for her to announce something. They were ultimately disappointed.

The Heavenly Mater had personally requested that the ceremony be performed every day. Its purpose was to bring the Void Home down to earth through the earnest prayers of the devotees.

The devotees bowed to Bai Lingmiao as they sat up from their cushions and left. The bustling hall grew quiet again.

Bai Lingmiao sat up from her cushion and was about to pick up her white shoes when a familiar voice came from her back. "Do you think the ceremony will work? I don't think so. I doubt that the Void Home would descend here even if they were to chant ten thousand times."

Bai Lingmiao shook her head lightly. "We are all devotees of the White Lotus Sect. The Heavenly Master told us it would work, so it will work. We have to believe."

Even though she didn't want to admit it, Bai Lingmiao believed that the Void Home was real. What if it really existed and her family was residing in the Void Home?

"Hmph! I don't know what you are doing right now."

"We are doing what we must do." Bai Lingmiao reached the door to find that some of the devotees, the ones with the white donkey motifs tattooed on their backs, had prepared a palanquin for her.

She sat on it, and the devotees held up the palanquin. They took her towards an alleyway in the distance.

The alleyway was messy and dirty, with people swarmed by flies while rats incessantly fed on their flesh. It was full of people who could not die, even if they wanted to.

When Bai Lingmiao disembarked from the palanquin, the people somehow sensed her. They wriggled their dirty bodies and raised their dirty hands towards her white dress.

Everyone longed for her. Their eyes filled with desire as they gazed at the Saintess. They wanted her to grant them death.

Bai Lingmiao looked at them with immense sadness and benevolence. All of them were living humans, yet their existence was now even more miserable than that of a ghost.

She extended her arms and waved them above their foreheads, her heart brimming with thoughts of mercy. Every time her hand passed by someone, they would fall to the ground with a smile.

Waves of people died in Bai Lingmiao's hands. Amid the crowd, Bai Lingmiao appeared even purer to the people, even if her upper body was split into two.

Too many people in the Liang Kingdom wished to die. Many of them had traveled there in hopes of being reincarnated.

Bai Lingmiao didn't know how many people she had granted death to, but she felt that it was worth it every time she saw them smiling after being released from the shackles of life.

However, no matter how many people she sent off, countless others were still suffering, particularly those who had already been reduced to ashes...

After dealing with the people in the alley, the merciful Bai Lingmiao continued to pray to the Heavenly Mater.

"O merciful Heavenly Mater, please grant the embrace of death to the people again.."

She wasn't sure if the Heavenly Mater heard her, but she persevered and prayed daily.

Why hasn't the Heavenly Mater returned Death to us?

Bai Lingmiao questioned her from time to time. If the Heavenly Mater had it, she should've given it back.

Perhaps something happened to the Heavenly Mater? Bai Lingmiao thought it was possible and wanted to do something.

"Heh. What could we mere mortals do if she encountered a problem?"

After hearing the Second Deity, Bai Lingmiao returned to her palanquin. Instead of returning to her hall, she went to the Surveillance Bureau.

"Helping or not is one thing. Being able to do so or not is another thing."

Bai Lingmiao's excitement surged as she saw a figure in red robes appear before her. She almost called her Sui Sui but stopped in time. “Chief, thank you for meeting me.”

“Saintess, is there an issue?” Xuan Pin waved her arms, and both Bai Lingmiao and Xuan Pin shrunk to the size of a grain of rice. No one could hear what they were talking about now.

“The Natural Disaster is still in effect. Is there anything the Surveillance Bureau is doing to mitigate it?” Bai Lingmiao asked. The Surveillance Bureau was typically in charge of dealing with Natural Disasters.

“Is there anything the White Lotus Sect could do to help? Just let me know and we’ll do our best.”

Xuan Pin paused. “What did the Heavenly Mater say?”

Bai Lingmiao’s face darkened as she lightly shook her head. “The Heavenly Mater asked us to have the ceremony every single day. We received no further response even when I used the Twelve Merit Jade Lotus.”

“Something happened to the Heavenly Mater.”

Xuan Pin’s words made Bai Lingmiao’s heart skip a beat. “What?”

“Usually, a Siming who obtains a Heavenly Dao dispels the Natural Disaster within half a day. However, this Natural Disaster has lasted for over a few months. I fear that something might be wrong with the Siming holding onto this particular Heavenly Dao.”

Xuan Pin continued, “I also fear that the Heavenly Dao of Death might not be the only one being affected. The Heavenly Mater is still in charge of the Heavenly Dao of Mercy.”

“If Death and Mercy are gone, then... what can we do to end the Natural Disaster?” Bai Lingmiao asked earnestly.

Xuan Pin pondered and asked, “Did you say that the Heavenly Mater requested you to conduct the ceremony every day? Could you elaborate on what the ceremony entails?”

Bai Lingmiao did not hesitate to reveal every step of the ceremony since Xuan Pin was Li Sui.

Xuan Pin recorded something on her long robes with her slender fingers. She scrutinized it carefully after writing down the steps of the ceremony. “I think I know why she wanted to have the ceremony. She needs it to escape. The Heavenly Mater is being trapped. If she manages to move a bit, the Heavenly Dao of Death should return. Maybe we could try and help the Heavenly Mater by combining the forces of the Surveillance Bureau and the White Lotus Sect.”

Chapter 832 - Ceremony

The Heavenly Altar of the Liang Kingdom was a three-tiered building with a rounded roof. The top was covered in gold and azure blue tiles. The nine golden dragons within the hall were exceedingly dazzling.

Within the building was a single bronze tree that pierced through the azure blue roof and into the skies. Eight smaller altars surrounded the larger one. There were Daoists wearing bronze masks staring at the sky on the surrounding altars. All of them were waiting for the command of the Chief.

The devotees of the White Lotus Sect were outside the building, completely surrounding the altar. Clad in white robes, they stared at the building with reverence. Most of them were so excited that their hands were trembling.

A gentle wind blew past, causing the white ribbons on their foreheads to flutter in the wind. It looked like a sea of white just outside the altar.

All of them were looking at Bai Lingmiao, who was now in the Heavenly Altar. She was getting nervous with so many eyes on her.

She forced herself to calm down and focused on what she needed to do. Their mission was tied to the fate of everyone in the world, as death had completely vanished. They couldn't be reckless.

"Don't worry. I managed to invite a powerful individual this time. We can succeed."

Bai Lingmiao nodded after Xuan Pin assured her that everything would be alright. She calmed down a little.

The Surveillance Bureau naturally prepared everything for such a ceremony. You just need to focus on yourself.

Bai Lingmiao kept reassuring herself again and again.

Everyone was here, and nothing had happened yet. Time slowly passed as everyone painstakingly waited.

Just as the sun was in the middle of the sky, a bell tolled from the distance. Xuan Pin revealed three sets of arms and started making seals with all of them.

The devotees of the White Lotus Sect chanted deeply. The ceremony was starting in earnest now.

Purple flames lit up each of the altars, instantly engulfing Shangjing in a specific energy. The people of Shangjing all started chanting involuntarily.

Xuan Pin waved his arms and sent illusions throughout each corner of the Liang Kingdom. She instructed everyone to start chanting.

Everyone who could speak began to chant, no matter what county they were from.

With the allure of being rewarded with food, everyone chanted earnestly. Soon, everyone in the Liang Kingdom was chanting. The entire Liang Kingdom temporarily became part of the White Lotus Sect. It was the largest ceremony ever conducted.

Bai Lingmiao, who was in the array's center, felt something unusual happening. She appeared closer to the invisible thing she had always faintly felt.

As the Twelve Merit Jade Lotus was placed on the bronze tree, it emitted a bright white light that illuminated everything around it.

Bai Lingmiao held her breath and sat underneath the bronze tree. She closed her eyes and started chanting, “Heavenly Mater, the people of this world need you. We are here to help if you are encountering any dangers!”

Xuan Pin began chanting, joining the chants of the White Lotus Sect and smoothly slithering in like an eel.

“天門開，地門開，人門開，鬼門開，陰陽門，生死門，萬物門，萬物歸一門”

Bai Lingmiao didn't know what happened next since she was focused entirely on the white light. She tried her hardest to get in contact with the Heavenly Mater.

In the sea of chants, Bai Lingmiao was already infinitely close to the Heavenly Mater, but there was a barrier barring her from reaching her.

In the past, she would've met the Heavenly Mater already, but something was currently blocking her. Time passed, and the situation did not change. In fact, it became worse—she couldn't sense where the Heavenly Mater was.

Bai Lingmiao refused to give up in that field of chaos. She worked harder to get close to the Heavenly Mater, and her efforts paid off! She faintly sensed the Heavenly Mater.

She kept calling out for the Heavenly Mater, but it seemed as though the latter was dead. A veil separated them, and the Heavenly Mater didn't move one bit.

“天門開，地門開，人門開，鬼門開，陰陽門，生死門，萬物門，萬物歸一門” Xuan Pin's chanting could be heard, bringing clarity to Bai Lingmiao's thoughts and making her quicken her pace.

Not only that, Bai Lingmiao began seeing threads on her body that were connected to the Heavenly Mater.

Bai Lingmiao raised all four of her arms and pulled on the threads to approach the Heavenly Mater.

She slowly got closer and saw that the Heavenly Mater was covered in large blobs of darkness. They were the reason the Heavenly Mater could not move!

Bai Lingmiao gingerly touched a dark blob and felt an intense desire for death surging into her. It washed away everything within her except for the notion of suicide.

Bai Lingmiao opened her eyes listlessly. She saw that she was not in the Heavenly Altar anymore. The bronze tree had disappeared too.

The conjoined lotus, still glowing white, was causing her to float. It didn't allow her to fall.

Everything was reversed now, with the skies below her and the earth above her. A massive jade door appeared in front of her like a mountain.

However, Bai Lingmiao thought nothing was important anymore. She grabbed her hairpin and tried to stab her own neck. The sharp pin had almost sunk into her white neck when a beast claw covered in white fur grabbed her hands.

"Li Sui!" The Second Deity bared her fangs and shouted at Xuan Pin, who was blocking off the other evil entities.

"We have an issue here! Where's your helper?! I thought you said you found some powerful allies!"

Evil entities were surrounding the Baiyu Capital from all angles. It was chaos—the evil entities wanted the Twelve Merit Jade Lotus and tried to approach it incessantly.

Just then, several rifts shot upwards from below. The rifts tore the evil entities apart.

Li Huowang flew upwards and stabbed one of his swords into the gate to anchor himself in place.

Xuan Pin's ally was naturally Li Huowang.

"What's going on?! Why are you guys so close to the Baiyu Capital for no reason? Don't you know that it's dangerous here?" Li Huowang shouted at them as he sensed the gazes coming from the other side of the Ox Tail Gate.

Xuan Pin waved her arms and disintegrated the evil entities in front of her before explaining, "This place is closer to the Baiyu Capital!"

"Li Huowang, we need your help!" the Second Deity yelled, her voice filled with urgency. She growled as she tightly gripped Bai Lingmiao's jaws, preventing her from biting her own tongue.

Chapter 833 - Return To The Throne

“Li Huowang, come and help us quickly!”

Li Huowang whipped his bronze coin sword to wrap Bai Lingmiao in red threads before pulling her toward him.

He looked at her and made her hairpin and teeth turn soft. Now, she couldn't harm herself.

“Come! Let me bring you back!” Li Huowang removed his spine sword from the Ox Tail Gate to bring Bai Lingmiao back down to earth.

It was too chaotic here. They needed to leave so that they could talk safely.

Bai Lingmiao suddenly gripped his arms tightly. “Wait... wait, don't go! She's right there! We are just a little bit away!”

She then vomited out black gas from her mouth.

“Be careful! That's the Heavenly Dao of Death! Don't touch it!”

Li Huowang quickly dodged it and noticed Bai Lingmiao's condition deteriorating. He prepared himself to move away from the Baiyu Capital.

Bai Lingmiao pushed him away and slowly turned under the shining sunlight. “Just... just a little bit left! I saw her! She's in a lot of distress!”

“Wait, we might have a chance!” The Second Deity's beast-like eyes were also stained with some suicidal compulsions. She had sensed part of Bai Lingmiao's thoughts.

“What chance? This place is too dangerous. It would be the same if you came here again!”

Li Huowang was worried about her life and tried pulling her into his embrace. However, the Second Deity pushed him away with her claws.

Li Huowang wanted to try again, but Xuan Pin blocked him.

“Father, you are here to help. You don’t even know what she’s trying to achieve. It’s best if you don’t try to decide for her. She has her thoughts and worries, so it’s best not to place yourself before her.”

Li Sui’s unexpected remark took Li Huowang aback.

Still, he slowly nodded when he saw Bai Lingmiao striving to do something on her own. She was working hard to achieve her own goals. “Fine! I will help!”

Li Huowang glared at the evil entities surrounding them and helped Xuan Pin to block them.

In the field of chaos, Bai Lingmiao followed the thread and immersed herself in the black mist to get closer to the Heavenly Mater.

Death continued to take over her senses, but she could slightly move since someone else was sharing the burden with her. The Second Deity was here to help her.

It was a long and painful process.

Bai Lingmiao almost gave up a few times, but every time she remembered the people shouting in the burning fire and the half-decayed civilians, she pressed on.

She finally had the chance to end the Natural Disaster! She wouldn’t let herself be the reason for failure, especially when the opportunity to end it was right in front of her. The civilians were enduring a living hell!

Bai Lingmiao bit through her lips as she smashed the softened hairpin into her heart. It broke apart in a pile of mush as she pulled on the thread.

She got closer and closer until she finally saw the Heavenly Mater.

The threads on her were undeniably connected to the Heavenly Mater and attached to her wrist and ankle. Bai Lingmiao couldn't determine if she was the one controlling the Heavenly Mater or if it was the other way around.

The suicidal compulsions in her heart were slowly replaced with mercy, causing tears to stain her white eye covers as they slowly slid down her cheeks.

“Heavenly Mater, please help them! They are suffering so much! It's too terrible! Please let them rest in peace!”

Heavenly Mater heard her words. Bai Lingmiao raised her arms to wipe her tears, and Heavenly Mater moved too.

The spinning white lotus above Bai Lingmiao's head suddenly stopped, making her plummet downwards.

Li Huowang and Xuan Pin quickly swooped down and caught the falling Bai Lingmiao.

Sensing the gazes around her, the weakened Bai Lingmiao smiled. “The Heavenly Mater... has returned to her throne.”

Li Huowang's happiness was evident. “Does that mean that... Death is back?”

As he was thinking about falling down faster to see if it was true, an uncertain voice came from the Baiyu Capital.

“... Li... Wang...”

Li Huowang raised his head in alarm and stared at Baiyu Capital. “Who's calling me?!”

“I believe... Everything you say... I... believe... them.”

Li Huowang didn't manage to catch what the voice was talking about—it was too late. The stars and clouds were slowly concealing the Baiyu Capital. No more voices came.

They fell rapidly, and Li Huowang soon saw the Heavenly Altar below him. He also saw the group of White Lotus Sect devotees.

Li Huowang stomped on his own feet rapidly to slow down his descent before landing firmly on the ground.

The White Lotus Sect somehow got the news faster than Li Huowang. He had just stabilized himself when the devotees around him kneeled on the ground and cried.

“The Heavenly Mater had returned to the throne! The Void Home is real!”

“May she bless us all!”

“The White Lotus saves us all from the muddy chaos! The Heavenly Mater has returned!”

Bai Lingmiao looked at everyone and stumbled out of the palace. She disregarded her frail body as she stumbled forward.

She went straight to the alley where they placed the people who could not die.

This time, the alleyway was silent. The once audible groans and moans had ceased, leaving only the faint buzz of flies.

Bai Lingmiao pushed away the hands that were holding her up and walked into the alley. She saw the dead people and cried, but this time, out of happiness.

Death had returned. She was ecstatic.

It wasn't just the people here. Those who had turned into ashes could die now. Those who had their flesh separated from their body could finally rest in peace.

More importantly, she had set out and completed what she intended to do. She did it, and she felt good.

More importantly, she accomplished what she had set out to do. She stayed committed and saw it through, leaving her with a profound sense of satisfaction.

Xuan Pin hugged Bai Lingmiao, her large red robes surrounding them both.

“Mother, you are amazing. You ended the Natural Disaster and saved so many people.”

Bai Lingmiao turned around and cried in Xuan Pin's embrace, finally releasing all the pent-up stress in her heart. She was still young and would only turn eighteen this year.

Xuan Pin turned around and looked at her father before pointing at Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang shook his head and took out the spine sword. He swung open a rift and returned to the Qi Kingdom.

Chapter 834 - Help

Dressed in a silk brocade and a hat, Puppy squatted down underneath a tree, slurping braised meat noodles from a bowl.

The braised meat noodle had chili in it. He was sweating as he ate.

Zhao Wu took a bite of a white bun and patted Puppy with his shoulder. “Hey, where do you think Senior Li is transporting that food to? Is he selling it or something? Did he say that he would give the food back?”

Zhao Wu was in charge of the village's finances. He felt uneasy when he saw the numbers in his ledgers slowly disappearing.

“I don’t know. He’s a god now. He’s flying everywhere,” Puppy said, huffing indignantly.

Puppy saw his food getting transported out from his house and yet saw no monetary returns. He felt his heart ache when he saw Li Huowang’s wasteful actions.

“What will happen to us if there’s a famine? What if we don’t have any food?” Zhao Wu estimated that their food would be emptied out within a few days.

Puppy finished his noodles and licked the bottom of the bowl clean. “I did ask him about it. Guess what he said.”

“What did he say?” Yang Xiaohai joined their conversation, holding onto his own bowl of noodles.

“He said there’s no way we would have that many famines here. Didn’t the big guy send us money? We can buy food with it. At worst, we could ask the villagers to each hold a bowl and walk to Shangjing to request food. There’s no way the Emperor would ignore us that way.”

Zhao Wu didn’t believe it. “Are you sure that was what Senior Li had said? I don't think that's how he usually talks. Are you sure that you didn't exaggerate it?"

"Well, he did say it like that. I just added some details here and there."

"You damn blabbermouth. You always exaggerate the details."

Puppy was hurt by Zhao Wu's words and retorted, "Zhao Wu, I've heard you still haven't given up on Xiaoman. You even requested the peddler to send her letters. How many words are you even capable of writing in those letters?"

It was Zhao Wu's turn to panic as he tried to beat Puppy with his crutches. "Stop trying to butt into other people's business! I can now read and recognize many words. The teacher even said I could go take a test to become an official!"

Just as they were quarreling, Yang Xiaohai saw someone approaching the village and ran up to them. "Senior Bai! You are back!"

Upon seeing Bai Lingmiao, Puppy and Zhao Wu stopped fighting and went up to greet her too.

"Senior Bai, did Xiaoman not return with you?" Zhao Wu raised his head and stared at the White Lotus Sect's procession.

"Move away! I was the one who sent someone to call her back!" Puppy pushed Zhao Wu away to complain to Bai Lingmiao.

"Senior Bai, Senior Li has gone crazy again. Please take care of him. He has almost emptied our coffers!" Puppy then exaggerated the details as he described what Li Huowang was doing.

"Don't worry. He won't do that with me here."

"Yes! Please scare him a bit when you find him. Just say you won't live with him anymore if he keeps this up! We might be rich, but we cannot be so wasteful. Even a mountain of silver and gold wouldn't be enough for us if we lived like this!"

Bai Lingmiao shook her head lightly and tilted her body slightly. Her procession split apart, revealing multiple carriages carrying heavy loads of food behind her. The carriages were so heavy that they left deep prints on the path.

Soon, the bags of food were sent into the hidden room. The empty room was slowly getting filled back up again.

“Senior Bai, where did you get this food from?” Puppy was astonished by the sight.

He wanted to ask them to place the food outside since Li Huowang was bound to come back and take it away. Moving them in and out would just be a waste of time and energy.

However, Puppy decided not to say anything since it would help slow down their wasteful expenditure. “Senior Bai, where did you get all this food from?”

“The devotees of the White Lotus Sect donated it to us. Our followers come from all walks of life, not just the impoverished. Also, don’t tell him I brought this.”

Puppy thought that both of them were crazy for being so wasteful. “Do you not want to tell him to stop?”

“Since this is something he intends to do, I will support him. He is my man, and I will help him achieve his goals.”

Puppy scratched his white and yellow face as he pondered. He felt that they had turned slightly bizarre after the New Year. With some caution, he asked, “Are you sure you guys are fine?”

Bai Lingmiao shook her head and sat back on her palanquin. The devotees then took her out of the village.

“Are you heading back now? It’s not every day you come here. How about having a meal with us first? Xiaohai, go and slaughter a pig!”

“Maybe next time. The Heavenly Mater finally returned to the throne. There’s still a lot of work to do in the White Lotus Sect. I will send someone to replenish the granary from time to time. Please coordinate with them.”

“What would Li Huowang say, though? Wouldn’t he find it weird that the granary is constantly full and the food never runs out? I wouldn't be able to explain it without revealing that you're sending food."

Bai Lingmiao didn't slow down on her way out of the village. "Don't worry, I know him well. As long as there's enough food, he won't pay attention to the minor details."

"Also, Senior Zhao Wu, Xiaoman told me you shouldn't send those letters anymore. She doesn't know how to read."

The procession of the White Lotus Sect left the village as Puppy and Yang Xiaohai made fun of Zhao Wu.

Li Huowang bent down as he walked into an underground room. He saw Miao Guihua and a monk diligently watering the ground to keep the room moist.

The monks and the civilians were carefully plucking the mushrooms before placing them into a grass basket.

Their faces had clearly improved. Despite having just one hot meal and one preserved meal per day, they could at least eat actual food now.

The underground room was massive, with baskets full of soil mounted on the walls. The soil was rich black soil used for agriculture, allowing the mushrooms to grow rapidly.

He quickly looked around and found the person he needed to see. He walked towards the depths of the underground room and saw Chan Du diligently gathering mushrooms.

"The abbot of the Righteous Monastery is now picking mushrooms. Don't you need to help people give birth to sons?"

Chan Du straightened his back. "Amitabha. Benefactor Li, everyone is starving to death here. Who would want to give birth to a child?"

"Let's go up to talk." Li Huowang raised his chin and gestured upwards before leaving the place.

In an abandoned ruin, Li Huowang asked, “Are your people keeping a close eye on the Mo family? Have they done anything?”

Chan Du shook his head. “They might be an evil sect, but they are smart. They know what they shouldn’t do. The Mo family is good at machinery and construction. With their help, the You Capital is gradually returning to its former state.”

Chapter 835 - Who Was It?

Li Huowang calmed down a little after hearing what Chan Du had told him.

Li Huowang would not touch them as long as they didn't interfere with him, no matter how evil they were.

“Good. What about the issue with the food? We should be much better off now with the mushrooms and goat milk, right?”

Li Huowang felt disappointed when Chan Du shook his head. “Benefactor Li, don't forget that every surviving human in the Qi Kingdom is rushing here thanks to the food. We still don't have enough food to feed everyone. More importantly, fewer people are dying. It's difficult for the pigs to grow on just feces.”

Li Huowang nodded. “We have no choice but to endure. Didn't you say the black soil could grow crops three times a year? As long as we endure until the first harvest, we should be able to tide over the biggest issue of the Qi Kingdom. I will continue sending food periodically until the Qi Kingdom can stand on its own. Also, I've had time to think about what to do with the Dragon Vein of the Qi Kingdom.”

Chan Du perked up his ears when he heard what Li Huowang was talking about. “Benefactor Li, do you have a way?”

“I don't, and I will never do. I will deal with the famine, but I won't deal with the Dragon Vein.”

Chan Du's eyes went wide with shock. He thought he had misheard.

Li Huowang ignored him and continued, “I am from the Liang Kingdom. I have to think about my people first. The Qi Kingdom must be rescued by someone from the Qi Kingdom. If you all want to survive, you need to unite and work out a solution instead of forcing the responsibility on an outsider like me. Besides, your predicament has nothing to do with me. I'm helping you because I can't bear to see everyone die. That's all."

Chan Du looked at Li Huowang with shock, as if he were a stranger. "You... Benefactor Li, do you wish to see everyone die?"

"Don't threaten me with those words. This has nothing to do with me. Why am I the one who has to manage the Qi Kingdom? I don't owe you anything."

He continued, "We have to look at this realistically. I want to help you and save their lives, but there are things more important than you. If you don't want to accept this, find a way to deal with it yourself. Don't place all of your hopes on someone else."

"Benefactor Li, think about it! If you save the Qi Kingdom, the entire place will be yours! You could have the entire Qi Kingdom for yourself!"

"Let me repeat myself. I'm just a Daoist. Go try to tempt others with those words."

Chan Du stood motionless, stunned by what he had just heard. Still, he had no choice but to eventually accept it. He bowed and left in a hurry, as if he were going to discuss the situation with someone else.

Li Huowang looked at Chan Du disappearing in the distance and said nothing.

He wanted to help, and saving others was naturally good, but he didn't want to be the one leading them. He had to push them a little to maximize their chances of success. Li Huowang could save his own time and effort if they did come up with a method.

He stomped the ground hard and left the Righteous Monastery. He followed the broken road to walk out of the city, wanting to see how the crops were doing.

He saw several new houses had been constructed on both sides of the road in the You Capital.

Black lines on the ground had been drawn using a carpenter's ink marker. The black lines sectioned up the entire You Capital.

The laborers hired by the palace were busy clearing up the rubble within those lines. They threw out everything except for the gold, silver, and bronze. There was a small stall nearby where officials accepted those precious metals. A catty of gold earned the laborers a catty of rice, and ten catty of silver earned them a catty of millet.

Li Huowang noticed that the Qi Kingdom's palace was attempting to revive the monetary system.

Li Huowang looked at several other laborers fixing the potholes on the road.

Everything was being done systematically. He had to admit that leaving it to the professionals was a good idea.

The people were still thin, but they weren't in despair anymore. Li Huowang realized that his efforts were paying off.

He followed the road and walked out of the city. He saw the black soil was being covered by lush greenery.

Rows of green crops were being grown on the fertile black soil. The farmers painstakingly watered and provided nutrients for the plants, caring for the crops like their children.

The fields were large and there wasn't an end to them. Li Huowang was sure there would be a magnificent sight when the crops were ready to be harvested.

He saw an old farmer kowtowing to him. He pulled the farmer up and asked, "Is the soil alright?"

"Bodhisattva! Please relax. We would not dare to delay planting the seeds you gave us! Those seeds will provide the food that will save us!"

Right after, the farmer expressed his frustration. "Still, we have no idea who the incorrigible thief is who has been eating the leaves of our sweet potatoes! They pluck some every time we don't watch over them. We've sent men to find them but have yet to do so!"

Li Huowang thought that was normal. This was a large piece of agricultural land and there was a famine. It was inevitable that someone would try to steal some food for themselves. He didn't mind as long as they didn't destroy the fields.

The old farmer suddenly shouted, "Everyone! Come here! The merciful Bodhisattva is here to look at us mud legs!"

Upon hearing him, the farmers put down the work in their hands and surrounded Li Huowang excitedly. Li Huowang was getting annoyed by them.

As he was getting ready to walk away, an old man blocked him. The old man seemingly had no control over his body, standing in place without knowing what he wanted to say.

Li Huowang was still focused on the old man when several hands covered in calluses reached behind Li Huowang's back and stole his two spine swords, bronze coin sword, and purple-tassel sword. They took them all.

"Stab him!"

The farmers surrounding Li Huowang suddenly pulled out sharp objects from within their clothes and stabbed Li Huowang.

However, Li Huowang had projected his image and dodged it. His real body was three meters away.

The next instant, a hidden dagger stabbed deep into Li Huowang's body and tore his organs up from inside.

Li Huowang grabbed the dagger forcefully as killing intent burst forth from him. He opened his mouth and bit into the invisible figure that was stabbing him.

"Who dares to try and kill me?!"

Chapter 836 - Ambush

Swish! A black dagger stabbed towards Li Huowang's chest.

Li Huowang turned around and glared at the dagger. It floated just an inch away from his forehead before he twisted both the dagger and the attacker into a rope.

Although he defeated every enemy relatively quickly, many of them remained. It was not a pretty sight for him—all the people surrounding him were somewhat strong.

They also took away his weapons. It was clear that they had planned it beforehand.

One of the farmers caught sight of the twisted flesh and promptly let out a sharp whistle. Seemingly on cue, another elderly man swiftly swept his legs, causing a cloud of black soil to scatter into the air. Subsequently, another person forcefully pushed the air with their palm, creating a miniature sandstorm.

As Li Huowang was busy killing the attackers, he lost his target. The sand somehow came alive and tried to bury itself into Li Huowang's eyes.

The moment he got distracted, a hook shot out from the sand and latched onto his left leg. It tore off his legs just like that.

“Who the fuck are you guys?!” Li Huowang opened his eyes and let the sand batter his eyes all it wanted.

He swiftly turned around with his single remaining leg toward the direction the hook had come from.

A skinny man was grinning while looking at the leg on the hook. Just then, Li Huowang pounced out from the sandstorm and slapped the top of the skinny man's head. His head rolled on the ground like a ball.

Li Huowang ignored the arrows being shot into his torso as he picked up his leg. He reattached it and stomped onto the ground before running towards the spot the arrows had come from.

“Who are you guys?” Li Huowang grabbed the archer by the ears and tore him in two, just like a piece of paper.

Li Huowang’s eyes were bloodshot from the assault of the sandstorm. His eyes were hurting a lot. It felt even worse than someone poking them out with red-hot iron.

The more his eyes hurt, the angrier he became. He finally snapped when someone tossed a flying guillotine and enveloped his head with it.

“Fire!” Li Huowang shouted as burning flames burned off his skin.

Several metal spikes melted before they could even touch him.

The metal spikes melted even though they were far away. The flying guillotine had long since been burned to nothingness.

The sandstorm grew stronger in an attempt to extinguish his flames, but it couldn’t extinguish them.

Li Huowang glared at the sandstorm and turned it into reeds. With fuel near him, Li Huowang’s flames surged forward like a fiery tsunami.

“Burn! Burn all of them!”

As the sandstorm slowly turned into reeds, various scenes unfolded in Li Huowang’s eyes.

The fire burned fiercely as several people staggered out of the burning reeds. As they scattered, they stepped on the cracking black soil, which was turning into porcelain from the flames.

Half of the burning people were the ones who had ambushed Li Huowang, while the other half were the Bai family.

A lady fell before Li Huowang and stared in a single direction. “My daughter...”

“AAAAAAH!” As the burning flames continued their advances, several burnt corpses fell to the ground. All of them had died.

Li Huowang was still burning up when he panted out of exhaustion. He suddenly remembered something and started searching the corpses.

His anger boiled over after he went through all the corpses. All four of his swords were gone! Their goal had been to take away his spine sword, preventing him from returning to the Liang Kingdom.

Li Huowang looked around and found no other traces. Everything around him had been burned to ashes, and he couldn't discern anything from the ground.

He didn't know why they wanted his weapons, but he could not return to the Liang Kingdom without Zhuge Yuan's spine sword. He would be trapped here forever!

Just then, someone hastily approached him. It was Chan Du, the abbot of the Qi Kingdom's Righteous Monastery, along with other people from the Qi Kingdom.

As they looked at the scorched ground surrounding Li Huowang and the flames still engulfing him, they grasped the situation. The atmosphere was filled with an eerie silence, broken only by the crackling of Li Huowang's burning skin.

Li Huowang glared at Chan Du. The latter clasped his hands together and nervously explained, "Benefactor Li, we did not do this! You are our savior! We would never return your kindness with animosity!"

"Ha! Who says so? They even took the spine sword that I need to return to the Liang Kingdom! You knew I wouldn't help you with the Dragon Vein, so you devised this plan to trap me here! Or did you want to go to the Liang Kingdom to get food for yourself?"

"Daoist, you are going too far!" The leader of the Mo family stood up. "The Mo family might do other things, but since we have set rules, we would never break them. Your words are an insult to us!"

"Scram!" Li Huowang shouted, his fire burning brighter. The leader of the Mo family scampered back into the group of people.

“Monk!” Li Huowang approached Chan Du. The fire coming from Li Huowang was causing Chan Du’s robes to roll up.

“You said that the Qi Kingdom is mine, didn’t you? Everything here belongs to me, correct?”

“Yes! This is the Qi Kingdom of Benefactor Li! You have shown great grace and compassion to the Qi Kingdom, so this is naturally yours!”

“Fine!” Li Huowang shouted, causing everyone to step back in fear.

“I don’t care how you do it, but you must find my sword! Find it! Otherwise, I will burn all the food I brought here!”

Li Huowang extinguished his flames and ran towards the Righteous Monastery.

“Benefactor Li, you can’t do that! A lot of people would starve to death!”

Li Huowang turned around and glared at him. “What? I thought you said that the Qi Kingdom was mine. Is this place really mine if I can’t even do what I want with the food? Were you just trying to trick me into staying here with your words, all to keep me here?”

Li Huowang ignored them and left. “Also, you guys can’t use the spine sword anyway! Don’t forget how you came here last time! You’re not Twisted Ones, so you can’t travel to the Liang Kingdom with a spine sword!”

Li Huowang walked past the guards and reached the granary that the Righteous Monastery had been guarding. He sat on the food and waited.

He could light up his body and turn the food into ash at any moment. However, even Li Huowang wasn’t sure if they were the perpetrators.

Although he didn't believe Chan Du would do something like this, he had gone through a lot in this world. As a result, he always considered the worst-case scenario.

The entire incident was too bizarre. He had told Chan Du that he wouldn't involve himself with the Dragon Vein just half a division before the ambush happened. It had been too fast.

And the "farmers" had cooperated a little too well. They were also strong. It was too illogical for Chan Du to gather these kinds of men within half a division and achieve such a result.

Chapter 837 - Search

The problem right now was that no one else in the Qi Kingdom was capable of it. Other than the area around the You Capital, which was doing relatively well, the other places were still stricken with famine.

Since it was impossible for another group of people to live in a community outside of the You Capital, Chan Du and the others were naturally the only suspects.

Even though the sun did not move, Li Huowang slowly kept track of the time.

The fourth division had just passed when he heard rapid footsteps outside of the granary. It was Chan Du, but he had returned empty-handed.

Chan Du was unflustered when he greeted Li Huowang. “Benefactor Li, the Gan family has managed to divine where they are and found out where your sword is! Please follow us. You’ll get to see the people who tried to assassinate you with your own eyes!”

Li Huowang jumped down from the sacks of grain. “Abbot, remember that monks can’t lie. I hope you’re not pushing me into another trap.”

Chan Du frowned but remained silent as he led Li Huowang outside.

“If you located the Gan family, why didn’t you tell me before?”

Chan Du remained silent and continued to lead the way.

Li Huowang and Chan Du arrived outside the city and saw the soldiers, the Mo family, members of the Minglun Hall, a Daoist from the Luo sect, and two members of the Ao Jing Sect. Each individual was armed with their respective weapons.

Li Huowang’s body lit up again. “What are you thinking of doing?”

“Daoist, we are naturally here to help you recover your weapon.”

Li Huowang sighed in relief because the worst-case scenario did not happen.

“Let’s go. Where are they right now?” Li Huowang ran first. He was unaware of the situation but determined to retrieve his swords quickly.

Li Huowang ran faster, but a question popped into his mind. Who else in the Qi Kingdom could do this if it wasn’t Chan Du and the others?

Li Huowang was unable to figure it out.

The Qi Kingdom had fallen, and everyone was busy figuring out how to obtain more food for themselves. Who would run all the way here to ambush me? Did they go crazy from starvation?

Li Huowang only snapped out of his thoughts when he noticed he had arrived. The village lay in ruins and was utterly desolate.

Everyone scattered and surrounded the village.

Li Huowang checked his Shimmer Mirror and saw that there was indeed someone inside the village. They came to the right place.

It was clear that the people inside the village weren’t villagers. The regular villagers were all heading towards the You Capital to find food. They wouldn’t stay here and starve.

With a single order from Li Huowang, everyone stormed into the village, causing the once peaceful atmosphere to be consumed by a frenzy of bloodlust.

Li Huowang had already burned most of the assassins to death during their ambush, so there weren’t many of them remaining. The six people inside the village were overwhelmed, and the battle ended quickly.

“Daoist, your sword!” Chen Yurong gave the spine sword to Li Huowang with both hands.

Li Huowang grabbed the sword but frowned. “This is not Zhuge Yuan’s spine sword! This is my own spine! I need the other one!”

They all turned to the two living assassins.

“Where’s the other sword?” Li Huowang’s lips trembled as he fished out his torture tools.

The two assassins looked at each other and closed their eyes simultaneously.

Sensing that something was wrong, Chan Du stuffed his prayer beads into their flesh, but it was too late. Their bodies exploded.

“Shit!” Li Huowang roared. They were dead, and the trail ended with them.

Li Huowang looked at Chan Du again. “Find them! The Gan family excels at divination, right? Ask them to find out where the other spine sword is! It’s the key.”

However, Chan Du’s answer plunged him into cold water. “Benefactor Li, the Twisted One’s spine sword cannot be divined.”

Li Huowang frowned and paced around, his gaze eventually falling on the corpses. “Do we have anyone from the Fangxian Sect?”

“Benefactor, what’s the Fangxian Sect?”

“Damn it. It’s do or die now!” Li Huowang grabbed one of the dead assassin’s heads and carefully shaved off their hair to reveal their scalp.

Li Huowang closed his eyes and took a deep breath before muttering, “I can see it! I can see it!”

He repeated it before he opened his eyes and cracked open the scalp. He dipped his fingers into the assassin’s brain, searching for the information he needed as if it were a book.

Li Huowang’s intense rummaging made the brain swiftly break down and turn into soup. Unfortunately, no words or images emerged in Li Huowang's mind even though the brain had been entirely pulverized.

"Fuck!" Li Huowang threw the skull onto the ground and stomped on it. His cultivation could do nothing right now!

Li Huowang was about to fly off the handle when he found something bizarre with the exploded corpse.

"Wait a minute." He calmed down and inspected the corpses as he thrust his fingers into the stomach of the corpse.

"Benefactor Li, did you find something?" Chan Du asked.

Li Huowang said nothing as he frowned. He checked the other corpses by opening their stomach and rummaging it around.

He did this for all six corpses and became very moody.

One of the Minglun Hall members, Liang Yuxuan, couldn't hold back any longer when he saw Li Huowang inspecting the sixth corpse. "Daoist, did you find something?"

Li Huowang tore off an organ from the corpse. "Do you know what this is? It's a stomach."

He cut open the stomach. The putrid stench made Liang Yuxuan step back as he held onto his nose.

"Look at the contents of the stomach. He was eating really well before he died. Look, this is an egg." Li Huowang picked off some yellowish goo from the stomach.

He then took a whiff at the stomach. "And it seems that they had drank some wine before they died."

After explaining that, Li Huowang noticed that Liang Yuxuan was still confused. "You still don't understand? Something's wrong with what they've eaten!"

Li Huowang pointed at the first corpse. "He ate chives dumplings."

He then pointed at the second corpse. "This person ate scallion tofu."

Whenever he pointed at a corpse, he would name a single dish.

Eventually, he pointed at the last corpse. “This person ate a scallion omelet. Now, isn’t this interesting? I didn’t bring any of the necessary ingredients into the Qi Kingdom. How could they have eaten such dishes?”

Indeed. Food was scarce here. No one here was able to eat omelets or drink wine.

“Unless...”

Liang Yuxuan had just opened his mouth when Li Huowang said, “Unless they were not from the Qi Kingdom!”

Li Huowang visibly deflated in disappointment. He muttered to himself, “Yeah, I should’ve known they were not from the Qi Kingdom...”

Chapter 838 - Secret

Li Huowang was devastated, no longer displaying the energy he had moments ago. “They are not from the Qi Kingdom... They really aren’t from the Qi Kingdom...”

Chan Du realized what had happened when he heard Li Huowang’s muttering. “I see. So that’s what had happened.”

Chan Du pondered a bit before clasping his hands and asking Li Huowang, “Benefactor Li, do you know where they came from? Did you have any conflict with them in the past?”

Li Huowang nodded but said nothing. He sat on the ground for a long time.

He had previously wanted to know who the assailants were, but now he wished he didn’t know.

Chen Yurong couldn’t stand the silence and asked. “Daoist, what should we do next?”

Li Huowang raised his head, his blurry eyes refocusing. “What else can we do? Find a way to get back that sword! I want to go back and ask that bastard personally!”

Li Huowang refused to believe that Gao Zhijian would send people to attack him like this.

It was impossible for him to send assassins after Li Huowang! Gao Zhijian used to be a simple and honest brute who wielded a club as he followed Li Huowang.

There was no way Gao Zhijian sent assassins after consulting Li Huowang only once. He needed to ask Gao Zhijian personally to find out what had happened!

“Daoist, you are right. No matter if they are from the Qi Kingdom or not, we need to find your sword back. This concerns your ability to return to the Liang Kingdom as well as the survival of the Qi Kingdom.”

Another person interrupted, “But there’s no more survivors. How can we find the sword now?”

“We have a way!” Li Huowang’s voice made everyone shut up. “Even if the Gan family is unable to find the sword, there are other beings who can find it. For example, Shangji Guankou!”

He had once used one of Shangji Guankou’s secrets to find Shai Zi, the Twisted One of Doulao. He was sure he could locate his spine sword if he found Shangji Guankou again.

“Daoist, I have to interrupt you for now. Everything in this world has paused.^[1] There’s no longer any feng shui. It would be difficult to find Shangji Guankou.”

Li Huowang raised his head and stared into the sky. “Who said I will be finding it in the Qi Kingdom? I can just go find the Siming in charge of the Heavenly Dao of Secrets!”

“Si... Siming?! I don’t think that’s possible!”

“Who says so? I can do it since I’m Ji Zai!”

He recalled how he had encountered the Siming before and turned to Chan Du. “Prepare for the Samgharama Ceremony! I need to find your Buddha, and I need a catalyst to do that!”

Chan Du hesitated. “Benefactor Li, the Samgharama Ceremony is not simple. It would consume a lot of resources even during regular times. I’m afraid it might not be prudent to do so now...”

“Are you going back on your words now?” Li Huowang glared at Chan Du.

Chan Du sighed and fiddled with his prayer beads before finally nodding. “Amitabha. This old monk heeds your words. The Qi Kingdom is yours, and your words are the rules.”

The Samgharama Ceremony was soon conducted in the Righteous Monastery. It was still the same as the previous one, with the Great Equal Assembly being conducted in the outer circle and the Samgharama Ceremony being conducted in the inner circle.

Li Huowang slowly closed his eyes amidst the wriggling flesh. He didn't know how long it took, but the voices around him and his senses gradually disappeared.

When Li Huowang opened his eyes again, he saw the Five Dhyani Buddhas in all their glory, hanging above his head like the moon.

Under the moonlight, Li Huowang's physical flesh slowly escaped his control.

Li Huowang tore off his own eyes and shouted at the Buddhas while his body was still intact, "I'm not here to see you! I'm here to see another Siming! The one from before that controls secrets!"

Just then, Li Huowang slowly regained control of his body. He was currently blind, so he couldn't confirm whether the Five Dhyani Buddhas had left.

"Are you here? Are you there? I'm Ji Zai! Do you still remember me? I was the one who ran at the forefront last time! All of you owe me one! I have some trouble in the mortal realm, and asking for some secrets from Shangji Guankou shouldn't be too much, should it?"

Li Huowang had barely finished speaking when he suddenly felt a sensation of something brushing past him. It felt as if strands of hair had grazed his skin.

"You are here. Who are you?"

Li Huowang bent down hastily to pick up his eyes. He plugged them back in before he looked up.

He saw nothing. It was the same as when he was blinded.

However, Li Huowang could clearly feel the strands brushing past his body.

Li Huowang extended his right hand, attempting to grasp the strands of hair, but his hand returned empty.

"What is this?"

Li Huowang was asking that question when the strands brushed past his head. The questions in his heart were answered.

“Seen yet unseen, thus it’s called Yi. Heard yet not listened, thus it’s called Xi. Grasped yet unattainable, thus it’s called Wei. Individually, the three cannot be questioned, hence they merge into one. It’s without a fixed form, and it’s not obscured below. It is intricately subtle and cannot be named, thus returning to a state of nothingness. This is the form of the formless and the image of the non-existent.”

"Yi Xi Wei? Are you the Three Ancient Ones?" Li Huowang's body abruptly jerked, and he woke up from his dream. The sight that greeted him was a bunch of naked monks around him.

Li Huowang suddenly found that all the questions in his heart had been answered, and his doubts had completely vanished. It was as if he had always known the exact location of Zhuge Yuan’s spine sword!

Li Huowang didn’t care which Siming was in control of secrets, but he knew he needed to take his sword back now!

“Let’s go! I saw it! Everyone, let’s depart now!” Li Huowang ran outside impatiently.

One of the senior monks wiped the sweat off his chin and looked at Chan Du with confusion. “Abbot, I thought the Samgharama Ceremony was used to meet the Buddhas. How did he meet the Three Ancient Ones?”

Chan Du stared at the unmoving Buddha statue and shook his head. “I do not know either.”

No one dared to ignore Li Huowang’s order in the Qi Kingdom. Those with even an ounce of strength followed Li Huowang’s orders and marched out.

Li Huowang held onto the image of his spine sword and moved faster.

They arrived at a place with numerous hills. The culprits were hiding among the complicated terrain.

When they got close to the location, Li Huowang used his cultivation to sink into the ground as if it were water.

The others separated and formed a large encirclement. They slowly closed in to prevent the assailants from escaping.

They approached silently, with everyone holding their breath as they prepared themselves for a battle to the death.

The air was filled with tension as they neared their target. Many of them were already chanting their techniques in preparation.

However, they stopped when they got close. There was nothing in the middle except for a green grassy field.

1. As in there's no day and night, and no changes to the seasons. As such, there's no feng shui either. 🤔

Chapter 839 - Someone Familiar

The sight of the empty grass field stunned everyone. It was utterly desolate.

However, the Daoist had firmly affirmed that there was someone here. Could he have been wrong?

Everyone looked down and waited for an answer from Li Huowang, who was currently underground.

Li Huowang was equally confused. What's going on? The spine sword should be here!

Li Huowang had a bad feeling. What's going on? The Three Ancient Ones aren't part of the Sitting Oblivion Dao. Could the Three Ancient Ones also trick others?

As he pondered, his surroundings underwent a sudden and rapid transformation. The lush green grass swiftly morphed into trees, and the plains became a forest that continued to stretch outwards.

A group of armed people walked out from the center of the forest. Their leader, a man with a single eye, was holding onto Li Huowang's spine sword!

It wasn't that they weren't hiding here. Li Huowang and the others had arrived a bit early!

Li Huowang thrust both arms upwards and grabbed the single-eyed man's legs. They sprung their encirclement and everything exploded into action.

The tranquil forest turned into an intense battlefield, descending into utter chaos. Li Huowang ignored everything as he pursued his top priority—taking back the spine sword!

The ground turned soft, and Li Huowang dragged the man downwards. The next moment, just as both of them had sunk into the ground, the entire layer of earth exploded.

The man with only one eye leaped up, his veins bulging across his body. He held onto the spine sword and stabbed Li Huowang.

Instead of dodging, Li Huowang recklessly charged ahead.

The spine sword phased through Li Huowang's body, and then he held onto it so firmly that the man could not move it.

Li Huowang glared at the single-eyed man. "Give me back my spine sword!"

"Bullshit! It's mine now!" He kicked Li Huowang's abdomen.

"Split apart!" Li Huowang shouted, and the man's head cracked open like a watermelon.

Even though the man's pale brain slid down onto the ground along a translucent fluid, he refused to let go of the sword.

The two of them continued to pull onto the spine sword. Li Huowang's body was slowly cut up, and his flesh fell onto the ground too. Blood splattered around and turned the grass red.

Li Huowang swung his other spine sword and cut off the fingers from the corpse. Only then did he manage to release himself and Zhuge Yuan's spine sword from the grasp of the man's corpse.

Li Huowang stood there with the spine sword in his chest. He was about to pull it out when the sword sunk into his body.

Li Huowang understood that the spine sword was not disappearing into his body—someone was trying to pull it out from the other side!

He turned around, shocked to find the same one-eyed man standing behind him! The man, now without most of his fingers and head, was standing there motionlessly.

The headless man swung upwards with his fingerless hand and threw the spine sword high up into the air. It flew up high before descending, piercing the man's severed neck. The blade sank so deeply that only the hilt remained visible at the neck's opening.

Li Huowang was even more furious when he saw Zhuge Yuan's shriveled head on the decapitated man's body.

"You are finished!" Li Huowang pulled at the air and began tearing the man in half. However, the tearing abruptly stopped halfway, and the man's body rapidly regenerated. Even his decapitated head jumped up from the ground and landed on his neck. It had covered the spine sword completely!

The revived man smiled cruelly. He moved his body slightly to reveal a woman. The woman appeared to be around twenty-three years old, with jade-white skin and a beautiful face.

She was wearing a green jacket. While it was a bright color, it seemed dull due to her attractive face. When Li Huowang caught sight of her, he couldn't help but feel a peculiar sense of familiarity.

He was sure this was the first time he had seen her, yet he felt that he knew her. He was very confident that he had worked with her in the past.

He only understood the feeling when the woman spoke.

"Aiyaya~ Boss Hong Zhong, long time no see. Do you still remember me?"

Li Huowang remembered her! It was one of the Liang Kingdom's Sitting Oblivion Dao members, Bei Feng! He had thought she was dead, but here she was, working for the royal palace of the Liang Kingdom!

"Bei Feng!?" Li Huowang spoke and realized his voice had turned into that of a woman! He looked in front of him and saw Bei Feng in his original body!

Li Huowang looked down and saw the green jacket before realizing what had happened. Bei Feng switched bodies with me!

He was now in a regular woman's body—he was trapped inside a useless body!

"As long as I kill Hong Zhong, I will become Hong Zhong instead.” Bei Feng, now in Li Huowang’s body, chuckled.

Bei Feng had just said that when everyone around her turned and charged toward him with their weapons. They intended to kill him while he was in the woman’s body!

At that crucial moment, Li Huowang’s memories of being in the Sitting Oblivion Dao resurfaced. Out of nowhere, the woman began scolding the surrounding people with a furious expression.

“You bunch of fools! I haven’t had the chance to switch bodies yet! Are you stupid? Why are you blindly trusting someone just because of their words? Don’t let Hong Zhong deceive you!”

Their weapons stopped just a single inch away from her body. Everyone looked at Li Huowang before looking at the woman before them. They started to hesitate.

“Hehehe~ Boss Hong Zhong. We haven’t seen each other in a while, but you seem better at trickery now. You must’ve been practicing hard.”

Li Huowang and Bei Feng spoke the same words at the same exact time, and now everyone was confused as to who was who.

“Interesting. This is really interesting...” Li Huowang and Bei Feng spoke and laughed simultaneously.

The winner would now be determined by a game of deceit.

Chapter 840 - Meeting

“Boss Hong Zhong, stop resisting. They sent me here because they knew my ability would work on you. You lose this time,” Bei Feng said triumphantly from Li Huowang’s body.

Li Huowang was pissed when he saw Bei Feng acting flirtatiously in his own body.

He raised his right arm and splayed it towards the single-eyed man. “Give me the sword!”

The single-eyed man hesitated briefly, and then Bei Feng took over his body. She jumped away from Li Huowang and chuckled.

Li Huowang ignored Bei Feng and immediately grabbed a sword before running towards his original body.

“Quick! I’m controlling Li Huowang right now! Kill him! He’s Ji Zai’s Twisted One! We cannot let him live for even a moment longer! He could kill all of us with his cultivation of the ‘Truth’!”

Just then, Li Huowang stabbed the sword into his original body’s abdomen and tore it in half.

Bei Feng was stunned and unsure what Li Huowang was trying to do.

Li Huowang then dug out the eyes from his original body to prevent Bei Feng from switching back into his body. He lowered his head and tried to wear his original body like a jumpsuit.

It wasn’t easy. He wasn’t Li Sui, and there were many things inside his abdomen. It wasn’t easy to slip inside his original body.

He heard footsteps approaching. Li Huowang wasted no time and started eating his own flesh and blood, which contained the powers of a Strayed One.

I am Li Huowang! I am Li Huowang! Li Huowang chanted furiously in his own heart.

While Bei Feng didn't know what Hong Zhong was trying to achieve, she still wanted to stop him.

She piloted the single-eyed man's body, but it was too late. A plume of fire exploded towards the sky and burned everything around Li Huowang.

"Fire!" An explosion reverberated and the fire burned brighter. The forest began to burn down.

Li Huowang slapped the single-eyed man with his fiery palms.

Under the attack, the single-eyed man's body disintegrated like paper, revealing the spine sword within it. Li Huowang grabbed onto the spine sword tightly.

But this wasn't enough to quell his anger. He thrust his hands into his body and tore off his own heart before placing it on the Profound Records.

"Fire heart!"

Li Huowang used the Five Element Intercalation. The moment he did, the entire battlefield shifted in his favor. Bei Feng switched bodies numerous times, but it was futile.

The battlefield finally became quiet after the final tree burned down.

Li Huowang slumped down. The doll enlarged and ate his shadow before reviving him back to life.

"Benefactor Li, we won!" Chan Du excitedly said.

He got back the spine sword. That meant he could continue to send food to the Qi Kingdom, and the people wouldn't starve. Still, Li Huowang felt worried when he looked at the corpses. "Bei Feng escaped."

"What? Escaped?"

"She can swap bodies with anyone she makes eye contact with. None of you could've stopped her if she wanted to run."

"What should we do?" Chan Du turned in a circle before saying, "Benefactor Li, don't worry. The Gan family is still here. We can locate Bei Feng as long as she's in the Qi Kingdom!"

Li Huowang sighed, his voice low. "No need. Killing her won't amount to anything. What's more important is the people backing her."

Li Huowang didn't want to explain much to Chan Du. "Bring everyone else back. I will go talk to him."

Li Huowang swung the spine sword and returned to the Liang Kingdom.

Once he returned, he ignored the voices of the busy surroundings and instead ran towards Shangjing.

Once he was there, he was informed that the Emperor wasn't there. It was the Spring Equinox, so the Emperor was in the fields to conduct the ceremony of plowing the fields. [\[1\]](#)

It wasn't difficult to find him. Li Huowang ran towards the black soil at the edges of the city and saw the grand scene. The officials, the consorts, the Emperor's wives, and the princes were present.

There were circles upon circles of guards protecting them. Li Huowang barely even got close when they noticed his presence.

They refrained from taking action when they saw that it was Li Huowang. Only the older eunuchs circled Gao Zhijian more tightly to protect him. Gao Zhijian was currently raising the hoe high up to plow the field.

Li Huowang did not approach him. Instead, he stood on the sidelines and looked at the scene.

The massive Gao Zhijian was showing his wives and sons how to plow the field. As a former soldier, he was used to physical labor.

He brought down the glittering golden hoe so fast that afterimages appeared. His consorts and wives grumbled in pain as they worked, unable to keep up with Gao Zhijian's pace.

"Your Majesty! Your Majesty! You only need to do it as a gesture of respect! Don't make your esteemed body tired!" Several eunuchs chased after Gao Zhijian.

“You think mere physical work like this would tire me out? Are you looking down on me?” Gao Zhijian plowed the fields even faster.

He only stopped after an entire field had been completely plowed.

It wasn't over yet. Gao Zhijian had to whip a plowing cow several times with a multicolored ribbon before the ceremony ended.

Gao Zhijian threw the golden hoe to the eunuchs before approaching Li Huowang.

“This is my land. I never thought that the Emperor would have his own personal land. One mu and a third, no less.”[\[2\]](#)

“What are you doing?” Li Huowang asked lazily.

“I'm conducting the ceremony to plow the field. It's the Spring Equinox. I need to set an example for the people so that they start working on the fields today.”

“There's so few divisions in a day now. I'm surprised you can calculate the time now.”

“Well, we can't stand idly by just because we can't calculate time.”

Gao Zhijian showed no hint of his regalness as he sat on the ground. He felt better outside than cooped up in the palace.

“Sigh, it feels much better to work my body a bit. I felt like I was getting moldy just from staying in the palace all day.”

Gao Zhijian talked for a bit before he turned and looked at Li Huowang with confusion. “Senior Li, why aren't you talking?”

Li Huowang smiled and sat beside Gao Zhijian. He picked up a piece of stone and fidgeted with it in his palm.

“Yeah, what should I talk about?”

1. A ceremony in which the Emperor personally plows the field to show respect to agriculture and the farmer during spring, when the first seeds are planted. 📌

2. A mu is a traditional Chinese unit of area, which is approximately 666.67 square meters. 📌

Chapter 841 - Answer

“You can talk about anything. Just think of it as a casual conversation. Since becoming the Emperor, I haven’t had anyone I can converse casually with.” Gao Zhijian said, expressing his complaints to Li Huowang.

Li Huowang threw the stone and dusted his palms. “Heh, you think I’m here just to talk.”

“No, but you can think of it as just talking to me before we enter the main conversation. After all, I have to watch what I say when I’m in the palace.”

“You are the Emperor. Who’s controlling you?”

“As I am the Emperor, there are rules that I need to follow. How I eat, how I speak, and how I greet someone.”

As he talked, his consorts and wives approached him and complained flirtatiously about how tired they were.

Gao Zhijian shooed them off. He pointed his rough fingers at the women walking away and said, “I don’t like them. All they want is to sleep with me. I feel like puking when I look at them.”

“You are going to make every man in the world mad with that statement.”

“Senior Li, you don’t understand. You would probably understand me if I threw you into their hands for three months.”

“Ahem!” An old eunuch coughed, holding onto his horsetail whisk.

“Gao Zhijian, it’s best if you talk like an Emperor now. Otherwise, the old eunuch will cough his lungs out.”

“Hahaha!” Gao Zhijian laughed as if it was the best joke he had heard. He slapped his knees and raised his head as he laughed.

His laughter faded and he became serious again. With a wave of his arm, everyone around him took several steps back.

Li Huowang sighed and took out two spine swords from his back before throwing them onto the ground.

“Senior Li, will you still send food to the Qi Kingdom?”

“Yes,” Li Huowang said frankly.

“Wait, listen to me first,” Li Huowang interjected before Gao Zhijian could say anything. “Do you still remember how the Qi Kingdom and the Liang Kingdom lived prosperously even though both of them existed simultaneously?”

“I don’t want the Qi Kingdom or the Liang Kingdom to disappear. Can’t they exist at the same time? They coexisted for a thousand years. Were there any negative effects on the Liang Kingdom? I don’t want much. I simply want things to return to how they were before.”

Gao Zhijian remained silent, and Li Huowang continued, “Who told you that only one of the kingdoms could exist at a single given time?”

“My ancestors of the Dragon Vein.”

“Are you sure what they say is always the truth? Could they not lie? I had a friend who was a gentleman and a storyteller. He wanted to tell the Liang Kingdom that the Qi Kingdom existed. If what you’re saying is true, that they cannot exist simultaneously and one of them must fall, then there must be something wrong with him! He wouldn’t be a storyteller!”

Gao Zhijian looked at the fields and then at the eunuchs cleaning up after him. He slowly opened his mouth. “Senior Li, you said that the Dragon Vein can lie to me. But would your friend not lie to you? Is everything that he told you the truth?”

“You!” Li Huowang clenched his fists, causing the eunuchs to prepare for action. The tension in the air was palpable, but ultimately, Li Huowang released his grip.

“He’s dead. My friend is dead. He could trick me, and I can’t verify his claims, but,” Li Huowang’s tone became serious, “I know he wouldn’t trick me about this. He would never do something that would result in the death of an entire timeline! He wouldn’t have tricked me for the sake of the world, nor would he have sacrificed his life for me! So!”

Li Huowang was panting at this point. “Could you just give me some time? Think of it as me begging you. You’ve starved before. Do you know how many people are starving in the Qi Kingdom? Do you know that even a child at just six years old had to eat her mother’s flesh to survive? Do you know how tragic that was? She didn’t even know that her mother had died. I had to use my techniques of the Sitting Oblivion Dao to trick her into thinking that her mother was alive!”

Gao Zhijian was silent for a very long time. “Senior Li, if something were to threaten the Liang Kingdom, as a good Emperor, I must do my best to stop it.”

“I know, I know, but there’s still time for things to change. The Qi Kingdom might not threaten the Liang Kingdom. Don’t worry about the food I’ve sent there. Once the Qi Kingdom is self-sufficient, I will slowly return the food, catty by catty. I won’t let the Liang Kingdom lose a single penny! In fact, the Qi Kingdom might even help the Liang Kingdom in the future! We could establish trade between the two kingdoms!”

Gao Zhijian stood up and patted the dirt on his butt. “Senior Li, your friend is not a god. What he thought might not be true.”

“Then is the Dragon Vein always right? They were humans when they were alive! They weren’t gods either!”

Everyone slowly left the place, leaving Li Huowang alone in the unsown field.

A familiar voice came from behind Li Huowang. “Don’t worry, I’m still here.”

He knew who the owner of the voice was without even needing to turn back. "I doubt that the Chief of the Surveillance Bureau could stop the Emperor. No need to butt in. This is a fight between adults."

Li Huowang didn't want Li Sui to get involved. If the Liang Kingdom's Surveillance Bureau and the Liang Kingdom's palace were to fight, no one would gain anything.

Li Huowang stood up and patted Li Sui's head, concealed within her red robes. "Don't worry. This is my own problem and I will handle it myself. No need to involve yourself."

"Even if he wants to kill you?"

"Even if he wants to kill me."

Li Huowang swung the spine sword and returned to the Qi Kingdom through the rift. The fields of the Liang Kingdom were where the Qi Kingdom's Righteous Monastery was. The monks recognized him, so there was no commotion when he returned.

However, what Li Huowang had said just before leaving caused them to worry. Once Chan Du learned that Li Huowang was back, he immediately rushed over.

"Benefactor, how was it? Did you manage to talk with them and learn why they are attacking you?"

Li Huowang answered bitterly, "We talked. As for why, the Liang Kingdom's Emperor thought that once you guys are prosperous again, you would threaten them instead."

"The Liang Kingdom's Emperor? Benefactor Li, is it really him?!"

Li Huowang didn't understand why Chan Du was confused. "Didn't you already know that? Why are you reacting so loudly?"

Chan Du clasped his hands and turned the prayer beads in his palm. "Amitabha. I have never once suspected him. I thought that the assailants came from another world."

"What? Other worlds?" It was Li Huowang's turn to be confused. He felt that a bomb had just gone off in his head. “Why didn’t you tell me this important?”

“Uh... did we really need to tell you? Didn’t you already know about it?” Chan Du pointed at the five glittering Buddha statues in the hall.

“Vaicorana from Vajradhatu, the Diamond Realm. Akshobhya from Abhirati, the Eastern Pure Land. Ratnasambhava from Śrīmat, the Southern Pure Land. Amitābha from Sukhavati, the Western Pure Land. Amoghasiddhi from Prakuta, the Northern Pure Land. Together, they form the Five Dhyanī Buddhas because they control the five different worlds.”

Li Huowang stood there, his mouth hanging open in shock at Chan Du’s words.

“Benefactor Li, why are you so surprised? I thought you knew about it?”

Li Huowang was practically fuming with anger. “You sects and your fucking contradicting worlds! How would I know which is real and which is fake?!”

Chapter 842 - Five Worlds Of Buddhism

“The five worlds of Buddhism.” Li Huowang remembered having heard the term before. It wasn’t just the monks of the Righteous Monastery who had mentioned it—even Abbess Jingxin had told him about it before.

Back then, he didn’t couldn’t even deal with Dan Yangzi. His life had been in danger, so he hadn’t given any thought to it.

He had also interacted with the other sects and realized that each sect’s worldview contradicted the others, so he completely ignored the concept of the five worlds of Buddhism.

“No, wait, you are wrong!” Li Huowang’s words made Chan Du speechless. He wasn’t sure about how to continue the conversation, as it was something supposed to be common knowledge. Chan Du hadn’t expected such an intense reaction from Li Huowang.

“No... you’re wrong...” Li Huowang’s pupils trembled as he paced around the area.

Li Huowang combined his experience to figure out what the five worlds were.

“It’s not five worlds—it’s five different histories! They all lead down to a different future!” Li Huowang revealed what he thought.

The Liang Kingdom had been formed after the Qi Kingdom fell a thousand years ago, while the Qi Kingdom maintained itself as if it didn’t fall a thousand years ago!

Li Huowang followed the same thought process to determine the three remaining histories and what had gone wrong in the past.

The people were still the same, but the world had split into five different possibilities, and all five histories existed simultaneously.

This was only possible in this crazy world.

“Wait, Benefactor Li, you have to listen to me.” Chan Du naturally disagreed with what Li Huowang said. He had to correct him, or all the years he dedicated to memorizing the scriptures would be meaningless.

“Benefactor Li, the five worlds of Buddhism existed since ancient times, not as you said. According to the Yiqiejing Yinyi, Vairocana Buddha, the Tathagata of the world, is described as 'Vairocana,' where 'Vai' means 'pervade' and 'rocana' means 'illuminating.' This means that the Buddha, through his body and wisdom, is unobstructed in his radiant light, illuminating and pervading the entire Dharma realm without obstruction.

“The term 'pervade' refers to the universal coverage of the Dharma realm, while 'light' indicates the unobstructed nature of dependent origination, shining away the darkness of ignorance...”

Li Huowang abruptly grabbed Chan Du's collar. “Shut up! I'm not here to listen to you preach. This isn't important right now. What's more important is to figure out which history is trying to kill us and why!”

He let go of Chan Du's robes and scratched his scalp anxiously. Li Huowang paced around before laughing. “Hahaha! Gao Zhijian was not the culprit! He didn't want to kill me!”

Li Huowang's heart sank. Gao Zhijian might've changed, but perhaps I didn't change much.

He was still the same Gao Zhijian who had previously traveled with him!

Once Li Huowang knew that Gao Zhijian was not the culprit, he felt like everything had suddenly become uncertain.

Since there were five histories, his suspicions of Gao Zhijian were naturally the lowest.

Sui Sui is still watching him. She would've let me know if he were trying to do anything.

However, Li Huowang was still confused. Who's trying to kill me, then?

If there were three other histories, who would be the culprit? Li Huowang had only just learned about the other three, so he couldn't have offended anyone from there.

Who's trying to harm me for no reason? Did I accidentally make them my enemy while escaping the Zephyr Temple?

Li Huowang didn't have the answers and looked at Chan Du. "Abbot, why do you think they are attacking us?"

Chan Du frowned and turned the prayer beads in his hands before shaking his head. "I do not know. In Buddhist teachings, the Five Dhyani Buddhas are considered the Primordial Buddha of Dharma Nature. The term 'Primordial Buddha' refers to the essence of the mind. Aksobhya, Vajrapani, and Vajrasattva represent the three manifestations of the Tathagata Garbha, which are essentially the mind manifested as three bodies..."

Li Huowang sighed. "And who's asking you about that?"

Li Huowang had to figure it out himself since the Abbot didn't know either. He suspected Bei Feng's superior.

Shai Zi had once said that to defeat Doulao, he had cleaned up all of the Sitting Oblivion Dao in the Liang Kingdom. In a sense, he was correct. The Sitting Oblivion Dao of the Liang Kingdom had been destroyed, but Bei Feng survived. She escaped to another history to avoid Shai Zi.

Is she tricking people from other countries to kill me? Li Huowang considered the possibility, although it seemed a bit unrealistic.

He had never heard of masterminds who risked their lives by running to the front lines.

The members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao weren't idiots—they would trick others into making risky moves instead. The Sitting Oblivion Dao also didn't usually go to the front lines.

They might do so if it was to trick others, but they would never do it just for the sake of fighting.

There must be someone else behind Bei Feng. Whether they are forcing or collaborating with her, they are ultimately using Bei Feng's unique powers.

“Benefactor Li, have you fought with other Twisted Ones?” Chan Du tentatively asked.

“Hm?” Li Huowang frowned. “What do you mean?”

Chan Du looked at the spine sword on Li Huowang's back. “The five worlds have always been independent, without intertwining connections. Aside from the Buddhas and Bodhisattvas, the only ones who can travel freely are the Twisted Ones. The Twisted Ones are beyond the five worlds. They each hold the karma, merits, cause, and effects of the Bodhisattvas and Buddhas, placing them between two worlds. They can travel freely between the two worlds.”

“What are you talking about? I'm a Twisted One too. Why can't I travel between two worlds? Also, I never fought any of them before. The only Twisted One I know of is Zhuge Yuan, which you are also familiar with. He was stuck between the Liang Kingdom and the Qi Kingdom. He didn't have any connections with the other three histories.”

Chan Du nodded silently and said nothing. It appeared that it wasn't as he had thought. After eliminating all other factors, Li Huowang finally thought of a final possibility.

“Am I obstructing them by saving the Qi Kingdom?” Li Huowang muttered.

He recalled what Gao Zhijian had said. What if it wasn't just the Qi Kingdom that the Liang Kingdom had to contest against? What if it's a competition between all five histories? What if they sent someone to stop Li Huowang from saving the Qi Kingdom?

Li Huowang thought it was a bit far-fetched but realized it was possible.

Chan Du shook his head when Li Huowang told him about his theory. “No, Benefactor Li, the five worlds of Buddhism exist in harmony. They help each other and do not compete. The Five Dhyani Buddhas protect the five worlds. They would never let one of the worlds disappear without a trace.”

Li Huowang chuckled. “Oh? Then what happened to the Qi Kingdom when you had no food? Did one of the Five Dhyani Buddhas come down and help you?”

Chapter 843 - Method

“Where were your Five Dhyani Buddhas? I thought they were guarding the five worlds. Why didn’t they show up when the Qi Kingdom was on the brink of destruction?”

Li Huowang’s tone was nothing short of offensive towards the Buddhas of the Righteous Monastery, but Chan Du wasn’t angry. In fact, he felt nothing.

He clasped his hands and prayed earnestly to the five Buddha statues. “Amitabha. Mercy on this one. As a disciple, I dare not talk in the stead of the Buddha. However, did the Five Dhyani Buddhas truly refrain from taking any action? If they did, would you have come to the Qi Kingdom to help us? Maybe your desire to save the Qi Kingdom was part of the Buddha’s cause and effect.”

Li Huowang became furious when he heard that. “What do you mean? I’m putting in a lot of effort, working tirelessly to bring food and revive the Qi Kingdom. Yet now you’re saying all the credit should go to the Five Dhyani Buddhas?”

Chan Du shook his head rapidly. “No, the credit naturally belongs to you, but the Five Dhyani Buddhas are the ones who take care of the five worlds, which are within their all-encompassing wisdom. While the credit is yours, the merits belong to the Buddhas.”

Li Huowang naturally would not accept that—it was an explanation without an explanation. “Come here and tell me directly! What do you mean by the merits belonging to the Five Dhyani Buddhas? What is the ‘all-encompassing wisdom’? Call for your Five Dhyani Buddhas to come and deal with this, then!

“Aren’t they the ones taking care of the five worlds? Now, another world wants to attack the Qi Kingdom, so why aren’t they showing up? I won't bring food anymore if you can't give me a satisfactory answer!"

Chan Du felt a headache coming when he realized that Li Huowang was going to argue with him, but he didn't want to preach to Li Huowang, who was not a disciple of Buddhism. Winning or losing the argument brought no benefits.

Also, Chan Du was confident that it would be useless for him to talk about it since Li Huowang never read any scriptures.

Chan Du had no choice but to admit defeat. "Benefactor Li, I was wrong. Since you were the one who accomplished it, the credit and merits are all yours. No one can dispute that."

Li Huowang became even angrier. If they hadn't been allies, he would have really liked to kill Chan Du.

"Let's stop talking about unrelated things. We need to focus on figuring out who they are and which world they come from. I doubt that they will stop after today. Their attacks will only become fiercer," Li Huowang said, clenching his fists tightly.

He didn't care who was trying to murder him. He was determined to exact revenge on them, vowing to repay them a hundred times over!

Chan Du nodded and agreed.

"Stop nodding and say something useful!"

Chan Du shook his head. "I don't know. Still, I am certain that one of them must be a Twisted One. If they weren't, they wouldn't have been able to make their way into the Qi Kingdom."

"Twisted One... Twisted One..." Li Huowang muttered and recalled what had happened when he tried to take back his sword.

A forest sprung up in the middle of the field of grass. He thought they had used the powers of the spine sword to reenter the Qi Kingdom, but it now seemed more similar to a Twisted One using their powers to enter the Qi Kingdom instead. More importantly, it differed from Zhuge Yuan's case—they could control their powers freely.

Li Huowang thought long and hard. He ultimately decided what to do based on his understanding of Bei Feng.

“It’s useless if we just sit still and think the whole day. If we want to know where they came from, we need to capture one of them alive. I’m sure that they will come here again.

“Since they dare to enter the Qi Kingdom, we need to ambush them. Call everyone and think of a plan to ambush them! We will eat them alive if they dare enter the Qi Kingdom again! Do not let them go back!”

Chan Du nodded and tapped his prayer beads lightly. A skinny monk near the door clasped his hands and left.

Li Huowang didn't have any time to waste while the others gathered. “Wait here. I need to settle something in the Liang Kingdom. I will return as soon as I can.”

He had to explain to Gao Zhijian what might’ve really happened.

He returned to the Liang Kingdom and ran towards the palace, but was soon stopped by a familiar face—Xuan Pin.

“Father, where are you going?” Li Sui cocked her head to the side and asked Li Huowang.

Li Huowang wasn’t sure how to explain to Li Sui. Do I tell her that I misunderstood Gao Zhijian and thought he had sent someone to kill me?

Li Sui didn’t press on after seeing that Li Huowang remained silent. Instead, she gave him something. It was clad in red cloth. “Father, this is for you. I made it myself.”

Li Huowang took it and saw that it was a red Daoist robe. It was intricate, with cloud motifs embroidered on the collars and sleeves. Li Huowang could tell by touch that the fabric used to make it was not ordinary.

He put it on and found that it fit him perfectly. “This is...?”

“I made it myself. It’s fireproof. Also, you can open up this place.” Li Sui extended her tentacles and pulled on the front, revealing Li Huowang’s abdomen. “With this, it’s easier for you to use the Profound Records.”

Li Huowang fell in love with the robes, especially since they were a gift from his daughter.

“Do you like it?” Li Sui asked.

Li Huowang nodded. A young girl’s face peeked out from Li Sui’s robes and smiled happily.

“As long as you like it.”

As Li Sui was about to leave, Li Huowang stopped her and said, “Since you’re the Chief of the Surveillance Bureau, there are some things that I need to let you know, even though they’re not related to the Liang Kingdom.”

Li Huowang brought Li Sui to a nearby tea shop and sat down. After reviewing all the evidence, Li Huowang explained what had happened.

“I misunderstood Gao Zhijian, so please apologize to him in my stead,” Li Huowang said sheepishly.

Li Sui sat quietly as if thinking about what was happening. After a long period of silence, she said, “Alright. I understand.”

“Thank you. I wanted to go, but I think everyone in the Qi Kingdom has gathered together by now. I need your help for this.”

Li Huowang drank a cup of tea. The bitterness made his body tremble a bit.

“Wait.” Li Huowang finally realized something and looked at Li Sui. “Since you’re the Chief of the Surveillance Bureau, you already knew about the five parallel histories, right?”

Li Sui nodded. “It’s not exactly a secret.”

Chapter 844 - Voices

Li Huowang asked again after hearing Li Sui's answer, "Why didn't you tell me before?"

"Father, you never asked. It's also not like I could talk to you about it casually during the New Year. Also, why are you asking me this? Did you not know about it?"

"I did. Of course, I knew," Li Huowang said, drinking the bitter tea again.

"What I meant is that we could talk more about the information of this world. You've lived here for a hundred and sixty years and should know more than me about this place."

Li Sui held onto her girl's head and used eight tentacles to snuggle the head against Li Huowang.

"Father, I think it's best if I don't talk to you about this easily. You know how dangerous it could be. The more you know about this world, the more dangerous it gets. It's generally better to be kept in the dark.

"And since you're a Strayed One, it might be dangerous for you to learn about it, especially since you've achieved a high degree of proficiency in cultivating the 'Truth.'"

Li Huowang patted her head and sighed. He knew what Li Sui was hinting at. Xuan Pin had said it once, but it felt different when Li Sui said it.

A stern voice suddenly came from Li Huowang's side. "Li Huowang, do you think that this is fun?"

Li Huowang closed his eyes and reopened them to see the white LED light tube above him. He completely ignored the voice outside of the door.

He was wearing two straitjackets and was completely tied up.

Still, this was only temporary. He had won, and Qing Wanglai would soon send someone to rescue him.

While he only had a single eye left, it was still a great price to pay for ending the war.

Everything was over. No one would be stalking him again, and no one would harm his family anymore. He was free and could finally rest.

Yi Donglai's voice came from outside the room. He was angry. "Li Huowang, what are you thinking? Stop playing dumb! You are not crazy—I know I treated you!"

It was understandable because when Li Huowang became crazy again, Yi Donglai had become a laughing stock for the others. His thesis, which he had worked hard on, was now worthless.

He refused to believe that Li Huowang would defeat him. Yi Donglai had treated many patients before, and even if they weren't completely cured, they still managed to become somewhat normal.

Li Huowang ignored Yi Donglai and didn't move.

The room was utterly silent. Half an hour later, Li Huowang heard something and began to slowly move on the ground.

He said nothing as he worked his way towards the left wall. It was difficult to move in two straitjackets. After moving a couple of inches, he was sweating, but he never stopped.

He plastered his ear on the soft leather wall and heard the faint murmur of a woman's voice. He remembered the voice. It was Zhao Ting, the patient in his group who had slight depression.

"Li... wang, are you...?" Her voice was hazy, but Li Huowang could more or less guess what she meant through the fragmented words.

He smiled and nodded. "I'm fine. I'm just locked up for now. They have done this before. It's nothing to me."

Another voice could be heard, this time belonging to a man. However, his stammering and the thick walls made it unintelligible.

The particular tone of the voice was distinct enough for Li Huowang to recognize it. The man was Gao Jingyun, the slightly mentally challenged patient.

Another voice came. Li Huowang managed to guess who it was based on the identity of the first two patients. It was Zhang Shuier, the woman with OCD.

They were all part of the same team at one point. Despite the others considering him a crazy patient, they still extended their friendship to Li Huowang. Their willingness to become friends had touched him.

Many would eagerly befriend the rich and famous, but only a few would extend a helping hand to the poor and nameless.

Li Huowang was sure that almost everyone outside thought of him as a crazed murderer.

After conversing with them for a bit, Li Huowang heard Zhao Ting's voice again. "Re... we... will... save... out."

Li Huowang's heart froze because Zhao Ting was different than usual. He tentatively asked, "Did Qing Wanglai ask you to contact me?"

"Yes..."

Li Huowang's heart sank. "Go back and tell him to find another way. Don't drag innocent people in!"

While Li Huowang wanted to escape, he didn't want anyone, especially the people he knew, to become his accomplice.

They were all patients who already led a hard life. Receiving treatment to live out the rest of their lives was the best possible outcome for them.

Who knew what would happen to them if he dragged them into his fight with the Simings?

Li Huowang also recalled how Qing Wanglai treated the others.

He would discard useless people like tools.

“No... we... talk...” Zhao Ting’s voice gradually grew faint. Li Huowang moved to try to continue listening, yet no further voices could be heard.

“What did you say?” Li Huowang stopped moving, focusing on one spot.

Immediately after, someone opened the door to his room. It was Yi Donglai.

“Who are you talking to?” Yi Donglai asked.

Li Huowang remained silent. He soon saw Yi Donglai’s shoes appearing in front of him.

Yi Donglai reached for the straps of Li Huowang’s straitjackets before dragging him out of the room.

“Come here and look! Look carefully with your single remaining eye!”

Yi Donglai showed Li Huowang the exterior of the left wall. Other than the art on the wall, there was nothing else.

“Look at that! There’s no one near this room! Everything’s an illusion! Li Huowang, you are sick!”

Li Huowang opened his mouth and repeated what he had told Yi Donglai before. “No, I’m not sick. I just learned the truth of the world.”

Chapter 845 - Mental

Yi Donglai laughed out of anger. In fact, he almost gave up on Li Huowang. Yi Donglai thought Li Huowang was the craziest person he had met in the medical field.

“Really? You learned about the truth of this world?”

Yi Donglai opened Li Huowang’s straitjacket before placing his phone into Li Huowang’s hands. Yi Donglai swiped on the phone’s screen swiftly.

“This is your mother’s WeChat! Talk to her on a video call. Look at her with your single remaining eye and tell her you’re not crazy! Tell her that you’ve learned the truth of the world! Do that if you have the guts!”

With a slight tremble on his face, Li Huowang slammed Yi Donglai’s phone onto the ground. “You don’t know anything! Everything’s over! All of the problems have been resolved! Yi Donglai, I know I was sick, but I also know you cured me.”

Yi Donglai was not afraid of Li Huowang’s snarling face. Instead, he took a step forward and glared at Li Huowang.

“Then tell me what you meant! I can only help you if you tell me!”

Li Huowang slowly calmed down and shook his head lightly. He went back into the room and sat facing the walls. “Doctor Yi, I’m not ill. You can perform as many tests as you like. I assure you that the results will confirm I’m fine.”

Since everything was over, any further interactions with Yi Donglai would only make him think that Li Huowang’s condition had worsened. It was useless to converse with Yi Donglai right now.

Moreover, Li Huowang wasn’t sure what Yi Donglai’s projection was. He was, however, certain that Yi Donglai was not his ally. If Yi Donglai were an ally, he would've saved Li Huowang when he was fighting god Yu'er instead of sending people to catch him.

Now that the danger was over, all Li Huowang needed to do was wait. Even if Qing Wanglai didn't save him, Li Huowang was sure that as long as he followed the rules of the projections in this world, he would pass the examinations and get discharged again.

Though the process might be long and arduous, Li Huowang wasn't worried. As long as the people around him were safe, he didn't mind what was happening to him.

Li Huowang sat there for a very long time, yet he did not hear the door close. He turned and saw the metal door was wide open.

"Come out. The doctor said that you don't have to stay inside anymore," the nurse guarding the entrance said.

Li Huowang was confused. He had just killed a lot of people, but now they were allowing him to interact with the other patients.

Li Huowang was sure that this was a trick from Yi Donglai. It couldn't be that simple.

Despite that, he walked outside after pondering for a moment.

It didn't matter what Yi Donglai wanted to do. He would continue to live and act normally, as they couldn't do anything to a regular person during the examinations. The only thing he had to do was not bring up anything about the Simings.

"Wait," Li Huowang had just stepped outside when several burly nurses stopped him, "we still need to put preventive measures on you. Wait here."

They put on heavy handcuffs and leg cuffs onto Li Huowang. They also placed a special helmet on Li Huowang's head, which would prevent him from gouging out his one remaining eye.

Li Huowang was okay with it, although he felt like a serial murderer walking into a park while wearing all that equipment.

Li Huowang gazed upwards, enjoying the pleasant sun. He sat on the bench and basked in the sunlight.

He felt peculiar gazes from every direction, but he was already used to them. Sitting there, he exchanged greetings with some of the familiar faces. He even raised his hand to wave at the guards holding guns atop the guard towers.

He didn't see the people who had talked to him before this. Li Huowang thought it would be too obvious for them to approach him now, considering that Yi Donglai had just released him.

Li Huowang stretched lazily. Compared to the restrictive room, he felt much better outside right now. At the very least, he could scratch the itches on his body and move around if he felt sore.

He felt the wind blowing through the wire fence. It blew his hair apart and revealed his bloody eye socket. "It's a good day today..."

Li Huowang relaxed and closed his eyes. He slumped onto the bench, his body slowly tilting to the left as his head bobbed. In the end, he lay down and fell asleep.

The room he was kept in was not a good place to sleep. It was a place to prevent the patients from killing themselves. To avoid any accidents, they never turned off the lights, so Li Huowang barely got any sleep at night.

He felt his body relax as he fell asleep. He slowly curled up on the bench like a baby in a mother's womb. It was peaceful.

However, the peace was short-lived, as he soon frowned and snarled.

"No! Wait!" Li Huowang opened his eyes with shock, his body drenched in sweat. His sudden shout startled the others around him.

He wiped off the sweat on his forehead and sighed in relief. It had only been a bad dream.

"Are you alright?" Zhao Ting tried to help Li Huowang up. She stretched out her arms and revealed the scars on her wrist.

"I'm fine. It was just a nightmare," Li Huowang whispered as he slowly retracted his hands. "You guys have to leave. Don't talk to me for a while—Yi Donglai must be observing us right now.”

Zhao Ting nodded and left the area.

Li Huowang sighed. The nightmare had felt incredibly real, leaving him with a lingering sense of fear. Thankfully, it was only a creation of his imagination that hadn’t actually occurred.

Li Huowang scratched his head. “It’s fine. It was just a nightmare. It’s all over now, and I can live a normal life.

Suddenly, a troubling realization crossed his mind. “Wait a minute, why is Qing Wanglai a graduate student while I’m stuck here, treated like some deranged mental patient? We’re in the same situation.”

Li Huowang swore to himself before walking back into the building. “Damn it. If I get out, I will enjoy my life to the fullest! I cannot let them be afraid of me anymore! I need to make them proud! I don’t care who their projections are. At least they are not illusions! Definitely not!”

Chapter 846 - Hospitalization

Once Li Huowang was granted permission to leave the confines of his room, life became tranquil for him. His daily routine remained unchanged: taking his medications, indulging in television shows, and drifting off to sleep. Other than the absence of a treatment plan or a doctor, he was the same as the other patients.

Yi Donglai no longer looked for him and made him use the sand table. In fact, Li Huowang did not see Yi Donglai at all.

He wasn't sure what Yi Donglai was trying to do, but he didn't care. He would just live normally like this, one day after another.

Li Huowang walked into the canteen with his handcuffs and leg cuffs. The chains rattled on the ground loudly.

The other patients knew Li Huowang was coming and stood aside to open a path for him. He was being treated as a murderer again.

Li Huowang could have been the only person in White Tower Prison walking around with cuffs.

He picked up a plastic tray and grabbed his food from the canteen—a meat dish, a vegetable dish, a soup, and rice. The meat dish consisted of stir-fried tofu with pork skin, while the vegetable dish included blanched vegetables. The soup was egg-drop seaweed soup.

Li Huowang picked up the oily tofu and ate it. The soft yet firm texture of the bouncy tofu had absorbed the sauce from the meal. He enjoyed the delectable flavor with delight.

Li Huowang then looked at the kitchen and found that the people responsible for the meal had changed. Their meals this time were much better than before.

Li Huowang drank a spoonful of soup before placing his rice into the meat dish, stirring it quickly before digging in.

Due to his handcuffs, it wasn't easy for him to eat his meal. He had only finished half of it by the time everyone else was almost done with theirs.

A sudden coldness came from his left, and someone sat beside him. Li Huowang turned and saw a spectacled middle-aged man sitting at his side.

The man wore the same hospital gown and appeared to be another patient. "Hello, Mr. Li. Let me introduce myself. I'm Hai Dongqing. Here is my business card."

Li Huowang did not accept the "business card," which really was tissue paper with words scrawled on it. Another mental patient, though this is the first time I've seen one of his kind.

However, Li Huowang was curious about why the doctors weren't doing anything and allowed Hai Dongqing man to roam freely.

Seeing that Li Huowang was ignoring him, Hai Dongqing rolled up the tissue paper and shoved it towards Li Huowang's mouth. "Do you have anything to say about your relapse this time?"

Li Huowang turned to the nurse and said, "Can you shoo him away? He's preventing me from eating my meal."

The nurse forcefully pulled Hai Dongqing away. Li Huowang thanked the nurse and continued his meal.

After having his meal, Li Huowang watched TV shows for a bit before heading out to get some sunlight. This was his only source of entertainment right now.

As he lay on the bench half asleep, a faint voice reached his ears—it was Zhang Shuier.

"We are ready... If you're also ready, we will move out in three days at midnight. The patients in ward seven will revolt, and we can leave during the chaos.

Li Huowang frowned without opening his eyes. "No, tell them to stop."

"Why?"

"If Qing Wanglai wants to help me, he must do it properly. I don't want to run out and become a fugitive. I would rather stay here if he intends to do it illegally. If you can't decide for yourself, send a message to him. Ask him to come and visit me personally, and I will tell him. Leave now. You are being too conspicuous."

Li Huowang said this, but there were no longer any voices. He opened his eyes to find that no one was around him.

He stretched and waved towards the sentries on the tower before heading back in.

If it weren't for the regular medication schedule, this place would be indistinguishable from an old person's home.

He had just entered the building when he saw the large Gao Jingyun squatting beside the toilet, startling everyone who exited the bathroom.

"What's wrong?"

Li Huowang asked patiently. Although Gao Jingyun had a large body, his mental capabilities were only those of a child.

"Apple... someone... took it."

Li Huowang wasn't surprised that it was the same question. "Bring me to them. Who took your apple?"

Gao Jingyun led the way, with Li Huowang following closely behind. Together, they arrived at the quarters and opened each door one by one.

"Was it him?" Li Huowang pointed at an apple in an old man's hands.

"Mmhm!" Gao Jingyun nodded as he twisted his own robes.

Li Huowang walked over and grabbed the apple. "You're so old, and yet you're stealing apples from a young patient?"

“Hey! What are you doing? My granddaughter bought that for me!” The old man protested, but Li Huowang pushed him back onto the bed.

“Your granddaughter bought it for you? Did your granddaughter also write someone else’s name on the apple?” Li Huowang pointed at Gao Jingyun’s name on the apple.

Another mortified patient held back the old man. Li Huowang turned and passed the apple to Gao Jingyun.

“Take it. If they give you apples next time, just eat them immediately. No need to wait.”

Gao Jingyun shook his hands, “I... I want to give it to you. You don’t have an apple to eat.”

Li Huowang tried to hand the apple back to Gao Jingyun. “I don’t like apples. Don’t give them to me next time.”

But Gao Jingyun did not accept it. “You eat it.”

After pushing and shoving the apples for a few rounds, Li Huowang gave up and ate the apple before leaving.

Li Huowang’s daily life was really dull since he was different. While the other patients had to fight their illnesses, Li Huowang didn’t face such struggles.

After taking a nap, he went to the canteen to eat. After his dinner, he would normally watch the news with the others before going to sleep.

Even though the nurse appeared to have an easy time monitoring him, Li Huowang knew that it was taxing on them. Their gazes only broke off once Li Huowang was back in his room.

Li Huowang naturally lived in a single room, which had been retrofitted from one of the isolated rooms. There wasn’t even a toothbrush in it to prevent all chances of him committing suicide.

There was nothing he could do and nothing to do, so he just lay on the bed. After staying here for so long, his bad habit of staying up late into the night had also changed.

However, as he tried to fall asleep, he was abruptly awakened by the soft sound of footsteps.

Chapter 847 - So?

After hearing the noises outside, Li Huowang chose not to make a scene. Instead, he opened his eyes and moved slowly to the door.

He held onto his handcuffs and waited. He would use the handcuffs to strangle them if they were an enemy.

Li Huowang waited and frowned until a voice came from the other side of the door. “Uh... Li Huowang!”

He carefully looked through the peephole and saw Zhao Ting in her hospital robes. She was glancing around nervously.

She looked much better than before. Zhao Ting looked at Li Huowang, her eyes now large and crystal clear. Her face was also much healthier and more vibrant now.

“Why are you here?” Li Huowang questioned Zhao Ting.

“Didn’t you ask me to come? You said it was too conspicuous outside, so I came while everyone was asleep.”

Li Huowang looked at the empty corridors and said, “Keep it short. There are patrols and cameras around. You will be in trouble if they find you.”

“Yes!” Zhao Ting shivered as she hugged herself. It was so cold that she was tapping her feet. “As you said, the boss knows about your intentions. He wants to get you out before making a false identity for you.”

“Hah. He’s a sly one, but tell him I said no. I would never escape from a prison like this.”

He didn’t want to involve Zhao Ting in this. Li Huowang knew what kind of person Qing Wanglai was. After Qian Fu’s death, Li Huowang understood Qing Wanglai’s personality well.

While Qing Wanglai appeared kind, he was actually a very cold and calculative psycho. He did things based on pros and cons rather than emotions.

If Li Huowang escaped from prison, Qing Wanglai could use it to keep him under control.

If that were the case, Li Huowang would be doomed to be Qing Wanglai's pawn for the rest of his life.

Li Huowang noticed that Zhao Ting was also conflicted. She didn't know what to do. "If you can't decide on your own, ask Qing Wanglai to come and talk to me personally!"

He had been itching to ask Qing Wanglai why he was the one who was fighting on the front lines, all while Qing Wanglai never showed up at all.

If Qing Wanglai was both cold and fearful of death, then Li Huowang had no intentions of allying himself with such a Siming.

To Li Huowang, Zhao Shuangdian was more friendly. He didn't mind contacting her instead.

Wait, if Qing Wanglai's projection is the Three Ancient Ones, then which Siming is Zhao Shuangdian?

Li Huowang clearly remembered that Ba-Hui's siblings followed her. What kind of Siming could give orders to Ba-Hui?

Li Huowang tried to recall, but none of the Simings really matched her.

"Um..." Zhao Ting's quiet voice pulled him back to reality. "I will have to go and ask. I can't decide on my own."

"Go. You never should've been involved in this to begin with."

As Zhao Ting turned to leave, Li Huowang called out and said, "Wait, I have one more thing to ask."

"Hm?"

He stared at her face and became solemn. After a moment of hesitation, he said, "I've been wondering... can depression be cured? I have a friend who has been battling it, and her condition recently became worse. I'm worried."

“How bad is it?”

“I...” Li Huowang grimaced as he remembered Yang Na. “I don’t know. I haven’t seen her in a long time. I only heard that she was trying to commit suicide.”

“Then it should still be around the medium range of severity. It’s not the worst.” Zhao Ting explained. “If it were the severe kind, she wouldn’t even think about suicide. Her mind would be in a perpetual haze.”

Li Huowang sighed in relief and said, “Is your recovery going well? Is your depression getting better?”

Zhao Ting bit her lips as she pondered. “When it comes to people at the medium range of severity, their symptoms should alleviate as long as they take their medicine on time and have a competent doctor. However, the worst part of depression is that any pent-up negative emotions could trigger a relapse.

“As for the severe cases... I don’t know anything about them. I’ve just heard the doctors mention that severe cases require the patients to rebuild their psyches, which sounds very difficult.”

Li Huowang nodded after hearing Zhao Ting’s explanation. If Yang Na’s symptoms remained the same after he got out, then Li Huowang would have to find a way to transfer her to Yi Donglai’s care.

Even though Yi Donglai was a pain to deal with, Li Huowang had to admit that Yi Donglai was a responsible doctor. If Yang Na could accept his treatment, she would be cured before long.

Having experienced mental illness himself, he didn’t find it that scary. The thought of Yang Na relapsing didn’t scare him either. If needed, he would be there for her and take care of her for the rest of his life.

Tap tap tap tap~ The sound of rapid footsteps came from the corridor and interrupted both of them. The sudden arrival of people surprised Zhao Ting.

“Quick! Hide!” Li Huowang hissed. “Don’t go there! There are cameras over there!”

Zhao Ting had barely escaped when Li Huowang lay down on the bed. From his position, he observed Yi Donglai and the other nurses opening the door to his room. “Li Huowang, who were you talking to?”

Li Huowang rubbed his eyes and crawled out of his bed, annoyed. “What are you talking about? Why are you here so late at night instead of sleeping?”

Yi Donglai left the room and took out a recorder concealed above the door frame. Li Huowang’s voice came out from the recorder with the press of a button. “Quick! Hide! Don’t go there! There are cameras over there!”

Li Huowang remained silent.

“Did you really think I wouldn’t know? Do you think I’m letting you roam freely just for the sake of it?”

Yi Donglai pressed a button on Li Huowang’s leg cuffs. A small memory card popped out. “Zhao Ting, Gao Jingyun, and Zhang Shuier. Am I right? These are the three people who contacted you these last few days.”

Li Huowang remained silent.

“You talked to them for quite some time. Didn’t you realize something was wrong? Li Huowang!” Yi Donglai charged towards Li Huowang and glared at him. “Do you still not realize?”

“You are ill, but you are not stupid! They are patients of Kangning Hospital, but we are in the White Tower Hospital! How could they possibly be here?”

Li Huowang’s pupils widened with shock as a sudden realization struck him. “Wait... so Qing Wanglai didn’t send anyone to rescue me? He actually gave up on me?”

Chapter 848 - Xiaoman

Chun Xiaoman took out three incense sticks and lit them using a candle.

She swung them to extinguish the fire before kneeling on a cushion. Then, raising the three incense sticks high up onto her head, she started praying to the statue in front of her.

The Heavenly Mater had completely changed. She was now an old lady with a cane, sitting on a conjoined lotus seat with a red dot on her forehead and a smile filled with mercy.

The statue was made of stone, but her devotees had colored it and given the Heavenly Mater some semblance of life.

“Oh great and merciful Heavenly Mater, may the disciples reach the Void Home after death to serve you forever...”

She prayed earnestly before placing the incense sticks into the incense burner and retreated from the hall.

Outside the prayer hall was naturally the large hall of the White Lotus Sect. Chun Xiaoman was covered from head to toe in long black hair, but none of them treated her as an outsider.

In the White Lotus Sect, every member was treated with equal respect, as if they were brothers and sisters. Making fun of someone's exterior was taboo in the White Lotus Sect.

Chun Xiaoman was also one of the bravest fighters of the White Lotus Sect. She fought on the front lines throughout the war with the Dharma Sect, and her unique appearance had left a strong impression on the other sect members.

Chun Xiaoman bowed and greeted everyone who was smiling at her.

When she began learning the techniques of the White Lotus Sect, she didn't give it much thought. She did it because she wanted to help Bai Lingmiao and have the strength to protect Cowheart Village.

However, her attitude changed after leaving the village and joining the White Lotus Sect.

Chun Xiaoman liked it here. It felt more like home to her. She had always doubted herself and thought she was a mistake born into this world. However, she had changed.

It wasn't just that her siblings and friends were here—she also had faith in the Heavenly Mater now.

Chun Xiaoman had long resolved to work diligently for the White Lotus Sect, forever.

She left the hall and walked towards the alleyway where the White Lotus Sect members lived. While they were poor, they weren't in shambles.

Even the houses without roofs were appropriately cleaned. No one locked their doors there because no one would steal from one another.

Everyone was kind and treated each other with respect. If anyone needed help, they would just shout, and everyone in the alley would help. It was like a perfect world.

Even though they were beggars, they were still the beggars of the White Lotus Sect. “Sister Xiaoman, where did you go? We didn't see you for days. We missed you.”

“I just came from Si Qi. It's very far from here, and my journey got delayed,” Xiaoman explained patiently.

She looked at them and recalled her past self. “Are you hungry? What do you want to eat? Let me get you something.”

The children jumped with glee as they pulled Chun Xiaoman out of the alley. “Wait, let me grab my veil.”

They arrived at the city's eastern section, which was bustling with people. Each child now held a scallion pancake in their hands, happily eating it. Chun Xiaoman scratched the back of the children's heads and told them to eat slowly.

Since she swore not to get married, she would naturally bear no children. Puppy's incident with his baby pushed this notion further. Still, she didn't mind it. Chun Xiaoman would treat the children in the White Lotus Sect as her own. The White Lotus Sect had everything she needed.

She saw one of the children biting on the scallion pancake while staring at a cart filled with several vases.

Chun Xiaoman approached and hugged the child even though the latter was dirty. "What's wrong? Do you want to eat that? Let me buy it for you."

The child looked at the eldest beggar before shaking her head. "No need. I just want a pancake."

"Don't worry. Even though I donated most of my assets to the White Lotus Sect, I still have enough money to buy some snacks for you all," Chun Xiaoman said, bringing them to the cart.

She stood in front of the cart and addressed the seller, "Hey, what are you selling?"

The skinny man had a plaster on his forehead. He opened one of the jars and showed them its contents. "These are some rare items I bought from the Tianyi Pavilion."

Chun Xiaoman looked down and saw that the jars contained fruit peels soaked in water. "Fruit peels? Are you sure you didn't just pick them up from the trash cans in the Tianyi Pavilion? Why are you selling these?"

"Hey, what are you talking about? My friend is working there. He's responsible for cutting up all sorts of things, and these fruit peels are clean! Ten coins per bunch!"

Chun Xiaoman saw it as a scam. "Ten coins? I could buy a bowl of noodles with that money! Are you insane?"

“Can’t you see that I’m soaking them in sugar water? Also, don’t you know what season it is? These are more expensive than gold because they were planted in a greenhouse.”

Chun Xiaoman stared at their faces before taking out a piece of fragmented silver.

The skinny vendor was elated as he carried one of the vases down from his cart.

Just then, the eldest beggar walked up and said thoughtfully, “Sister Xiaoman, we don’t want them. These things are too expensive, and we are already fools. We cannot waste your money like this.”

Soon enough, the children received the strips of fruit peels. They were really happy, tasting the different types of fruit peels and comparing them to see which was more delicious.

Chun Xiaoman smiled happily when she saw how happy they were. “I always wanted to eat these when I was younger, but my father would only buy them for my brothers. My sister and I could only watch from the side.”

Chun Xiaoman suddenly remembered something and laughed. “That said, my sister and I had to find a way to satisfy our cravings. We would fill two bamboo pieces with watermelon seeds that people spat out. They were delicious once we had dried them.”

However, she felt solemn when she remembered something else.

Her train of thought was interrupted by one of the children. “Sister Xiaoman, have this. This is a watermelon peel. It’s delicious.”

She bit into the peel and felt a sweetness in her heart as she looked at the smiling child. Chun Xiaoman smiled again.

“Sister Xiaoman, try this! This is a persimmon peel!”

As they happily enjoyed these small treats, Chun Xiaoman noticed a group of Lamas. Chun Xiaoman remembered them. They were the mummified Lamas of the Antrabhara Temple.

However, she was confused about why they were headed towards the hall of the White Lotus Sect.

Chapter 849 - Invitation

“That’s strange. Why is the Antrabhara Temple seeking out the White Lotus Sect?” Chun Xiaoman was worried, so she said goodbye to the children before quietly following the Lamas.

She quickened her pace when she saw that the Lamas were headed towards the residence of Bai Lingmiao. The Lamas probably wouldn’t fight in the city, but Chun Xiaoman still felt uneasy.

As she was drawing nearer, a sense of dread washed over her, as though death itself was inching closer. Her scalp went numb, and her fingers froze in place.

Struggling, she attempted to draw her serrated sword from her waist so she could employ her techniques. However, her limbs remained frozen—she could not move at all.

At that moment, Chun Xiaoman caught sight of someone's head in front of her. At first, she assumed it belonged to one of the Lamas, but to her surprise, it was her own!

Is that me in front? Then who am I?

Chun Xiaoman shivered. She looked down and was shocked—there was nothing there!

I’m... dead? Is this my soul?

The feeling retreated as fast as it had come. When one of the Lamas walked past her, Xiaoman crashed into her own back uncontrollably, and she woke up.

She touched her body and stared at the Lamas with fear.

Their techniques are too bizarre! What are they doing here? Chun Xiaoman picked up her pace and ran towards Bai Lingmiao’s residence.

“Miaomiao, are you alright?” Chun Xiaoman urgently asked Bai Lingmiao, who was seated on her lotus throne.

Bai Lingmiao lightly shook her head and remained calm as if nothing unusual had happened.

“The Antrabhara Temple asked us to bring a statue of the Heavenly Mater to them. They needed a new deity after the death of Da Heitian, so I agreed.”

Bai Lingmiao had no reason to stop another person from devoting to the Heavenly Mater, especially since it was also the latter’s intention.

Besides, the Antrabhara Temple would also provide some of their techniques as payment.

In the future, the White Lotus Sect could use not only its own techniques but also part of the Heavenly Dao of Death, just like the Lamas from the Antrabhara Temple.

However, the techniques of the Antrabhara Temple were rumored to be extremely hard to learn. Thankfully, the White Lotus Sect had many devotees, so they could just pick from the large pool of devotees.

Chun Xiaoman sighed after learning that Bai Lingmiao was okay. She had almost called the other sect members to intercept the Lamas.

“But Miaomiao, why do they want a statue of the Heavenly Mater?”

No matter how Chun Xiaoman looked at it, the White Lotus Sect had nothing to lose and earned much more than expected from the negotiation. She believed that it was too good to be true.

As the Saintess, Bai Lingmiao naturally knew more than the others, especially since she learned a few things from Suisui. However, she didn’t know how to explain it to Chun Xiaoman since it was related to the Heavenly Daos. Simply telling the truth to Chun Xiaoman could be bad.

“Hmm... How should I explain this to you...” As Bai Lingmiao was worrying over the matter, a devotee barged in.

“Saintess, the Emperor wishes to see you.”

Both Bai Lingmiao and Chun Xiaoman were confused. They didn’t know why Gao Zhijian was looking for them.

Nevertheless, they had to go. He had once traveled with them. Without any hesitation, Bai Lingmiao stepped outside.

“Let me accompany you.” Chun Xiaoman was worried, so she followed Bai Lingmiao.

They got into an intricate carriage. The wheels, covered in bronze, started turning as they were ushered to the palace.

However, when they reached the gates, the carriage did not stop and continued inside. None of the guards stopped them. The carriage stopped in front of a grand palace before Bai Lingmiao disembarked.

Bai Lingmiao frowned when she looked at the building. It seemed like a place for discussing official matters rather than reminiscing about old memories.

“Let’s go.” Bai Lingmiao lifted her white skirt as her white shoes touched the smooth marble floor. She walked into the palace without fear.

The palace was empty, but Bai Lingmiao could clearly see with her mind’s eye^[1] that several people were having a meal in the middle of the hall.

She saw the Emperor of the Liang Kingdom, the Khan of Qing Qiu, the Emperor of Si Qi, the Emperor of Hou Shu, and the Emperor of Nan Ping. All five Emperors related to the Dragon Veins were gathered in the middle of the hall.

They turned their gazes toward Bai Lingmiao, and she felt a massive pressure on her.

Gao Zhijian placed his wine cup down and happily pointed at the space beside him. “Senior Bai, come. Let’s talk and eat at the same time.”

Gao Zhijian was slightly startled when he saw Chun Xiaoman.

He raised his wine glass and toasted the Emperor of Hou Shu.

The meal of the Emperors was a stark difference from the outside world. It included steamed chicken soup, stir-fried bamboo shoots, Fotiaoqiang, winter melon fish balls, stir-fried crab yolk with shark fins and osmanthus, and braised scallops with mushrooms.

The dishes were unparalleled and couldn't be compared to the food outside. The best chefs of the Liang Kingdom were all hired by the palace.

When she looked at the delicious meals on the table, Chun Xiaoman remembered the beggars eating the fruit peels. She became upset.

Even the things thrown out from the palace were rare food the commoners could barely afford. And yet, the emperors didn't pay much attention to the meals, regardless of how delicious they were.

Bai Lingmiao sat down and recalled what she had seen when entering the hall. They were already eating before we arrived here. It doesn't seem like he wants to treat us to a meal.

"Here, let me give a toast to the Saintess. Your hard work was paramount in ending the Natural Disaster." Gao Zhijian and the other emperors raised their wine glasses in unison.

Bai Lingmiao raised her own glass and toasted each of them before sipping on her wine.

The bitter wine did not affect Bai Lingmiao at all. She placed down the cup and asked directly, "Gao Zhijian, just tell us what you need. We're all the same, and we traveled together for a long time."

"Hahaha!" Gao Zhijian laughed. "That's true. We did escape Zephyr Temple together in the past. I somehow miss the days when we were eating and camping outdoors. Since we are all friends here, I won't beat the bush around anymore. I'm here to treat you to a meal and talk about the White Lotus Sect."

Chapter 850 - White Lotus Sect

“Is something wrong with the White Lotus Sect?” Chun Xiaoman was confused. Wasn't everything fine?

Gao Zhijian glanced at her but said nothing. Instead, the Khan spoke up. “Stop beating around the bush and tell it to her straight. Saintess, when we fought against the Dharma Sect in the past, your sect definitely sacrificed a lot of men and money to fight against them. We are grateful for that, but we must keep one thing clear—don't you think the White Lotus Sect has stepped over the boundaries?”

A low voice growled, “It's not just in Qing Qiu, but also Si Qi, Hou Shu, Nan Ping, and the Liang Kingdom. Even An Xi to the east! The White Lotus Sect is everywhere and shows no signs of stopping its expansion. Doesn't that mean that you will ultimately engulf our land?”

Bai Lingmiao heard their words and knew why they had summoned her. She lightly pinched the back of her hand, and her heart fluttered. Another body extended out from the back, but this second body had a red cloth covering her head.

The Second Deity chuckled. “Are you worried that the White Lotus Sect has a lot of people? Didn't you say it would be better if more people joined us? Are you trying to kill us off now that the Dharma Sect has fallen? Have you considered the price you would have to pay to fight us? Don't try to push us too far. The Dharma Sect could revolt, and so can we. In fact, the White Lotus Sect might do better than the Dharma Sect.”

“Impudent!”

The atmosphere in the hall became tense. Bai Lingmiao played the good cop and stopped the Second Deity. “Don’t say that. Since they invited us here, they want to discuss it with us. We are all friends here. There’s no need to burn any bridges here. We even worked together to fight against the Dharma Sect.”

All five Emperors sighed and looked better after Bai Lingmiao said that.

The atmosphere mellowed, and Gao Zhijian immediately gave Bai Lingmiao a way to step down. “Senior Bai, we called you today to see if there’s a plan to solve this. It’s not just because the White Lotus Sect has a lot of devotees, but also because they are spreading and recruiting like crazy. If we do nothing, I fear the White Lotus Sect will take over the entire world.”

“I think that that would be fine. Everyone would become brothers and sisters in this world. There wouldn’t be any war, and everyone would be equal,” Chun Xiaoman said.

When the other Emperors revealed a hint of anger, Gao Zhijian frowned. “I summoned the White Lotus Sect Saintess. Why is this black-haired girl here? Guards, show her out!”

Chun Xiaoman was shocked when she looked at Gao Zhijian. It was as if she didn’t know him.

The eunuchs carried Chun Xiaoman and tossed her outside. Only then did the Second Deity speak to all five Emperors. “Fine, I know what you’re talking about. What do you want us to do, then?”

Gao Zhijian sighed. “The nation is in tatters, and there are a lot of places that require fixing. The people cannot handle another war. Senior Bai, you need to consider where we stand. What I want is for the palace to issue certifications. Only those with them can join the White Lotus Sect, just like what we did with the Righteous Monastery. This way, we can satisfy both sides. The White Lotus Sect members can be granted official statuses and identifications, and we can effectively monitor and control the sect’s expansion.”

“A win-win on both sides? I don’t think so. If we did that, the palace would control who can join the White Lotus Sect. Who’s the Saintess—you or me?”

“This is non-negotiable!” The Emperor of Si Qi was adamant. “If you don’t comply, we will do it the old way!”

Everyone tensed up again when they heard that. Everyone knew what the old way meant.

“Are you threatening me? Hahahah! You must feel strong! I fear that even if you gathered everyone in Si Qi, you would still have fewer people than the White Lotus Sect. Do you think we are afraid of you? I wonder why are you feeling so haughty now? I didn’t see that side of you when you were bound by someone in the mud!”

The Emperor of Si Qi stood up straight and waved his sleeves. “Hmph! The Emperors are the leaders of all life. We are the ones who brought prosperity to the world! I am the son of the Dragon who carries the fate of the world! Did I ask you to save me last time? Why don’t you leave me alone and let this world lose another division!”

The Second Deity scoffed at him. “Is this how the Emperor of Si Qi acts? Fighting against a little girl?”

“Come on, stop fighting! We can talk it out.” Gao Zhijian and Bai Lingmiao intervened to calm both sides.

After Bai Lingmiao tested the waters with Gao Zhijian about several solutions, she decided to delay the matter a bit. “I need to talk to the elders of my sect since this is very important. We will give you an answer soon.”

After testing both the roundabout and direct route, Bai Lingmiao had a good grasp of the bottom line. Now, she just needed to figure out a way.

“Alright, I must implore Senior Bai to let me know soon.”

Gao Zhijian gulped down his wine when he looked at Bai

Lingmiao leaving the hall.

“Liang Kingdom Emperor, do you think she will agree?” the Khan asked.

Gao Zhijian gradually clenched his fists. “It doesn’t matter. What’s more important is the answer of the Heavenly Mater.”

He didn’t want to fight against the White Lotus Sect when they had just dealt with the Dharma Sect. The more dangerous the situation was, the faster the sects would grow.

“The White Lotus Sect is expanding too fast. We need to act now. Even the Antrabhara Temple got in contact with her.”

Gao Zhijian frowned and thought of a solution: “Divide and conquer. While the White Lotus Sect is scary as a massive entity, we won’t have to worry about it anymore if we manage to separate it into ten different sects.”

“Do you have a plan to do so? This is not something a regular person could do.”

The four Emperors and Gao Zhijian looked at the Imperial Preceptor, who walked out from the darkness. “We have the Sitting Oblivion Dao.”

Gao Zhijian remembered what the contents of the Emperor’s Art[1] were—it emphasized the duality of things, where each thing had good and bad aspects. Whether something was good or bad depended on how it was used.

“Fine, let’s just stop this today. Dismissed.” The moment Gao Zhijian spoke, the other four Emperors disappeared without a trace.

They had never been in the Liang Kingdom. They were nothing but illusions.

Gao Zhijian stared at Xuan Pin floating up from the ground. “I don’t know if you are more like Li Sui or the Chief nowadays. I fear that I might not be using you anymore since we know each other.”

Xuan Pin shook her head. “Lord, please be at ease. I think you’re doing the right thing, and I won’t stop you. Also, this is good news for my mother. This was never her responsibility, and she shouldn't have to shoulder it. It would be good if someone could take on her mantle."

"Really? Do you think she won't hate you for pulling her down from her throne?"

"This was your doing. Even if she were to hold a grudge, she would hold it against you. It has nothing to do with me."

Gao Zhijian looked at her calmly. "You should know that you won't be able to stand on the sidelines all the time. Since you are the Chief of the Surveillance Bureau, you will eventually have to clash with her."

"I will await for that moment. Until then, I will try my best to avoid it."

Chapter 851 - Zen

In the capital city of Qi Kingdom, Li Huowang strolled through the streets in You Capital from the Qi Kingdom. Li Huowang had put on a face using the techniques of the Sitting Oblivion Dao, so none of the civilians noticed him.

He put his real face on one of the Mo family's "robots" in the palace to confuse the others.

He wasn't sure if it would work, but he decided to do it anyway. So far, they hadn't found out which world was trying to kill them, whether they asked the Gan family to use their divination skills or utilized the techniques of other sects.

They could only confirm that it was not the world where god Yu'er came from. They had once taken over the Qi Kingdom, and their world didn't resemble a world inhabited by regular people.

Li Huowang could do nothing without knowing who was going to attack him. The only thing he could do was to wait and ambush the attackers.

He wasn't sure if he had tipped them off last time, but no one had attacked the Qi Kingdom for a while. Still, Li Huowang couldn't just spend all day waiting for them. He still needed to do his work to revive the Qi Kingdom.

He saw the civilians' health improving and the Qi Kingdom slowly reviving. Both the palace and the Surveillance Bureau were being reconstructed, which also meant that the power he controlled was slowly expanding.

The survivors heard that the You Kingdom had food, so they slowly flocked there. The ones reaching the You Capital the fastest were, naturally, those with supernatural powers.

It was unclear whether this was due to the presence of a common enemy or Chan Du's promise, but somehow, everything in the Qi Kingdom was within Li Huowang's grasp.

With them under his command, Li Huowang could capture the assailants alive next time.

He needed to capture the Twisted One and pry out their spine to make another spine sword. He could then use it to enter their world to see what was going on.

He was thinking about it when he stopped after he saw Miao Guihua, the little girl, holding a few ribs while listening to an elderly man along with a group of other children.

Li Huowang took off his fake face and changed into his original face. He patted her head lightly. "What are you doing?"

"Bodhisattva!" Miao Guiha greeted Li Huowang. She was very happy to see him.

Li Huowang asked her again what she was up to, and she revealed the ribs in her arms. "My master told me to collect things that could be burned. I saw a lot of skeletons on the road, so I picked them up."

Li Huowang thought it was good that the Righteous Monastery could let her work. After all, according to their values, only the helpful, productive people were worthy enough to live right now. A child without value would be stuffed into a vase and sold off as a human "hard drive."

"Guihua, I'm afraid that bones are really bad kindlings, but go back to tell the monks to grind the bones into powder. That way, they can use them as fertilizer for the fields."

"Ok, I will remember it!" She nodded vigorously, and the ribs in her arms slid down a bit. She bent down and hugged the ribs even tighter.

"Go and don't run around aimlessly. While we have patrols here, there are more and more people entering this place, so it's not as safe as you would think."

Miaohua looked at the talking old man, hesitant to leave.
“Bodhisattva, can I leave after I finish listening to him?”

Li Huowang patted her head while looking at the old man with a beard full of white hair. “What is he doing?”

“He’s talking about old history. My grandfather also talked to me about it before he died.”

Li Huowang chose not to leave but instead sat down and listened.

“Sigh~ You guys were born at the right time. It was even worse last time. We didn’t know anything, and we could only grovel on the ground to eat dirt. However, the Heavens couldn’t bear it any longer and helped us. They told us that we could use cotton to make clothes, and they told us how to plant grains and rear livestock. They told us how to use fire, and more importantly, gave us wisdom. That is why we can now use rules and maintain order. From there onwards, we finally differentiated ourselves from the birds, beasts, and insects.”

Li Huowang frowned and clenched his fist a bit. A woman appeared from a crossroads, waving at them. “Guihua, come here!”

Miao Guihua saw that woman and ran after her excitedly.
“Mother, look! I picked up a lot of bones!”

“Is that so? My daughter is amazing! Come, let’s give the bones to the masters.” The woman held Guihua’s hands to bring her to the Righteous Monastery.

Miao Guihua left, and Li Huowang finally questioned the old man. “Old man, can I ask you something? How did you survive last time when you didn’t have food?”

The old man let out a deep sigh, appearing weary as he remembered. “Both my son and son-in-law were incredibly filial. They cut off their flesh to feed me, but now they are dead and I’m still alive. What an ironic twist of fate...”

“Bullshit.” Li Huowang frowned, and the people around him scattered. Soon, they were left alone.

“Who are you, and why are you here?” Li Huowang asked directly because he felt something was wrong with the old man. More importantly, the old man did not try to hide it.

The old man didn’t panic when Li Huowang saw through him and instead introduced himself courteously. “I am called Po Daer. I’m just a minor cultivator without any sect. I greet Daoist Li.”

“What are you cultivating?”

“Zen.”

“What kind of Zen?”

“Wild Fox Zen.”

“Wild Fox Zen?” Li Huowang inspected the old man before him and recalled his actions. He had a strange sense of familiarity to him.

“Old man, did you know I had an old friend who loved telling stories like you?”

“I’m not telling stories. I’m telling histories.”

“That’s doesn’t matter. Just like you, he always ran to another world to talk about stories. And more importantly, he was a Twisted One!”

Li Huowang had just said that when the ground beneath the old man sank, rendering him immobile.

Li Huowang then used his spine sword to stab towards the old man’s abdomen. However, just as the spine sword touched the old man’s body, the head of the old man shook violently before it shot up.

His organs were connected to the bottom of his neck as his head flew upwards into the air. Li Huowang had stabbed into the empty shell of the old man’s body.

Chapter 852 - Po Daer

Po Daer flew in the air rapidly with his organs trailing beneath him before planting himself on a man's neck. Then, he somehow controlled the man's right arm to tear off their own screaming head and take its place. The man's body was now Po Daer's.

With his new body, Po Daer shouted at Li Huowang, "Daoist Li, don't be rash. I'm just here to talk. There's no need to make the situation so tense for everyone here. We can discuss things peacefully."

Li Huowang stopped and frowned at the old man. Po Daer had decided not to use aggression since it wasn't working on Li Huowang.

Li Huowang did not object to the discussion. He needed to know what was happening, and he could kill the old man anytime.

For some reason, Li Huowang was stuck in the middle of a plot again, and yet he was still clueless about the situation.

"Alright, talk. Explain to me clearly. I've always been a fair man. I don't know how or when I've offended your world to the point that you would kill me without a single warning."

The Qi Kingdom's palace had received information about their skirmish while Li Huowang was talking. The Surveillance Bureau of the Qi Kingdom had already surrounded the entire street.

Po Daer was not afraid even though he was surrounded by the Surveillance Bureau. He looked at Li Huowang without a single hint of fear.

"Does Daoist Li really do not know, or are you pretending not to know?"

"I do know, but how does saving the Qi Kingdom affect you guys? Can't you just live peacefully?"

Li Huowang tried to bait Po Daer into revealing more information.

“Of course we can’t. In each world, there is one flower and one tree to sustain everyone’s life. The flower of my world is dying. Daoist Li, you are the embodiment of a living Bodhisattva who couldn’t bear to see the people of the Qi Kingdom dying from starvation. Will you really allow the millions of people from the Tianchen Kingdom to suffer that fate?”

“Stop trying to guilt trip me! Your cheap tricks will not sway me! How am I involved if your world is dying? You should find the one who’s trying to destroy your world! Why are you trying to kill me instead?”

Po Daer bowed to Li Huowang gracefully. “Daoist Li, I do apologize. The people from before were crude men, and I apologize on their behalf. I disagreed with their methods, and you are correct—we should be finding the person trying to destroy our world, not you. However, if we were to pluck the flower from another tree, we would have to cross into the Qi Kingdom. It would be problematic for us if you were to revive the Qi Kingdom while we are crossing.”

Li Huowang understood what the old man meant. There was going to be an all-out war.

Po Daer stroked his white beard and chuckled. “Daoist Li, since you understand our plight, why don’t we make a deal?”

Li Huowang smiled coldly, doubtful of Po Daer’s words. “What? Do you only want to negotiate with me now that you know I’m hard to kill? What were you doing before this?”

“Daoist Li, we do not have a grudge that requires us to fight to the death. Why don’t we solve this amicably?”

“What about this? If you let us cross to the other world by passing through the Qi Kingdom, the Tianchen Kingdom will open up its granaries and give the Qi Kingdom three years’ worth of harvest. I imagine this will help a lot with your famine issue.”

Everyone from the Qi Kingdom was excited to hear Po Daer's proposal. The Qi Kingdom lacked food, so everyone knew how important that offer was.

"And why do you need to go to another world? Did you think that I wouldn't notice the catch to your proposal?"

No one knew what the Tianchen Kingdom was trying to do by passing through the Qi Kingdom. The more attractive the proposals were, the more worried Li Huowang was. He still remembered how they had tried to kill him.

Po Daer chuckled when Li Huowang questioned him. "To think that Daoist Li is such an astute man. You are right. We do need your help."

Po Daer pointed at the spine sword on Li Huowang's back. "We need Daoist Li's Horizon Rending Sword. I hope you will cooperate."

"Stop giving another name to my sword."

Li Huowang reached for his sword and recalled how they desperately tried to take it away.

"Wait, why do you need my spine sword? Is the problem from your world related to the Liang Kingdom?"

"Yes, that is correct." Po Daer nodded. "The scholar from the Astronomy Academy has discovered that the Infernal Matron has taken back her throne. We need to kill that evil demoness of the White Lotus, or the Tianchen Kingdom will fall into ruins!"

"White Lotus... Demoness....? Infernal Matron?" Li Huowang fell silent and slowly approached Po Daer. "You said that we don't have any grudges, right?"

"Indeed."

"Now we do!" Li Huowang shifted his body and instantly appeared in front of Po Daer. He stabbed the spine sword directly into Po Daer's forehead.

Just as Po Daer's head was almost sliced in half, his previously empty shell of a body stood up and ran.

His head is not important. His body is!

Chan Du was already prepared by the time Po Daer tried to run. Chan Du sat down and plucked the nine scars on his forehead before flicking them to Po Daer.

In the middle of the sky, the black circular scars grew into grotesque balls of flesh.

The balls of flesh had almost hit Po Daer when a hole suddenly appeared out of nowhere. The balls of flesh plunged themselves straight into the hole.

Po Daer was on the verge of escaping into the hole when Li Huowang glared in his direction. In that instant, Po Daer's body froze in midair and began collapsing on itself. But then, just as Li Huowang was about to grind Po Daer into meat paste using his cultivation, a clear jade-like hand emerged from the hole.

The hand gently pinched Po Daer's body before removing something intangible from it. The hand threw the intangible energy to the side and Li Huowang's vision followed it uncontrollably.

One of Chan Du's scars had turned into a meat paste since Li Huowang had looked at it, while Po Daer had vanished into the hole without leaving a trace.

Li Huowang stood motionless—he never thought something like that could happen. The hand had picked up and tossed his cultivation of the “Truth.”

The power to traverse between worlds clearly belonged to a Twisted One. However, not anyone could touch his “Truth” cultivation. Even if he used his own cultivation on himself, he wouldn't be able to turn it tangible and grab it. And yet, the jade-like hand could grab it and throw it away!

Li Huowang clearly understood how strong his powers were. He thought that he was almost undefeatable in this world, but it appeared he was wrong.

Whose hand is it? How did they do it? Only a Siming could do it!

Chapter 853 - Li Sui

“Father, where are you?”

Li Sui was wandering on the streets as she looked around her.

The street was bustling with activity, and a market was taking place today. People were peddling their wares on the sidewalk. There were even performers earning their daily bread by having monkeys perform tricks. The atmosphere was full of life.

While Li Sui would’ve run around excitedly in the past, she didn’t intend to play around now. She had fallen here two days ago, and everyone kept saying this place was the Qi Kingdom. However, how could this place be the Qi Kingdom?

Her father had once used the spine sword to send her there, but he had also told her that god Yu’er had destroyed the Qi Kingdom—there shouldn’t have been so many survivors.

She didn’t know where she was or what was happening, leaving her in a state of confusion.

Nevertheless, she couldn’t just stand still and wait. She needed to move around because her father was still waiting for her to send Dragon Qi up there.

She stared at the people’s faces and hesitated. Then, carefully approaching an old woman who looked easy to talk to, she said, “Excuse me, ma’am. Do you know where the Emperor is?”

No matter where she was or what was happening, Li Sui knew that the correct choice would be to go to the place where the Emperor was.

If this was the Qi Kingdom, heading towards where the Emperor lived meant she would meet the monks. And even if the monks weren’t there, she could still head to the Surveillance Bureau to find where her father was.

“Huh? Emperor? I don’t know. He’s not in my house,” the old woman exclaimed loudly, her voice raised as her hearing was impaired.

“Little girl, why are you looking for the Emperor? Are you his secret child? Ha! I saw that plot in yesterday’s performance!”

Li Sui didn’t know what the old woman was rambling about, so decided to find someone else to ask.

She had just taken a few steps when a man with a medicinal plaster on the back of his hand grabbed her and dragged her out of the market. “Hey, why are you still walking around in the market? Your father is so anxious that he’s going crazy! Come with me.”

Li Sui perked up and quickly followed the man. “My father?”

After exiting the busy market and walking through half of the city, Li Sui was finally brought towards a massive estate.

“Master You! Master You! We found the young master!”

Everyone in the estate ran out upon hearing the man’s shout. Li Sui was confused about why they were circling him anxiously, and then she looked down and saw her new body. The father the man was talking about wasn’t her real father—it was the father of the young man whom she had crushed.

She looked around at their excited faces and felt ashamed, realizing what was happening. Li Sui had already learned the meaning of death and what it meant.

“I’m sorry. I’m so sorry. I didn’t mean to do it. I didn’t want it to happen.”

They didn’t listen to Li Sui’s attempts to explain. They crowded around her as they walked towards the courtyard.

“I didn’t mean to do it! I really didn’t!”

She attempted to flee, but the people were already on high alert. They encircled her, preventing any chance of escape.

“I didn’t want to do it! I want to find my father!”

Li Sui pushed forcefully as several tentacles sprouted out from her body. She pushed everyone away with her tentacles.

As soon as they laid eyes on the squirming tentacles protruding from her body, a wave of shock washed over everyone. For a brief moment, silence enveloped the room, but it was swiftly shattered as fear took hold and screams echoed through the air. Chaos erupted, engulfing the entire place.

They all tried their best to distance themselves from Li Sui, to the point that they ended up trampling over one another.

Li Sui took advantage of the chaos and escaped. She ran back to the market and sighed in relief.

“I’m so sorry. I didn’t mean to do it. I will find a way to compensate everyone once I’ve found my father,” Li Sui murmured before continuing to wander around the market.

“Do you know where the Emperor is?”

“Do you know where the You Capital is?”

“I want to find the Emperor. Do you know where he is?”

Li Sui wandered around the market, persistently asking different people. As the market was closing, she finally obtained some useful information.

An old man who was selling roasted pickled vegetables gave her directions. “Head towards the east and continue to walk down the path. You will find the Emperor at the end of the path.”

After thanking the old man, Li Sui walked out of town, found the road, and continued her journey.

She dared not stop moving—her father’s survival was still uncertain.

Li Sui walked for two days and felt very hungry. She swallowed her saliva when she saw a group of ducks in the river, but she decided not to catch them. There was a large flock of them, so it was clear that somebody had been raising the ducks.

Just then, all of the ducks entered the water to swim to the opposite shore. Li Sui immediately noticed some white dots on the river bank—duck eggs.

She ran over and picked three duck eggs before swallowing them whole one by one.

The three duck eggs weren't enough to fill her belly. She looked around and found one of the duck eggs was cracked open on a rock. She ran over and scooped up the broken egg before sucking on her fingers.

As she was enjoying her meal, she heard footsteps behind her.

A tentacle sporting two eyeballs sprouted from the back of her neck and caught sight of a group of people trailing behind two Daoists. One of the Daoists was old, while the other was young.

Li Sui recognized the crowd. Most of them were from the You family, including the so-called Master You and his wife. Li Sui, however, didn't recognize the two Daoists.

They wore strange Daoist robes without sleeves, revealing their arms as they gripped their cherrywood swords.

The old Daoist pointed the sword at Li Sui, causing her to jump from fright. "You animal! How dare you take the body of someone else! I shall enact justice in Heaven's stead!"

As she stood up to run and get away, she found herself surrounded by another group of people from the other side. They were guards from the You family and some city guards.

"Die, you animal!" The Daoist ran at Li Sui to stab her with his bloodied cherrywood sword.

Li Sui didn't want to fight him and kept dodging. As she was evading the attacks, the skies above her darkened and a foul-smelling liquid splashed onto her body.

The liquid was blood. While she was trying to wipe it away from her eyes, a sharp pain shot through her chest. The cherrywood sword had stabbed into her body.

The onlookers erupted in delight at the sight of Li Sui's injury. "Amazing! The black dog's blood really is useful to ward off evil!"

Chapter 854 - Chat

“It hurts! You’re hurting me!” Li Sui tried to push the old Daoist and the sword away. “Go away! I don’t want to kill people! Leave me alone!”

The two Daoists, in contrast, were excited when they heard her. “The evil entity is getting weaker! It’s trying to run away! My disciple, get ready to use the Soul Plunging Into Ocean Formation!”

“Yes, master!”

The two Daoists encircled Li Sui with synchronized hand seals and precise, deliberate movements.

Their shoe prints left a strange Daoist array on the ground, and the Feng Shui around them started to change.

Li Sui felt something was amiss and didn’t want to die here, so she took out some yellow talisman papers and began inscribing them with her own blood.

“Ma... Master. Am I seeing things right? Is the evil entity... is the evil entity drawing a talisman?”

Li Sui placed three talismans onto her tentacles and jumped up forcefully. She soared through the air and aimed for the river.

She wanted to avoid them by swimming away.

But as she was just about to land in the river, she saw several white flags embedded in the riverbed.

The Daoists had expected her to escape through the river and left traps there!

Bai Lingmiao felt her heart tense as she listened to Li Sui’s story. She leaned forward in anxiety as she held onto her teacup.

“And then what happened? Were you alright?”

Li Sui placed her teacup down lightly and chuckled. “Of course, everything was fine in the end. I wouldn’t be here today otherwise.

“The Daoists weren’t my match. I only panicked because it was the first time I was separated from Father. I won, but I was injured.”

Li Sui continued her story, recalling what had happened over a hundred years ago.

“Uuuu...” She dragged her bloody and tattered body from the river as she escaped.

Most of her tentacles had been snapped, and her body was filled with holes. She was almost blinded, and black fluid continued to leak out from a large hole on her head.

“Uuuuu... Father, where are you...? They are bullying me... It’s so painful...” Li Sui cried towards the sky as she ran.

She was heavily injured. Her instinct was driving her to find a new host to recover.

Li Sui returned to the river and discovered the Daoists who had been swept downstream. She dragged them out of the water and prepared to leave.

However, someone was blocking her path. It wasn’t the city guards or the guards from the You family. It was the wife of Master You.

“Oh great Immortal!” The woman practically broke down in tears as she kneeled before Li Sui.

“Oh great Immortal! Please, let go of my son! Let him go, please! He had just passed his village exams! He’s going to be a scholar in the city soon! Please, let him go and eat me instead!”

“Sorry...” Li Sui sobbed and bowed to her before walking past the woman.

“Great Immortal!” Her sorrowful cries made Li Sui stop.

Four plump children wearing dudous were presented in front of Li Sui.

“Great Immortal! I’ve bought these four children! Let’s exchange them, please! Four of them for my son! You won’t get cheated by me! It’s a fair deal!”

“I... I don’t want... I want to go back... I want my father...” Li Sui dragged the corpses as she continued to trudge onwards.

A sharp pain suddenly shot through her back. She looked back and saw the crazed woman stabbing her with a hairpin!

The woman was looking at Li Sui with deep hatred. “Give me back my son!”

Such small wounds did nothing to Li Sui, but with each stab and each time she met the woman's eyes, the guilt in Li Sui's heart intensified. It made her feel like a child being scolded for making a mistake.

In the end, Li Sui threw down the corpses and ran into the forest.

The skies turned dark and it started raining. She was tired and wanted to find a place to rest, but no such place existed.

Li Sui was cold, hungry, and wounded. She squatted down under a large tree and cried in despair.

“Father! Mother! Where are you?”

Wisps of steam floated out from the teacup in Li Sui’s hands. Under her watchful gaze, the steam dissipated in the air.

“Afterwards, the woman did not blame me. She was a rational woman who forgave me because it was an accident. After establishing a foothold in the Qi Kingdom, I even helped the You family and gave one of them the title of a fourth-rank official[1]. I suppose it’s compensation for them.

“Still, even though it was an accident, the reality is that I crushed their son.”

Bai Lingmiao sighed when she heard the story's ending. “I suppose it’s alright to let it go since everything ended well.”

“I never held onto the guilt. It’s just a story I thought would be suitable to talk to you, mother,” Li Sui said, picking up the gifts she had made. “Mother, these are red sugar cubes with gum and honey dates. Put them in hot water and drink them when you have your period. They should help you relieve pain and cramps.”

Bai Lingmiao felt a warmth in her heart. No one had taken care of her so well in the past.

“Also, I made some clothes for you. I know you prefer simple clothes, so I didn’t choose brightly colored fabric. This one opens up at the back so Second Mom can come out from there.”

The Second Deity felt the smooth silk and chuckled. “It’s good that I treated you so well when you were younger.”

They were talking when urgent footsteps came from outside.

It was Li Huowang. Bai Lingmiao had been trying on her new clothes when Li Huowang asked her hastily, “Miaomiao, where are the books kept in the secret underground chamber of the ancestral hall? I need them!”

“You mean the books with the techniques of the White Lotus Sect? They’re all in the White Lotus Hall for copying and distribution. They’re not here anymore.”

“No, not that. I need the books recording the various nonsense about the White Lotus Sect!”

“Oh, they are on the second shelf of the east wall.”

After hearing Li Sui’s answer, Li Huowang ran inside and started rummaging around.

Li Sui checked the new clothes that Bai Lingmiao was trying on. “Does it fit? If it doesn’t, I can change it for you now.”

“It does fit. Suisui, what’s happening to your father?”

“Don’t worry. He will tell us what’s happening later. Mother, there’s actually something important that I need to tell you today.”

Bai Lingmiao looked at Li Sui and sat down. “Oh? What is it?”

“Mother, do you still remember why you were chosen to become the Saintess?”

“The Heavenly Mater chose me. I didn’t want to do it willingly.”

“Then, if I gave you the chance, would you give up on being a Saintess? I remember that becoming a Saintess wasn't your dream, right?"

"Suisui, what's going on? Why are you telling me this?"

Thump! One of the books fell on the ground.

Li Sui paused and stared at Li Huowang, who was busy going through all the books. "Father, could you be quieter? I'm talking with Mother."

1. Officials in ancient times were ranked from one to ten, with one being the highest rank 📖

Chapter 855 - Help

“Father, could you be quieter? I’m trying to talk to Mother.”

Li Huowang ignored her and continued to search for the book he needed. He continued to murmur to himself, “This book... It’s not what I need.”

Li Sui saw that Li Huowang was ignoring her, so she didn’t think much about it. She turned to Bai Lingmiao. “Mother, I really don’t want you to be the Saintess. The higher up you climb, the more dangerous it is for you. I’m worried.”

“Danger? I thought the Dharma Sect had been exterminated. What danger is there left? Are you saying...?”

Bai Lingmiao looked towards the direction of the palace.

“Those at the top are always in danger, no matter where they are. To be honest, I didn’t want Gao Zhijian to be the Emperor or father to be a Twisted One because it’s dangerous. They didn’t have a choice, but you do. I can find a way to have someone replace you.”

Bai Lingmiao lowered her head and looked at her new clothes silently. “Is this related to the emperors seeking me out? Do they want to do something to me?”

Li Sui shook her head lightly. “No, we haven’t reached that stage yet. However, the situation will get very messy very quickly if this continues on. The frequency of such incidents will increase as long as you’re the Saintess. I fear that the situation will deteriorate in the future.

“Mother, don’t forget that we now have five Emperors. While Gao Zhijian may not do anything to you, the other Emperors are more than eager to get rid of you. There are still people who are on par with me in terms of strength in the other Surveillance Bureaus.

“More importantly, there’s nothing the White Lotus Sect can do. Any resistance would be treated as treason.”

“Then so be it! We will show them how strong we are!” Bai Lingmiao’s voice revealed a rare hint of anger.

The Second Deity turned and voiced the thoughts Bai Lingmiao had been keeping in her heart. “We, the White Lotus Sect, were the ones who fought against the Dharma Sect on the front lines! Our people generously donated money, food, and resources to support them!

“And now they have the nerve to tell us that there are too many people in the White Lotus Sect? Do they think that we are expendable tools?”

"You're absolutely correct—the White Lotus Sect is a tool." Li Sui's words caused the room to fall into a hushed silence, except for the sound of Li Huowang rummaging through the books.

Bai Lingmiao was in shock, her eyes wide as she looked at Li Sui.

“Mother, you must understand that these kinds of incidents are inevitable when you hold such a high position. Mother, you must know that these incidents become common as you sit high in your throne. Since ancient times, emperors have always been cruel people, and the saying that the cruelest person is the Emperor is no mere exaggeration. ”

“You’ve escaped from the Zephyr Temple and finally have some time to relax. We finally have some time to relax after escaping Zephyr Temple. Now, it's your turn to enjoy some peace and tranquility.”

Bai Lingmiao recalled her past and remembered her naive dream. She remembered looking at everyone’s back and smiling.

A few breaths later, she was pulled back to reality. Bai Lingmiao shifted her gaze elsewhere and said, “It’s true, but there are some things I cannot decide for myself. I cannot leave, especially after listening to your words.”

“Why?” Li Sui wasn’t surprised, but she still asked out of curiosity.

“Because I’m worried. I’m worried about the Emperor who would treat two million lives as a statistic. We are all humans, not weeds sprouting from the fields.”

Bai Lingmiao clutched onto her clothes as she spoke, “I could, at the very least, intimidate them a bit by staying here. If I were to actually leave, the White Lotus Sect would crumble into a disorganized mess, easily manipulated by the Emperor’s whims.”

Bai Lingmiao then placed her clothes to the side. “Suisui, go back and tell Gao Zhijian everything can be negotiated. As a sign of our sincerity, I’ve restricted my people from recruiting or spreading our gospel.”

Li Sui sipped her tea and said, “Mother, it’s not just humans we have to be wary about. We also have to consider what the Simings above think. Will the Heavenly Mater agree? You might end up with two dissatisfied parties instead.

Bai Lingmiao’s expression changed slightly, but she refused to budge. “I know that there will be issues, but I don’t want to give up. I want to at least try.

“I can’t give up just because I know it will be difficult. I don’t want to run from my problems—I want to face them head-on this time. I will not regret this, no matter what the outcome is.”

“Nice!” The Second Deity circled around and gave Bai Lingmiao a light peck on her cheek. “We’ve worked hard to secure our role, and now they want us to back down just because they said so? Who do they think they are? Let them try to force us. Let’s see if we get exterminated or if we get to punch out their teeth!”

Li Sui understood Bai Lingmiao’s intention and nodded, “Alright, I will pass on your message.”

Li Sui stood up and looked at Li Huowang, “Father, are you still searching for the book? Do you need my help? What kind of book are you looking for?"

The Second Deity glanced at the gift Li Sui had brought them before whispering in her heart, "In the end, we are only her stepmother, so it's natural that she's a bit distant from us. Look at how chummy she is with her father."

"Why are you treating Suisui like that? I thought you were very close to her last time. This isn't her fault. She's caught in the middle of two opposing forces and has to be careful."

"Are you sure she's in a difficult position? I might be close to her, but she's no longer two years old. She's already one hundred sixty-two years old. There's always going to be a barrier between us."

Bai Lingmiao frowned before approaching Li Huowang too.

Seeing that Bai Lingmiao didn't want to talk to her anymore, the Second Deity decided not to say anything else. Her intentions had already been made clear.

"Hey, crazy bastard. What are you looking for? It's been half a day, and you still couldn't find it?"

Eight pairs of eyes were better compared to a single pair of eyes. They rapidly searched through the books and soon organized them based on their contents.

Some were illustration books, some were records of history, and there were even some scriptures—the genres of the books were chaotic. Li Huowang sat on the floor and read every single one because he couldn't afford to miss anything. He was hoping that he would find what he needed in the books.

"Father, did something happen in the Qi Kingdom?" Li Sui suddenly sensed that something was wrong.

"Yes, they are here! Their goal isn't the Qi Kingdom—it's the Liang Kingdom! They are passing through the Qi Kingdom, and their real goal is to cross into the Liang Kingdom and kill your mother!”

Li Sui and Bai Lingmiao were shocked at his words. They now understood why Li Huowang was panicking.

Chapter 856 - Void Home

Li Huowang explained the situation to Bai Lingmiao and Li Sui. One was from the Surveillance Bureau, while the other was from the White Lotus Sect. They needed to learn about it sooner or later.

He could even ask Li Sui to pass the message to Gao Zhijian.

Threats like these needed to be told to the highest authorities in the history so they could prepare.

It would be a significant issue if they were to come and fight against the White Lotus Sect with their full strength now.

“Based on what I’ve learned, they appeared to have some kind of fight with the White Lotus Sect in the past. Since I can’t find anything else from them, I thought it would be plausible to find some information through the White Lotus Sect, especially about the jade-like hand.”

Li Sui found the key to the problem. “Jade-like hand? Father, did they have a grudge against the White Lotus Sect or the Heavenly Mater?”

Bai Lingmiao’s heart sped up because she remembered something.

“Isn’t it the same? Help me find all the past enemies that the White Lotus Sect encountered in the records. We can slowly rule them out later on.”

“I think... I think I know who they are,” said Bai Lingmiao.

Miaomiao had never once come into contact with them, so it was a bit unnatural that she knew who the enemies were.

“Did they record it down in the books? Who are they? Who’s the one with the jade-like hand?”

Bai Lingmiao didn’t know how to explain it. She scanned the books littered on the ground and accurately picked one up before giving it to Li Huowang.

Li Huowang looked at her with doubt before quickly reading through the book.

The Heavenly Mater is the ancient God that cannot be birthed or killed! She could send all of us to the Void Home to avoid any tribulations! Everything in this world was supposed to be in the hands of the Heavenly Mater! Every part of the world belonged to the Void Home. Under her care, we gave birth, grew, and became old.

One day, someone betrayed her, and they were none other than her most trusted grandchildren!

As the army of Unspeakable was being birthed from the Heavenly Mater's dantian, some of her grandchildren revolted. They conspired with the army of Unspeakable to betray her! They killed the loyal grandchildren and took away everything from the Heavenly Mater.

They discarded what they didn't need and swallowed what they wanted. Afterward, they positioned themselves in the very spot where the Heavenly Mother ought to be seated!

They feared their deeds would be discovered, so they rewrote the history books! They've changed history in people's hearts!

However, we remember. Our history forever belongs to the Heavenly Mater. We will never forget, and we will patiently await the day when the Heavenly Mater reclaims her rightful place on the throne!

The Heavenly Mater is both dead and alive. Since they've taken everything, there's nothing else the Heavenly Mater could lose.

A person covered in unhealable wounds would never have new wounds on their body. After being stripped of everything, the Heavenly Mater had nothing else to be taken away.

The Heavenly Mater is constantly trying, day and night, men and women, or even Yin and Yang. The traitors are always watching because they are afraid. They are continually hindering us from reuniting with the Heavenly Mater.

They can send their people to stop us if they want, but it doesn't matter to us. We simply need to succeed once. With that, the Heavenly Mater will be reinstated upon her rightful throne and return to her rightful place!

No matter how long it will take, I will forever wait as her last surviving grandchild. Even if I were to be killed, my son would crawl out from my body and continue the wait. I will have sons and grandsons, and my family will wait forever! For the Heavenly Mater and the Void Home!

Li Huowang stared at the contents and gradually understood what was happening.

“So...” Li Huowang placed the book down and looked up. “The people who betrayed the Heavenly Mater in the other history were her grandchildren?”

Li Huowang’s questions were answered the moment he voiced them.

It explained why the people of the Tianchen Kingdom held a grudge against the Heavenly Mater, which was also why they sought to kill the Saintess of the White Lotus Sect after the Heavenly Mater's reinstatement.

He was shocked. He continued to read the book in a panic.

They allied themselves with the army of Unspeakable and killed the grandchildren who were loyal to the Heavenly Mater. Then, they stripped her of everything, tossing away what they didn’t need and taking what they did need. They replaced her and stood where the Heavenly Mater once stood.

“If this is real, that means that the Void Home is another timeline of the history and the turf of the Heavenly Mater!”

Li Huowang looked up and took a sharp breath as he stared at Bai Lingmiao. To think that they actually did it.

That was how the jade-like hand could move his cultivation of the “Truth” so easily. They had taken the Heavenly Dao of the Heavenly Mater and used them for their own purposes.

Even though the five branches of history did not intersect, the current history of the Tianchen Kingdom undoubtedly strayed from the path the most.

Being able to strip the Heavenly Dao from a Siming meant that they were very strong, which was bad because it meant that they would be troublesome opponents.

Li Huowang frowned and continued to analyze the words of the book.

The army of Unspeakable was being birthed from the Heavenly Mater's dantian when her grandchildren revolted.

“They had allied with the army of Unspeakable to betray the Heavenly Mater before stripping everything off her... The Unspeakable army...”

Li Huowang pondered those words carefully.

The army of Unspeakable was the key here. If not, the grandchildren wouldn't have been able to steal the Heavenly Dao from the Heavenly Mater successfully.

He now had to face both the grandchildren from the Void Home and the mysterious army of the Unspeakable.

But the Unspeakable recorded in the book clearly didn't indicate that it was Ji Zai. Ji Zai was Li Huowang himself, and he couldn't have crawled out from the dantian of the Heavenly Mater.

Also, Ji Zai was just unspeakable in a sense. Unspeakable was not Ji Zai's name. Therefore, the army of Unspeakable did not point to Ji Zai.

More importantly, the word army meant that there were a lot of Unspeakable.

“If that's the case, who owns the jade-like hand? The grandchildren of the Heavenly Mater or the army of the Unspeakable?”

Chapter 857 - Analysis

Even after he flipped through all of the books, Li Huowang had no idea if the owner of the jade hand belonged to the army of the Unspeakable or the so-called grandchildren.

He even asked Bai Lingmiao to go and question all of the elders of the White Lotus Sect, but they came up empty-handed. It had been a very long time. The White Lotus Sect had been hiding for so long that they had no idea how many generations had passed on the surface.

As for their memories of the Heavenly Mater and the Void Home, they were looking through it with a filter of their belief. To them, the stories were just legends or myths that had no substance.

Still, their method of questioning them was ultimately correct. Li Huowang compiled the information they had obtained and finally understood why he was the one being ambushed instead,

The Tianchen Kingdom was none other than the Void Home. The Heavenly Mater had once controlled that particular branch of history.

However, after the betrayal of the army of the Unspeakable and the grandchildren, they stripped away the Heavenly Dao of the Heavenly Mater and took it as their own.

After everything was taken away from her, the Heavenly Mater had no choice but to find a way to revive and somehow ended up in the Liang Kingdom.

The Heavenly Mater influenced the regular people here, and the influence of the White Lotus Sect slowly spread to find a way to revive herself. Unfortunately, there wasn't a spare Heavenly Dao around, so the White Lotus Sect could not be revived.

Finally, the Heavenly Mater found a chance and obtained a Twisted One after going through various issues. At the same time, the Heavenly Mater obtained both the Heavenly Dao of Death and Heavenly Dao of Benevolence. That was how she returned to her throne.

As for the Tianchen Kingdom, previously the Void Home, they had sensed the reinstatement of the Heavenly Mater.

They would never let the Heavenly Mater become stronger—they knew for certain that she would take revenge on them after they had betrayed her and even taken her Heavenly Dao.

They wanted to pass through the Qi Kingdom to enter the Liang Kingdom. Their goal was to kill the Twisted One of the Heavenly Mater before she became powerful. They planned to destroy the White Lotus Sect from the root.

There was even a possibility that they would take it a step further by once again stripping both the Heavenly Daos from the Heavenly Mater.

Li Huowang was coincidentally the one saving the Qi Kingdom and interfering with their plan. That was why they wanted to take away the spine sword, which allowed for traversal between the Qi Kingdom and the Liang Kingdom.

After seeing that Li Huowang was not an easy foe, they sent Po Daer to forge an alliance with him. The only flaw in their plan was that the Saintess of the White Lotus Sect was Li Huowang's wife.

Li Huowang couldn't wait for the Heavenly Mater to grow strong enough to take revenge on her grandchildren or the army of the Unspeakable.

Li Huowang would never let his wife face an entire army from an alternate history on her own. In this situation, negotiations were completely out of the question.

After hearing Li Huowang's explanation, both Li Sui and Bai Lingmiao were worried. The Liang Kingdom had just been freed from the threat of the Dharma Sect, and now another war was looming just over the horizon.

“The Void Home is another alternate history?” Bai Lingmiao frowned. “Senior Li, maybe you’re wrong. Perhaps it isn’t another history but the real Void Home.” Bai Lingmiao’s hands were trembling. “Yes, that’s right! It’s the real Void Home, but it’s being occupied by someone else! We just need to help the Heavenly Mater to take it back. That’s right. It must be like that.”

Li Huowang was about to argue, but Li Sui called out to him, prompting him to turn around.

“Father, if it’s as you say, then we can ask the Heavenly Mater directly. Maybe we can get more clues.”

“That’s right!” Li Huowang perked up. The Heavenly Mater would certainly remember who had betrayed her and left her in the dust to rot.

“Miaomiao, can you tell your men to find the Heavenly Mater and find out what happened?”

Bai Lingmiao took a few panicked breaths before finally calming down. “No, I can’t do that. I’ve been trying to contact her ever since Death returned, but the Heavenly Mater still appears to be dead. She hasn’t reacted to my voice at all...”

Li Huowang sighed and couldn’t even get angry. Someone was knocking on their door, yet the Heavenly Mater was still playing dead!

It wasn’t just Ji Zai. The Heavenly Mater wasn’t being useful either. Li Huowang lamented how all of the Simings by his side were practically useless.

“Nevermind. Let’s not place our hopes on them. We have to rely on ourselves.”

Li Huowang scratched the back of his head while pacing around, deep in thought as he tried to come up with a plan. He suddenly stopped. “Suisui, you can head back first and let Gao Zhijian know what’s happening. Let him and the other emperors prepare.”

Li Sui was about to say something when Li Huowang said, “Actually, you don’t have to go. I’ll go ahead and inform them. You can contact the other Surveillance Bureaus—I’m not familiar with them. If the people from the Tianchen Kingdom do come, it will be a disaster far greater than a Natural Disaster.”

Li Huowang looked at Bai Lingmiao. “Miaomiao, just let the Heavenly Mater know what’s going on, even if she’s pretending to be dead.”

Li Huowang paused and said seriously, “Tell her that whether I can help or not depends on the decision of the Saintess. Let her know that it was Ji Zai who said that!”

If the Tianchen Kingdom was aiming for the Saintess of the White Lotus Sect, then Bai Lingmiao was in danger. He needed to find a way to protect her.

He hoped that even if they failed, the worst-case scenario would be the death of the Heavenly Mater rather than Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang nodded at Bai Lingmiao before leaving. As he was running towards the palace, Li Sui caught up to him and said, “Father, did you overhear the conversation between me and Mother? Are you killing two birds in one stone?”

“I’m not deaf. Of course I heard it.”

“Mother might not understand your intentions. Maybe you don’t know this, but I’ve seen that the White Lotus Sect has become a big obsession and responsibility for her. She poured her heart into it and would never let go of it. If she didn’t have the White Lotus Sect, she would be left with nothing.”

“Why would she be left with nothing? She still has me.”

“Father, you are really clueless. Mother never let the past go—she’s just trying to escape it by using the Void Home as an excuse. I’ve tried to figure things out for you two, but I can’t find a good solution. After all, you're the person who killed her entire family.

"I think that if being together causes suffering for both of you, it would be better if you were separated."

Chapter 858 - Plan

Li Huowang stopped and looked at Li Sui incredulously. He never thought she would say something like that.

His lips quivered and he shouted, “Don’t butt into the matters of adults! You are just a child!”

Li Huowang began to walk away, then stopped again. “It’s up to her whether to understand me or not. Still, I need to use this chance to shake up the Heavenly Mater so that Miaomiao has the choice at least.”

“Alright, as you say.”

Li Sui’s slowly sank into the earth, saying, “Father, forgive me for my harsh words, but certain issues should be addressed as soon as possible. Dragging things on isn’t an option here.”

Li Huowang’s body glittered and disappeared. He was invisible now.

The palace in Shangjing wasn’t far, so Li Huowang reached it within moments. This time, Li Huowang found Gao Zhijian in the study, where he had been approving proposals and reports. Li Huowang kept the story short and explained everything that had happened.

Half a division later, Gao Zhijian was frowning. Li Huowang said, “I hope the emperors do not forsake the White Lotus Sect for the sake of peace. The White Lotus Sect is so massive that almost every civilian is a part of it. They are integral in every kingdom.”

Gao Zhijian frowned at Li Huowang. “I’m not so stupid enough to do that. There’s no difference between allowing foreign soldiers to run amok in my lands and giving my throne to someone else.”

“Good. I understand the conflict you have with the White Lotus Sect. Don’t worry about it—I’m certain that there’s a way to resolve it.”

Gao Zhijian scratched his head. He didn’t want Li Huowang to get involved with them because he himself didn’t know what to do either.

“Senior Li, what do you think we should do to solve this?”

“I don’t have a plan. I will just sit in the middle and not let anyone kill anybody. We can slowly think about a plan that way. I will destroy the side that crosses the line first—they will have to do it over my dead body!”

Li Huowang then looked up at the ceiling and shouted, “Stop trying to pretend that you’re dead! I’m talking to you too! If you have the audacity to pull off any stupid stunts, I will go to the Baiyu Capital to give you a good beating!”

“Senior Li, can you stop fooling around? Actually, that’s fine. We have a common enemy in front of us, so let’s just set it aside for now. We can get back to it once we resolve the current issue.”

“Fine, let’s do this!” Li Huowang didn’t mind making threats and fooling around if it meant that their plan would work.

Li Huowang asked, “What do you intend to do?”

“This is an important decision, so it’s best not to be rash. We can wait until the other officials are here before we decide.”

Gao Zhijian pondered silently then asked, “Senior Li, are you still sending food to the Qi Kingdom?”

“Yes. Why? Do you still intend to stop me even though I’m sending food from Cowheart Village now?”

“No, I will not. In fact, I will even give them six months’ worth of food.”

Li Huowang was confused as to why Gao Zhijian suddenly changed his mind.

What is he thinking? If the Dragon Vein wasn’t protecting him, I would’ve thought the Sitting Oblivion Dao tricked him.

Gao Zhijian’s explanation gave Li Huowang the answer he needed. “I won’t send only food but also weapons and armor. I will even request the Surveillance Bureau to send out some artifacts, pills, and talismans. They will only need to return them once everything is over.”

Li Huowang looked at Gao Zhijian with a complicated expression. “I know what you are thinking. You want to turn the Qi Kingdom into a line of defense to prevent them from entering the Liang Kingdom.”

Gao Zhijian didn’t give even a single grain to the Qi Kingdom last time, so there must be a reason for his generosity right now.

Standing from the perspective of an Emperor, it was indeed an excellent idea to weaponize the Qi Kingdom and make them fight the Tianchen Kingdom in their stead.

It was an great plan. All they needed to do was to give some food and equipment. In exchange, the Qi Kingdom would deal with the massive headache, and no one in the Liang Kingdom would need to die.

“Why not? Both sides would benefit like this.” Gao Zhijian said, extending his arms. “Of course, I won’t give them anything if you don’t want me to.”

Li Huowang felt something was wrong, but the plan was logical and had no weaknesses. “Fine, just give them quickly. Prepare the things as soon as you can. I will go back and check on them to ensure nothing has happened to the Qi Kingdom.”

Li Huowang took out his spine sword and was about to send out a rift when Gao Zhijian stopped him.

“Senior Li.” Li Huowang lowered his arm and looked at Gao Zhijian.

“Senior Li, humans are humans, while Simings are Simings. Those who are different from us will ultimately have their own agenda.”

“Is that what you’ve been thinking about? What if there was a Siming who was also a human? What would you do in that case?"

Li Huowang did not wait for an answer and returned to the Qi Kingdom.

Gao Zhijian sighed as he stared at the vacant study. The recent conflict with the Dharma Sect had finally ended, but another war loomed on the horizon. Once again, the Liang Kingdom was on the brink of chaos. Gao Zhijian couldn't help but wonder when peace would finally return to the lives of its people.

"It seems we are destined for yet another war," Gao Zhijian murmured.

"We will have to raise taxes again." He paused, frowning. "No, that's not possible. We cannot solely rely on the resources of the Liang Kingdom. The other kingdoms need to lend their support too. Summon the officials for an urgent gathering."

"We understand." A file of old eunuchs appeared from behind the screen as they greeted Gao Zhijian.

Gao Zhijian pondered before he asked, "Things have gotten to this stage. I don't think asking about what's going on with Li Huowang is too much, is it?"

"Mm-hmm." Xuan Pin floated up from beneath the ground.

Gao Zhijian hesitated before he gave out his summons. Soon, an old man carrying a white flag entered the study. The old man's eyes were completely white as an eunuch guided him.

Gao Zhijian had met the man before. It was the same person whom they had sought to learn their fortune before the war with the Dharma Sect. He was much older now.

"Master, what do you think about the dangers to the Liang Kingdom this time?"

"Hmm..." The old man nodded silently before he knelt on the ground. He took out a palm-sized tortoise shell written with red runes.

The old man took out eight bronze coins and threw them into the shell, raising it above his head and shaking it vigorously.

As he shook it, the old man mumbled, “Zi, Wu, Mao, You by the roadside, Yin, Shen, Ji, Hai back to their home. Jia, Zhen, Yi, Li, Bing, Xing, Kun, Ding, Qian, Wu, Kan, Ji, and Xun at the gate...”

He was halfway through the chant when the tortoiseshell in his hands burst open. The shrapnel cut open the old man’s hands while the bronze coins, now bloodied, fell onto the ground.

Gao Zhijian frowned when he saw what happened. The atmosphere in the study became very tense.

The old man wiped the blood off his hands using his clothes and touched the bronze coins with his trembling hands. He felt the blood on the coins and shuddered.

Nevertheless, the old man remained silent, carrying on with his task of discerning the heads and tails of the coins. Finally, he kowtowed to Gao Zhijian. "Your... Your Majesty... it is a sign of great fortune.”

Chapter 859 - Sickness

Li Huowang held onto the metallic fence tightly. He looked at the patients outside with his single dispirited eye and observed their strange actions.

Li Huowang's lips trembled, pondering for a long time before ultimately muttering, "Are they really hallucinations? Am I actually ill?"

Yi Donglai's muffled, angry voice came from behind Li Huowang. "You're only just realizing that?! Do you really think you're a normal person even after committing murder, scaling an electrified fence, and gouging out your own eye?"

Li Huowang tightly grabbed the fence. "I have my reasons for doing all that!"

"Which patient doesn't have their own reasons when they injure someone? Those reasons only make sense in your head! They don't hold up in the real world!"

Li Huowang couldn't take it any longer and shouted at Yi Donglai, "Why are you so alarmed?! I'm the one who's ill, not you!"

Yi Donglai rose to his feet, his anger evident in his voice. "Can I not be alarmed? Do you know what it means to me if word gets out that you've relapsed? It would render my thesis useless, and I could say goodbye to any chance of getting a promotion! My peers would mock me, and I had even agreed to an interview with a TV station to boast about my treatment plans! If you're not cured, my life is over! I refuse to accept it!"

Yi Donglai sat back down and took a deep breath. He closed his eyes to calm himself down.

When he opened his eyes, he saw Li Huowang staring at him from just a short distance away.

“Yi Donglai, what are you talking about? Whose projection are you? Why are the changes in me affecting you?”

“AAAAAAAH!” Yi Donglai lost his temper again, slamming the table.

“Take care of him! I need to go and wash my face.” Yi Donglai slammed the door shut, leaving the nurse to monitor Li Huowang.

Li Huowang paid no attention to them and instead directed his gaze toward the exterior of the metal fence. He looked at Gao Jingyun, who was on the opposite side of the fence.

Am I really hallucinating? Why is everything so real then? If what he's saying is true, then was everything I saw last time true? Which is the hallucination instead?

Li Huowang went through his memories and found they had become very unreliable. Even after Yi Donglai had returned, he struggled to differentiate between what was real and what was not.

After washing his face multiple times, Yi Donglai sat down and noticed that Li Huowang had already taken a seat across from him. Li Huowang placed both hands on his knees as he patiently waited.

“What are you doing?”

“Am I not ill? You’re my doctor, right? What else do I want? I want to get cured.”

Yi Donglai rested his chin on his hand and frowned at Li Huowang. What is he thinking?

He had always thought he understood Li Huowang, but now Yi Donglai realized he had learned nothing about him.

Still, Li Huowang really wanted to be cured, and since he was ill, he needed to be cured. Also, since Qing Wanglai had given up on him, Li Huowang could only save himself right now.

Once Li Huowang was cured, he would be discharged once again. This time, he was determined to pay a visit to Qing Wanglai and force out an answer regarding his absence during the Simings' battle.

“Are you sure? Will you really cooperate with my treatment plan?”

“Of course. Do you need to ask that? I also want to get cured as soon as possible.”

“That can come later,” Yi Donglai moved his stool a little. Let’s get things clear first. What did you say about me being a projection? I remember you told me about it before. Could you repeat it?”

“No,” Li Huowang shook his head. “You don’t have to worry about that. You only need to cure my hallucinations.”

Yi Donglai frowned. “So you thought that you only needed to get rid of your hallucinations? Then what about the projections? Have you ever thought that the so-called ‘projections’ are part of your hallucinations too?”

Li Huowang sat silently for five minutes before raising his head. “Do you mean... Qing Wanglai was fooling us from the very start?”

“No, I meant that Qing Wanglai could be a hallucination too. You know what a delusion is, right? It’s a false belief about external reality, which persists despite substantial evidence proving otherwise.

“I once treated a patient who exhibited this behavior. He believed that any woman who made eye contact with him was attracted to him. It didn’t matter if he was beaten up or verbally scolded—he refused to believe otherwise. The more he was physically beaten, the more he convinced himself that it was love.

“Even if the woman cried and begged him to stop, he would think that the woman was playing the long game. He would always twist what his victims did to fit his delusions.

“Your condition is an extreme version of that. You even have hallucinations that talk back to you and offer ideas that further twist your delusions.

"I know you have your very own stable yet incomprehensible perception of the world, and I believe that you trust it very much. Unfortunately, I must point out that it is a type of delusion. It's the same as the patient who refused to let women go. Frankly speaking, that patient was already in his sixties with three broken fingers and a slanted mouth. I doubt that anyone would love him."

Li Huowang replied, "No, wait. Maybe Qing Wanglai was lying to me, but he's real!"

"Real? Are you sure? Can you prove it?"

"Nana!" Li Huowang raised his head. "Nana accompanied me last time to meet them!"

"Do you expect me to ask another mentally ill patient to validate your delusion? Can't you let go of her for the time being? You've harmed her too much."

When Li Huowang was being treated, a nurse carefully whispered to a coworker, "I've heard that the previous doctor who treated him went crazy and was locked up. I fear that this doctor could meet the same fate too."

"Doctor Yi shouldn't have accepted the case. Now that our superiors have given the orders, Li Huowang is doomed to stay here forever whether he's treated or not."

"They should've done that from the beginning. He has already killed so many people. I felt it was too reckless to discharge him so easily. Aren't they gambling with people's lives by letting a ticking time bomb out?"

Chapter 860 - Choice

The room resonated with the sound of Yi Donglai flipping through papers while diligently jotting down the information provided by Li Huowang.

After tens of minutes, Yi Donglai looked up. "So, just because of all of this, you think you are Ji Zai, the Siming that controls the Heavenly Dao of Bewilderment?"

"Yes." Li Huowang nodded, still clad in his blue-and-white hospital gown.

"Did you eat your medicine today?"

"I did."

"So let's confirm again. Are you really going to cooperate with my treatment? In our field of work, the patient's mental status affects the treatment."

Yi Donglai took out his phone and started recording their conversation.

"Of course, I'm aware of that. That's why I'm telling you so much. I'm sick, and I need your treatment."

"No, Li Huowang. You don't understand me. I need you to really want this treatment. You cannot avoid it at all."

"I have never avoided any of my problems!"

"Li Huowang, it's still too early to say that. I've seen many patients who would say that they didn't see an illusion, even though they knew it was a lie. The reality was far crueler than their hallucinations, and so their subconscious mind spurred them to avoid reality and hide in their hallucinations."

Yi Donglai continued, "Take, for instance, the challenging task of requesting a god, who controls the law of the world, to admit that they are actually a high-schooler who never graduated, who blinded one of their own eyes, and who was afflicted by severe mental illness—to make them admit that, in reality, they are a young individual with nowhere to go.

Yi Donglai paused and gave Li Huowang time to think.

Li Huowang replied, “Don’t worry. It’s not like the other side is a good place to stay. It’s... even more cruel than reality.”

Li Huowang suddenly remembered something and bit down hard on his right palm. “Yi Donglai, I don’t mind if I’m not a Siming or Ji Zai! Qing Wanglai didn’t even care about me. He’s a person who burns bridges without any remorse. I wish all of them were just hallucinations!

“Now that everything is over, I want to get out and live peacefully. If what you’ve said is true, then so be it! Everything is a hallucination! Use every method that you have, and I will cooperate. If you can make me stop seeing them, I’ll believe you.”

“Good, then let me tell you which part of your past is a hallucination.” Yi Donglai passed him a stack of paper filled with words before highlighting specific sentences with a pen.

“Look here. You didn’t kill anyone, and the god you allegedly killed, Yu’er, doesn’t exist.

“No one robbed you, and there are no gun wounds on your body. Your shirt was also not bulletproof.

“In everyone’s eyes, you’re simply relapsing and becoming crazy again. They called the police, and that’s how we found out where you were. We sent someone to bring you back.”

“Impossible!” Li Huowang exclaimed, recalling the crazy wars between the Simings.

As Yi Donglai continued explaining, Li Huowang’s memories once again became fuzzy. “Everything was fake? Has it been fake since the beginning? No, wait, that can’t be true. You need proof to convince me. I can’t just accept that everything was fake. Not like this.”

“I will go find the proof for you. Since you will accept my treatment wholeheartedly, we should first consider everything I’ve previously said to be an illusion. That’s how we are going to proceed with your treatment.”

Yi Donglai felt a sense of satisfaction when he saw Li Huowang nodding. It reassured him that, at the very least, his patient was willing to cooperate with him.

“Here, look at this. You said that there was an armored car at the place where Qian Fu died, but you should know how illogical that is. We live in a lawful society with cameras everywhere. Do you really think there would be an armored car there? This is probably fake.”

Li Huowang stared at the sentence before denying it. “Not necessarily. Find a way to figure out who Qing Wanglai is and figure out his true identity. If you say he’s fake, you shouldn’t be able to find anything about him at all.”

“Li Huowang, stop playing games with me. I am the one who is trying to treat you, not the other way around. Do you understand?”

Yi Donglai’s phone suddenly buzzed. He picked up the call.

“Hello? Warden?”

Yi Donglai looked at Li Huowang once before he left to continue the conversation. Li Huowang saw Yi Donglai nodding a few times as he spoke into the phone before finally hanging up.

“Let’s stop here for now. I need some time to consolidate everything before we start a new treatment plan. Be careful not to get lost in your hallucinations. Try to figure out which part is reality.”

“As long as the people I care about are not hallucinations, I should have no problem differentiating the fake from the real.”

Yi Donglai had just taken a few steps away when Li Huowang said, “Yi Donglai, with your expertise, can you cure people with depression?”

Yi Donglai raised his glasses and looked at Li Huowang with some interest. "Is this about your girlfriend? I've seen her file a few times. The source of her depression is from the outside, so it's easy to cure her."

Li Huowang beamed. "Really?"

His assumptions were correct. Depression was something that Yi Donglai could treat.

"Yep. Exogenous depression can be cured by distancing the patient from the source. I cannot treat her unless I treat you first."

Li Huowang heard Yi Donglai's explanation and frowned.

"Li Huowang, you might think that sincerity is important in your life right now, but once you've reached my age, you will learn that sincerity isn't that important. It's more important to understand how your sincerity affects the people you love."

Yi Donglai's tone had softened, no longer harsh, almost as if he was offering advice to the younger generation.

"Try not to think only from your perspective, but also from the perspective of others. If your love for Yang Na ultimately harms her, then your love is selfish. In that case, it's not really love for her, but rather love for yourself," Yi Donglai said, patting Li Huowang before turning to leave.

Li Huowang stood frozen in place, his eyes locked in a vacant stare.

"I know you will still make the right decision, even if you are ill."

Li Huowang stood there for a very long time, his face remaining still until a slight twitch emerged. After a while, he managed to regain his composure.

With his legs still cuffed, he slowly walked out the door and peacefully entered his empty room.

He slowly slid his body under the bed, biting the bottom of the bedsheet with his teeth. Then, he furiously slammed both of his fists against the wall. The pain in his hands only fueled his fury, pushing him to hit harder until his fists were bloodied.

Li Huowang tightly hugged his trembling fists, curling up into a ball. Memories of the beautiful moments he had shared with Yang Na flooded his mind, one by one.

Chapter 861 - Visitation

“Number 13! You have a visitor!”

The prison guard guided the tired Li Huowang into the visitation room, who pulled out a chair and sat down.

He looked up coldly at the guard unlocking his cuffs and said, “I’m not a criminal. This isn’t a prison visit but a family visit. I’m in the mental ward. I’m a patient.”

“Yeah, yeah. Everyone in the White Tower knows who you are, Li Huowang. You’re harder to handle than the prisoners. Even when you make a mess, we can’t deduct any points or extend your sentence, and we still have to take care of you. You’re more like an emperor than a patient.”

The guard yanked the cuffs down roughly and walked out. “Behave yourself. There’s surveillance here. We only took these off to make your family feel better.”

His handcuffs and leg chains were removed, but the headgear to prevent self-harm was still on.

Li Huowang stretched and rubbed his wrists. Wearing the restraints day after day proved to be quite uncomfortable.

So... who’s visiting today?

It couldn’t be Yang Na, so it was most likely his mother, Sun Xiaoqin, or his father, Li Jiancheng.

Is my mom here? Li Huowang looked toward the door with a mix of fear and anticipation.

As his eyes lit up, an arm covered with thorn tattoos dashed his expectations.

“What’s wrong? Disappointed to see me?” Ba Nanxu said, chewing on something as she picked up the phone from the other side of the glass.

She was still in her gothic-styled attire, just like when he last saw her in the tattoo shop. However, her tattoos seemed different now.

“Not really. I’m just happy someone actually came to see me. Thanks, Ba-Hui.”

“What happened to your eye?”

“I gouged it out.”

“By yourself?”

“Yeah.”

“Heh, impressive. When you get out, drinks are on me.”

Li Huowang had just begun chatting when he suddenly stopped in shock. His gaze shifted up towards the camera, which was blinking with a red dot. He urgently exclaimed, “Get my doctor, Yi Donglai, immediately!”

Li Huowang pointed at Ba Nanxu and excitedly continued, “Yi Donglai! Look at her! She’s real! She came to visit me! How can that be fake? None of this is a hallucination!”

“Stop it. Sit down!”

Li Huowang sat back down, his gaze still fixated on the woman before him. “You were there when I confronted those people, right? When Qian Fu died, you were there, correct? It was all real, wasn’t it?”

“You can’t leave today. I need you to explain to my doctor that all of this is real.”

Ba Nanxu glanced at the camera and then slipped her hand into her pocket to press a button. “They can’t hear us now. I don’t have time for your madness. I just want to ask you one thing—do you want to get out?”

Li Huowang understood her meaning but refused. “Yes, but not your way. I want to walk out the main gate legitimately. If you’re real, then I’m not completely ill. I only have hallucinations. Once those are cured, I’ll be discharged in no time.”

Ba Nanxu looked at him as if he was crazy. “Kid, do you really believe that? Do you really believe you can get out after everything you’ve done?”

“Let me be honest with you. There’s no way. Even if you’re cured, you’ll be kept under observation forever if you don’t pay up.

“The cost of feeding you is nothing compared to the mess you’ve caused. They’d rather pay a little extra than risk another incident. Otherwise, the entire system would collapse from top to bottom.”

“No! I don’t believe you! You’re lying! If I’m cured, why would they keep me here?”

Ba Nanxu leaned back, then leaned forward again. “Ha! Lying? Kid, when have I ever lied to you?”

“I told you to watch out for Qing Wanglai, and now look at you, all locked up. You think I’m lying and he’s not? Where is he, then?”

Li Huowang took a moment to calm down a bit and asked about the source of her information. “How would you know that? How can I believe you?”

“Don’t ask where I got the information. You can figure it out yourself. This isn’t the first time, and you know the saying—three times is the limit. Think about whether they have a reason to do this. This is human nature.”

She continued, “We can help you get out, but the price is cutting ties with Qing Wanglai and joining our side.”

Li Huowang finally understood what Ba Nanxu wanted. They were trying to recruit him.

Li Huowang was tempted but still cautious. He decided to probe further. “You say Qing Wanglai is unreliable, but can Zhao Shuangdian be trusted?”

“During the last crisis in the Baiyu Capital, where were your people? Qing Wanglai wasn’t there, but neither were you. You’re both just as bad as each other.”

Ba Nanxu replied, “I don’t understand what you’re ranting about. Besides, you weren’t with us, so how do you know we didn’t do anything? Do things only exist if you see them with your own eyes? Is everything else on the planet nonexistent?”

Li Huowang was still suspicious of their words, so he declined the offer. “No, I’m not accepting that. I’m ill. I have a mental illness and need treatment. Since everything is over, why should I leave before I’m cured?”

Ba Nanxu rested her tattooed cheek in her hand while her forked tongue flicked briefly in and out of her mouth.

“Not even for your girlfriend? I hear she’s out of the hospital now. She’s resting at home and recovering well.”

Li Huowang shook his head, slowly clenching his fists. “Not worth it.”

Ba Nanxu stood up. “Fine, since you refuse, then so be it.

“If nothing’s worth it, then it doesn’t matter that Yang Na is in Qing Wanglai’s hands now, does it?”

Li Huowang’s pupils shrank and the veins on his hands bulged. “What do you want? Do you really think I can’t get out? I saved the Baiyu Capital, and I can destroy it too!”

“Don’t take it out on me. I didn’t do it. Save that rage for Qing Wanglai when you get out.”

With that, Ba Nanxu left. She didn’t tell Li Huowang what he was supposed to do, or when they planned to strike.

Both of them understood that they had already come to an agreement.

Chapter 862 - Method

Li Huowang was handcuffed and shackled again before being sent back to his room.

He sat on his bed and thought about the information Ba-Hui had just revealed to him. He tried to suppress his growing unease as he pondered what Qing Wanglai was plotting.

Is he trying to use Yang Na to threaten me? But why? Has he finally dropped the pretense? What is he really up to?

Li Huowang trembled and suddenly bit down hard on his hand, his eyes flashing with rage. I'm going to kill him! I must kill him!

The longer Li Huowang stayed in White Tower Prison, the more his anger surged. Right as he was on the verge of an outburst and ready to escape, Ba-Hui finally made a move.

It was the Mid-Autumn Festival, and even the psychiatric patients were being given mooncakes. The patients actually made the mooncakes themselves, which not only saved labor costs but also allowed them to revel in the festivities. It was truly a case of killing two birds with one stone.

The mooncakes were stamped with the words “White Tower Psychiatric Ward.” The center featured the outline of a human head with a caduceus inside.

There were many flavors of mooncakes—milk and cheese, green apple and plum, coffee and chocolate, peach and oolong tea, taro, and golden sweet potato. However, Li Huowang had no interest in any of them.

A nurse handed him a snow skin sweet potato mooncake. “Try one. It’s the Mid-Autumn Festival—how can you not eat a mooncake?”

“I know you miss home. We all do. Cooperate with the treatment, and you'll get to reunite with your family once you're better."

The room was adorned with colorful paper, adding to the festive atmosphere. Nevertheless, Li Huowang felt none of it. He numbly stuffed the mooncake into his mouth.

He suddenly froze halfway through chewing. There was something inside the sweet potato filling!

"Everyone! There's an inmate band from Zone 6 performing a show! Let's watch while we eat!"

The patients, who were watching television, quickly grabbed their mooncakes and rushed toward the voice. While Zone 6 was a maximum-security area, it was full of talented individuals who could rival the people outside.

Li Huowang remained seated. He waited until the lounge was empty before removing the object from his mouth.

He pretended to examine the design on the mooncake as he swiftly unfolded the piece of paper. He quickly memorized its contents, then chewed and swallowed it. Li Huowang acted nonchalantly, eating a few more pieces of the mooncake before standing up to leave.

An orderly who had been watching TV quickly got up to follow him. "Where are you going?"

"Bathroom."

"Number one or two? Hurry up, this comedy skit is pretty funny."

Li Huowang ignored him and headed toward the stall mentioned in the note.

To his surprise, there was someone inside. It was a doctor who looked exactly like himself.

The man raised a finger to his lips, motioning for silence. Then, he retrieved a lifelike mask and placed it on Li Huowang's face.

Sitting Oblivion Dao?! Li Huowang withdrew slightly.

He quickly realized it wasn't the Sitting Oblivion Dao. It was just a high-quality latex mask.

He had seen these online before. When paired with makeup, they could appear incredibly realistic. They had even been used for prison escapes in some countries.

Wearing the mask felt like wearing a second face. The man expertly began to apply some makeup to Li Huowang's face.

"Are you done?"

At the orderly's urging, the man swiftly switched clothes with Li Huowang and cuffed himself with the handcuffs, shackles, and headgear.

The man handed Li Huowang another piece of paper and patted his shoulder. Finally, he left with the nurse.

When the coast was clear, Li Huowang stepped out of the stall and stared at his unfamiliar reflection in the mirror.

He touched his face, astonished at Zhao Shuangdian's abilities.

The skin, the eyes, and everything else looked incredibly real. A quick glance under his bangs revealed no noticeable difference unless inspected closely.

Still, now wasn't the time to admire the craftsmanship. Time was running out.

After double-checking the contents of the note, Li Huowang swallowed it before taking out a magnetic card from his pocket.

He took a deep breath, gripped the card tightly, and then walked toward the exit of White Tower.

He swiped the card at the metal door, which beeped and opened. Li Huowang felt a weight lift from his body.

As he approached the second door, a familiar voice stopped him. "Wait, who are you?"

Li Huowang's heart raced. He turned toward the voice and saw Yi Donglai approaching.

Yi Donglai glanced at the name tag on Li Huowang's chest and extended his hand. "Doctor He, right? Nice to meet you. I'm Yi Donglai."

Li Huowang panicked. Although his appearance had changed, his voice remained the same. Yi Donglai would instantly recognize him if he spoke since they were well-acquainted.

"You're new, right? Your silhouette seemed familiar, so I thought you were someone else."

As the atmosphere tensed, Li Huowang suddenly had an idea. He recalled something Yi Donglai had once said to him.

Li Huowang took a step back and looked at Yi Donglai disdainfully. He shook his head and clicked his tongue in mock derision. He was deliberately displaying contempt towards Yi Donglai, the doctor whose thesis had been retracted.

It was rude and offensive, but the world was full of such arrogant people.

Yi Donglai understood the message. His breathing deepened and his face reddened.

In the past, colleagues would gossip behind his back. However, this new doctor didn't even try to hide his disdain, making it hard for Yi Donglai to keep his composure.

"What gives you the right to look down on me? You have no idea what kind of patient Li Huowang is. If Li Huowang were left in your hands, you useless doctors wouldn't even know where to begin!"

Li Huowang feigned indifference, turning around and striding away.

Although he felt a little guilty for treating Dr. Yi this way, he couldn't afford to care about it. All he could think about was Yang Na's uncertain fate.

"You all just wait. The day I cure Li Huowang, I'll make sure all of you open your eyes and see! I, Yi Donglai, am still number one!"

Chapter 863 - Meeting

Li Huowang continued walking forward. As he moved farther away, Yi Donglai's voice became fainter and fainter.

Li Huowang finally breathed a sigh of relief when he passed through the second door and could no longer hear Yi Donglai's voice. He was safe.

He quickly changed into plain clothes and exited through the main door. A black car was already waiting nearby.

He took one last look at the gray-white building of the White Tower Prison behind him and walked toward the car.

When he opened the car door, he saw Ba Nanxu sitting inside with her legs crossed, focused on scrolling through her phone without even looking up. Her younger brother was driving.

At this point, Li Huowang no longer hesitated and got into the car.

The first thing he did was tear off everything from his face. The glue they used stuck painfully to his skin.

“Does Zhao Shuangdian have more connections than Qing Wanglai? He got me out so easily.”

“Hehe, breaking into a prison to rescue a criminal would be hard, but breaking out a mentally ill patient is not too difficult. After all, who would expect someone to go to such lengths for a mental patient?”

Li Huowang looked up at Ba Shengqing, who was driving. “Do you know where Qing Wanglai and Yang Na are? We need to find them as soon as possible!”

His legs started shaking uncontrollably, and his emotions grew increasingly agitated. “Is there a knife? I need a weapon!”

Ba Nanxu lazily stretched out her leg, covered in thorn tattoos, and pressed it down on Li Huowang's trembling knee. "Why are you so anxious? We'll figure it out when we get there. Things might not be as bad as you think."

"When we arrive, control your temper. We've brought you along, but we're not trying to make you enemies with the Qing kid. We're still on good terms with him, at least on the surface. Let's not make things too ugly."

Li Huowang didn't listen to a word of this. He was entirely lost in his own thoughts.

He didn't know how much time had passed, but every second felt excruciatingly long.

Finally, after what felt like an eternity, they arrived at a villa in the woods. It was secluded and private, giving off an air of luxury. The moment the car stopped, Li Huowang leaped into action, flinging the car door open and bolting out like a cheetah.

A European-style villa came into view, showcasing an elevated entrance, a grand door, arched windows, and stone corners blending with white plaster walls and black roof tiles. It exuded elegance and grandeur, clearly setting Qing Wanglai's turf apart.

Li Huowang quickly scanned the courtyard before jumping into the garden's pond. He grabbed a fist-sized rock and rushed toward the villa's entrance.

Bang! He kicked the door open and startled Chen Hongyun, who was sitting in the living room. She had been eating snacks and watching a movie.

"Are you crazy? Can't you be quieter?"

Li Huowang stormed up to her and shouted, "Where is Qing Wanglai? Where is he?!"

"He's on the third floor. He stayed up all night with Zhao Lei, so he's probably catching up on sleep."

Li Huowang immediately rushed up the stairs. When he reached the third floor with the rock in hand, Qing Wanglai had already come out of his room to check out the commotion.

Qing Wanglai saw Li Huowang charging at him with the rock. “What’s going on? Calm down. What’s wrong with your eyes? Are you okay?”

Although his tone indicated concern, his actions didn’t match his words. He pointed a black gun directly at Li Huowang’s head, forcing him to stop in his tracks.

“Where is Yang Na? Where is she?! If you hurt her, I’ll never let this go!”

Qing Wanglai remained calm. “First of all, I’d like to clarify that she came to me on her own. I don’t know where you got your information, but I had no intention of kidnapping her. She can leave whenever she wants.

“She hasn’t left because she thought you’d come here. She’s been waiting for you.

Li Huowang glared at Qing Wanglai and slowly backed toward the third door on the left while still facing him.

Thump thump thump. Li Huowang knocked hard on the door.

Wu Qi, wearing a face mask, opened the door and said, “Who’s making all this noise? It’s so annoying.

“Oh, Li Huowang? You’re out? We were planning to rescue you. What happened to your eyes?”

Li Huowang quickly pushed past her and rushed inside. He found Yang Na curled up in the corner, holding her head.

“Nana, Nana...” Li Huowang walked over and pulled her into his arms.

She smelled his familiar scent, then slowly raised her head and looked at his face.

In her weary state, she reached out and touched his empty eye sockets, her gaze filled with anguish. “Huowang, what happened to your eyes? Where did they go? Was it because of me? Did this happen to you because of me?”

“No, it wasn’t because of you. It’s all my fault. It has nothing to do with you. Don’t blame yourself.”

Li Huowang repeatedly reassured Yang Na to prevent her from feeling any more guilt, as that was the last thing she needed.

After a long while, she finally smiled softly. She leaned in, and their faces touched gently.

“Huowang, I believe you! I believe everything you say! And I heard their voices. I’m just like you. We’re both Simings—You’re Ji Zai, and I’m the Heavenly Mater.”

Li Huowang’s face twitched uncontrollably. It was unclear whether he wanted to cry or laugh.

He didn’t care whether this was real or not. He just wanted to bear it all himself and not let anyone else suffer like he had.

Clap clap clap! Applause rang out from Qing Wanglai, who stood smiling. “Very good, very good. Let’s all give a round of applause to welcome our new comrade.”

“Damn it!” Li Huowang lunged forward and punched him in the face, sending him flying.

As he was about to pounce on Qing Wanglai again, the others stepped in to stop him.

“That’s enough, Li Huowang, don’t be like this.”

“Come on, separate them.”

With the others pulling him back, Li Huowang didn’t get another chance to hit Qing Wanglai. He shook them off, walked over to Yang Na, and gently lifted her up.

“Where are you taking her?”

“I’m taking her home! She’s mentally ill and needs rest. She needs to be away from... the triggers.”

Chapter 864 - Trigger

Li Huowang slowly rode his motorcycle down the lane, with Yang Na seated behind him.

He intentionally freed one hand to grip Yang Na's hands, fearing she might fall.

Yang Na clung tightly to Li Huowang, her long hair fluttering in the breeze. "Huowang... where are we going?"

"Home."

"Home? Why go home? It's all fake and all just projections. I'm now the Heavenly Mater. I'm like you now—a Siming, a deity of the world."

Li Huowang felt a sharp jolt in his heart. At that moment, he finally understood the despair his mother must have felt when she knelt at the kindergarten gates.

"Nana, you're sick. It's all fake, just... illusions."

"Then what about yours? Were all the things you said just illusions too?"

Li Huowang's head began to ache. He felt as though two giant hands were violently pulling at his brain, attempting to crush it into a pulp.

He clenched his fists and punched his own head several times. Finally, he nodded with great pain.

"Yes, that's right. I was very ill too, with a serious mental illness. During that time, I had all sorts of hallucinations.

"But look at me now. I'm cured. I no longer have any hallucinations."

"Really?" Yang Na rested her head against Li Huowang's back, her eyes filled with deep confusion.

She slowly began to cry, and her tears soaked Li Huowang's back.

“Don’t cry. If something is troubling you, tell me. Keeping things bottled up isn’t good for you.”

“I’m sorry... it’s all my fault. If I hadn’t called the police, you wouldn’t have lost an eye. It’s all my fault.

“Huowang, you only have one eye left, and there’s a scar on your face. If I die and no one wants you, what will you do?”

Li Huowang replied, “It’s okay. It really has nothing to do with you.”

He continued to comfort her, despite knowing his words likely wouldn’t help much.

She was too ill to be cured with mere words. She needed medical treatment.

While they talked, Li Huowang drove the motorcycle into a residential complex and stopped at the entrance of a building. He had been to Yang Na’s home many times and couldn’t possibly forget where it was.

He saw the missing person notice posted at the building’s entrance and paused momentarily. It seemed Yang Na had been gone for a while.

He helped Yang Na off the bike, supporting her frail body as they headed toward the elevator. However, Yang Na wasn’t cooperating.

She grabbed the door tightly. “Huowang, are you lying to me? Why does everything you said before seem different now? Why do I feel like something’s wrong with you? What’s going on?”

“Come on, nothing’s wrong.” Li Huowang tried to pull her hand away. Just then, the sound of hurried footsteps came from behind him.

Li Huowang’s scalp tightened. He froze in place when he turned around to see who it was.

The next moment, he was punched and sent flying backward.

As he staggered and felt his teeth loosen, he stood back up to see the man holding Yang Na in his arms.

Li Huowang didn't get angry. After all, that man was Yang Na's father, Yang Wanli.

Li Huowang rubbed his face and lowered his hand. "Hello, Uncle."

"You bastard! So it was you who abducted her! What have you done to her?" Yang Wanli led his daughter to his wife, then rolled up his sleeves and charged at Li Huowang.

"Wanli! Come back! That guy's dangerous! He's a madman who's killed several people!"

His wife's words brought a sudden calm to Yang Wanli, who quickly retreated and stood protectively in front of his wife and daughter.

"Li Huowang!" Yang Wanli's voice shook with fear and desperation. "What did we ever do to you? Why are you doing this to Nana?"

"Look at her! Look at her wrists!" Yang Wanli raised his daughter's delicate arm, where scars crisscrossed on the inside. "I'm begging you! She's already suffered so much. Please let her go! Are you only gonna stop once you've pushed her to the point of death?!"

Li Huowang stood silently and endured the accusations. In the end, he said nothing and turned to leave.

As he mounted his motorcycle, he heard Yang Na's heartbreaking scream from behind. "Huowang!!"

Li Huowang's heart trembled. He opened his mouth as if to say something, but no words came out. He understood everything.

Yang Na had external depression. To help her recover, she needed to be far away from her triggers, and he was the biggest trigger.

No matter what happened to Li Huowang, it seemed that misfortune would inevitably strike those who were associated with him.

If nothing went wrong, today might be the last time he saw Yang Na. He was willing to let go if his departure could help Yang Na recover.

“Uncle, if possible, take Nana to live in another city for a while,” Li Huowang said, seated on his motorcycle. Then, he revved the engine and drove away.

The motorcycle sped up, soon reaching a dangerous speed. At that moment, Li Huowang found himself thinking that, perhaps, dying in an accident wouldn't be such a bad thing.

However, things didn't go as he wished. There hadn't been any accidents even as he neared White Tower Prison.

By that point, his motorcycle was low on fuel. He tossed it on the roadside and began to walk towards White Tower Prison.

A black car slowly approached from behind on the deserted street, matching his walking pace.

The car window rolled down, revealing Ban Nanxu holding a beer bottle. “Hey, kid, did you forget something? You're too young to have such a bad memory.”

“Get lost! I'm not in the mood!”

“Don't play dumb. We went through all the trouble to break you out from there. You're not walking back. Come on, Zhao Shuangdian wants to see you.”

“I'm not going! Why do they need me so badly? Is the sky going to fall without me?”

“Kid, that's not how this works. We had an agreement—we help you escape, and you join us against Qing Wanglai.”

Li Huowang turned his bloodshot eyes towards her. “I'm breaking the deal! So what? Come bite me if you don't like it!”

The screech of brakes echoed as the two siblings stepped out of the car. They looked at Li Huowang with malice. “We've been waiting for you to say that. Been wanting to take you down for a long time.”

Li Huowang scanned them to search for weaknesses. I can't fight both at once. I'll have to take down the girl first, then focus on the big guy.

Just as the situation was about to escalate, a sharp ringtone cut through the tension.

Chapter 865 - Negotiation

“Pause for a moment,” Ba Nanxu said before pulling out her phone and answering it. “Hello? Yes, it’s me. Yeah, he’s right in front of me.

“He refuses to go, no matter what. I don’t know what’s gotten into him. We had a deal, and now he’s backing out. Are we really going to deal with someone like him? Aren’t you worried it’s contagious?

“Alright, you talk to him.”

Ba Nanxu tossed the phone to Li Huowang. “Here, Zhao Shuangdian wants to talk to you.”

Li Huowang caught the phone, hesitated, then held it to his ear. A familiar, pleasant voice came through the speaker.

—We know more than Qing Wanglai. Join us, and you’ll finally understand what’s happening to you.

“I know what’s happening. The doctor already told me—I have a mental illness. I don’t need you to repeat it.”

—Really? Do you genuinely believe you’re mentally ill? Then how do you explain the earrings your girlfriend is wearing? Can mental illnesses make things appear out of thin air?

Li Huowang remained silent.

—Don’t lie to me, and don’t lie to yourself. This isn’t something that a mental illness can explain.

—Forget the information others have drilled into your mind. That’s just the system and rules trying to correct your misalignment.

—Remember this: you are you. You are your own Li Huowang, not the one others want you to be.

Li Huowang finally said, “I don’t understand. If you’re saying I’m not mentally ill, then prove it! I want solid evidence—evidence that is not just from me, but from you! I can't tell what's real and what's not. However, I can't be the only one suffering, right?"

—Proof? Sure. The motorcycle that Qing Wanglai got for you is pretty expensive, right? He's rich, isn't he? How do you think he got so wealthy?

Li Huowang glanced back at the motorcycle lying on the ground.

—Don't be fooled just because it's a motorcycle. It's more expensive than a car. It costs over a million.

—He's not a trust fund kid, so have you ever wondered how he has so much money? Think about the earrings you gave to your girlfriend and the gold your family received. You're not the only smart one around here.

—Want to know more, Li Huowang? Let's talk in person.

Zhao Shuangdian hung up, leaving Li Huowang deep in thought. She was clearly trying to bait Li Huowang into asking more questions.

Qing Wanglai's money came from that other world? But he never went mad like I did. How did he manage it? Is his other world the same bizarre place I was in? Could we have crossed paths in that world without me knowing?

Questions flooded Li Huowang's mind, leaving him desperate to understand what was going on. He wanted to know the truth, whether it was an illusion or reality.

"Fine, take me to see Zhao Shuangdian!" Li Huowang climbed into the car. The siblings exchanged disappointed looks and got in as well.

As the car sped past buildings, Li Huowang's thoughts swirled between past experiences. Fantasy mixed with reality, which left him in turmoil.

Could Zhao Shuangdian's words just now have been an illusion? He turned to examine the siblings beside him. Could they be illusions too?

He reached down to feel the seat under him. Could this car be an illusion too?

Ba Nanxu's expression shifted when she noticed his strange actions. "Idiot."

No, this can't continue. I need a way to distinguish between what's real and what's not. Otherwise, I'll go insane.

Li Huowang closed his eyes and tried to think of a way to figure it out.

The solution was elusive. By the time they arrived at Ba Nanxu's Bloody Bonfire tattoo parlor, he still hadn't come up with anything.

For now, Li Huowang set his concerns aside and followed them down into the tattoo shop.

Upon entering, he saw Zhao Shuangdian lounging on a couch. Although she looked the same as before, her actions were completely different from when they had first met.

She was drinking whiskey while watching a TV drama on her tablet.

"Sit," Zhao Shuangdian said, patting the couch beside her.

Li Huowang sat down beside her. The show was a romantic drama, though he couldn't recall its name. If Yang Na were here, she would probably know. She loved this type of show.

His expression darkened at the thought of Yang Na.

"Feeling down? Want some whiskey?" Zhao Shuangdian said.

Li Huowang grabbed the dark blue bottle and took a swig. The next moment, he felt like his mouth was on fire.

After a few more gulps, the alcohol kicked in and he started to feel better. "Alright, tell me, what's going on?"

"You need to ask specific questions before I can answer."

"What you said on the phone, is it true? Did Qing Wanglai's money really come from there?"

“Yes, it’s true. However, I don’t know the exact details. It’s just a logical deduction.”

“So that world really exists? And I really am a Siming? Yang Na wasn’t wrong either?”

Zhao Shuangdian swirled the liquid in her cup. “Have you heard about the story of the blind men and the elephant?”

“Of course, it’s a well-known tale. You even mentioned it before.”

“A group of blind men each feel a different part of an elephant. One touches the leg and says the elephant is like a pillar. Another touches the tail and says the elephant is like a broom. One touches the ear and says the elephant is like a fan. Another touches the tusk and says the elephant is like a horn. Finally, the one who touches the trunk says the elephant is like a thick rope.”

She paused and smiled at Li Huowang. “Which part of the elephant do you think you are touching?”

“I’m experiencing a world. A real world! Even if it’s bizarre, it’s real!”

“I’m not saying your world isn’t real. It’s just... limited, like the shadow of this bottle.” Zhao Shuangdian held up the whiskey bottle, which cast a shadow on the floor. “See that shadow?”

“Yes.”

“That’s your world. Real, but incomplete.”

She tilted the bottle slightly, changing the angle of the shadow. “This is someone else’s world. It’s also real, but also incomplete.”

She continued, “All of you see only shadows, never the deeper truth—the most real world.”

With that, Zhao Shuangdian placed the dark blue whiskey bottle before Li Huowang.

Chapter 866 - Cooperation

Zhao Shuangdian gently tapped her finger on the blue bottle in front of Li Huowang. Her finger was adorned with a coat of clear nail polish. “This is the real world. All the other worlds are merely reflections of it.”

Inside the closed Bloody Bonfire tattoo shop, Zhao Shuangdian continued to explain everything to Li Huowang.

“We can glimpse some information and changes through one reflection, but it’s very difficult to truly understand everything. Our cognition always alters and distorts our perceived reality, so we never fully understand the true reality.”

Li Huowang recalled the bizarre world. He remembered the Baiyu Capital and thought about how others perceive the world.

Li Huowang’s comment made Zhao Shuangdian shake her head. “No, it’s different. His theory is that everything is merely a projection of some entity.”

She continued, “However, I believe all of this is real and a part of the truth. Like the story of the blind men touching the elephant. Can you say that the elephant’s leg isn’t part of the elephant?”

Li Huowang felt irritated. “Stop with the metaphors! I don’t want to hear about the elephant’s leg or the elephant anymore! I just want to know what the real thing is!”

“Oh? How much do you know about Hilbert space? I could try to explain.”

“The what? Didn’t you say you were using mathematics?”

“Never mind, let’s stick with the elephant metaphor. It’s easier to understand.”

Li Huowang sat there silently, trying to digest the explanation. He wasn’t sure if Zhao Shuangdian was telling the truth or if this was just another delusion by a mental patient.

Although Zhao Shuangdian seemed calm and rational, Qing Wanglai had made him hesitant to jump to conclusions.

After thinking for a moment, Li Huowang stood up. “Thank you for explaining all this, but I still can’t fully trust your worldview.”

“Don’t trust me? Then, do you trust Qing Wanglai? Or do you trust nothing at all? Do you think this is all just an illusion and you’re just a lunatic?”

“That’s right! I’m a lunatic, so what? Is being a lunatic so rare? Why are you so eager to pull a lunatic like me in? You’ve been saying all this nonsense just to use me as a tool!”

Since there was no imminent threat to him, Li Huowang didn’t want to get involved with them anymore. His problem was reality, and no matter what that reality was, he just wanted to live well in this world.

He didn’t need to be successful—he just needed to become a normal person. That way, those who cared about him wouldn’t have to worry.

“This isn’t about using you—it’s about sticking together. You think what you’ve seen so far is everything?”

Li Huowang felt a jolt as memories of past events flooded back into his mind. Those who had spied on him, those who had tried to kidnap him, and those who had tried to kill him.

“Still eighteen, huh? So naïve.”

Zhao Shuangdian’s words stopped Li Huowang in his tracks. “What do you mean by that?”

“I mean that things aren’t over. We only pushed them back once. Do you think that's enough for you to comfortably enjoy life now?"

Zhao Shuangdian's words sent chills through Li Huowang. He quickly approached her, his pupils trembling. "They'll come back? They still want to invade the Baiyu Capital? Why?!"

"I don't know what they're after. I haven't figured that part out, but I believe the real world isn't just one elephant.

"If they make a move, it won't be like their previous small tests. It could cause turmoil everywhere—the tusks, legs, trunk, and even our side of the elephant.

"Fortunately, we have ways to protect our part of the elephant since we're all blind men feeling the elephant.

"And you're special. Others can only feel one part, but you have unique senses. You can feel two sides, which makes you closer to the truth than anyone else."

Zhao Shuangdian reached out and gently stroked Li Huowang's face, her hand finally resting on his blood-red eye socket. "You're truly special."

Slap! Li Huowang knocked her hand away. "When will they strike again?"

"They? Strike? I don't know when they'll act, but I know our counterattack is on the second of next month."

"Counterattack?"

"Yes, exactly. The best defense is a good offense. We can't wait for them to strike first. We need to take the initiative this time, which is why I sought you out."

Zhao Shuangdian extended her hand toward Li Huowang. "I sincerely invite you to join us and use your talents to help us."

Li Huowang looked at her outstretched hand and said, "Why should I believe you? What if you're just another Qing Wanglai?"

"Because I have what you want. I know saying goodbye to her can't be easy. You two grew up together and shared the same classroom since elementary school... It'd be a shame to let all that history just disappear."

"As long as you agree, once this matter is entirely resolved, I can help you and your girlfriend return to a peaceful and simple life. You will be completely cut off from everything you don't want to deal with.

"You could retake your exams together and lead a simple life.

"Of course, if you want wealth, I can arrange that too. Both options require the same amount of work from me."

Li Huowang remained skeptical despite the temptation. He had been deceived too many times before. "No, I think there's a catch in your offer. You're talking about isolating us from everything. Do you intend to take over the Heavenly Dao that Yang Na and I manage after this is over?"

Zhao Shuangdian frowned and shook her head. "Sorry, I really don't understand."

"It's fine if you don't understand. I just want to make it clear that I won't give up my Heavenly Dao! If I were an ordinary person instead of a Siming, I would be like a pig or sheep waiting to be slaughtered in front of you Simings. You'd be able to do anything you wanted to me.

"I don't have any expectations regarding your sense of good and evil.

"However," Li Huowang said as he reached out and shook her hand. "I am willing to cooperate with you. As for my compensation, let's not rush—we can discuss it while working together."

He no longer feared anything, given his current situation. The worst that could happen was death, which he no longer feared. On the contrary, it would be a massive gain if he could find a way to escape his current predicament.

He could only go up since he was already at his lowest point. There was no need to be overly cautious.

Zhao Shuangdian was satisfied with Li Huowang's response. She gently shook her head. "Very well, let's have a smooth cooperation. From today on, we are partners."

He looked at the intelligent beauty before him and pondered the final question. Zhao Shuangdian, what kind of Siming are you?

Chapter 867 - Strange

Thwack! A heavy burlap sack thudded onto Feng Bawan's sweat-soaked back, and his legs trembled.

"Another... another bag!" Feng Bawan shouted with a strained voice.

Another sack was added to his load, and Feng Bawan mustered all his strength and carried it to the construction site ahead.

Though it was exhausting work, he didn't slack off at all, sustained by the promise of good meals.

Clang, clang, clang! The gong sounded. "Mealtime! Mealtime!"

The workers promptly set aside their tools and eagerly turned their attention to the heavy baskets being brought in on a shoulder pole. It was the moment they had been waiting for.

When the cover over the top was lifted, golden fried rice was revealed underneath, making everyone salivate uncontrollably.

The fried rice was seasoned with soy sauce. It also included wild vegetables, mushrooms, and, surprisingly, chunks of meat.

This wasn't rice with fake meat. It was real pork, and nowadays, not many people were starving to death.

Feng Bawan didn't even bother to wipe the sweat from his forehead—he grabbed his chopsticks and devoured the fragrant, flavorful fried rice.

Even though it was just a simple serving of soy sauce fried rice, it felt like he was eating something extraordinary, like dragon liver and phoenix marrow.

After finishing most of the rice, he finally took the bowl of soup. He saw the thin layer of pork fat floating on the wild vegetable soup and then drank it with delight.

His entire body shivered as he slurped it up, and the indescribable aroma lingered on his lips and teeth, refusing to fade away. It was truly delicious.

Niu San wiped the sweat from his forehead with his sleeve and sighed in relief. "This is what living is supposed to be like."

At that moment, he overheard some of the others discussing nearby.

"Hey, life is starting to look better. Look at how much soy sauce they put in. My wife wouldn't have used so much soy sauce when she was alive."

"Yeah, this is better than what I used to eat."

"It's all thanks to the Bodhisattva. These grains were all provided by him."

"I heard he's been sending food day and night and still hasn't finished. The Righteous Monastery has turned into a mountain of grain!"

Feng Bawan didn't join the conversation because he knew more than them. He had even seen the red-clad Bodhisattva with his own eyes.

While the Bodhisattva had a bad temper, Feng Bawan still viewed him as a savior.

At that moment, the stories he'd heard from the elders about the mysterious Bodhisattva became vividly real to him. He had even set up a clay altar at home, accurately depicting the Bodhisattva's sword and red robes. There was also a plaque before the statue bearing Zhuge Yuan's title.

There was no incense now, but he still worshiped it day and night. On the first and fifteenth of each month, he would save a little food to offer it at home.

Feng Bawan clutched his stomach in pain. It had started to hurt again. Ever since he had eaten the mushrooms he had grown, these occasional bouts of pain had become a regular occurrence. He didn't know what was causing the pain.

At that moment, he caught a glimpse of red streaking across the sky.

“Zhuge Bodhisattva?” Feng Bawan stood up despite his stomachache, but the red streak had already flown far away.

Li Huowang didn’t notice the insignificant gazes below. He was focused entirely on the city’s defenses.

The once-decayed city walls were gradually being rebuilt. Even if nothing was inside the walls, a solid foundation needed to be established first.

Li Huowang couldn’t afford to become complacent—they were vulnerable to potential attacks from the army of the Tianchen Kingdom at any given moment.

He shouldn’t need to transfer too many people based on the speed and range of his spine sword’s travel. However, it was better to be safe than sorry, and there was nothing wrong with being prepared.

The newly established Surveillance Bureau of the Great Qi Kingdom had already learned about the Tianchen Kingdom’s origins. They had begun to keep watch and expand their numbers.

However, not everyone had the talent for it. Only a few sects could join, and the overall strength of the Great Qi hadn’t increased significantly.

The only thing that could expand quickly was the military, which was gradually reestablished thanks to more citizens enlisting.

Strangely, the Tianchen Kingdom didn’t seem to be in a hurry. Despite the Great Qi’s rapid revival, no one had come to attack or make any moves.

Li Huowang wasn’t anxious. Time was on his side. The Great Qi would only grow stronger with time.

If the Great Qi could be truly restored to its previous power, the Tianchen Kingdom would have no chance at all.

However, the recent strange occurrences made Li Huowang uneasy. He had not deceived anyone, but False Qi kept appearing.

There were quite a few occurrences, and their numbers kept increasing.

Although such False Qi would be useful in future battles, it was still odd.

What's going on? Could it be a scheme by the Sitting Oblivion Dao? Is Shai Zi trying to get involved? Or are these Bei Feng's methods?

After some thought, he deemed it unlikely. Bei Feng didn't have such means, and he had thoroughly checked the Sitting Oblivion Dao's Liar's Scripture and never saw one that gave out False Qi.

They deceived others—they didn't give things away.

Could it be a new trick? Using False Qi to deceive False Qi?

When I have the chance, I'll get Suisui to stir up some trouble with the Sitting Oblivion Dao to prevent them from causing chaos.

While pondering, Li Huowang arrived at the inner palace of the You Capital and floated down directly.

The Mo family also rebuilt the imperial city of You Capital, but there was no emperor there anymore. The Chief had completely occupied it.

“Daoist, the Gan family members and some colleagues skilled in divination haven't been able to predict where they will appear.”

Li Huowang wasn't upset with them. People in this world could only calculate things within the world. How could they predict the existence of the Hometown of True Void?

Moreover, now that the feng shui of Great Qi had stopped, it was unlikely they could calculate anything further. Astrological predictions were even more fruitless.

“Since it can't be calculated, let them stop trying. Focus on preparing for battle.”

“Okay.”

As soon as the military personnel left, the abbot of Righteous

Monastery approached. "Amitabha. Benefactor Li, I have some news."

"Are you sick? Is this the time for politeness? Speak quickly."

After a moment of consideration, Chan Du said, "Benefactor Li, I believe this matter isn't as serious as it seems. Perhaps we can negotiate with the other party."

There was some substance to his words. Li Huowang looked at him thoughtfully, and a cold smile gradually appeared on his face. "What? Do you think the grain from the Tianchen Kingdom is better? Do you think it would be better for the Great Qi to cooperate with them?"

He continued, "Imperial Preceptor Chan Du, you are a monk, not a merchant calculating every detail with an abacus."

Chapter 868 - Act

Li Huowang's words clearly had an underlying meaning, which Chan Du naturally picked up on.

Chan Du clasped his hands together and gave a slight bow. "Amitabha. As a monk, I do not speak falsehoods. Since I've already stated that the Great Qi is under your care, I will not go back on my word.

"However, even though the Righteous Monastery is the state church of the Great Qi, it cannot control the hearts of all people. Others may dare to believe in the deeds that the monks of the Righteous Monastery do not."

As he spoke, four monks used their staffs to carry an old man over, setting him down in front of Li Huowang.

As soon as he was brought over, the old man revealed everything he knew, as if any delay would lead to unbearable suffering.

"I don't know! I really don't know who spread those rumors!"

"They said that the Tianchen Kingdom had no intention of fighting against the Great Qi and that a fake Bodhisattva deceived the people of Great Qi. They claimed that we were being manipulated to work and suffer for the benefit of others!

"They also said that the fake Bodhisattva caused all the disasters in Great Qi!

"That's all! I swear, that's all I know! I truly don't know anything else!

"I won't dare anymore! I really won't dare!"

"Rumors..." Li Huowang hadn't expected the first move from the other side to be such a low blow of half-truths mixed with lies.

It now seemed that the Tianchen Kingdom had indeed made a move, but instead of confronting him directly, they intended to play tricks from the shadows.

They understood now that directly opposing him wouldn't benefit them. Even if they won, it would result in mutual destruction.

As such, they decided to spread rumors to erode the morale of the Great Qi and undermine his authority. If he couldn't command the Great Qi, things would take a turn for the worse.

Li Huowang could tell that this was the work of Bei Feng. If not Bei Feng, then it was the doing of the Sitting Oblivion Dao from the Tianchen Kingdom.

He pondered for a moment and then turned to Chan Du. "Abbot, since they've made their move, has Great Qi's Surveillance Bureau come up with an answer?"

"I've already instructed them to stay vigilant and prevent the spread of these rumors."

Li Huowang shook his head. "That won't work. You can't block rumors. The more you try to suppress them, the more the people of Great Qi will believe them.

"And even if you manage to suppress them for now, so what? They can always come back and spread them again. We have no advantage in this regard."

"Then... what should we do?"

"Leave it to me," Li Huowang said as he walked toward the exit.

Rumors were one of the tools used in Sitting Oblivion Dao. Since Li Huowang understood how they used them, he could also unravel them.

If they want to spread rumors, I'll help them spread more! Li Huowang pulled a mask over his face and changed his appearance to that of an ordinary man.

He tucked his hands into his sleeves, hunched his neck, and made his way to the western market. As his thoughts shifted, his robes transformed into worn-out cotton clothes.

Both the eastern and western markets were bustling places that sold a wide variety of goods. The selection has improved a lot compared to the past. Even a small amount of rice used to cause a commotion.

Li Huowang didn't linger in the open and quickly slipped into a secluded alley in the eastern part of the city.

After navigating a few turns, he opened a disused drainage well, revealing a dimly lit path beneath. This was the black market—a place where items that could not be sold publicly were traded.

As long as there were no major issues, the military authorities would turn a blind eye. Even if this black market were shut down temporarily, others would pop up elsewhere.

This was the perfect place for rumors to spread. Though some people were deliberately speaking in hushed tones, Li Huowang's sharp hearing caught every word.

"Hey, did you hear? We're suffering like this because of that Bodhisattva."

"Don't talk nonsense! The Bodhisattva brought us food. I saw it with my own eyes!"

"That's all a lie! I heard that this Bodhisattva is part of the Sitting Oblivion Dao, and they're known for deceiving people!"

Li Huowang shifted closer and glanced around shiftily before whispering, "Hey, you guys heard that too? I've also heard more than you might know."

The two people who were chatting leaned in closer. "Really? What else do you know?"

Li Huowang looked around nervously again, then lowered his voice further. "I'm only telling you two, don't spread this around, alright? I heard that not only are all the disasters in Great Qi caused by that Bodhisattva, but even the changes in the heavens and earth are his doing!”

The two men gasped in shock with widened eyes. “Really?”

“I’m telling you, he’s choosing people! If you’re chosen, you’ll be taken to heaven to become an Immortal. But the rest of us? We’ll have to fend for ourselves!”

“Really?” By now, five or six more people had gathered around with shocked expressions.

As they continued to gossip, Li Huowang quietly slipped away and moved on to the next target.

With each of Li Huowang’s actions, these rumors, which were initially vague, gradually gained more details.

At first, he simply added to them. Soon, however, the rumors veered off in entirely new directions and became increasingly absurd.

“Hey, did you hear? I heard that Bodhisattva is the reincarnation of Danxi.^[1] With one breath, the heavens shake. With another, the earth crumbles!”

“You’re wrong! I heard that Bodhisattva is the Jade Emperor himself, on a journey to face his tribulations. Once it’s over, he’ll return to the heavens!”

“How does each version get crazier than the last? Are these really true?”

Li Huowang listened from a distance. He felt a sense of calm as he heard the final, absurd versions of the rumors. The Tianchen Kingdom’s first move had been neutralized.

When dealing with rumors, neither explaining nor ignoring them was effective. The best strategy was to make an even bigger rumor that drew more attention. Another option was to distort the original meaning of the rumor.

No matter how twisted they were, people who believed in rumors would never question their validity.

However, once the rumors became too ridiculous, they ceased to be regarded as rumors and instead transformed into idle gossip devoid of any substance.

Li Huowang wasn't about to let rumors from another kingdom destabilize his own territory.

He was curious to see what the other side would try next.

If they continued using Sitting Oblivion Dao's tricks, Li Huowang was ready to face them directly. After all, he had a stockpile of False Qi at his disposal, just waiting for a chance to be used.

However, the next move from the other side took Li Huowang by surprise.

1. An ancient Chinese physician 📖

Chapter 869 - Liar

In the spacious hall, a scholar bowed deeply to Li Huowang. “Liu Yifang from the Minglun Hall greets Daoist Li. Yesterday, agents from the Tianchen Kingdom secretly contacted my subordinates and claimed there was no conflict between the Tianchen Kingdom and the Great Qi.”

He continued, “They said that as long as the people of the Great Qi stand by and watch, the Tianchen Kingdom will always provide three times the amount of food you send.”

This was a blatant attempt to sow discord and a very overt, cunning scheme.

In the past, Gao Zhijian wanted the Great Qi to act as his henchman. If the Great Qi were to become the Tianchen Kingdom’s pawn, it would be a significant problem.

“Are you the only ones they’re trying to sow discord with?” Li Huowang asked, his voice cold.

Liu Yifang quickly explained, “That should be the case. If others were aware, they would likely report it too.”

“No, since the Tianchen Kingdom is sowing discord, they wouldn’t just target you. You being the only one who has informed me suggests that others are either on the fence or already divided by the Tianchen Kingdom!” Li Huowang said.

He slapped the stone seat in a fit of anger, cracking it open.

“There is also me!” someone yelled from above.

As Li Huowang looked up, he saw the leader of the Mo family approaching. “Rest assured, Daoist. The Mo family will never turn our backs on our ancestral rules!”

Li Huowang’s expression remained indifferent, creating significant tension in the hall.

After thinking for a moment, Chan Du said, “Benefactor Li, it might not be as you think. The Tianchen Kingdom might not be sowing discord with everyone. Many people might not even be aware of the situation. At the very least, no one from the Righteous Monastery has had contact with them.”

Li Huowang paused for a long time before speaking again. “I was just contemplating how to deal with their scheme. You two, if anyone contacts you again, agree to their demands and consent to the Tianchen Kingdom’s discord.”

“What?!”

Everyone present thought they had heard wrong.

“You two should infiltrate and negotiate with the Tianchen Kingdom. Whatever route they suggest is fine, but there is one requirement. They must first send the food.”

Liu Yifang hesitated and looked at Li Huowang. “And after the food arrives...”

“Once the food has arrived, what is there to fear? By then, we can just ambush them. Ideally, we’d find a way to capture their Twisted One.”

Playing along with their scheme was better than exposing it directly.

Li Huowang didn’t know if there were other methods to cross between two different worlds. However, resolving the issue regarding the Tianchen’s Kingdom Twisted One was a priority. Once he had had their spine, he could go to their world and be less passive.

The others in the hall heaved a sigh of relief when they finally understood Li Huowang’s intentions.

“But this is not in accordance with the rules,” the leader of the Mo family said, frowning in dissatisfaction.

“Don’t you know that everything is fair in war? Besides, there are two conflicting rules now. Which do you think is more important?”

Noticing that the Mo family's leader had fallen silent, Li Huowang waved his hand. “Alright, you can go now. Wait until they contact you again.”

”Yes!”

After the two left, the entire hall felt empty and cold.

“I'm tired. I'll take a nap,” Li Huowang said, standing up and walking to the back.

Chan Du quickly followed. “Benefactor Li, I have an idea about the Dragon Veins.”

“Don't tell me. I've already said that I only care about having enough food. Matters concerning the Dragon Veins of the Great Qi are for the people of the Great Qi to handle, not me!”

Chan Du watched Li Huowang gradually disappear, letting out a soft sigh before continuing to turn the Buddhist beads in his hand. “Ah, it's a real shame. If it weren't for the Tianchen Kingdom's enmity with him, he might have already returned to the Great Liang.”

However, Chan Du could empathize as he understood the situation from Li Huowang's perspective. After all, Li Huowang had previously helped wholeheartedly, only to be betrayed by the people of the Great Qi. It was pretty disheartening.

“This won't do. I must find a way to keep this Twisted One of Ji Zai.”

Although the Great Qi had no more divisions, time still passed little by little. Half a month later, spies from the Tianchen Kingdom approached Liu Yifang again.

“Follow me quickly.”

A shadow emerged from the trees and climbed onto Liu Yifang's shadow.

Liu Yifang said nothing and silently followed the shadow's guidance. They headed towards the outskirts of the city.

With food now available, You Capital was no longer an isolated city. Four smaller towns had sprung up around it, used to accommodate refugees from other places. As such, leaving You Capital would not be enough—there were still too many people around.

Liu Yifang and the shadow pressed on, walking steadily until they reached a truly desolate wilderness.

The spot they stopped at had very tall grass and small trees. Then, Liu Yifang walked through the waist-high grass and headed toward a valley.

The valley was dark without sunlight. Faint, indistinct music could be heard from deep within.

Liu Yifang saw other members of the Surveillance Bureau. Although their faces were covered, he could still recognize them.

As they moved further in, Liu Yifang saw more people gathered there, and the music grew clearer.

It was a kind of pleasant string music, accompanied by the gentle sound of bubbling springs, the crisp chirping of birds, the joyful bleating of sheep, and the thunderous galloping of horses.

Liu Yifang saw the source of the music when they reached the valley's depths.

A woman sat there gracefully, with waist-length hair and a transparent veil. She held a peculiar black instrument with a long, slender neck and a gourd-shaped soundbox.

What made it even more peculiar was that two of her fingers were wrapped in thin threads that ran through the center of a circular stool, tied to the two small wooden sheep on the stool.

As her fingers plucked the strings on the instrument, the two wooden sheep were pulled back and forth in sync with the music. They performed strange and eerie movements as if in a ritual.

Liu Yifang had traveled extensively but had never seen such an unusual instrument.

As the music accelerated, the two wooden sheep moved faster and oozed blood. Eventually, amid the stormy music, the two wooden sheep collided heavily, intertwining to form a bizarre, twisted bloodwood tree on the round stool.

“Has everyone arrived?” the woman asked.

Her voice was unexpectedly melodious. It sounded like a gentle spring, soothing and captivating.

Liu Yifang quickly surveyed the surroundings and found a total of twelve people.

The woman continued, “Although there aren't many of you, everyone here is a hero who cares for the Great Qi. The Great Qi ultimately belongs to the people of the Great Qi. It must not be occupied by others, and the lives of the people should not be used as a wager.

“By His Majesty’s decree, as long as the people of the Great Qi do not take action, the Tianchen Kingdom will not act against them.”

Liu Yifang could not contain himself and said, “Miss, does the Tianchen Kingdom really intend to send three times the amount of food to the Great Qi?”

“Yes,” the woman said, gently plucking a string.

A door in the nearby mountain opened instantly, and a flood of white rice surged out like a tide.

The sight of the mountains of rice made everyone tremble. So much food would genuinely save the Great Qi!

A thunderous voice rang out, “Wait!”

Everyone turned to look at Liu Yifang. He opened his hand to let the rice fall from his fingers.

He pulled at his skin, and Li Huowang’s enraged face appeared before everyone.

“You deceitful scoundrels!”

Chapter 870 <No Title>

"You deceitful scoundrels!"

Li Huowang's furious roar echoed through the air.

In a matter of moments, the once-pristine white rice surrounding him transformed into a putrid black mess, as if it had decayed over a thousand years in a single instant.

From this, it was evident that even if the Great Qi wanted to cooperate, the Tianchen Kingdom had no intention of keeping their promises. Their strategy of sowing discord was so blatant that they couldn't even be bothered to use proper bait.

Li Huowang's sudden appearance shocked both the people from the Tianchen Kingdom and the Great Qi, but it seemed that the Tianchen Kingdom had been prepared for this. The rotting rice suddenly surged like a turbulent sea.

The black rice covered Li Huowang, making him feel a sharp pain. When he lifted his right foot, he saw nothing but bare white bones below his thigh.

The woman floated above the black rice, smiling as she spoke to Li Huowang. "Zhuge Yuan, since you're here, you might as well stay for today."

"Zhuge Yuan?" Li Huowang uttered, his rage instantly subsiding as he looked around in shock.

He saw that there was no trace of white around him, and a hint of False Qi surged in his mind.

He quickly realized two things. Firstly, the woman was talking to him, not the deceased scholar. She mistakenly believed that his name was Zhuge Yuan. Secondly, the sudden appearance of False Qi and the woman's use of that name were both unintended consequences of his actions.

This was all because he had casually referred to himself as Zhuge Yuan when he had delivered the food, leading many in the Great Qi to believe that was his name.

Subsequently, whenever someone mistook him for Zhuge Yuan, he inadvertently accumulated False Qi.

As Li Huowang pondered this, the woman with the zither gently waved her red nails. This caused the bloodwood tree on the table to pour blood into the black rice, causing the rice to bubble up with blood-red foam.

The rotting black rice on the ground quickly became dark red. Suddenly, an urgent melody filled the air, and the dyed black rice danced around Li Huowang like a living creature. It surged upwards like a colossal tsunami, completely engulfing him.

Li Huowang noticed the woman plucking her strings in the distance.

He firmly grasped the handle of his spine sword and coldly smiled. "Zhuge Yuan, right? Alright! Then I'll give you Zhuge Yuan!"

As the tsunami of black rice approached him, he pulled out his spine sword from his back and forcefully hurled it toward the woman.

Some hidden agents from the Tianchen Kingdom couldn't help but take action since the spine sword was a crucial artifact for transportation to the Great Liang.

Two figures emerged from the dark and quickly reached for the spine sword, casting fleeting shadows as they moved.

When they grasped the hard sword body, flesh and organs grew rapidly atop the white bones. In no time, the spine sword had transformed into a scholarly figure dressed in white robes.

"Hmm?" Zhuge Yuan murmured.

He quickly took out a wolf-hair brush and made two swift strokes. The two people holding onto him were immediately erased, and the color of the brush tip deepened slightly.

Zhuge Yuan quickly turned in mid-air and pulled the brush back, redirecting the massive amounts of rotting black rice toward the woman playing the zither.

The black rice shifted away to reveal the eroded and battered Li Huowang. He knelt on one knee and grasped his swollen head with both hands, as if fearing that letting go would cause it to burst.

“Brother Li, are you okay?” Zhuge Yuan asked.

Li Huowang suddenly pointed forward and gritted his teeth. “Kill them!”

Zhuge Yuan snapped open his folding fan, stepped onto the black rice, and flew towards the woman while holding his brush in one hand.

As soon as Zhuge Yuan made his move, the woman struggled to cope. The rotting black rice continually produced various minions, but they were no match for him.

Li Huowang staggered to his feet and looked coldly at the scene from afar.

Even though this was a fake Zhuge Yuan that Li Huowang had created, these people would not stand a chance against him.

The only slight regret was that the Tianchen Kingdom’s Twisted One had not come, denying Li Huowang the opportunity to kill two birds with one stone.

However, reducing the Tianchen Kingdom's power was still a good outcome. It was better than nothing happening at all.

Li Huowang glanced over at the defectors sitting uncomfortably to the side. This is a chance to deal with those schemers within the Great Qi. Overall, I haven’t lost much.

The people who had tried to betray him for additional benefits from the Tianchen Kingdom were destined to fail.

As long as the Great Qi lacked strength, the Tianchen Kingdom wouldn’t even use real rewards to deceive them. They didn’t take the Great Qi seriously at all.

Thanks to this incident, the next time the Tianchen Kingdom tried to use tactics to sow discord in the Great Qi, no one would believe them even if they offered better conditions.

“What are you standing there for!? Hurry up and help!”

Li Huowang's words snapped everyone back to reality. Without hesitation, they nodded in agreement and armed themselves with various weapons. They hurriedly rushed over to assist Zhuge Yuan, even though they had just entertained the idea of betraying Li Huowang.

The opponents were originally no match for Zhuge Yuan, and with the addition of these twelve people from the Great Qi, the balance shifted even further. The situation turned decisively in favor of Zhuge Yuan.

Before long, the surging black rice diminished as Zhuge Yuan turned it into black ink. He splattered it across the valley walls, transforming it into artistic landscape paintings.

Just as Li Huowang thought the battler was ending, a new type of forest came into view around them, gradually blending into the surroundings.

It seemed that this vast area was filled with forests on the Tianchen Kingdom's side.

Figures suddenly emerged from these forests and rushed towards Zhuge Yuan and his group.

The Tianchen Kingdom is sending reinforcements? That's even better. I'll see how many more people they have to die!

Li Huowang had expected the reinforcements to be strong, so he was taken aback when he realized they were still no match for Zhuge Yuan. They were even weaker than the woman from before.

While their arrival added more figures to the landscape painting, it didn't change the overall situation. The Tianchen Kingdom seemed unaware of this, continuously sending more people.

Li Huowang wanted to direct Zhuge Yuan through these areas to discover what was happening in the Tianchen Kingdom, but the enemy seemed very cautious. Whenever he approached, the changing environment would quickly disappear.

He frowned as he saw the landscape painting nearly become a depiction of the painting Along the River During the Qingming Festival.

Something's not right. These people aren't here to turn the tide. It's more like they're here to delay me.

Li Huowang realized the possibility of an ambush and prepared to retreat.

However, a voice filled with dramatic lamentations stopped him.

1. A painting by the Song dynasty painter Zhang Zeduan. 🖐

Chapter 871 - Theater

Theater singing? Li Huowang was taken aback. The Lu Family Troupe was gone, so he hadn't heard theater singing in a while.

He quickly assessed the situation and immediately deduced that the sound was coming from the huge landscape painting before him.

At that moment, the enormous landscape painting seemed to part like a beaded curtain, and a figure emerged from within.

This person had a red cord tied around his neck, a green tassel on his head, and a body draped with white feathers. His face had bright white stage makeup, making him look like a theater actor.

The problem was that this figure looked very strange. His sunken head was as large as his body, and he had a narrow face and eyes of different sizes, among other deformities.

His figure didn't seem human—it was more like a grotesque, imperfect form.

Their bizarre appearance, combined with their stage makeup, created a terrifying effect.

Li Huowang didn't pay attention to the person's appearance. Instead, he focused on their pair of jade hands.

Now that they were closer, he could see more clearly. The tips of the person's fingernails were almost transparent, gradually turning greener the further up they went. Eventually, they disappeared behind the person's clothing.

It's that thing! It can reach out and touch my creations from "Truth" cultivation! What exactly is it? A Tian Huang noble or the army of Unspeakable?

Before Li Huowang could utter a word, the figure suddenly revealed a blood-red, gaping mouth with a single large tooth and two sharp teeth. Then, it began to sing.

“Speak~ What~ Flower-filled moonlit night and longevity. The mountains and rivers stretch with so much sorrow~!”

Li Huowang was even more disturbed when he saw the eerie figure singing. His bizarre feeling deepened, and his headache became unbearable. What the hell is this?

Zhugue Yuan was about to advance with his brush. However, before he could paint, he saw the figure lay back and turn into a portrait within the landscape painting.

While Zhugue Yuan was engaged in battle, Li Huowang suddenly heard a new disturbance from behind. It was a woman’s low and sorrowful crying.

He swiftly turned around and saw a woman with a large head and black hair covering her face. She quickly floated by, her back facing him, while her billowing white sleeves and tragic theater singing filled the air.

“Heaven and Earth, how can they fear the strong and bully the weak? Oh Earth, you don’t distinguish right from wrong. Oh Heaven, you mistakenly judge the wise and foolish.”

For some reason, Li Huowang felt that he had seen this scene before, even though he had never encountered such a thing.

Before he could figure it out, the woman was already singing while swiftly stepping towards him!

As Li Huowang shouted angrily, Zhugue Yuan, who was engaged in battle, descended from the sky. He made a brush stroke in front of the woman, forcing her back slightly. Then, he quickly turned and dipped his brush into heavenly colors, drawing a protective array on Li Huowang’s robes to prevent further sneak attacks.

“Resolve this quickly. If it drags on, I won’t be able to hold on much longer,” Li Huowang said, clutching his head tightly.

Cultivating “Truth” was challenging enough already, and materializing this version of Zhuge Yuan made it even more straining.

Zhugue Yuan nodded. However, when he turned back, he found that the two figures had now become five—Sheng, Dan, Jing, Mo, and Chou.^[1]

They ignored everyone else and surrounded Li Huowang, leaving him no room to escape.

With great caution, Zhuge Yuan glanced at Li Huowang and took out an old almanac from his pocket as he prepared to get serious.

“Brother Li, hold on. I’ll make an opening, and we’ll escape first. I have never seen such things in the Great Qi, so I’m unsure of their true nature.”

“This might be a trap. They could be lying in wait to deal with you.” Zhuge Yuan tore a page from the almanac, threw it into the air, and began writing.

At that moment, a gust of wind blew and opened the almanac, revealing the painted face of the Dan actress behind it.

“Look back at the splendor of that distant dream~ The life left to us is but a fleeting wave,” the woman sang and flung her sleeves at Zhuge Yuan.

Zhugue Yuan stepped forward and leaped to avoid her, but the lower part of his robe came into contact with the flowing sleeves.

Unexpectedly, the sleeves stuck to Zhuge Yuan’s robe. The force easily tore his lower body away, as if it had been pulled apart.

As the sleeves shook violently, Zhuge Yuan’s lower body shrank and eventually became a lump. The woman opened her mouth and swallowed the lump.

Seeing this, Li Huowang’s face turned grim, and he felt his headache ease. He understood what was happening—the Dan actress was eating his “Truth” cultivation. She could even consume the “Truth” on Zhuge Yuan!

As the Dan actress retreated, the Sheng, Jing, Mo, and Chou actors quickly surrounded him, leaving Zhuge Yuan’s half-body defenseless.

Zhuge Yuan barely managed to toss his spine back to Li Huowang before he was torn in half.

“Brother Li, be careful. It seems like this thing can touch the heavens and change the Daos!” Zhuge Yuan’s last words faded as he completely vanished.

The actors stood firm and surrounded Li Huowang once more.

Li Huowang looked at them with an ugly expression.

Regardless of what those things were, It was clear that this situation would be difficult to handle.

Li Huowang called out, “Ji Zai! Help! If you don’t, you’ll be in danger too!”

No unusual responses came, and everything remained eerily calm.

"Hmm, hahaha!" laughed the old Sheng actor with a long beard. His hearty laughter echoed through the valley.

The Sheng, Dan, Jing, Mo, and Chou actors turned their heads to see a large crowd moving towards them.

Among them were the newly established Surveillance Bureau and military personnel from Great Qi, followed by the Great Qi citizens who had just finished their meals.

The crowd seemed endless from the valley’s edge. It was as if everyone from the You Capital had come.

“Benefactor, don’t panic. We’ve come to help you!” Chan Du shouted as he led the group.

Did the Great Qi really gather so many people without me realizing it? Li Huowang felt relieved. These five figures before him were challenging to deal with. However, the numerous people from Great Qi would be able to overwhelm them.

Suddenly, the surroundings turned into a forest again, with more actors representing the Sheng, Dan, Jing, Mo, and Chou roles slowly emerging from it.

Ten, fifty, a hundred!

They all had the same deformed appearance and wore the same theater costumes.

At this moment, Li Huowang finally understood their true identity. They were indeed the army of Unspeakable he had heard about!

1. The five various roles of Chinese opera. 🤔

Chapter 872 - Army Of Unspeakable

The deformed freaks in theater costumes with painted faces stood there, singing as if they were on a stage rather than on a life-or-death battlefield.

Some wore flat shoes, while others were on stilts, much taller than the other deformed beings. This scene was as horrifying as the demons in the eighteen levels of hell.

Li Huowang felt a chill as he looked at these grotesque actors—the so-called army of Unspeakable.

Just facing two of them had been difficult enough, but now there were so many.

Li Huowang now realized how laughable he had been for thinking he had no rivals. In this bizarre world, there would always be strange things he had never seen before!

Li Huowang turned slightly and looked at the people of the Great Qi people behind him. He felt a pang of bitterness when he saw their confident and indignant expressions.

If it were anything else, perhaps these people might have been helpful. However, against the army of Unspeakable, they were essentially walking to their deaths.

“Ah~~ya~~ya~~ya~~”

Li Huowang watched the army of Unspeakable make their appearances, and he silently cursed. He raised his hand and shouted, “Fire!”

Flames erupted instantly, gushing out from the cuffs and collar of his red robes.

He wanted to try to fight back, even if he might not win. He refused to surrender easily!

That wasn't all. Li Huowang gripped the spine sword tightly and plunged it into his chest. He pulled hard and extracted his internal organs.

Five volumes of the Profound Records were laid on the ground, and they caught each of his organs in turn.

“Wood liver! Earth spleen! Metal lung! Water kidney! Fire heart! Five Elements Intercalation!”

The bamboo slips of the Profound Records wriggled and transformed into worms, rapidly filling Li Huowang's chest.

The flames on his body continued to burn and wrap around the worms, causing them to scream and sizzle as they burned.

At this moment, Li Huowang and the worms were interconnected, and he could feel what they felt.

He stomped his feet and roared before charging at the army of Unspeakable, with his body and the screaming worms ablaze.

As Li Huowang was about to collide with them, he grabbed his ribs and pulled them outward before thrusting himself forward. The burning worms scattered from his chest like flowers descending from the heavens.

Li Huowang was currently an empty shell—the worms were his true form.

The densely packed worms descended upon them like raindrops, their mouths wide open. They wormed their way into their costumes while the flames rapidly spread and set fire to anything that could catch fire.

As the costumes caught fire, the creatures flailed their long sleeves and desperately tried to extinguish the flames. The sea of fire quickly spread.

Just as Li Huowang was about to unleash his fury, the situation suddenly changed.

The other deformed figures who had not attacked them now rushed in. Their flowing sleeves and short spears brushed against the worms, and Li Huowang immediately felt something missing from them.

When the worms stopped screaming and became still, he immediately understood. They had removed all the pain from the worms! The army of Unspeakable had directly removed all the pain!

At that moment, Li Huowang finally understood what Zhuge Yuan had meant by touching the heavens and changing the Daos. These beings could interact with any Heavenly Dao, whether it was his “Truth” cultivation or the Pain from the Ao Jing Sect. They could treat them as manipulable objects.

If something involved supernatural powers from Heavenly Daos, they could effortlessly neutralize it.

With the pain removed, the Ao Jing Sect’s ritual was now meaningless.

The worms were now free from pain and fell one by one, their flames extinguished. With that, they lay motionless on the ground.

Several deformed actors in green stepped forward and sang mournfully in a mocking tone. “Only waiting for someone to offer sacrifices to the green tomb, pity the souls trapped for eternity. Add another chapter to remember you. They will always accompany me.”

Impossible. Even the Five Elements Intercalation doesn’t work? Li Huowang didn’t want to accept it, but he realized the harsh reality. It was clear that they were beyond his current capabilities.

With their strength, it was no wonder they managed to betray the Heavenly Mater and steal her Heavenly Dao.

“Ji Zai, Ji Zai!” Li Huowang roared at his own reflection in the pool of blood, yet nothing happened. The final glimmer of hope he had clung to in this critical moment had proven futile.

Li Huowang gripped the spine sword with his fiery hand and felt a deep sense of helplessness. His “Truth” cultivation, the Ao Jing Sect's rituals, and Ji Zai had all proven useless. He had no more cards to play.

This was the first time he had encountered such a formidable enemy since leaving the Zephyr Temple.

What to do? If I can't fight them, do I have to retreat and return to the Great Liang?

Li Huowang turned to look at the massive crowd of people from the Great Qi behind him, feeling a surge of reluctance.

He knew that if he retreated to the Great Liang, the army of Unspeakable would likely wipe out all these people. If they were all gone, the Great Qi would truly become a mere waypoint for the Tianchen Kingdom.

"Benefactor Li, don't panic! The monks from Righteous Monastery have all arrived."

Li Huowang forced a bitter smile. What good would Righteous Monastery do? The monks' blood and flesh Heavenly Daos would also be suppressed by the army of Unspeakable's strange abilities.

He turned to face the army of Unspeakable. They appeared unhurried, standing there as if waiting for the people of the Great Qi to surround them, much like a cat waiting by a door for a mouse.

"Have the military go in front!" Li Huowang drew the spine sword again. Since supernatural abilities were ineffective, it was time for a direct confrontation.

He wasn't sure if it would work, but there were no other options. It was a fight to the death.

If both the Great Qi and himself were unable to resist the army of Unspeakable, then the Great Liang would also be in danger. This situation could pose an even bigger crisis than the one caused by the Dharma Sect.

As Li Huowang gritted his teeth and prepared to charge forward, someone called out excitedly from behind, saying, "Bodhisattva Zhuge! We've come to help you!"

Li Huowang recognized the voice—it was Feng Bawan. As his voice rang out, a stream of False Qi gradually flowed into Li Huowang's dantian.

Feng Bawan's voice prompted others to join in. Cheers and words of encouragement began to rise.

Everyone was excited and proud to see their side becoming more numerous than the enemy, with the advantage clearly on their side.

As they shouted, streams of False Qi continued to flow into Li Huowang's dantian.

What use is this False Qi to me? Can the tricks of the Sitting Oblivion Dao help me against these beings?!

He froze suddenly, feeling the dense False Qi in his heart and a sudden, unexpected thought crossed his mind.

Chapter 873 - Siming

Li Huowang sensed the ever-increasing False Qi and then looked at the enemies he was powerless against. He quickly made a decision.

He turned his back to the approaching army of Unspeakable, quickly scanning the crowd to find Feng Bawan.

Li Huowang forcibly dragged him out and excitedly said, “Hurry, make them shout! Make everyone follow your lead and shout!”

“Shout... shout what?” Feng Bawan, who was holding half a brick, was momentarily confused.

“Shout what you just said! Get everyone to join in and shout! Quickly!”

Before Feng Bawan could react, a few students from the Minglun Hall understood Li Huowang’s intention and immediately bowed. “We’ve received your orders!”

The students shouted words of praise for Li Huowang, and everyone behind them began to follow suit. Each shout was echoed by thousands more.

“The Dao is selfless and virtuous. The compassionate Zhuge Yuan saves those in suffering!”

“The Dao is selfless and virtuous. The compassionate Zhuge Yuan saves those in suffering!”

The phrases used by Minglun Hall were naturally more refined than Feng Bawan’s crude speech, but Li Huowang didn’t care about the elegance of their words—his sole focus was the amount of False Qi.

As he felt the massive influx of False Qi, he knew he had found a way to win!

“Chan Du! Keep them occupied for a while! I still need more!”

Chan Du, the abbot of the Righteous Monastery, didn’t ask any questions. He calmly turned his prayer beads, decisively leading the Surveillance Bureau and military forces of the Great Qi toward the army of Unspeakable, even though he knew they weren’t a match for them.

“Don’t stop! Keep shouting!”

Li Huowang had convinced everyone that he was the Bodhisattva. He also used up a portion of the False Qi to appear several taller in their eyes.

Some of them became even more enthusiastic when they saw Li Huowang sitting cross-legged like a true Buddha. They continued to shout along with the students, their voices growing increasingly fervent.

“Bodhisattva Zhuge guides all to enlightenment, with a lotus throne and auspicious clouds, at the pure realm!”

“Bodhisattva Zhuge guides all to enlightenment, with a lotus throne and auspicious clouds, at the pure realm!”

“Bodhisattva Zhuge! Perform a thousand good deeds daily, accumulate three thousand merits, deliver great blessings, and embrace compassion in your heart!!”

“Bodhisattva Zhuge! Perform a thousand good deeds daily, accumulate three thousand merits, deliver great blessings, and embrace compassion in your heart!!”

In such an environment, even some skeptics in the crowd began to believe them. With Li Huowang’s various acts of devotion, they knelt and started to kowtow, treating him like a true Bodhisattva.

Everyone believed Li Huowang was the savior Bodhisattva named Zhuge Yuan, even though this Bodhisattva wore Daoist robes and the name Zhuge Yuan had no Buddhist associations.

With their fervent shouting, the continuous flow of False Qi surged towards Li Huowang, growing rapidly from a small stream to a flooding river.

As the False Qi continued to increase, Li Huowang listened to the diminishing screams behind him and waited anxiously. Not enough! Still not enough!

As time passed and the screams behind him began to weaken, Li Huowang's eyes widened. Enough!

The spine sword behind him quickly grew flesh, forming a new Li Huowang. The two stood back to back and simultaneously opened their mouths to chant.

“Master of the True Void, Supreme Heavenly Mother. When the golden light shines, the sun and moon fade. When the treasure staff spins, ghosts and spirits lose their color. Manifest divine presence in the mortal world. Guard the sacred chariot and float...”

Although the chanting was not loud, it spread far and wide, causing even the unchanging sky of Great Qi to shift.

Before long, the heads of both Li Huowangs started to transform, gradually taking on the shape of dice.

The square dice heads became increasingly prominent and turned a deeper shade of purple as the chanting continued. Their bodies started to fade away from the world, as if they were mere illusions.

As Li Huowang disappeared, Shai Zi's chanting grew louder, eventually becoming the only sound in the world.

The army of Unspeakable seemed to sense something. They ignored the entanglement from the Great Qi Surveillance Bureau and military forces and charged towards Li Huowang.

However, Chan Du and the others knew that Li Huowang was performing a ritual. They were determined to stop their enemies, even if it meant sacrificing their lives.

While the people of the Great Qi couldn't defeat the foreign beings, they could still buy time with their lives.

Amidst the chaos, the chanting of the two Shai Zis began to reach its climax.

“If beings in distress call your name, the Great One listens and relieves their suffering. Great compassion and vows, great holy mercy. The Holy Spirit, mighty light, the Heavenly Queen, Saint Marici, Sovereign Doulao!”

When the final title was uttered, the six-sided numbers on their faces detached from their bodies. They were wrapped in purple light, disappearing into the dark, gloomy clouds above.

In the next moment, both Li Huowangs looked up simultaneously and shouted in unison, “Doulao, come quickly! I’m returning the Heavenly Daos of Truth and Lies to you!”

This was the Heavenly Treasure of Deception of the Sitting Oblivion Dao. Since their abilities were so bizarre, he would summon the true Siming and see if these hundred-odd people had the power to defeat Doulao!

Whoosh! The dark clouds in the sky began to churn violently.

In contrast to the changes in the sky, the ground also started to change. Its texture became peculiar, as if it had turned into some kind of liquid.

Li Huowang looked up and saw a yin-yang taiji fish high above, resembling a sun in the sky.

Li Huowang knew Doulao was coming and shouted, “Everyone, get on the ground! Close your eyes and cover your ears tightly!”

At his command, everyone from the Great Qi immediately complied, promptly laying themselves down on the ground.

Those lying on the ground moved like seaweed on the water’s surface and drifted with the waves.

When Li Huowang looked up again, the sight became clearer—two vast seas of black and white intertwining. Doulao had truly arrived.

The vast seas on either side were not Doulao. What lay beneath the seas was Doulao.

Li Huowang could feel himself melting, and his senses gradually faded.

The two Li Huowangs covered their heads with pained expressions and cursed at the sky, “Why the hell are you looking at me? The enemies are those things! Get rid of them!”

Chapter 874 - Lies

Doulao, the Siming who controlled Lies, was now right before Li Huowang. Li Huowang had summoned Doulao through the Sitting Oblivion Dao's Heavenly Treasure of Deception.

Even though it was only an incarnation at this moment, the pressure it exerted was still immense.

Li Huowang felt his body continuously collapse as his consciousness faded. He looked up again and faced the yin-yang sea that covered the entire sky. "What are you waiting for?!"

The next moment, Li Huowang's body completely melted as it turned into a pool of blood on the ground. A hand reached out from the side and retrieved a spine from the blood. Li Huowang took up the spine and raised it fearlessly above his head.

He was about to say something but stopped. He turned his head slowly to look at the distant army of Unspeakable and laughed arrogantly.

"Hahaha! Did you really think the Siming I summoned would attack me? I have fooled you!"

Li Huowang quickly twisted his head, instantly turning his face into Hong Zhong's.

"Look at this! This is Doulao!! The Siming who controls lies! Our Sitting Oblivion Dao's leader!

"Hahahaha! Come on! Aren't you powerful? You've even defeated the Heavenly Mater? Then try this one!"

The army of Unspeakable remained motionless against Li Huowang's words. They stood on the undulating ground like statues.

"Cowards!! A bunch of useless idiots!" Li Huowang stomped his feet and confidently charged at them under the gaze of Doulao.

Li Huowang was halfway through his charge before the army of Unspeakable finally moved.

Some slender female actors were lifted high by the older actors and placed on stilts. They began to reach up towards the cloud-like Doulao.

As they were about to make a significant move, the army of Unspeakable suddenly scattered. Their distorted faces became filled with suspicion, and they scrutinized their companions.

“Hmm?” When Li Huowang saw these entities starting to attack their own, he immediately realized that Doulao was taking action.

As the Siming of Lies, Doulao could make any group develop doubts about their companions in an instant.

However, to Li Huowang’s surprise, the army of Unspeakable seemed to realize there was a problem with themselves. They all raised their hands and began to feel their heads.

As they raised their hands, they pulled out the Lies from their minds.

However, for every Lie they pulled out, Doulao inserted a new one. They were forced to stand still to prevent their thoughts from being disturbed, continuously pulling out various lies from their heads.

During this time, Li Huowang reached the front of their army and began a killing spree with his blade.

The previously formidable army of Unspeakable now appeared as insignificant as chickens and dogs before Li Huowang.

As Li Huowang was about to finish off the remaining foes, they stopped pulling out Lies from their heads. Doulao had inexplicably ceased its actions.

Li Huowang observed the gazes around him and the scattered Lies on the ground, then felt a surge of inspiration. He waved the bloodstained spine sword and shouted, “Quickly end your own lives! Your lives are linked with the Heavenly Mater! Only if you die will the Heavenly Mater die! Your deaths are necessary for the sake of the Tianchen Kingdom!”

More False Qi surged into Li Huowang as the army of Unspeakable reached under their left armpits.

When they inserted their hands and squeezed, red and purple blood instantly exploded, which left them immobile and sprawled on the ground.

Since they had no Lies in their heart, they also lost the ability to discern if something was truthful. They would believe whatever others said to them.

The army of Unspeakable committed suicide one by one, and the area in front of Li Huowang gradually became filled with bodies.

As they were about to be completely tricked and killed by Li Huowang’s deceit, the surrounding illusion transformed into a forest once again.

The forest appeared and disappeared rapidly, bringing the slower members of the Unspeakable army back to the Tianchen Kingdom.

Li Huowang shifted his position and arrived at the edge of the forest. As the forest vanished, he saw a golden dragon appear vaguely in the white mist.

The forest quickly closed, and everything around him calmed back down.

A dragon? A real dragon? Not a fake dragon? Li Huowang was astonished by what he had seen earlier. Was there really a true dragon? What connection did it have with the Dragon Veins?

Now that he knew what the army of Unspeakable was, a thought crossed his mind—could the Tian Huang nobles be true dragons?

Li Huowang didn’t know the answer to this question. He took a while to come back to his senses.

He suddenly thought of his ally's actions and looked up and cursed, "Doulao! You just—"

Li Huowang's words abruptly stopped as the sky returned to its previous state. The chaotic sea of black and white had long since vanished without a trace.

"Damn it!" Li Huowang suppressed his anger and muttered under his breath.

Even though Doulao had assisted him during this crisis, Li Huowang was unsure if summoning it again would be helpful, considering its recent attitude just now.

"The Dao is selfless and virtuous. The compassionate Zhuge Yuan saves those in suffering!"

"The Dao is selfless and virtuous. The compassionate Zhuge Yuan saves those in suffering!"

"The Dao is selfless and virtuous. The compassionate Zhuge Yuan saves those in suffering!"

The excited shouting continued, and Li Huowang was jolted awake by the roaring cheers.

He looked up at the cheering people of the Great Qi. They shouted enthusiastically and bowed down in tears before him.

They didn't know what had happened. They only knew that the Bodhisattva had manifested and defeated the external enemies.

He felt the False Qi flow into him and murmured, "I didn't expect that these mortals would be the turning point in defeating the army of Unspeakable."

At that moment, Chan Du, with half his face missing, came over with his hands joined in prayer. "Amitabha. Under the Buddha, all sentient beings are equal. Countless beings come and go in an endless cycle, constantly flowing through the six realms of existence. Mortals are not ordinary."

Li Huowang frowned at him. "Do you know what I'm thinking? Do you just interrupt?"

Chan Du chuckled, looking pleased as the enemies were driven back. “We call them the Heavenly Daos, but if there were no Mortal Daos, what would the Heavenly Daos be? Mortals are far from useless—they are the basis of all fate.

“Benefactor Li, as I said before, the Great Qi is yours. Whatever you want them to believe, they will believe.

“They were able to help you this time, and they can help you even more in other places—it’s not limited to the False Qi of the Sitting Oblivion Dao.”

Chapter 875 - Night

Li Huowang understood Chan Du's intentions.

Chan Du wanted him to recognize the value of the Great Qi. Indeed, the Great Qi was very useful, and if Li Huowang had control over it, his supply of False Qi would be endless. However, it was not what he wanted.

Li Huowang gradually relaxed his furrowed brows. "Stop trying to win me over. Once again, I'm not helping them because they're useful to me—I just couldn't stand to see people starve."

With that, Li Huowang walked through the crowd and headed toward the You Capital amidst their shouting.

"Of course, I know that Zhuge Yuan is compassionate. However, it's our honor to assist Zhuge Yuan."

"Feeling excited now?" Li Huowang turned back and glared at him, but Chan Du was still calm. Li Huowang ignored him and continued forward.

"I know what you're trying to do. Stop trying to win me over with these tactics. I'll repeat myself—the matters of the Great Qi should be resolved by the people of the Great Qi! I won't involve myself with the Dragon Veins!"

"Benefactor Li, there's no need for you to handle the Dragon Veins. Still, it would be a good opportunity to kill two birds with one stone, as the enemies from the Diamond Realm actually came."

Li Huowang stopped again and looked at Chan Du, whose face had completely healed by now. "What do you mean by that?"

"Since we're already mortal enemies, when we invade the Diamond Realm and seize a few Dragon Veins, I'm sure the Buddha will not blame us either."

"Huh?" Li Huowang was surprised. He had previously turned Chan Du away when he tried to discuss the matter of the Dragon Veins.

He hadn't even imagined Chan Du would have such ideas.

The Great Qi's Deputy Chief, Liang Yuxuan from the Minglun Hall, hurriedly added, "Daoist Li, that's great! This way, the Great Qi and the Great Liang can be completely bound together! It's not something that can be easily bought off with just food!"

"Do you think that seizing the Dragon Veins is as simple as just talking about it?" Li Huowang replied. He quickly came up with a solution in his mind. It was feasible—Gao Zhijian had once been the Great Qi's Dragon Vein, yet he could still serve as a Dragon Vein in the Great Liang.

"Benefactor Li, since the Great Qi rightfully belongs to you, any Dragon Veins seized by the Great Qi will belong to you. Once the Dragon Veins are in your possession, you will have the freedom to extract as much Dragon Qi from them as you desire.

Li Huowang stopped in his tracks, looking at Chan Du with a hint of amusement. He reached out and snatched the Buddhist beads that Chan Du was spinning in his hands.

"Abbot Chan Du, you usually seem inconspicuous, but you've been gathering a lot of information behind the scenes."

Chan Du joined his hands in prayer, closing his eyes slightly as he said, "Amitabha, I am but a humble monk. I don't know what Benefactor is referring to."

"Indeed, you don't know, and of course you wouldn't." Li Huowang slapped the Buddhist beads onto Chan Du's chest. He then drew his spine sword, slicing open a rift and slipping into it.

Chan Du placed the Buddhist beads back in his palm and slowly spun them again. "Amitabha. Heaven has the virtue of benevolence."

It was late at night. Zhao Wu held a lantern and leaned on a cane, wobbling down the path in Cowheart Village with a letter in hand.

A peddler who had come to stay had just delivered the letter, which had been sent from Qing Qiu. The only person who could've written a letter from Qing Qiu to Cowheart Village was naturally that kid, Sun Baolu.

Zhao Wu wanted to find a well-lit area to read the letter and check on Sun Baolu's situation.

Their relationship was closer than that of real brothers since they had escaped from the Zephyr Temple together. It was normal for them to care about each other. Zhao Wu was now able to read and had no difficulty reading letters.

As he was about to reach home, Zhao Wu suddenly felt a strong urge to urinate. He looked around and immediately headed to the outhouse with his lantern.

After he relieved himself, he exited the outhouse. The light from his lantern illuminated the nearby woodshed. He spotted a flash of green between the wooden planks, making his heart skip a beat.

"What's this? Why is there something green in the woodshed?" He raised the lantern again and knocked, but the green color disappeared.

"Could it... could it be haunted...?"

Zhao Wu thought it over and felt something was off. "No, how could there be ghosts on Senior Li's territory?"

Mustering his courage, he used a stick to pry open the wooden door and cautiously held the lantern up in the woodshed.

The next moment, Zhao Wu froze in place. A pitch-black ghost dressed in a bright red and green ceremonial outfit was floating in the air.

"Ghost!" Zhao Wu's terrified scream echoed over Cowheart Village.

Zhao Wu was paralyzed with fear. When he finally managed to turn around and desperately tried to escape, Puppy appeared before him.

“Is there really a ghost?”

Zhao Wu quickly grabbed Puppy’s clothes and clung tightly to his back. “In the woodshed! Hurry up! There’s a ghost in ceremonial clothing!”

Puppy, who had just been fearful, immediately relaxed and walked toward the woodshed. “Oh, is that it? You startled me.”

“Don’t go! There’s a ghost!”

“Don’t pull me. That’s not a ghost. It’s just the ceremonial outfit I hung up.”

Puppy took out the bright red and green ceremonial outfit from the woodshed, which had gold coins painted on it.

He showed it to Zhao Wu. “See, this is the ceremonial outfit. I bought a coffin since Senior Li almost died once when we were traveling, and the shopkeeper threw this in. This thing was left over since he didn’t die later on. It cost quite a bit at 120 coins, so I kept it in case it could be used later.”

Zhao Wu erupted in anger. “You! Why did you leave it here? You should’ve kept it at home!”

“Burn it right now!” Zhao Wu looked disgusted. He tried to grab the ceremonial outfit, but Puppy pulled it away.

“No, no. How can you throw it away? I paid for it myself! If Senior Li doesn’t need it, whoever dies in the village later can use it first,” Puppy said, running outside with the ceremonial outfit.

Puppy ran ahead, and Zhao Wu chased after him.

Zhao Wu moved slowly with a cane, which meant was unlikely to catch up with the able-bodied Puppy. Unexpectedly, Zhao Wu caught up quickly and grabbed the ceremonial outfit.

However, he quickly noticed that something was wrong with Puppy. He was trembling, and his pants were wet. He had wet himself from fear.

“What’s wrong with you?” Zhao Wu raised the lantern and followed Puppy’s gaze. The moment he did, he felt a chill all over. If he hadn’t just visited the outhouse, he might have wet himself too.

In the dimly lit village path, a dirty, tattered sack filled with something was hopping toward them.

There were many things inside, and it was bulging.

The sack was soaked with blood and filled with dismembered corpses.

Chapter 876 - Search

Dak dak dak dak dak~

Zhao Wu was afraid, his teeth chattering uncontrollably. His face had turned green from fright.

Zhao Wu's fear was reasonable. It was one thing to mistake the burial clothes for ghosts, but there was no way he would see a walking bloody sack and treat it as a regular object. It was a real ghost!

“There’s... there’s... there’s...” Zhao Wu was about to shout, but Puppy swiftly silenced him by placing his hands over Zhao Wu's mouth.

“Quiet! It has no eyes, so it can’t see us,” Puppy whispered urgently.

Zhao Wu stared at the bag with unmoving eyes as he heard Puppy's whisper. Puppy was right. The sack somehow ignored them, continuing to hop and leap.

“Quickly! We must run and call everyone!”

Both of them quickly ran back.

At that moment, a muffled voice emerged from the sack, making them tumble as they ran while shivering uncontrollably.

They got away quickly and promptly returned with reinforcements. Almost everyone in Cowheart Village followed behind them, holding brightly lit lanterns.

“Quick! Follow the trail of blood! That thing is just in front of us!”

Puppy was holding onto his needle wrapped in a white tassel. He felt much more confident with it.

The villagers followed him, a murderous aura radiating from the village militia as they gripped their weapons. Yang Xiaohai trailed behind them, holding his scepter.

It could be said that they had mobilized the entire strength of the village.

If they could not fight against the ghost with this, they would have to send someone out to call for reinforcements in Shangjing.

Their torch and lanterns suddenly lit up an isolated sack in the middle of the path. Everyone was shocked by its sudden appearance and retreated slightly.

Suddenly, their torches and lanterns illuminated an isolated sack in the middle of the path. Its unexpected appearance shocked everyone, making them take a small step back.

The bloody sack suddenly jumped. What they witnessed was too bizarre, leaving everyone in shock.

Puppy, who was hiding in the middle of the crowd, shouted at the sack, "Youyouyouyouyou! You dare come and harm us? Do you think that you are unkillable? Do you know whose territory this is?"

The sack stopped after it heard Puppy's voice. Puppy saw this and slid further back.

The sack slowly turned, and an exhausted voice came from inside.

"Is it... Brother Er Jiu? It's me. Liu Zongyuan from Moongate."

The people of the village exchanged curious glances. They weren't familiar with the names Liu Zongyuan or Er Jiu, as nobody in the village bore such names.

"Er Jiu is Master's other name. That thing knows who my Master is."

Lu Xiucan walked forward on his crutches.

Both of his legs were replaced with wooden sticks. He could walk, albeit slowly.

Puppy was relieved when he heard that. He walked out from the crowd and looked at the sack. "To think that Senior Li knows this thing."

Seeing that it was an acquaintance of Li Huowang, Yang Xiaohai asked carefully, “Are you dead or alive? Can you not open the sack? Should we open it for you?”

The bloody sack jumped backward. “Don’t touch me!”

“I barely survived by using the gluing technique of the Moongate. If you open the sack right now, I will die for good!”

Liu Zongyuan continued to talk with his weary voice, “Everyone, I’m here to seek your Senior Li for help. I hope that he will help me.”

“Senior Li? We don’t know where he is. He’s been moving our food previously, but for some reason, he recently stopped. He’s like an Immortal, flying here and there every day. We currently have no idea where he is.”

Lu Xiucan stepped forward and looked at the bloody sack. He asked tentatively, “What can my Master help you with? We can help you by passing the message to him when we see him.”

Liu Zongyuan’s voice raised an octave. “What else can I do with my body like this? I’m looking for your Master to ask him to take revenge for me!

“We worked together in the past. I even helped him with finding a lot of information before. He cannot ignore what happened to me!”

Lu Xiucan asked, “Who... who turned you into this?”

Liu Zongyuan replied as firmly as he could, saying, “Who else? The White Lotus Sect! It’s that damned evil sect! They are the same as the Dharma Sect!”

“Impossible! That cannot be true!”

Lu Xiucan denied it vehemently. He was still a member of the White Lotus Sect. “I’ve worked with them before. Everyone in the White Lotus Sect is equal. Things have changed, and we aren’t who we used to be.”

He continued, “We no longer kill innocent people. We even burned away the books detailing the techniques that involved human sacrifices. My Mistress was the one who did so.”

“Lies! A dog cannot stop eating turds! Would I go and look for them if they didn’t cause trouble? We would’ve overlooked them if they had just killed one or two people, but they are destroying village after village! They even lied to others, saying that there were plagues! Hmph! Do they think that they can fool the people from Moongate?”

“I don’t believe you! Where are they? Lead me there!”

The bloody sack shook a bit. “I can’t. They are very strong. Even Ji Xiang was killed. Only brother Er Jiu can do this.”

Liu Zongyuan paused a bit before saying, “It’s a good thing that he’s also friends with the Emperor. You must inform the Emperor that the White Lotus Sect must not be left alive!”

Lu Xiucan was angry as he walked forward with his crutches until he was just in front of the sack. “Bring me there! I’m a white donkey! As long as they are the real White Lotus Sect, they will not harm me!”

Liu Zongyuan fell silent, deep in thought after learning that Lu Xiucan was part of the White Lotus Sect.

“I will give you a location, and you can go there on your own. Two hundred Li away, towards the southeast of Cowheart Village. You will find them at a temple.”

Liu Zongyuan left promptly after saying that. He didn’t even wait or ask where Li Huowang was as he hopped away. It was as if he was afraid that someone was chasing after him.

Everyone in the village started discussing it after Liu Zongyuan was gone.

“Isn’t the White Lotus Sect the one Senior Bai and Senior Xiaoman had joined?”

“Are they really an evil sect? I don’t think so. I talked to them once. They seemed like regular people.”

“That might not be the case. Remember what we dug out from underneath the ancestral hall?”

The discussion annoyed Lu Xiucan, so he turned to Puppy and said, “Puppy, give me a carriage.”

“Huh? You only have a single arm left. Why are you still working hard? You can leave these kinds of things to Senior Li.”

Lu Xiucan recalled his dead brother and sister-in-law, as well as his crazy father and his nephew, who he had yet to find. The Dharma Sect had caused the demise of his family.

“No! I need to see it myself! The White Lotus Sect is definitely not a second Dharma Sect! That cannot be true!”

Chapter 877 - Temple

Lu Xiucan clenched his Profound Records with his single remaining arm. The trundling carriage could not stop him from feeling conflicted. He still couldn't believe the White Lotus Sect would become like the Dharma Sect.

After all, the White Lotus Sect had sacrificed its people to defeat the Dharma Sect.

How could the White Lotus Sect become their enemies in just a few months?

Lu Xiucan didn't think that the sack, Liu Zongyuan, would trick them. After all, he was looking for Li Huowang. Even if Liu Zongyuan dared to lie to the village, he would never dare to lie to Li Huowang.

"Ah, well. Xiucan, do you really want to go? You only have a single arm left. You will be completely crippled if you lose the other one," Puppy said, driving the carriage while trying to dissuade Lu Xiucan.

"I still need to check it out, even at the risk of losing my other arm. If there are impostors or even traitors, I need to report it to Mistress. If I report it, they will send someone to come and clear them up."

"You are already heavily crippled, and yet you still want to take care of things like these? Do you want to abandon your father and niece? Your father might be fine since we don't have a village idiot yet, so he could take that role. I'm sure he can survive if we feed him in turns, but what about your niece? She's only five years old. Her parents are dead and her grandfather is crazy. You are her only family left. Why don't we head back instead?"

"You're already crippled, and yet you still insist on taking care of things like these? Are you trying to abandon your father and niece? Your father may be okay—we don't have a village idiot yet, so he could take that spot. I'm sure he could survive if we feed him in turns."

He continued, "But what about your niece? She's just five years old, with both her parents dead and her grandfather insane. You're the only family she has left. Why don't we head back instead?"

Lu Xiucan shouted in anger, "Do you want me to die that badly? I'm just here to check out what's happening! I'm different now, and even if I only have a single arm left, I'm still stronger than you!"

Puppy remained silent and focused on driving the carriage. A long time passed before he said, "You really are his disciple. Even your temper is the same."

Lu Xiucan did not retort. He looked up at the stars. "I used to think that my Master was intentionally hiding things from me just because he didn't want to teach me, but now I see that he just didn't want me to follow in his footsteps. It's a thorny path. It's very tiring, and it's riddled with pain."

"Hehe, and you just realized it? I already knew about it a long time ago."

Puppy chuckled out of excitement. "I don't like pain, and even if I can't read, I'm still smarter than you for noticing it earlier."

"But the world always needed an idiot."

Puppy didn't quite understand. "We have no idea what Senior Li is doing right now. He's not at home all the time. To think that you are the one who has to step up when he's not here."

Puppy didn't quite understand. "We have no idea what Senior Li is up to these days. He's hardly ever home. It's hard to believe that you're the one who has to take charge when he's away."

"I don't know, but Master is probably busy with something grand. As his disciple, I can handle this minor problem. That way, he won't have to deal with trivial matters and won't get frustrated."

“Hmph! You are strong and capable. If I were you I would’ve just sent a letter to Shangjing.”

“If you had done that, the culprit would’ve escaped by the time the letter arrived there,” Lu Xiucan said before urging Puppy to stop. “Stop here!”

Puppy pulled on the reins and the carriage came to a gentle stop. “What’s wrong? We are still two Li away.”

“If they’re actually evil they would’ve set up some guards along the way. You can go back now. I don’t want to get you involved.”

“Huh. Guess you do learn a thing or two after exploring the world.”

Lu Xiucan ignored him. With his only remaining arm, he climbed onto a horse and released the straps connecting it to the carriage. He shook the reins and rode onward.

Puppy looked at Lu Xiucan’s back and shouted, “Come back quickly if you survive! If you die, I will get to use the burial clothes when we collect your corpse!”

Lu Xiucan couldn’t balance himself well on horseback because he only had a single arm. He rode slowly as he approached the temple that Liu Zongyuan had told him about.

Lu Xiucan realized that the structure he saw was not a temple, but a mountain shaped like a temple.

He looked around the dark forest and saw no guards. There were no ambushes either.

Lu Xiucan tore off his clothes, revealing his dudou and the white donkey tattoo on his back.

He didn’t care if there were guards or if they saw that Lu Xiucan was one of them. He just spurred the horse forward toward the temple-shaped mountain.

The mountain road was steep and the air was tinged with the undeniable stench of blood. Lu Xiucan recognized it almost instantly.

When he was halfway up the mountain, he saw a White Lotus Sect banner on the side of the road, and his heartbeat quickened. The writing was messy but undeniably stated that the White Lotus Sect was recruiting. Strikingly, the words were written in blood.

With the end of the Red Sun's calamity, the rise of the White Sun is imminent. The silt originates from primordial chaos, and the appearance of the White lotus heralds the beginning of a prosperous age!

Lu Xiucan then pursed his lips and spurred the horse to continue forward. After a while, the horse suddenly stopped moving. Lu Xiucan looked down in confusion to find that the ground was completely black.

He picked up the black stuff on the ground with his bronze coin sword and realized that it was human hair! The entire mountain path was covered in it!

There's so much hair! Just how many people died to leave behind so much hair? Lu Xiucan trembled, recalling the human pillars buried beneath Cowheart Village.

He almost reached the top of the mountain when the horse stopped moving. The horse refused to move further as if there was something dangerous in front. It neighed and tried to head back.

Lu Xiucan decided to travel on foot. He jumped down with his bronze coin sword in hand, and his wooden peg legs stabbed deeper into his thigh. Nevertheless, he was already used to the pain.

He suddenly noticed another sack on the back of the horse. He opened it and saw Puppy's blowpipe along with several darts that had white tassels. Yang Xiaohai's scepter was also inside the sack.

Lu Xiucan smiled but did not take anything. Instead, he tied the sack on the back of the horse before slapping its rump. The horse galloped down the mountain back to Cowheart Village while Lu Xiucan ascended the mountain.

At the top of the mountain was a cave. Lu Xiucan thought it looked like the Zephyr Temple, the place Puppy kept talking about.

There was wind blowing out from the cave, and it was reeking with the stench of blood. Lu Xiucan was in the right place.

Lu Xiucan entered the cave and noticed a single statue in the middle of the cave. The statue depicted a golden Buddha sitting on top of a lotus.

Lu Xiucan took a closer look and realized that it wasn't a Buddha—it was a coiled-up yellow centipede!

Furthermore, the hundreds of legs of the centipede were clasped together as if it were praying!

“A centipede?” Lu Xiucan exclaimed in surprise before chuckling. “I knew it! It wasn't the White Lotus Sect! How dare these evil entities masquerade as the White Lotus Sect!”

Just then, he heard numerous cracking sounds. The centipede in front of him was slowly lowering its legs.

More importantly, the sound came from everywhere around Lu Xiucan.

Chapter 878 - White Lotus

Lu Xiucan heard the sound of something being torn apart and pulled his sword back. The tip of his blade revealed a strange, semi-transparent sphere with six eyes.

As Lu Xiucan looked at the strange eyeball, he realized it was still going to hit him despite being impaled on the bronze coin sword. He quickly turned and ripped the skin off his shoulder with his mouth. He no longer had teeth, but he had embedded nails where his teeth once were.

The Profound Records opened, and the piece of skin flew and wrapped around the eyeball with ease. The impact sent the eyeball crashing back into the darkness.

Sensing that he was surrounded by danger and strong enemies, Lu Xiucan dared not let his guard down. He sheathed his bronze coin sword and took out his serrated sword instead. He chanted as he hit his forehead with the serrated sword.

“I call for the round heaven and square earth. Please summon the deities to descend upon the altar and support the shaman. Heaven urges, earth urges; the Tiger Lord flies and rides the clouds back. My master flies and rides the horse here. Arriving at the altar, we assist the shaman. The shaman’s left eye transforms into the sun and the right eye into the moon, manifesting the clear illumination of the sun and moon. The disciple prays sincerely...”

Seeing that Lu Xiucan attacked them, something surged like water in the darkness. The few oil lamps in the cave began to flicker ominously.

Lu Xiucan finished his chant and bit on his serrated sword. His eyes opened wide, and a tiger's growl came from his throat.

A strong wind blew around the cave, causing the flickering lamp to turn still and the darkness to retreat a little.

Lu Xiucan's single hand curled into a claw as he stomped on the ground like a tiger. Despite his injuries, he propped himself up with his single arm and two peg legs.

He looked around before quickly shifting around to look towards his back. He saw a strange arm extending out from the darkness to attack him. The strange arm had three abnormally long fingers.

When Lu Xiucan was on the verge of using the tiger spirit he had summoned to stop them, the situation took a sudden turn. The ground beneath him abruptly split open, and a massive centipede charged upward. It sank its fangs into Lu Xiucan's only arm, preventing him from moving.

At the same time, another centipede charged out from the darkness and used its mandible to chomp down on Lu Xiucan's lower back. The centipede on the lotus was gone, leaving only a single hole at the base of the lotus.

The two centipedes pulled in different directions to dismember him!

However, with the tiger spirit in his body, Lu Xiucan's body was as tough as steel. The centipede could not pull him apart at all.

"GROOOAR!" A tiger's roar came again, and Lu Xiucan used his clawed hands to crush the head of the centipede beneath him.

As the dying centipede screeched in pain, the second centipede that had been clamping onto his back screeched out too.

Lu Xiucan realized that the centipedes were linked together! They weren't regular centipedes that had grown and turned into monsters—they were evil entities that had learned secret techniques!

Lu Xiucan shook off the dead centipede and prepared to kill the second one. At that moment, another centipede erupted from the ground and bit into his arm. This time, the attack was clever—instead of coiling and biting Lu Xiucan's arm, the centipede bit his wrist.

It wasn't over yet. More centipedes broke out from the ground and bit into Lu Xiucan.

Lu Xiucan was completely covered in centipedes before the sound of intense tearing could be heard. He was completely torn apart by the centipedes.

Lu Xiucan found himself completely engulfed in centipedes. Then, a sound of intense tearing filled the air. The centipedes completely tore him apart, making his organs rain down the hall and splatter across the entire cave.

The centipedes were about to eat the bits of flesh and organs when one of Lu Xiucan's lungs splattered down. A mysterious doll crawled out from his lung.

The doll grew when it came into contact with the air and soon reached the size of an adult. It was the Strayed One's skin doll that Li Huowang had given him!

The flattened Lu Xiucan sucked in the shadows of his dismembered body on the ground. Lu Xiucan's body remained flat despite consuming the shadow, but there was no time to think about it. If he didn't figure out a way to escape right away, he would die again.

Lu Xiucan realized that he was no longer crippled and smiled. With a swift motion, he cut off his entire left arm.

His broken left arm turned a purplish-black color as his bones grew. Meanwhile, the dismembered left arm burrowed into the ground to find the centipede's main body.

The nine centipedes above ground trembled and fell limp while the ground turned white from the centipede's blood.

Lu Xiucan smiled—his arm had hurt the beast underground.

He placed his serrated sword into his mouth. He was ready to tear off all of his teeth again.

Suddenly, the centipede on the ground trembled violently and released a low rumble. Several pairs of eyes lit up in the cave—Lu Xiucan was surrounded.

They were all evil entities. This was their dwelling, their nest!

Whoosh! The light in the cave vanished completely as all of the eyes lunged at him.

“You think I’m afraid of you? I will exact justice for the people even if I have to die today! I shall avenge the people you’ve killed!”

Lu Xiucan placed the sword onto his chest to prepare for his fight to the death.

Just then, a strange scene occurred. A soft white light glowed and illuminated the entire cave. The evil entities revealed by the white light fell onto the ground and stopped moving.

To Lu Xiucan’s surprise, the white light came from the white donkey on his back. He excitedly and sincerely kowtowed toward the lotus seat in front of him.

“The almighty Heavenly Mother! I knew you were kind and would not let chaos take over the world!”

Lu Xiucan stood up and held his sword. He swung it towards one of the cowering centipedes and said, “You beast! I will kill you and stop your deceit!”

Just as he was about to chop off the centipede's head, a sudden, searing pain came from his back.

The white donkey flashed brightly, and Lu Xiucan fell to the ground. He could not get up.

Chapter 879 - News

Inside the dark cave, Lu Xiucan lay limply on the ground. He could barely move his single remaining arm to prop his body up.

He felt the weight of an actual donkey on his back, pressing him down. The white light coming from his back was as heavy as steel.

“Im... impossible! Heavenly Mother, why are you stopping me? Those are evil entities that eat humans! They are evil!”

Lu Xiucan felt his world collapsing around him.

As Lu Xiucan struggled to get up, one of the twitching centipedes regained its strength and lifted its head. Nearly the size of a carriage, it pounced toward Lu Xiucan.

Even Lu Xiucan's new body would be reduced to meat paste if he was hit by it.

At the last possible moment, the huge centipede miraculously twisted and missed Lu Xiucan. It slammed into the ground just in front of Lu Xiucan.

Both of them glared at each other.

Lu Xiucan only noticed the details of the centipede when it was close to his face.

There was a white donkey tattoo on the centipede's forehead. It had the same rank as he did!

Both of them stopped and looked at each other incredulously.

Only then did Lu Xiucan and the centipede understand why the Heavenly Mother had helped both sides. The Heavenly Mother did not want her disciples to fight amongst themselves.

As the white light on his back dimmed, Lu Xiucan struggled to stand up. He looked around and stared at the eyes in the darkness as well as the mangled centipede's body.

He was in disbelief. “So all of you are in the White Lotus Sect? How can this be? You guys ate people! How dare you pray to the Heavenly Mater?”

In Lu Xiucui's memories, the black cloth and white headscarf used by the Dharma Sect had now been replaced by the tattoo of the White Lotus Sect.

The evil entities did not answer Lu Xiucui. Seeing that the Heavenly Mater they revered did not allow them to kill the person in front of them, they slowly disappeared into the darkness.

Once the last centipede disappeared, the entire cave was as desolate as Lu Xiucui's heart.

Gao Zhijian sat on his throne while listening to Li Huowang's report. “So that’s what the people of the Qi Kingdom said? That they will ally themselves with us?”

“Yes. If you don’t believe me, you can send some eunuchs to talk to them in the Qi Kingdom.”

Li Huowang took out the spine sword in the hall, putting all the guards and eunuchs on high alert.

“No need. I trust that you won’t lie to me.”

Gao Zhijian's face, once filled with worry, brightened with joy upon hearing the news.

Since the Qi Kingdom wanted the Dragon Vein from the Tianchen Kingdom, there was no way they would ally with each other anymore. Gao Zhijian no longer needed to worry about the Qi Kingdom betraying them.

The Liang Kingdom could feel more at ease with the Qi Kingdom at the vanguard.

“That’s good. With the Liang Kingdom and the Qi Kingdom working together, we can defeat the Tianchen Kingdom without fail.”

Li Huowang replied, “it won’t be simple. We cannot block off the Tianchen Kingdom with just the Qi Kingdom. Remember what I said about the strength of the Unspeakable army?"

Gao Zhijian's smile faded. Li Huowang had indeed described them to him. He would have dismissed the information as a mere rumor if Li Huowang hadn't been the one reporting it.

Li Huowang said, "I am certain there won't be just hundreds of them. They couldn't even defeat Doulao with just a hundred of them together. I doubt they could've stripped the Heavenly Dao of the Heavenly Mater with so few of them."

Li Huowang said, "I am certain that there will be more than just a few hundred of them. They couldn't even defeat Doulao with a hundred of them together. I doubt they could have stripped the Heavenly Dao of the Heavenly Mater with such a small number."

He continued, "Even with the army of Unspeakable aside, which was birthed by the Heavenly Mater, we still don't know who the grandchildren of the Heavenly Mater are."

Li Huowang had only won a minor skirmish, so he was treading carefully instead of celebrating.

Gao Zhijian frowned again. "You're right. The people of the Tianchen Kingdom are very strange. I can't believe that they could touch a Heavenly Dao.

"Senior Li, don't worry. The Liang Kingdom will fully help its allies. Not only that, I will persuade the other Emperors to help us out too."

"No, sending resources is not enough. We need people. A lot of people in the Qi Kingdom died this time. Ask the Surveillance Bureau to prepare some men. If the Tianchen Kingdom attacks us, we can use them to stave them off."

"Hmm... The people from the Qi Kingdom cannot come here, but can we cross over to the Qi Kingdom?"

"Of course. Even if that's the case, we can shroud our men with Dragon Qi before sending them. The Dragon Vein won't be affected no matter which history they go to. Gao Zhijian, I know that the Dragon Qi is precious, but now is not the time to save it. Against the Tianchen Kingdom, we need to burrow the power of the Simings.”

While the other Simings wouldn't help them, at the very least, Ji Zai would.

“Hmm...” Gao Zhijian was worried. He could agree with the other conditions, but the Dragon Vein was, quite frankly, the lifeline of the Liang Kingdom.

The Dragon Qi had been accumulated by countless generations of Emperors. The only way to replenish it would be for him to die and become affixed to the Dragon Vein. Otherwise, the Dragon Qi would not replenish in the slightest. Using the Dragon Qi was essentially a permanent expenditure.

“Don't be stingy. Once we take over the Tianchen Kingdom, we can get as much Dragon Qi as we want. We can even recover some of the divisions the Liang Kingdom lost.”

Even so, Gao Zhijian didn't want to mess with the Dragon Vein. He could only accept it for now.

“Alright, but I will have to discuss it with the others first.”

“Hurry up and get it approved. The attack from the Tianchen Kingdom might've been foiled this time, but it won't stop them for long. I fear that they will go all out next time.”

“Alright. I understand, Senior Li.”

“Once you finish your discussion, tell Xuan Pin to contact me.”

Li Huowang turned to leave.

“Senior Li, why don't we have a meal first?”

“That's alright. I'm not used to your meals.”

Li Huowang walked out of the hall and took out his spine sword. He was getting ready to go back to the Qi Kingdom.

The Tianchen Kingdom could attack any time, so he needed to stay in the Qi Kingdom to guard it.

As he was about to move, a large procession entered the palace. Several consorts and eunuchs swiftly moved past Li Huowang.

“Are you Li Huowang?” A haughty and arrogant voice came from the middle of the procession.

Li Huowang turned and saw a charming lady with a crown slowly stepping down from a palanquin.

Two eunuchs trailed behind her, holding onto her long dress. They quietly followed their Mistress towards Li Huowang.

Chapter 880 - Disbelief

Li Huowang didn't know who the woman was, but based on her clothes, she appeared to be someone highly ranked, even among the consorts chosen by Gao Zhijian.

The woman donned a delicately embroidered red and yellow robe. The robe depicted celestial birds, brought to life by gold and silver threads. Her sleeves were embroidered with large peonies, and her skirt trailed the ground, its fabric adorned with silver clouds.

Her hair was held up with a hairpin shaped like a divine bird. In the bird's beak was a single pearl adorned with threads that hung down, further emphasizing her beautiful face.

While she might have looked prettier than the others, her beautiful clothes could not conceal her hatred towards Li Huowang. "Are you Li Huowang? Speak up! Did you perhaps become mute?"

Li Huowang remained silent as he continued to meet her gaze.

"I know my lord has several poor relatives. He treated you all with kindness because of your past, but you are just a damned Daoist! Remember your place and don't overstep your boundaries! Who do you think my Lord is? Who are you to not kneel down to greet him? How dare you be so mannerless? Remember to kneel next time you see him! It's up to him whether to let you sit or not!"

After hearing her out, Li Huowang finally said, "Shai Zi?"

Everyone froze upon hearing him. The woman ripped off her face and squished it like clay, turning it into a six-sided die.

"Not bad, Hong Zhong. It's hard to believe you recognized me so quickly this time. It seems that you did not abandon your cultivation!"

Li Huowang didn't think that Shai Zi was here to talk with him.

Li Huowang's hand was already on the hilt of his sword.

Using his cultivation of the "Truth," Shai Zi's face slowly turned from the number six to the number one.

Shai Zi moved to the side and used one of the consorts as a shield to block Li Huowang's gaze. "Don't be rash. Have you forgotten that I helped you in the Baiyu Capital last time? If I hadn't reminded you, you would've never remembered to use the Dragon Qi to mend the sundered Baiyu Capital."

Li Huowang gritted his teeth, his voice filled with anger and bloodlust. "What do you want?"

Shai Zi cheekily poked his head out from the back of the consort. "The Tianchen Kingdom is coming over? Hehehe. Although it may appear to be a crisis, deep down we both understand that this is actually an opportunity. The Liang Kingdom, the Qi Kingdom, and even you would benefit from this. I also want in."

"Is there something you want in the Tianchen Kingdom? What is it?"

Shai Zi pushed his finger into one of the indentations of his head and poked it around. "You don't have to worry about that. You can't use it anyway. It's just something between me and Doulao. If you agree, I can help you win against the Tianchen Kingdom. Why don't you stop trying to kill me for once?"

"You? You can't even go to the Qi Kingdom. How can you help?"

"Who says that I can't go there? Have you forgotten that there are Shai Zis in the Qi Kingdom too? One of the eighteen-sided Shai Zi is with me. I'm technically part of the Qi Kingdom right now. I could go back anytime I want, but I don't want to."

Shai Zi became transparent, as if he could disappear whenever he wanted.

"Don't think that the Sitting Oblivion Dao only deceives people. We could also put in some serious work. You are part of us, so you should know that too. If the Tianchen Kingdom destroyed both the Liang Kingdom and the Qi Kingdom, who else could we deceive?"

"They are already going to attack us, and now you're saying you can help us? You guys are useless in frontal assaults! Also, your tricks are worthless—they can just pull your Lies out of their bodies."

"Hey, that's harsh. Don't scold yourself. Alright, let's keep the pleasantries aside and talk about something worthwhile."

Shai Zi looked around and whispered, "I know about the Tianchen Kingdom and their situation. Don't you think letting me help you win is worthwhile?"

Li Huowang frowned as a strange thought filled his head. "Is Bei Feng your spy?"

Shai Zi acted exaggeratedly when he heard that. "What?! Is Bei Feng still alive? Oh my!"

"Stop playing tricks! Just tell me the information if you want to show your sincerity."

Li Huowang didn't trust any of Shai Zi's words. Li Huowang had faced the Sitting Oblivion Dao so many times that he had his own way of dealing with them.

However, regardless of whether they were lies or not, Li Huowang still had to listen to Shai Zi because his lies were interspersed with truths.

Based on their conversation, Bei Feng being Shai Zi's spy was very likely. In that role, Bei Feng could obtain information about the Tianchen Kingdom more quickly.

Shai Zi finally revealed some information. "Everyone from the Tianchen Kingdom can touch the Heavenly Daos."

"We already know that. Don't tell me that's all you found out?"

"No, no, Hong Zhong, what I meant was that everyone in the Tianchen Kingdom has the ability to do it. However, only the really talented ones can do it easily. Those who dumbere can't do so because they haven't learned how to do it."

"Everyone? Everyone in the kingdom could potentially do so?"

"Hehehe, do you think there are regular people in the Tianchen Kingdom? They are different from us. There are no Simings or gods over there. They are the ones in control of everything."

Li Huowang stood still and waited for Shai Zi to continue his explanation.

"They trust in nothing but themselves."

This was bad news. How could Li Huowang defeat the Tianchen Kingdom?

Li Huowang didn't know if the powers of the people from the Tianchen Kingdom came from the Heavenly Mater or from something else.

If Shai Zi was telling the truth, Li Huowang would be stuck in a difficult battle.

Li Huowang had considered that they might need to call the Simings for help, but now he was convinced that unless he called upon Ji Zai, their entire group would be wiped out.

Li Huowang was still thinking about how to deal with it when Shai Zi gave a suggestion. "There's a lot of people in the Tianchen Kingdom. You can't just rely on the limited people from the Qi Kingdom. Trying to unite the people in the Qi Kingdom is a mistake. You need to go for the person in the Tianchen Kingdom responsible for this mess.

"As the Emperor, you do not need to hold them back forcefully. You can always use the White Lotus Sect, though I doubt that they would be of much use. Wait, Hong Zhong, I've heard you have many friends in the White Lotus Sect, don't you?"

"Stop calling me Hong Zhong! I'm Li Huowang! Don't think that Hong Zhong will help you! I will never let him out!"

Shai Zi looked at Li Huowang with confusion. "What are you talking about? Aren't you Hong Zhong Li Huowang?"

Li Huowang's heart skipped a beat as he looked at himself. "Am I the Sitting Oblivion Dao's Hong Zhong?"

"What? Hong Zhong Li Huowang and regular Li Huowang. Do you... differentiate between yourselves?"

Li Huowang turned and saw Shai Zi grinning.

"Shai Zi, I almost fell for your tricks. Unfortunately for you, I already know the tricks of the Sitting Oblivion Dao. I don't believe you."

Chapter 881 - Conversation

Outside of the palace, the eunuchs and the consorts surrounded both Shai Zi and Li Huowang.

“What’s there not to believe? Hong Zhong, what are you talking about? I don’t understand you.”

Shai Zi looked at Li Huowang puzzledly.

“You know what I’m talking about. Stop trying to beat around the bush and tell me the details. What else do you know about the Tianchen Kingdom? Say... a golden dragon?”

Li Huowang still remembered what he had seen.

“A golden dragon?” Shai Zi appeared shocked. “Is there something like that in the Tianchen Kingdom? Could it be the Dragon Vein? I have never heard of it before.”

“A Dragon Vein...?”

If it was true, then every Dragon Vein in history was made using humans. The people of the Tianchen Kingdom weren’t just weird—even their Dragon Veins were weird, completely different from the others.

The Qi Kingdom, the Liang Kingdom, and the Tianchen Kingdom... I wonder how strange the other two worlds are. Thankfully, I don’t have to get in contact with them.

Li Huowang shook his head. “No. Your information is useless. I could also check it out on my own. If you want to help us, bring us something tangible and useful, such as the method to enter the Tianchen Kingdom.”

Li Huowang still didn’t believe Shai Zi, despite the latter talking a lot. Rather than relying on mere words, Li Huowang preferred the cold, hard truth that he could see with his own eyes.

If Shai Zi could provide information about how to enter the Tianchen Kingdom, Li Huowang wouldn't mind working with him. Learning how to enter it would allow Li Huowang to be more proactive rather than passive and defensive.

He might be able to kill some of the people from the Tianchen Kingdom if he could catch them off guard.

If they could not avoid any fighting this time, then Li Huowang would rather move the battlefield into the Tianchen Kingdom.

Shai Zi was confused. "Why do you think I have the method to enter the Tianchen Kingdom?"

Li Huowang's words left Shai Zi with no room to back down. "How else could you have obtained your information? Did you make it up, then?"

Shai Zi raised his head and laughed. "Hong Zhong, you are becoming smarter. Fine, I will tell you. Come to my place in three days."

"Why three days? Can't you tell me now? What do you intend to do?"

"Hong Zhong, stop thinking that I'm the villain. I can't freely enter the Tianchen Kingdom—they're the ones in control of that. The people from the Tianchen Kingdom can touch both the Heavenly Daos and the Twisted Ones."

Li Huowang did not ask anything. He waited for Shai Zi to continue explaining.

"What I mean is that they can also take out the things inside a Twisted One's body and stuff it into a single person. That person becomes the bridge that connects the Tianchen Kingdom to the Qi Kingdom. I can't control them, but I know when they will reactivate the bridge."

Although Li Huowang could barely imagine what the "things" inside several Twisted Ones looked like, he now understood why

Zhuge Yuan couldn't control the bridge between worlds on his own, all while the people from the Tianchen Kingdom could come and go as they pleased.

The hands of the Unspeakable army could knead everything under the heavens.

"They will come in three days. You can use this chance to check the Tianchen Kingdom secretly. Now, is this much enough to let me join you?"

"You should've said this from the start if you were sincere."

Li Huowang ignored Shai Zi and passed the frozen consort and eunuchs before he left.

He had just walked out from the crowd when he saw the Imperial Preceptor looking at him coldly while leaning on a pillar.

Li Huowang ignored the Imperial Preceptor and walked past him. He slowly walked out of the palace.

After leaving the palace, Li Huowang didn't immediately go back to the Qi Kingdom. Instead, he walked towards the Surveillance Bureau.

Whether Shai Zi was telling the truth or not, his presence inside the palace posed a threat. It was not a matter to be taken lightly, so he needed to let Suisui know to develop countermeasures.

One needed to be highly vigilant when Shai Zi was there.

"I know, and His Majesty knows too."

Li Huowang almost stumbled when he heard Li Sui's answer. "What? You guys know?"

Xuan Pin explained, "Yes. His Majesty is collaborating with Shai Zi. To be fair, Shai Zi is technically part of the Surveillance Bureau right now. The Imperial Preceptor was the one who established this connection."

"Why didn't you tell me something about this major?"

"Father, you're always at the Qi Kingdom, and I couldn't find you. Also, this is between the Sitting Oblivion Dao and the palace.

It doesn't concern you."

"Gao Zhijian is crazy! He still wants to cooperate with the Sitting Oblivion Dao despite almost losing the Dragon Vein to them?"

"Father, didn't you cooperate with Shai Zi too?"

"I'm just testing him!"

"Father, don't worry. The Sitting Oblivion Dao wouldn't be able to do anything today. Doulao hated them a lot. If they angered us, they wouldn't be able to do anything here later on."

"Have we not suffered enough in their hands?"

"That's why I'm hoping to ease the tension a bit. Regardless of the circumstances, we can still make use of them, just like you did, Father."

"Nevermind. I don't want to care anymore. Once everything is over, just hook him up and kill him."

"Alright, but even if you kill Shai Zi, a brand new Sitting Oblivion Dao will appear with a new Shai Zi."

"That's fine. At least I won't have a grudge with the new Shai Zi. In any case, ignore him for now. I need something else from you today."

Li Huowang pondered before asking, "How much do you know about the Dragon Veins? Tell me everything, no matter how unbelievable it is."

"Hm? Father, why are you asking this?"

Li Sui was surprised that her father would ask about this.

"Because I need to learn more about the five worlds. I have come to realize that I barely know anything about this world."

"Also, I've learned that no matter how ridiculous a story may sound, whether it be the story of the betrayal faced by the Heavenly Mater or how the Five Dhyani Buddhas guarded the world, each story holds a kernel of truth."

"Well, maybe not all of them are useful, but there must be some truth to the stories.”

Chapter 882 - Dragon Vein

Li Huowang didn't care about the stories before because they were often exaggerated and didn't match reality. However, he now considered them surprisingly helpful even though they were heavily distorted.

At the moment, he could ignore everything else and focus on the Dragon Veins, knowing that he would soon be infiltrating the Tianchen Kingdom.

The Dragon Veins dictated the number of divisions in a day, and its Dragon Qi could insulate everything else from the influence of the Simings, including the Dragon Veins themselves.

After seeing the Tianchen Kingdom's Dragon Vein, Li Huowang wondered what kind of existence the Dragon Veins were.

He had the peculiar feeling that the gold dragon he had seen wasn't simple.

"I know just about as much as you do, Father."

Li Sui poured a cup of tea for Li Huowang.

"Every Dragon Vein corresponds to a single division. Every time one dies, the corresponding division disappears too."

"No, I don't need to know about this."

Li Huowang put his cup down and asked, "I wanted to know where the Dragon Vein comes from. Why do they correspond with a single division? Every sect has its legends. Even Qing Qiu has a legend about the Immortal Heaven. Does the Dragon Vein not have an origin story? That shouldn't be right."

Xuan Pin patted Li Huowang's head. "Father, they don't have one. The Dragon Veins are time itself, and that has always been the case. Has a division ever existed as it is, without a corresponding Dragon Vein?"

"Are you sure that this has always been the case? Also, who said time is tied to the Dragon Veins? Time should exist as an independent force..."

Li Huowang suddenly realized something.

"Father, what are you trying to say? Regular people may be unaware of the truth, but you yourself have witnessed how the divisions disappeared after the death of a Dragon Vein. Furthermore..."

"Wait, wait a minute!"

Li Huowang grabbed his hair as he tried to recall something important. "Wait a minute, I think I'm remembering something."

However, no matter how hard he tried, he could not recall it. Li Sui tried to help him by scratching his head, but it was useless.

Li Huowang finally let his hands down in defeat. "Damn it! I just thought of something important but I can't recall it now."

"Father, we are getting off track. I thought we were talking about the Dragon Veins?"

"Hmm. You are right. The Dragon Veins."

Li Huowang sat down again. "I'm trying to ask what the Dragon Veins are. As their name implies, the Dragon Veins should be dragons, so why are they humans?"

After telling Li Sui about the golden dragon he had seen in the Tianchen Kingdom, Li Huowang continued, "Shai Zi told me that it was most likely the Dragon Vein of the Tianchen Kingdom, but I think that the dragon is related to the grandchildren of Heavenly Mater.

"I don't know how strong the Tianchen Kingdom is, but I do know that since they can manipulate the Heavenly Daos so easily, they might be able to do the same with Dragon Qi. If that's the case, they will probably be formidable foes."

“Father, I’m not lying to you. There are really no legends about the Dragon Vein. Any speculation and dissemination about the origins of the Emperor is punishable by death.”

Li Huowang frowned and crossed his arms. Although he had finally obtained some data about his enemy, there was no further information or leads. It would be difficult for him to fight like this.

There were only three days left. He didn’t want to enter the Tianchen Kingdom blindly.

Li Huowang was still thinking about a solution when Li Sui stood up and pulled on Li Huowang’s sleeves to bring him outside.

Li Huowang trusted Li Sui, so he followed her.

Under her guidance, they went to the oppressive palace. They walked in circles until they reached the temple within the palace.

Li Huowang had been here more than once and knew the significance of the temple.

"Father, if you have questions about the Dragon Veins' origins, I fear this is the only place where you could find answers."

“Then what are we waiting for? Let’s go.”

Both of them entered the temple.

There were still people inside, mostly elderly eunuchs. They were dusting the ancestral plates displayed on a shelf, though the plates were already spotless.

The eunuchs were guarding the tombs of the dead emperors with great care. It was very likely that this would also be their own eternal resting place.

Li Huowang knew that the outside was just a smokescreen. He walked past them, heading toward a wall with a yellow tapestry.

He pulled it open, and a set of double doors fashioned out of black stones appeared. Nine sprawling golden dragons could be seen on the doors.

Li Huowang pulled the massive doors open, and a cold gust blew past his face.

Past the doors, there was a pit-like place. The sides were tall, while the center was low, like a Roman arena. The place was adorned by many jewels and gold.

In the center stood a colossal golden coffin, its size resembling that of a house. Nine sprawling dragons coiled around the chains that suspended the coffin by tying themselves around the surrounding pillars.

The Liang Kingdom's most precious asset was inside the golden coffin—the Dragon Vein.

The Dragon Vein was made of a chain of the previous emperors, with the emperor who died most recently being the head. They linked up and formed a dragon-like body that drifted into the darkness of the coffin.

The interior of the coffin was completely black. The emperors were hung in the middle of the coffin like a straight line of corpses.

When Li Huowang stared at the Dragon Vein, the emperors at the top responded and looked at Li Huowang.

Li Huowang said, "You think it's a good idea to ask them about the golden dragon?"

"I doubt that they would know anything about it. We need to find the oldest Emperor."

Li Sui brought Li Huowang towards the edge of the coffin before jumping down.

The coffin was very deep, but thankfully, Li Huowang could embed part of his body into the walls, so it wasn't that bad.

Li Huowang could see nothing in the darkness. He could barely make out the gold in the black shadows.

"Fire."

Li Huowang raised his hand, igniting it with fire, allowing him to see the deepest part of the Dragon Vein.

Still, the fire wasn't as bright as he had thought. Everything shimmered around him. It appeared that the place where the Dragon Vein resided could affect its surroundings.

An ancient voice came from above. “Brat, you’re Li Huowang, right? Do you need something?”

Li Huowang did not even look up. “I’m not looking for you.”

He looked down and found the last Emperor at the tail end of the Dragon Vein. The first Emperor who had become the Dragon Vein had a face that was half-human and half-dragon. Even his golden robes were melded with his flesh.

Chapter 883 - Fate

Li Huowang extended his burning hand towards the tail of the Dragon Vein to see the last emperor more clearly.

He saw that the emperor's face was utterly inhuman. It was a half-dragon, but it wasn't entirely accurate either. The dragon-like face was distorted a lot.

The dragon's whiskers were like threads, snaking past the gaps in its golden scales and causing them to look messy.

The emperor had seven dragon claws with reverse joints. The number of his fingers also varied.

Li Sui explained to Li Huowang, "The Dragon Veins are segmented, with each emperor representing an era. If we want to know something about a particular age, we need to seek out the corresponding emperor on the Dragon Vein."

Li Huowang nodded. The emperors that made up the Dragon Vein weren't merely advisors for the current emperor—they were also people who had lived at a certain age and knew about the history of their era.

Shua! The dragon claw swung so fast that Li Huowang failed to react. The claws streaked past his face instantly.

The sound of tearing flesh could be heard, and half of Li Huowang's face slowly slid down, revealing his skull.

Li Huowang raised his right hand and pushed his face back with a snap.

Li Huowang lowered his hands and asked, "Senior, are you the first emperor of the Liang Kingdom?"

The old emperor roared. His roar reverberated inside the coffin.

The Dragon Qi exuding outwards affected the surroundings. Even Li Huowang was affected, and dragon scales appeared and disappeared on his body.

“He’s deaf and crazy. You won’t be able to get any answers from him.”

Li Huowang looked up and saw a man with a disheveled face in the middle of the Dragon Vein.

He was unsure whether the golden threads were his beard or hair, but they completely veiled the emperor's face, making it impossible for even Li Huowang to recognize his true identity.

The emperor shook his head and saw Li Sui’s identity plate.

“Chief of the Surveillance Bureau? I can’t believe the Chief would escort you to meet us here. You are not someone ordinary...”

Just as the emperor with long hair finished speaking, another voice came from above. "I remember him! It was when Shai Zi stole the Dragon Vein. The boy in red robes is the one who killed Shai Zi and returned us to our rightful place."

“Doesn’t that mean he did the Liang Kingdom a great service?”

“Indeed! He has done a great service to us!”

“But he’s Ji Lin’s sword! He killed a lot of people from the royal family!”

“I don’t have the surname Ji, so I don’t care.”

More and more voices joined in on the conversation. Li Huowang had to raise his voice and shout, “Seniors!”

The ruckus gradually stopped, and Li Huowang finally asked, “This junior has come to find you to ask about the legends of the Dragon Veins.”

He quickly added another sentence to highlight his desperation, saying, “I’m sure you know that the Liang Kingdom has lost several divisions already. For the Liang Kingdom’s sake, I sincerely hope you will lend me your assistance.”

The murmur of discussion filled the coffins briefly and stopped shortly after—they had reached a decision.

"You have done a great service to the Liang Kingdom, and the Chief of the Surveillance Bureau brought you here. Therefore, we will tell you."

Li Huowang wasn't surprised. He was their ally, so they had no reason to withhold such information.

The long-haired emperor explained to Li Huowang while the other emperors remained silent.

"When the Qi Kingdom was destroyed and left without an emperor, we from the Ji family were one of the largest noble households in the capital—there were thousands of us.

"However, for the sake of becoming the emperor, we killed our own kin—daughters, grandparents, grandchildren, and brothers. The conflict persisted until there was only one survivor left. He was the first emperor of the Liang Kingdom."

Li Huowang glanced at the last emperor, who was the tail of the Dragon Vein. "Seniors, I know about this. That's not what I wanted to know. I need to know where the Dragon Vein came from. A thousand years ago, the Qi Kingdom preceded the Liang Kingdom, but where did the Dragon Vein of the Qi Kingdom come from?"

"Oh, in that case, we must start from the very beginning. Long ago, humans were raised as livestock by the Witch. We survived by eating excrement, much like pigs. However, our ancestors desired a better life for us.

"Despite devising a plan to break free and escape, simply escaping was not enough, as the Witch would eventually discover us. As such, the ancestors sought a way to create a world of their own. The destiny tied to the Dragon Vein was the very essence that sustained this world."

Li Huowang recalled the veiled members of the Dharma Sect and asked, "Witch? Are they related to the Dharma Sect?"

"No. It's different. There was no Dharma Sect in ancient times."

"Then what is the Witch? Is it... Simings?"

Li Huowang's words sent out a massive ripple.

"No. They are not Simings. The Simings don't exist!"

"Indeed! There are no Simings. They're fake."

"This is the Imperial Temple! Do not utter those words!"

Li Huowang's next question silenced them. "Then what is the Witch?"

After some time, the long-haired emperor said, "We are the emperors of the Liang Kingdom. Before us, there was the Qi Kingdom, and even further in the past, the Beiyuan Three Kingdoms. Lastly, there was the Great Chen Kingdom. Our ancestors passed down this knowledge to us.

"Everything about the ancient times was passed down to us by our ancestors. We don't know what the Witch is, but I'm certain that the Witch is powerful. Otherwise, it wouldn't have been able to enslave everyone."

Li Huowang realized that this was important information. There was once a Great Chen Kingdom!

"Is the Tianchen Kingdom involved in this? Is the Tianchen Kingdom the history from a timeline where the Great Chen Kingdom remained intact?"

Li Huowang thought that was possible and asked about it.

"We don't know. There are several Dragon Veins in this world. Ask the Dragon Vein from Qing Qiu. I think some emperors from the Beiyuan Three Kingdoms are in that Dragon Vein."

"Li Sui, I don't have time right now. Can you send some men to check for me in Qing Qiu? See if it's related to the Great Chen Kingdom?"

"Alright, Father. However, I don't think it would make much of a difference. Even if the Tianchen Kingdom were once the Great Chen, they would still be our enemies."

"Let's just check and see what we can find. We might get some surprising information."

Li Huowang then turned to look at the Dragon Veins. “Senior, can you explain to us what Fate is? How did the first Dragon Vein come to be?”

“The first emperor took the fate from one of the Witches. Thanks to it, they could sustain a single world for themselves. This person was the first emperor.”

Chapter 884 - Fate

“Fate was taken from a Witch?”

Li Huowang ruminated on those words.

According to the Emperor, they could sustain the world because of Fate. However, he didn't know what the Witch was, so Li Huowang was confused too.

Still, Li Huowang didn't dismiss the Emperor's words. He knew there was truth to them and needed to consider the matter carefully. Legends like these were often heavily distorted, leaving only fragments of truth.

After considering it, Li Huowang concluded that Fate was most likely Time. Without Time, the world would teeter on the brink of destruction, just like the Qi Kingdom.

Li Huowang was still partially embedded in the wall as he looked at Xuan Pin. "They claim there is no Siming, but don't you think there could be a Siming who controls Time? Wouldn't that be plausible?"

Xuan Pin nodded silently.

“Seniors... do you know what the Witch looks like? Is it like a golden dragon?”

Li Huowang stared at the golden scales and asked his question.

If the golden dragon in the Tianchen Kingdom was indeed the Dragon Vein, then the Tianchen Kingdom was truly unique. It was hard to believe that their Dragon Vein wasn't formed by emperors.

“A golden dragon? I don't know.”

“We are the sons of dragons! We are the dragons!”

“Lingyang is a dragon, though not a golden one.”

The more they discussed, the more plausible Li Huowang thought it was.

If that were the case, Li Huowang would have a good understanding of what had happened in ancient times.

Back then, humans were livestock. To escape, they stole the Heavenly Dao of Time from the Siming that controlled it. Since a regular person could not handle it, they split it into sixteen Dragon Veins. That was why the Liang Kingdom originally had sixteen divisions.

However, the more Li Huowang pondered, the more nonsensical it seemed. This wasn't just limited to the Liang Kingdom—there were five different histories.

All five histories had time, which was also called the Fate of the Witch. If he were right, it would mean the people in all five histories had managed to snag and split the Heavenly Dao of Time from the Siming who controlled it.

At the start of every history, there were sixteen Dragon Veins. Since there were five histories, that also meant that there were 80 Dragon Veins now!

Li Huowang thought about the Heavenly Mater's past. The people in the Tianchen Kingdom had stolen her Heavenly Dao and distributed it.

He thought the Tianchen Kingdom was weird, but it appeared that something similar had happened in all five histories.

Everyone took it for granted due to how much time had passed.

“Father, if the golden dragon is indeed a Dragon Vein, you need to count how many divisions the Tianchen Kingdom has in a single day when you go there.”

Li Huowang understood what she meant and nodded. The number of divisions represented the number of Dragon Veins in the Tianchen Kingdom.

Since they could touch and neutralize the Heavenly Daos so easily, it was possible they could also easily neutralize the Dragon Veins of the Liang Kingdom.

If that were the case, then even tens of Dragon Veins would be unable to do anything, even if they pooled their Dragon Qi together.

Moreover, with so much Dragon Qi, the Tianchen Kingdom could easily create a group of elites immune to the Heavenly Daos by cloaking them with Dragon Qi.

If they could do something like that, Li Huowang was sure that even Doulao would be useless in the fight against the Tianchen Kingdom.

Li Huowang considered many things, but in the end, he decided to take things one at a time because he could do nothing with the information at hand.

Li Huowang contemplated various factors but ultimately chose to proceed step by step, as he could do anything with the information at hand.

Since the Tianchen Kingdom hadn't done so yet, Li Huowang thought that there might be some restrictions stopping them.

"Seniors, thank you for the help." Li Huowang bowed and climbed up the coffin.

"Father, was their information helpful? I don't think it will help us much right now."

Li Huowang nodded at Li Sui's question.

"It's erratic but still useful. There might be a day when it helps us, even if it doesn't amount to anything right now. We don't know what we will face in the future. At the very least, we won't be completely clueless."

Li Huowang raised his head and looked at the starry night. "Also, I learned something through our conversation just now."

"What is it?"

"Have you not realized that the world is not fixed? Our history and Heavenly Daos can be easily changed. Do you know what this means?"

Li Huowang raised his hands and covered the skies. He then clenched his fists, and his eyes lit up. "It means that if we work hard enough and are strong enough, we can shape the world as we please."

Li Sui looked up at the stars as well. "Father, what kind of world do you want this to be? Don't you think it's nice now?"

"It's not that it's bad—I just don't like it. Remember Dan Yangzi?"

Li Huowang and Li Sui left the palace quickly as they talked.

"I do. I remember you told me that he didn't even blink when he killed someone. He was also an illiterate idiot."

Li Sui was floating closely behind Li Huowang.

"Back in the Zephyr Temple, I hated him a lot. I wanted to kill him and even risked my life to do it. However, now that I've gone through so many things, I can understand why he became so evil. He wasn't always evil—this crazy world forced him to become evil. Otherwise, he would've died very early on. He simply made the best choices he could to survive."

After exiting the palace, Li Huowang and Li Sui walked along the large streets. They arrived at a crossroads and saw many people drawing circles on the ground while burning paper money and paper ingots for the deceased. It was the Qingming Festival once more.

The Liang Kingdom had suffered numerous disasters, resulting in the loss of many lives. As such, there were a lot of people burning offerings for the deceased.

They crouched down by the fire, burning their paper offerings and whispering the words they wished their deceased loved ones could hear. Li Huowang, with his keen hearing, could catch every word.

Most of them were asking their family members what the underworld was like. They also asked them to contact them through dreams if they needed anything.

“Suisui, don’t you think that this world is wrong? Those who harm others can live until they’re old, while honest and good people die young. They don’t deserve it.”

Li Huowang approached one of the stalls that sold paper ingots and paper money. He bought some for himself.

Chapter 885 - Change

Li Sui trailed behind Li Huowang as they approached the crossroads, keeping a tight hold on the paper money and ingots.

Li Huowang drew two circles onto the crossroads with his spine sword and then threw the paper money into the circles. The paper burned up without needing a match.

Li Sui didn't ask who he was burning the paper money for. As she quietly assisted him in the burning process, she heard a silent chuckle from him.

"Suisui, if only there were an underworld. At least then, the two types of people wouldn't die for nothing," Li Huowang murmured, his gaze fixated on the flickering flames dancing in the center of the circle, their reflections reflected in his eyes.

He continued, "In the underworld, the king would have the power to judge every ghost, giving them appropriate rewards or punishments. Evil people would suffer in the eighteen levels of Hell, tormented by minor demons who would gouge their eyes, cut their tongues, or even deep-fry them.

"On the other hand, individuals who performed good deeds in their lives would be rewarded by being allowed to reincarnate into wealthy households. There, they would enjoy pleasant lives and reach the age of one hundred without experiencing any illnesses."

Li Sui raised a tentacle and threw a bunch of paper ingots into the fire. The paper ingots twisted and turned black from being burned. "Father, do you want every world to be like that?"

Li Huowang threw more paper money into the circle to keep the fire alive. "Don't you think a world like that would be much better than this completely crazy world?"

Just as he finished speaking, a gust of wind blew past them.

The ashes from the burned paper twirled and danced in the air.

Li Huowang swung his spine sword and returned to the Qi Kingdom.

He had just entered the Qi Kingdom when the surging False Qi almost suffocated him. There was too much of it.

Li Huowang looked up and saw a statue several stories tall. It was a depiction of him!

The large statue was tied by thick ropes. Many laborers were struggling to pull it upright.

As Li Huowang stared at the statue and then at the citizens chanting and praying, he finally understood where the False Qi was coming from.

There weren't a lot of people who could organize something like this. It was most likely Chan Du's doing, and Li Huowang had no intention of stopping it.

He was going to fight against the Tianchen Kingdom soon, so the more False Qi he had, the better.

He needed a lot of it because the techniques of the Sitting Oblivion Dao required the use of False Qi.

One of the soldiers saw that Li Huowang was back and greeted him. Li Huowang replied, "Call for Chan Du, the Chief of the Surveillance Bureau, and the generals. I need them to come and meet with me."

An ancient voice came from behind Li Huowang. "Benefactor Li, I am here."

Li Huowang turned around and saw Chan Du sitting on a straw mat while twirling his prayer beads.

"You still have time to chant your sutras? The Tianchen Kingdom is going to invade in three days."

Li Huowang approached Chan Du. By the time the others arrived—Chief of the Surveillance Bureau Liang Yuxuan and General Chen Yurong—Li Huowang had already finished explaining.

“We finally obtained some information, so we need to use it to overcome our challenges. How many more people do we have in the Qi Kingdom that we can still utilize?”

The three of them frowned. A lot of men had died during the clash with the army of Unspeakable. The men that they had painstakingly gathered were gone again.

“Gather as many as you can. This concerns the survival of the Qi Kingdom. Chan Du, there’s a Buddha in the Righteous Monastery, right? Use it too.”

Chan Du’s hands trembled as he held onto his prayer beads. “Benefactor Li, that’s the root of the Righteous Monastery. We cannot sully it.”

“If the Tianchen Kingdom destroys the Qi Kingdom, or if we fail to get a Dragon Vein, then the Righteous Monastery will also be destroyed!”

Chen Yurong helped out by suggesting a plan. “Daoist, since this is an ambush, we can just distract and buy time with a smaller force. There’s no need to go all out.”

Li Huowang pondered before ultimately shaking his head. “No. Even if the information is accurate, with my understanding of Shai Zi, he could’ve sold the information to the Tianchen Kingdom too.

“We cannot be lax when dealing with the Tianchen Kingdom. We need the power to confront them directly—only then can your plan to distract them succeed.”

This time, Chan Du advised Li Huowang and said, “Benefactor Li, the Qi Kingdom is yours. We will naturally sacrifice ourselves if needed, but you must think carefully. We are all that’s left in the Qi Kingdom. If we sacrifice everything here, the Qi Kingdom would turn into a sitting duck.”

Li Huowang replied, “In that case, we don’t have to spend all our strength fighting them. My goal is to create a distraction before infiltrating the Tianchen Kingdom. I need information because what we need to win.”

“But Benefactor Li, how will you return after heading there?”

Li Huowang patted the spine sword on his back. “I have this. I can come back at any time.”

“With that? Isn’t that sword...”

Chan Du was suddenly interrupted by someone. “You are right. You can return with that sword.”

Li Huowang turned and saw that it was Xuan Pin. He pinched her robes and discovered it was Xuan Pin herself, not a fake or an illusion.

Li Huowang was worried about his daughter’s safety. “Why are you here? Go back. It’s dangerous here.”

“I know it’s dangerous. That’s why I’m here to help you. I feel uneasy with you heading there alone.”

“No, go back! Please be obedient and go back.”

“What’s obedient?”

Li Huowang was about to say something, but dense tentacles shot out from the red robes the moment Li Huowang opened his mouth. The tentacles quickly entered Li Huowang’s body.

Li Huowang was about to open up his abdomen when a tentacle sprouted out from his belly button and wrapped around Li Huowang’s wrist.

“Father, I’m not going there just to help you. This concerns the entire Liang Kingdom. Don’t forget that I’m the Chief of the Surveillance Bureau. I can help you a lot—don’t try to shoulder everything on your own.”

Sensing that Li Huowang’s strength was slowly diminishing, Li Sui released her tentacles before patting Li Huowang’s hand. She then slithered back into his abdomen.

Li Huowang said, “I just didn’t want you to risk your life too.”

“Father, don’t think that your life is cheap. I will be sad if you die.”

Li Sui extended her tentacles and touched Li Huowang’s beating heart.

Feeling the familiar presence in his body, Li Huowang thought that Xuan Pin was indeed powerful. He begrudgingly nodded.

He decided that this time, he would just infiltrate and get as much information as he could. He didn’t want to risk confronting the people from the Tianchen Kingdom with Li Sui in his body.

He bent down to pick up Li Sui’s red robes when he saw the three people from the Qi Kingdom staring at him dumbfoundedly.

“What are you looking at? Go!”

Chapter 886 - Contact

In the Qi Kingdom, five hundred Li northeast of the You Capital, there was a lowland area with grass as tall as half a meter. The entire place was green, just like Qing Qiu.

No one would've expected that the elites of the Qi Kingdom were already waiting for the people from the Tianchen Kingdom to appear here.

Li Huowang lay on the ground while frowning, relying on his sharp hearing to detect any subtle changes in his surroundings. He had been in this spot for a full day, determined to find out if Shai Zi had been lying or not.

"Are you alright inside there? Do you need to come out for some fresh air?"

"Father, they are here."

Li Huowang became tense, and his heartbeat quickened the moment he heard her.

He soon heard the sound of heavy footsteps and the chirping of birds. However, there were no birds in the Qi Kingdom—the birds were from the Tianchen Kingdom!

Li Huowang slowly liquefied the ground beneath him, sliding down.

Li Huowang looked through the grass and saw the people from the Tianchen Kingdom dressed like those from the Qi Kingdom.

Li Huowang sighed in relief. "Thank goodness it's not the army of Unspeakable. They are sending in spies, so I guess they are trying to set up another ploy."

There were hundreds of them.

Li Huowang didn't know why they were sent here, but he didn't care. Since they had seen the spies appear, the Tianchen

Kingdom's plan was destined to fail.

Without warning, several large shadows flew through the air towards the people from the Tianchen Kingdom.

As the shadows drew near, everyone realized they were—the Buddhas of the Righteous Monastery. They opened their twisted mouths, chanting in unison with the monks embedded within their bodies. “Jie di jie. Di bo luo jie. Di bo luo jie. Jie di pu ti sa po he.”

The Buddhas crashed heavily onto the group of people and exploded like a watermelon falling onto the ground.

Those touched by the flesh of the Buddhas all shouted in pain as their flesh twisted and merged together.

There were many spies, yet all of them dispersed the moment the Buddhas of the Righteous Monastery attacked.

Still, they reacted swiftly. The sound of an instrument rang out, and black, rotting rice surged out from the rift and enveloped the Buddhas.

The fight in the lowlands was intense and vicious. However, no one from the Qi Kingdom had died yet.

We cannot keep this up! I need to head in there and cut off their roots!

Li Huowang swiftly approached the circular rift and looked through it. He saw a dense forest with many people in it.

The Tianchen Kingdom had prepared a lot of spies this time, though most of them looked burly and fierce.

Thankfully, Li Huowang noticed that the Unspeakable army and the golden dragon weren't in the rift.

At the very least, it didn't look like a trap, so Shai Zi wasn't setting up a trap for him.

Li Huowang saw the rift was becoming smaller and quickly projected his body to enter it.

As he arrived at the Tianchen Kingdom, he noticed something he had overlooked before. There was a sizable stage behind the group of men. On that stage, an elderly man stood on stilts, his face adorned in makeup that made him look like a fox.

The old man's forehead had a red dot highlighted with a red blush. His hands and feet were balanced on the wooden stilts, and yet he could still move nimbly without any hint of instability.

Li Huowang immediately realized that the old man had to be the Twisted One connecting the Tianchen Kingdom to the Qi Kingdom. Every time the old man's eyelids twitched, a circular rift connecting the Qi Kingdom would appear near his body. They would then send people from the Tianchen Kingdom into the rift.

The entire place was a forest, with only the troops dispatched to the Qi Kingdom and tens of Unspeakable in the vicinity.

Li Huowang was even more confident after seeing the Unspeakable guarding the fox-faced old man closely.

"Go!" Several tentacles shot out from his body and forcefully struck the ground. Li Huowang curled his body up and shot forward like a cannonball, thrusting his spine sword towards the elderly man.

Just as the sword was about to reach the old man, a rift appeared in front of Li Huowang. There, he saw Chan Du using the scar on his forehead to eat the enemies.

Li Huowang understood that the rift connected to the Qi Kingdom. The old man was using his powers as a Twisted One to attack Li Huowang!

That wasn't the end of it. Another rift appeared above Li Huowang. The old man was trying to bisect Li Huowang in half with the two rifts!

Several more rifts appeared around Li Huowang. At this point, Li Huowang realized that the Twisted One was very good at using his powers.

Li Huowang didn't even wait for the rifts to hit him. He charged and entered the first rift before the second rift could hit him. The moment he entered the first rift, he jumped high and quickly turned his body in the air.

He watched as the two rifts completely missed him. Then, he swiftly dove into another circular rift.

This time, he appeared somewhere different. By the time he entered the Tianchen Kingdom again, the old man had hidden himself and the tens of Unspeakable had surrounded Li Huowang.

They raised their jade hands and charged towards Li Huowang.

Li Huowang's Pain, Death, or even Rot would be stripped away if they touched him even one bit.

At the last moment, Li Huowang's red Daoist robes expanded, and he split himself into hundreds of himself.

His clones charged around like wasps leaving the nest as they surrounded the Unspeakable.

The jade hands swiped around furiously. Many of the clones managed to dodge the hands, but the few that were touched by the jade hands disappeared like smoke.

Li Huowang's tactic was to use clones to keep them busy. Since he already knew what kind of techniques they had, he used a different method to counter them.

Li Huowang had already escaped their encirclement by the time the Unspeakable had cleared up the clones.

Li Huowang stood at the crown of a tree and looked down. Everyone in the surrounding area ignored the Qi Kingdom and surrounded the tree.

They even fired flares into the sky, but Li Huowang couldn't even catch a glimpse of the trailing smoke before it vanished. He was confident that their reinforcements would arrive there shortly.

Chapter 887 - Tianchen Kingdom

The people from Tianchen Kingdom surrounded Li Huowang, but he did not run away. He sat calmly on the crown of the tree instead.

Another Li Huowang popped out from his back, and the two chanted simultaneously. “In the shining light, the sun and moon conceal themselves. When the treasures activate, the spirits shall tremble in fear. Manifesting in the mortal world, guarding the chariot in the realm of Hell...”

When the people from the Tianchen Kingdom heard him chanting, they were filled with immense shock. According to the Unspeakable army that had invaded previously, the Daoist in red could summon Doulao to fight for him!

While they vastly outnumbered Li Huowang, they could not fight against Doulao. Using their various techniques, they quickly escaped and vanished in front of Li Huowang.

Li Huowang completed his chant just as they disappeared. However, nothing happened.

Li Huowang chuckled and stood up. The Li Huowang on his back trembled and turned into a beautiful woman. It wasn't something from Li Huowang's “Truth” cultivation—it was Li Sui.

Li Huowang did not intend to summon Doulao, so he altered the chant. There was no need to summon Doulao against them when he could trick them and save his energy.

Despite the people in the Qi Kingdom continuously giving him False Qi through their prayers, the amount of False Qi needed to summon Doulao was still massive. There was no need to waste it on a minor skirmish like this.

The crisis had been averted, and the Qi Kingdom was temporarily safe. Li Huowang looked around the dense forest and prepared to leave.

He was sure that the people in Tianchen Kingdom had been notified of his arrival. He had to gather as much information as possible before they caught him.

Li Huowang knew very little about the place. All he knew was that they held a grudge against the Heavenly Mater.

He needed to know how strong the people in the Tianchen Kingdom were and what price they were willing to pay to bring down the Heavenly Mater again.

The forest was dense, but thankfully, Li Huowang's sharp senses helped him spot fresh shoe prints on the ground.

Through the shoe prints, Li Huowang found several traps meant to catch wild beasts. Li Huowang deduced that the shoe prints belonged to a hunter. All he needed to do was follow the tracks to locate some kind of settlement.

However, the sky was slowly turning dark, and Li Huowang had yet to find the owner of the shoe prints.

When he saw the setting sun, Li Huowang remembered something important. "Suisui, help me count the time and see how many Dragon Veins are here."

"Alright."

Suisui nodded, and an hourglass appeared beside Li Huowang. The sand slowly fell to the bottom of the hourglass.

The hourglass represented a single division in time. A single cycle meant that a single division had passed. With the hourglass, Li Huowang would know how many Dragon Veins were in the Tianchen Kingdom.

By the time half of the sand had fallen, Li Huowang finally found a settlement in the dense forest. He saw a small village with several lit bonfires in the dark forest.

Li Huowang observed the village for a long time, taking his time until he was satisfied there was nothing suspicious about it.

“Let’s see if we can get information about the Tianchen Kingdom from the regular people here.”

Li Huowang wiped his face and transformed his appearance into Yang Xiaohai's. He proceeded to make his way towards the village.

Li Sui's tentacles sprouted from Li Huowang's back. They then grew and transformed into a big rucksack.

As Li Huowang approached, he smelled the aroma of bamboo leaves being used as a spice. He quickly calculated the time and realized that it was dinner time.

Li Huowang had just entered the village when a woman confronted him. They locked eyes, both shocked by the unexpected encounter. The woman was surprised to see a stranger, while Li Huowang was taken aback by her appearance.

She had a humanoid figure and was adorned in a large shirt paired with a pleated skirt. Additionally, she had a deep blue apron with intricate embroidery depicting birds and fish.

However, her most striking feature was her elongated neck covered in silver hoops—it was twice as long as a regular person's!

The slightly intimidating sight of someone with such a long neck on a dark village path surprised Li Huowang.

“Father, she’s not an evil entity.”

“I can see that.”

Li Huowang cleared his throat and imitated Yang Xiaohai's voice. “Uhm... Excuse me, miss... May I know where this place is?”

The woman answered honestly, perhaps because she suspected nothing or because Yang Xiaohai appeared young and innocent. “This is Yixiong Village. Little boy, where did you come from? Why are you here?”

Her voice was normal. Aside from her long neck, she looked and sounded like a regular person.

“Yixiong Village? That means I’ve come to the wrong place. Where is the closest county?”

The woman pointed. “It’s in that direction, though you probably shouldn’t go there now. You need to pass several mountains and walk for at least two days.”

Their voices caught the attention of the other villagers, causing them to gather around. Li Huowang took notice of them just as they took notice of him. All of the villagers wore silver hoops on their long necks.

More importantly, most of them were women. The few remaining men were children.

“Miss, I’m an outsider, so can I ask you a question? Why do you wear those silver hoops?”

“Because it looks good.”

Li Huowang paused—the answer was too bizarre. Did the Sitting Oblivion Dao trick them?

He wanted to ask more questions, but an old woman gave him two pieces of bamboo before he could. He stood still in confusion as the woman split open the bamboo, revealing the fragrant rice hidden inside it. They were asking him to eat.

“Thank you, Grandma! Thank you, thank you! I haven’t eaten today!”

Li Huowang took the bamboo and ate the rice. He wasn’t afraid of them poisoning his meal—poison wouldn’t work on him.

As he ate, he realized that the meal was not only ordinary but also delicious. The fragrance of the bamboo and rice paired well, leaving a delightful fragrance in his mouth after he finished.

Chapter 888 - Reward

The women of the village stared at Li Huowang until he finished his meal.

Li Huowang used the bamboo leaf like a spoon to eat the rice.

As he ate, Li Huowang secretly used telepathy to converse with Li Sui. Suisui, what do you think?

Nothing much. They are just the regular people of Tianchen Kingdom. I doubt they would know much about this place.

After finishing his meal, Li Huowang wiped his mouth and returned the bamboo to the woman before him. “Thank you for the meal. If it’s possible, may I stay a night here? Of course, I will pay for it.”

Li Huowang reached into his sleeves and took out several broken pieces of silver. “It’s alright. You’re just staying for a night, so there’s no need to pay us.”

The woman seemed surprisingly excited as she led Li Huowang to a hut.

Is everyone in the Tianchen Kingdom so kind?

It was hard to imagine the Tianchen Kingdom betraying the Heavenly Mater and stripping away her Heavenly Dao if they were all so kind.

“Miss, it’s quite remote here.”

Li Huowang looked around at the surrounding short huts and realized they were either built from wood or bamboo.

“It is remote, but that’s fine. Our food is ours, and no one will come and take it from us.”

“Yours? Don’t you need to submit the food as tax to the palace?”

Li Huowang started to shift the conversation towards the direction he wanted.

“Palace? What is that place?”

Li Huowang learned there was no palace or royal family in the Tianchen Kingdom, which meant there were no emperors. In that case, the golden dragon being the Dragon Vein was even more believable now.

Looking at the woman's confused face, Li Huowang quickly answered, “Oh, it’s nothing. It's just a normal thing where I'm from.”

Li Huowang looked at the woman’s back as they continued to walk. “Miss, when I was walking here, I saw someone wearing the robes of an Opera actor and walking on stilts. I saw that person running past the roofs.”

The woman turned back in surprise. “What? What did you see?”

Li Huowang looked at her Ten Emotions and Eight Sufferings to see if anything was out of the ordinary.

“What are you talking about? Don’t lie to me. There are no such beings in this world.”

However, Li Huowang was disappointed upon realizing that the woman didn’t know who the Unspeakable Army was.

Li Huowang asked more simple questions but didn’t get a single satisfactory answer.

Is it because it's too remote here? Do the people here lack information? Maybe I should ask something they might know.

Li Huowang decided to ask about the general geography of the Tianchen Kingdom. It turned out that the Tianchen Kingdom was huge.

From her explanation, Li Huowang determined that the Tianchen Kingdom was larger than the Liang Kingdom, though neither of them knew the exact size of the Tianchen Kingdom.

To the woman, the village she was born and raised in was her entire world.

She didn't know the different regional names of the Tianchen Kingdom. Almost the entire northern half of the kingdom was flatlands with many rivers, and those who lived there were called northerners.

The southern half of the Tianchen Kingdom was covered in trees and forest, and the inhabitants were called southerners.

She knew almost nothing else. She knew nothing about the army of Unspeakable or the golden dragon. She had just been living peacefully in the village throughout her life.

If nothing were to change, she would spend her entire life within a hundred Li of her village.

Shai Zi tricked me! Li Huowang whispered in his heart to Li Sui, There's no way they could touch the Heavenly Dao. I doubt that they can even read.

To his understanding, the people of the Tianchen Kingdom weren't as fearsome as what Shai Zi had described, where anyone living in the Tianchen Kingdom could strip the Heavenly Daos away.

The people of the Tianchen Kingdom were no different from those in the Liang Kingdom. Only a handful would cultivate and learn techniques, while the majority lived in ignorance, simply being born, growing old, and eventually passing away.

Li Huowang sighed in relief. A small part of his stress was relieved just like that.

Father, Shai Zi did not lie. She could learn how to do so—she just hasn't.

Isn't that the same as not being able to do it? She couldn't do it even if she were to start learning now. Shh... be quiet. We are arriving soon. Once she leaves, we will escape into the darkness and head towards the county she mentioned.

Since there wasn't much that he could obtain from the small village, there was no reason for him to stay here either.

Li Huowang needed to find some kind of scholar to learn more about the Tianchen Kingdom.

Even if there wasn't a palace or an emperor, there should be some kind of organization that controlled and managed the Tianchen Kingdom, possibly under a different name than "palace."

They weaved around the village and soon reached a small wooden hut propped up by branches.

"You stay here tonight. I hope you don't mind how old it is."

Seeing that the woman was climbing up the wooden ladder, Li Huowang quickly followed her and prepared himself to knock her unconscious.

However, when he reached the top, he was stunned by what he saw—the woman had taken off her top.

She gestured and pulled Li Huowang inside. "Here, lie down."

Li Huowang quickly shook off his arm and realized why there wasn't a single man in the village during the day and why they welcomed him. He had to pay a price!

"What's wrong? Do you think I'm too old? Let me call for my daughter, then."

"No need."

Li Huowang wiped his hand on the woman's face, and she froze.

"Father, am I interfering? Don't worry, I won't tell mother."

Li Huowang frowned. "You still have the energy to joke? Don't forget what we came here for."

He never thought the culture of the Tianchen Kingdom would be so bizarre.

"Father, it's not healthy to suppress yourself like this every day. You should smile and laugh when you can. You will snap one day if you continue this."

"Alright, that's enough. You don't have to teach me about it.

Let's go."

"Father, are you really not moved by her offer? She doesn't look ugly."

Li Huowang felt his skin crawling. He never thought his own daughter would say something like that.

He previously thought Li Sui was very inexperienced, but the current Li Sui was too bright!

"Stop saying nonsense before I throw you back into the Qi Kingdom."

Li Sui stopped talking when she saw Li Huowang reaching for the spine sword.

Snapping branches could be heard as Li Huowang continued to walk into the dark forest.

By the time the hourglass flipped again, Li Huowang reached an opening. A county appeared in front of him.

Chapter 889 - Bandits

Li Huowang found the county, but he was surprised to see that the city didn't have a wall. There was just a single white lantern swinging on the old gate.

"Keep your guard up. There might be someone who can see us."

Li Huowang sunk his projection into the ground, turning invisible as he walked towards the county.

Li Huowang thought the place was too rundown. There were abandoned houses everywhere, the roads were full of potholes, and litter was scattered all around.

If it hadn't been for the candlelight coming from some of the windows, Li Huowang would've thought that this was a mass grave instead.

Just then, Li Sui said, "Father, someone in the Tianchen Kingdom is trying to use divination to locate us."

They had acted quickly. Rather than sending people to find Li Huowang, they used divination.

Li Huowang felt his scalp go numb. "Did they manage to locate us?"

"No, I'm blocking them," Li Sui replied. "However, I can't sustain it for long."

"Block them as long as you can. We need to leave before they find us."

Li Huowang walked to the center of the county.

The center of the county was more lively. Even late at night, numerous shops were still open.

The options were somewhat limited, though. They were all either gambling dens, brothels, or theaters.

Li Huowang chose the theater with the highest chance of a scholar being present. He entered the place and realized that they were putting on a pink show.

This particular pink show was much more daring than the Lu family's. The singer on the stage was wearing nothing but a translucent shawl. The entire theater was rowdy as the customers drank wine, fought, and gambled while the singer performed on top.

Suddenly, one of the customers ripped off his shirt to reveal his hairy chest and jumped on the stage. He pushed down the singer, and they fornicated.

Li Huowang ignored the crowd's cheers and instead focused on the murderous aura they exuded. They were all the same.

They are... soldiers? Are they the soldiers of the Tianchen Kingdom?

Li Huowang stared at the diverse crowd. Many of them sported messy beards and dirty clothes.

Li Huowang knew that the Tianchen Kingdom had soldiers because they were the ones who had ambushed him the last time.

They were strong, and their incredible cooperation had almost made Li Huowang lose his spine sword.

Li Huowang looked around swiftly before looking at the second floor's center seat. There was a huge man with a large scar on his face seated there. He was holding onto two topless women while playing cards with the other men.

The huge man's murderous aura was the most intense. Li Huowang was confident that the man was their leader.

Li Huowang approached the man and tore off his face to plaster it onto the back of the man's head.

However, just before he did, he stopped.

Someone was speaking to the huge man.

"Deputy, are the faceless really asking us to hunt some francolins[1]?”

Li Huowang realized that the men were speaking in codes! They weren't soldiers—they were bandits!

Li Huowang recalled how the people who had ambushed him didn't say “kill” but instead “stab.”

Li Huowang was right. They were indeed bandits—or rather, soldiers of the Tianchen Kingdom.

Father, there's no emperor here, so there's no soldiers. Instead, the soldiers all became bandits. It's a reasonable explanation.

Li Huowang nodded and continued to eavesdrop.

The huge man said, "It's not good news. The faceless invited people aside from ourselves. The old man that takes money from corpses and the razor clams that take the corpse's money were also called to help, but they didn't come back."

Li Huowang understood those codes. Both “the old man that takes the money of corpses” and “the razor clams that take the corpse's money” were the codenames for different groups of bandits.

They naturally didn't return because Li Huowang had burned all of them to death.

As for what “faceless” meant, Li Huowang had no idea for now. But according to what he had learned, “faceless” usually meant something along the lines of monsters or evil entities.

“The faceless must've encountered some tough thorns this time. Old Qian mentioned losing many men too. They're likely doing something serious if they're inviting all thirty-six caves to fight for them.”

This wasn't good news for Li Huowang. If the soldiers of the Tianchen Kingdom were bandits, that meant that the “faceless” were recruiting every single one to go to the Qi Kingdom.

“Deputy, this is a touchy mission. Should we take it?”

“Of course. If we don't give them face, then we will really become faceless.”

The deputy’s voice suddenly became silent as he glanced at the theater below him before whispering to the man, “I’ve heard that the mission this time is related to ‘Moon Threads.’ We should go and see what it is about first.”

Someone suddenly shouted from below, “Deputy! Keep it short! An eagle just plunged into the oven!”

The doors to the theater slammed shut the moment everyone heard that.

Seeing that he had been discovered, Li Huowang chose not to hide anymore. He was certain the huge man knew something, so he decided to interrogate him.

The man threw the cards to the table and stared at Li Huowang, who was wearing Yang Xiaohai’s face. “Shoulders together, toss me a vine?”

Li Huowang blinked. “I’m tossing your fat ass!”

He instinctively reached for his sword but realized he needed to keep the man alive. Li Huowang smashed an hourglass onto the man’s head.

The hourglass warped from the impact, causing the man’s head to bleed. He stumbled for a moment before ultimately falling onto the ground.

“Stab him!” the man shouted.

A murderous aura filled the theater, and the angry bandits howled in anger as they ran towards Li Huowang.

“Allow me,” Li Sui said, causing the theater to shift randomly.

The ground and bandits warped uncontrollably, turning from tall to short and from long to narrow in different intervals.

The murderous aura that filled the area broke apart like wet noodles.

Sensing how strong Li Huowang was with Li Sui’s help, the huge man knelt on the ground and begged for mercy.

“Get up! We need to change locations!” Li Huowang told the man, kicking him and then trying to drag him away.

“Father, be careful!”

Just as Li Sui warned Li Huowang, a shriveled hand burst out from his chest. Li Huowang ignored his injury, instead focusing on the thing in the palm of the shriveled hand.

The palm held a dark yellow object. Li Huowang instinctively knew that it was his primordial breath. Someone had pushed it out of him!

1. A type of bird 🐦

Chapter 890 - Ambush

Li Huowang was quite confident that the primordial breath of Strayed Ones was why they could cultivate the “Truth.”

However, he hadn’t known that the people of the Tianchen Kingdom could also touch the primordial breath inside of him!

Li Huowang saw the yellowish object in the palm that had pierced his chest and knew it was the primordial breath. This was also the first time he had seen it.

He had been wounded many times, but this was the first time his wounds were this grievous.

Li Huowang could not cultivate the “Truth” without his primordial breath. Without it, he would be no different from an ordinary person.

The arm threatened to completely sever Li Huowang’s primordial breath.

At the last moment, several tentacles sprouted out from Li Huowang’s back and held onto the arm to prevent it from being pulled out.

Li Huowang could not relinquish the precious chance that Li Sui had given him. He swiftly unsheathed his spine sword.

However, the enemy was behind him. Every time he turned around, the enemy would turn too.

In a panic, Li Huowang chose to grab onto his head and turned it forcefully towards the left. He twisted his head all the way around, making a sound of snapping bones.

Li Huowang finally saw the person who had attacked him.

There stood an elderly man, his back hunched and his eyes oddly disproportionate. A single horn emerged from his head, parting his white hair and exposing his murky gaze.

The old man had plunged his right arm deep into Li Huowang while his left arm was holding onto a rod made from a tree root and covered with gourds tightly.

“Die!” Li Huowang roared.

He dislocated his joints, swinging his sword backward with his dislocated arm.

The sword hadn’t touched the old man, and yet the old man’s body started to twist. This wasn’t Zhuge Yuan’s spine sword but instead Li Huowang’s own spine sword.

Seeing that he couldn’t pull out his arm and Li Huowang’s attack had almost reached him, the old man swung his rod decisively. He detached his right arm and ran away like a lizard leaving its tail behind and then fleeing. He managed to survive Li Huowang’s attack.

Gritting his teeth, Li Huowang forcibly repositioned his head and glanced around the theater, noticing that the old man was not the only unexpected arrival.

There was the veiled woman who played the strange musical instrument, Po Da’er, and several others sporting bizarre clothes. All eight of them had Li Huowang surrounded.

It was clear that as soon as the Tianchen Kingdom was notified of his arrival, they all hastily rushed there to deal with him.

Li Huowang warily looked at the arm lodged in his chest. He hadn’t expected them to get there so quickly. More importantly, he hadn’t expected that they would learn his weaknesses so quickly that they would choose to ambush him instead.

This time, Li Huowang was facing an enemy he had never faced before—an entire world. The moment his weaknesses were exposed to them, he would face unforeseen dangers.

That ambush would’ve killed him if Li Sui wasn’t here. Li Huowang would’ve died if they had managed to snatch the primordial breath out of his body.

Po Da'er bowed to Li Huowang. "Daoist Li, we will meet again."

"What? Are you going to continue spouting nonsense?"

Li Huowang realized that the bandits had run away during the chaos. He wanted to escape after the ambush had failed, but he refused to leave without any results.

He didn't know how many Dragon Veins were present in the Tianchen Kingdom, and he had barely gotten any helpful information. If he were to return to the Qi Kingdom now, going back to the Tianchen Kingdom would be much more difficult next time.

Po Da'er didn't want to attack. Instead, he continued to question Li Huowang.

"Daoist Li, I've heard that you are very kind. Why do you help the evil sect, then? The White Lotus Sect is evil."

Li Huowang almost laughed out of anger. "The White Lotus Sect is evil now? Why didn't you call the Heavenly Mater evil when you betrayed her back then?"

Po Da'er was shocked. "Daoist Li, do you trust their nonsense? They tricked you! I don't know who's saying that, but they're lying! That did not happen at all. The evil Mater treated us like livestock, and the Tianchen Kingdom was like a living Hell."

He stared towards the south and clenched his fists. "We were forced to fight back. Daoist Li, do you intend to help the evil Mater and turn the Tianchen Kingdom back into a living Hell?"

Li Huowang looked around warily. "Hoh... Everyone has their side of the story. Why are you the good guys in your story? Didn't you want me to help you? Fine, I will help you, but don't touch the White Lotus Sect! I will guarantee that they will not enter the Tianchen Kingdom! I am a man of my word!"

Po Da'er remained silent. It was clear that he didn't trust Li Huowang's words.

Li Huowang said, "Don't try to trick me with words. It's useless! You've sent many spies into the Qi Kingdom to collect information, yet you still haven't found out why I am helping the White Lotus Sect? Li Sui, do it now!"

Li Huowang scattered like sand. However, Po Da'er and the rest saw through Li Huowang's tricks. The old man raised his rod of gourds and lightly swung it in front of him.

The theater was blown apart like curtains in the wind. Despite being mere fragments that were on fire, Li Huowang moved towards the old man.

The elderly man lifted his rod and struck Li Huowang, causing the plugs on the gourds to open. He intended to suck Li Huowang into the gourds.

Yet, Li Huowang phased through the gourds. The fragments were just an illusion.

By the time the old man realized what was happening, it was too late. The real Li Huowang was already standing behind him.

Li Huowang stabbed his spine sword deep into the old man's hump. The old man's hump burst open like a large pimple, and disgusting pus splashed towards Li Huowang. The pus evaporated when it came into contact with Li Huowang's fire, turning into white steam.

Li Huowang felt that there was something else inside the old man's hump, as there was a peculiar sensation when he pierced it.

He pulled the spine sword down and split the hump into two, revealing a stone statue of a deity hidden within the hump.

Chapter 891 - Tongue

Li Huowang was surprised to find a deity statue in the hump. Shai Zi had claimed that the people of the Tianchen Kingdom had no beliefs, so this was unexpected.

He wanted to discern which deity it represented, but the statue's face was smeared with thick pus, making it impossible to identify.

As he was about to strike down the one-eyed old man and split both him and the hump in half, the others arrived.

Out of nowhere, a whooshing sound filled the air, and a neatly peeled piece of skin materialized right above Li Huowang. It was positioned to cover his head, and its facial features still moved.

He had no idea what purpose the strange piece of skin served, but he was sure it was bad news.

He dodged quickly. However, a hand reached toward his chest, clearly trying to repeat the trick of taking his primordial breath.

This time, Li Sui was prepared. She reached out with seven or eight tentacles, tightly wrapping them around the enemy.

Unexpectedly, another hand appeared. It began to pluck things from Li Sui's tentacles.

While Li Huowang didn't know what the enemy took, he felt a surge of anger.

"Damn it!" Li Huowang ripped off his own face and slammed it onto the opponent.

A wave of rotten black rice surged like a tsunami, covering Li Huowang and his opponent. Even in this mess, Li Huowang forcefully tore off his skin.

The fight became increasingly difficult as the enemy exploited his weaknesses. They kept trying to find opportunities to sneak an attack in or steal his spine sword.

Li Huowang had no effective counter. The enemy could easily strip away his powers, whether from his “Truth” cultivation or the pain techniques of the Ao Jing Sect.

The people the Tianchen Kingdom had sent were extremely powerful, nearly as formidable as the army of Unspeakable.

Li Huowang was worried for both himself and the Great Liang. If these enemies found a way to infiltrate the Great Qi, the entire Great Liang would be in grave danger.

Shai Zi had deceived him about other things, but not about this. The Tianchen Kingdom was indeed difficult to deal with.

Li Huowang knew he couldn’t delay this situation. The longer he stalled, the worse things would get.

This was the enemy’s territory. If he didn’t act now, more enemies from the Tianchen Kingdom would come, making it impossible for him to escape.

Li Huowang gripped his spine sword and prepared to cut open an escape path. He suddenly stumbled as he glanced at Po Daer, who was not moving at all.

A large hand had emerged from the ground and grabbed his leg, rendering it numb.

Li Huowang’s neck began to itch as he fended off the surrounding attackers. When he turned his head, he saw Po Daer’s huge face grinning at him.

“Daoist Li, it’s not too late to surrender,” Po Daer said, raising Li Huowang’s hand in a mocking gesture. Li Huowang had lost control of his body, and Po Daer could now drain his primordial breath at will.

“Why not surrender? There’s no shame in it. In fact, I don’t just control your body now. Everything about you is mine, whether it’s your tricks from the Sitting Oblivion Dao or your Strayed One’s ‘Truth’ cultivation.”

However, Li Huowang laughed. His mission in the Tianchen Kingdom had been completed.

“All of my body is yours? What about the pain and suffering I’ve endured all this time?”

Po Daer noticed Li Huowang's composure and instinctively knew something was out of place. As he tried to take complete control, Li Sui's four ribs suddenly snapped and plunged into Li Huowang's chest.

Po Daer screamed in agony from the intense pain. Under normal circumstances, he might have been able to endure it, but Li Huowang's torment was currently amplified by the Cang-Qiang Ascension.

“Fire!” Li Huowang roared, and flames engulfed his entire body.

Po Daer shared Li Huowang's excruciating pain. Li Huowang had long grown used to it, but Po Daer couldn't withstand it.

He could no longer care about the Heavenly Daos and primordial breath within Li Huowang. Po Daer tried to flee desperately, yet it was too late. Black tendrils came out from his facial orifices and wrapped tightly around his head, trapping him inside Li Huowang and making him feel like he was in a living hell.

This time, Po Daer couldn't escape. While he had previously leaped from the Great Qi to the Tianchen Kingdom and survived, there was nowhere left to run now.

Li Huowang grasped his opponent's tongue and knew his mission in Tianchen was truly complete. As if on cue, Li Sui cast an illusion that caused the sky to press down.

With this opportunity, Li Huowang created a rift with his spine sword and quickly jumped through it.

When he landed, everything around him was peaceful once more. The air was filled with the chirping of birds and the smell of flowers. He had returned to the Great Liang.

He held the charred and struggling head of Po Daer while making his way toward Shangjing.

This interrogation was best left to the professionals, like the Fangxian Sect. They could extract a lot of valuable information from him.

Li Huowang felt pessimistic. I hope they can find a way to counter these enemies. We're doomed if the Tianchen Kingdom ever wages war against the Great Qi and the Great Liang.

“Father, don’t lose hope. This isn’t just a crisis—it’s also an opportunity.”

“An opportunity? What opportunity? I don’t see it,” Li Huowang replied.

“If they can extract your primordial breath, they can naturally put something in.”

“What good is that? You could do that before.”

“It’s not just the primordial breath. I saw something else inside them. They can manipulate the inner sight that controls the primordial energy within you.”

Li Huowang’s mind raced. “So that means—”

“That means we can also add things and control what’s in their consciousness.

“The more inner sight in your body, the greater control you’ll have over the primordial breath. If you have enough ‘Truth’ cultivation, we can extract the inner sight and primordial energy from their bodies and transfer it into yours.

“We can do to Strayed Ones what they do to Twisted Ones.

“If we pull this off, your ‘Truth’ cultivation will improve greatly. Everything you think, dream, or imagine will become reality.”

Chapter 892 - Phone

Thump! A tightly clenched fist wrapped in bandages delivered a powerful strike to Li Huowang's left rib, resulting in the sharp sound of bones cracking.

It wasn't over. The bandages on the fist were quickly bitten open. Before they had fallen to the ground, they were pulled and wrapped firmly around Li Huowang's neck.

Blood rushed to his head, and his face turned bright red, with veins bulging on his forehead. The lack of oxygen made his consciousness begin to blur.

He was about to be strangled to death, so he threw his head back and slammed it into his opponent's face.

The bandages around his neck loosened slightly. Li Huowang gritted his teeth, planted both feet on the ground, and forcefully pushed.

Li Huowang shot upward and slammed hard on the enemy behind him.

When he landed and felt the enemy pinned beneath him, he rolled backward and stood up. He lifted his right foot and aimed a powerful kick at his opponent's head.

The enemy quickly curled up and used their back as a shield to block Li Huowang's kick.

She used the momentum and swept her leg forcefully at Li Huowang's other leg, causing him to lose balance.

"Dinner's ready." A calm voice interrupted the deadly fight, prompting them to stop.

Li Huowang took three steps back and glared murderously at Ba Nanxu as she stood up.

He rubbed his sore neck, finding it more challenging to swallow. The force used against him had clearly had killing intent.

Ba Nanxu felt the spot where Li Huowang had kicked her and wiped the blood from the corner of her mouth. Her lipstick-painted lips parted, revealing blood-stained gums.

Her forked tongue flicked quickly from the bloody water and then retracted. "Damn it, I'm starting to like you more and more."

He clenched his teeth, pointed his middle finger at her, and then turned towards a takeout bag.

He opened the meal box, which contained Yangzhou fried rice, radish, and pork rib soup in a clay pot. Ignoring Ba Shengqing, who had brought the food, he grabbed a pair of disposable chopsticks and started eating heartily.

He glanced around as he ate. They were in an abandoned factory filled with rusty pipes and puddles of stagnant water.

He had been staying here for some time now. Zhao Shuangdian had said they would counterattack, but she had yet to appear since that day.

If not for the brother-sister duo interacting with him, Li Huowang might have thought they'd forgotten about him.

The sparring matches were Li Huowang's idea. He wanted to become stronger, and the Ba siblings truly had some skills. His progress in combat had been swift during this period.

"Hey maniac, you're on TV! That one-eyed look of yours is pretty photogenic," Ba Nanxu said, waving her phone at Li Huowang as she ate.

Li Huowang didn't even glance up and continued to wolf down his meal. "Any news from Zhao Shuangdian yet? I'm tired of just sparring with you every day. Weren't we supposed to act next month? There are only a few days left."

Ba Nanxu lit a cigarette with a click of her lighter. "Why the rush? She's sorting out fake passports. It won't be long."

"Passports? What for?"

“What do you think? To leave the country, obviously.”

Li Huowang paused in surprise. He hadn't expected Zhao Shuangdian's plan to involve that.

“Will getting a passport allow us to reach another elephant?” Li Huowang said. He felt like things couldn't be that simple.

He pressed further and said, “Where are we going?”

“Don't ask. Once we get there, you just need to take care of them. You don't really care, do you?”

Li Huowang slammed his chopsticks down, looking impatiently at the siblings. “Why shouldn't I care? Don't forget they tried to kill me before!”

“Call Zhao Shuangdian. I want to ask her what's going on.”

Ba Nanxu rolled her eyes and tossed her phone at him. “Call her yourself.”

Li Huowang grabbed the phone and quickly found Zhao Shuangdian's name in the contacts. After a few short rings, her composed voice came through, —Hello, Li Huowang. What's up?

“When are we leaving? Give me a clear answer. Stop stringing me along.”

—We're leaving tonight. Don't sleep.

“Fine. If we're going to make a move now, you need to tell me more about this other elephant. We need to know our enemy to win.”

—There's nothing more to say. I've already explained. They're the same people who tried to kill you.

—I can't explain what they appear like to me. Even if I could, you wouldn't understand. You're touching the trunk while I'm touching the tusks.

—I'll take you to the location. Just see for yourself what they look like to you.

Her words reminded Li Huowang of the people who had once monitored him.

After a brief pause, Li Huowang said, "I need weapons."

—Of course. I'll arrange that. However, I need you to promise me one thing: once we're there, follow my orders. No questions asked.

"Sure, sure, got it!" Li Huowang impatiently pulled the phone away from his ear, ready to hang up.

—Wait, this is important. I need you to confirm. If you display any doubts or disobedience once we're there, I'll consider it a betrayal of your own elephant.

"Any doubts or disobedience?" Li Huowang pondered her words. Something felt off. "What exactly is going on there?"

—I'll explain when we arrive. It's too complicated to explain now.

Zhao Shuangdian abruptly ended the call, leaving a lingering beep in Li Huowang's ear.

He tossed the phone back to Ba Nanxu, frowning as he mulled over Zhao Shuangdian's words. There hadn't been such strict rules before.

Over there, could I really betray my own elephant? And if I did, what would the consequences be?

It was hard to imagine how bizarre the world of god Yu'er might be.

As Li Huowang was thinking, two fingers painted in black nail polish snapped in front of him.

"Hey maniac, are you done eating? Ready for round two?" Ba Nanxu clicked her brass knuckles together, creating sparks.

Li Huowang looked at her and said, "Can I ask you something?"

Ba Nanxu shook her head immediately. "Don't give me any of your crazy talk. I'm not arguing with a lunatic. You in or not? If not, I'm heading back to my shop."

“I’m in!” Li Huowang gritted his teeth, clenched his fists, and stood up again.

Chapter 893 - Journey

That night, Li Huowang lay fully clothed on his bed, waiting for them to arrive.

As soon as he saw the clock on the wall striking midnight, a harsh scraping noise reverberated through the air, signaling the opening of the steel factory's door.

He grabbed his belongings and walked out of the steel factory, where two off-road vehicles awaited him. The high beams blinded him, making it difficult to open his eyes.

Zhao Shuangdian's voice came from behind the glaring white lights. "Get in."

When Li Huowang reached the car door, he noticed that besides Zhao Shuangdian and the Ba siblings, there were two unfamiliar men and a woman inside.

Li Huowang quickly glanced at them before opening the rear door and sitting down. However, as soon as he sat, he felt something beneath him.

He reached down and found two sheathed military knives.

Once Li Huowang unsheathed them, he realized they were his knives. They were still stained with dried blood.

"Thanks," Li Huowang said to Zhao Shuangdian, who was sitting in the front passenger seat.

The engine roared to life, and the off-road vehicle headed towards the airport.

"No need to thank me. Remember that we're on the same side. I wouldn't harm you."

Li Huowang slid the knives back into their sheaths and strapped them to his back. "A bulletproof vest would've been nice."

Zhao Shuangdian didn't respond. She massaged her forehead gently, her brows furrowed as if deep in thought.

Li Huowang turned his attention to the other three in the car. The first man was driving and had a rugged look accentuated by a scruffy beard. Despite the chilly weather, he was wearing a short-sleeved shirt.

On the other hand, the man in the passenger seat had a stern expression and a slender, lanky build. He was skillfully flipping a coin with his fingers.

The last person was a girl who appeared weak and wore glasses. She looked frail, but there was something odd about her. Her face twitched intermittently.

Li Huowang eyed them cautiously, trying to figure out what Simings they were. The bearded guy seemed like a military Siming or some commander.

The stern-faced man turned his gaze from the window to Li Huowang. "You know it's rude to stare, right?"

"Li Huowang," he said, extending his hand toward the man. However, the man didn't shake his hand.

"I know who you are, Li Huowang. You're pretty famous. Everyone knows who you are," the man said slowly before turning to face the window again.

Li Huowang sensed their cold attitude and didn't bother responding. He turned to Zhao Shuangdian. "Is it just us? It seems like there are too few people. Aren't we just walking into certain death?"

"Don't worry, more people will meet us at the airport," Zhao Shuangdian replied, closing her eyes.

"How confident are you in this operation?"

"Sixty percent."

"Only sixty?" Li Huowang was reminded of Qian Fu's death and what happened to the other forty percent.

"Never expect anything to be a hundred percent. If something's guaranteed, it's probably a trap."

Li Huowang's heart sank. He could only hope that the reinforcements at the airport would be more helpful.

The stern man tossed a mask to Li Huowang. "Put on the mask. You can't just walk into the airport with your face. It's simply inviting trouble."

After five hours, they finally reached another city's airport, just as dawn was beginning to break.

Li Huowang, now wearing the mask, reached the waiting area. He was stunned by the person he saw—Qing Wanglai.

Qing Wanglai, dressed in a suit, shook hands with Zhao Shuangdian. "It must have been a tiring journey."

Zhao Lei, Chen Hongyu, and Wu Qi were behind him, all slumped in chairs.

"Them?! They're the reinforcements?" Li Huowang was utterly shocked to see his former comrades.

"Who else? Not many people truly understand the situation they're in."

The two groups gathered together, leaving Li Huowang standing bewildered by himself.

By dawn, the first rays of sunlight pierced through, and the plane carrying Li Huowang and the others soared into the clouds.

Li Huowang sat in his seat, finally accepting the idea of reuniting with Qing Wanglai.

Although Qing Wanglai was a petty person who burned his bridges easily, Li Huowang didn't blame him for the things that happened to Nana that day. And even though he wasn't trustworthy, it was still better than dealing with complete strangers.

Qing Wanglai sat next to Li Huowang and extended his hand. "I didn't expect you to end up on Zhao Shuangdian's side."

"I had no choice. The last group I followed was too unreliable, so I had to switch."

Qing Wanglai didn't seem to catch the sarcasm in Li Huowang's words. He smiled pleasantly. "Really? That's good. I thought you bought into her theories."

Li Huowang glanced at Zhao Shuangdian, who was dozing off with an eye mask. "I don't believe in her elephant theory. Your projection theory feels more realistic."

"Oh?"

Li Huowang gritted his teeth and glared at Qing Wanglai. "Of course not! I don't care about your ridiculous theories! I don't want what happened previously to happen again! I simply want to solve this mess and not be labeled a lunatic anymore!"

After a moment of contemplation, Qing Wanglai replied, "You may not believe it, but I never gave up on you. If we survive this, I'll help you regain your freedom."

"Yeah, right," Li Huowang scoffed and turned away. "I'm wanted across the country. Tell me, how will you help me regain my freedom?"

"When you return to the country, turn yourself in immediately," Qing Wanglai replied.

Li Huowang looked at him like he was an idiot.

"Don't worry. It's just the first step. You're considered mentally ill. No matter how many times you've escaped from prison, your final punishment will be confinement in a psychiatric hospital."

"After you cool off in there for a while, I can buy out a psychiatric hospital and get you transferred there. After that, it'll be easy to do whatever we want."

"Oh wow, what a grand gesture by Boss Qing, buying an entire psychiatric hospital just for me. I'm so touched."

Qing Wanglai could tell that Li Huowang still didn't trust him and dropped the subject. He stood up and whispered something into Zhao Shuangdian's ear as she slept.

Li Huowang had not slept the entire night, so he planned to close his eyes and recharge his batteries for what was to come.

As he was about to drift off, something caught his eye. There was a small white object below the seat in front of him.

He frowned, reached down, and picked it up. He held it up between his fingers, and his pupils narrowed. A die?

He glanced around and saw everyone acting normally. Holding the die close, he muttered, "Why are you here? Do you really think you belong in a battle between Simings?"

Chapter 894 - Plane

Li Huowang glanced at the scenery outside the window. From the plane, the houses looked as small as matchboxes.

He slowly brought his left hand up to his mouth, revealing a black-and-white die—the same one he had just picked up.

However, Li Huowang knew it wasn't just a coincidence. It was Shai Zi.

He admired the view as he whispered to the tiny die in his hand. "You secretly followed me. What exactly do you want?

"Don't answer. Even if you say something now, I can't hear it. No matter how powerful you used to be, you're just a tiny, immobile trinket in my hand right now.

"Shai Zi, I don't know if you helped last time or not, but I'm a Siming now. There's no going back for me, yet I can still influence things over there.

"We've had enough interactions by now. We're practically acquaintances. Why not stick to what you're good at?"

Li Huowang lowered his gaze, staring at the die in his palm. "You can't help me here, but over there, you can. Don't tell me that you can't even manage this as the leader of the Sitting Oblivion Dao.

"If you do it right, I'll give you some benefits. However, don't blame me for destroying you if you fail or try anything sneaky. Right now, you're nothing to me! I could crush you easily."

To demonstrate his point, Li Huowang opened his mouth and tossed the die inside.

His expression contorted as he gently pressed his teeth, causing the die to deform. It appeared that the die would break under any additional pressure.

He spat it back out and glared at the saliva-covered die with teeth marks. “Got it?”

At that moment, an air stewardess walked down the aisle. Li Huowang quickly clenched his fist, nodding and flashing her a polite smile.

Once she was gone, Li Huowang opened his palm again and whispered, “I don’t plan for you to do anything too difficult. Just ensure you take care of the people I care about over there.”

He paused for a moment before he added, “And Li Sui. Don’t play dumb. You know who and what I care about.”

Li Huowang sensed someone watching him. He quickly turned and noticed that Zhao Lei was staring at him. His mouth was slightly open, and he held his phone in shock.

Li Huowang whispered one last time to the die, “I know you’ve made plenty of enemies. Neither side likes you, so it’s settled. If you can handle this, I’ll protect you. From now on, you’ll be my Twisted One.”

He stuffed the die into his pocket and glared at Zhao Lei. “What are you looking at?”

Zhao Lei’s lips quivered slightly, but he said nothing and turned back to his phone.

Outside, the landscape was drawing closer, which meant they were nearing their destination.

“Alright, that’s enough. You’ll take this plane back to our elephant when we land. This mess isn’t something you can handle.” Li Huowang flicked the die, letting it roll beneath the seat in front of him.

Li Huowang had no idea where they were after getting off the plane, as he couldn’t understand the local language. Still, the place was undeniably hot, like a tropical region.

Zhao Shuangdian had changed into a short-sleeved shirt and proceeded to walk ahead. She quickly dialed a number to contact someone.

Qing Wanglai approached Li Huowang. “We were supposed to have another ally, but unfortunately, she couldn’t make it. If she had, our chances would’ve been better.”

“Who? Why didn’t she come?”

“You didn’t let her. You sent her back to her hometown and had her parents closely monitor her, ensuring she couldn’t leave.”

“Yang Na?!” Li Huowang’s expression darkened. He jabbed a finger into Qing Wanglai’s chest. “Don’t drag her into this. I’ll kill you if you involve her in any way.”

“Li Huowang, let’s be reasonable. Why do you always make decisions for others? Shouldn’t this be her choice to make?”

Li Huowang clenched his teeth, and his expression twisted with rage. “She’s ill! Her thoughts aren’t even her own right now! I’ll say it one last time: keep her out of this.”

“Fine, I get it. No need to repeat yourself. You made it very clear when you took her away.”

Despite Qing Wanglai’s attitude, Li Huowang didn’t want to stir up trouble at the moment. He yanked the rubber mask off his head and revealed his actual face.

The sound of car horns filled the air as a number of SUVs driven by foreigners appeared ahead of them.

“Let’s go.” Zhao Shuangdian nodded toward the vehicles and walked toward them.

After leaving the airport, Li Huowang realized the place was even more desolate than he had imagined. Airports were typically situated in big cities, but this one only had a small town nearby, visible in its entirety with just a single glance.

A few minutes later, the SUVs left the town and drove off the asphalt road into a desert.

Li Huowang instinctively reached behind him and gripped the familiar handles of his knives.

“Are they supposed to be here? How can anyone even live in a place like this?” Li Huowang asked Zhao Shuangdian, who was sitting in the front passenger seat.

“Who says they’re even human?” Zhao Shuangdian said, crossing her arms. She opened a hidden compartment, took out a pair of dark red sunglasses, and put them on.

Time passed, and the sky grew darker. The SUV’s headlights lit the way until they reached a low-lying area in the desert and came to a halt.

“Get out and grab your gear,” Zhao Shuangdian said. Everyone immediately disembarked and opened the trunk.

The group remained serious and focused despite traveling all day with little rest.

Li Huowang saw Zhao Shuangdian assembling a black sniper rifle. He frowned and drew his two knives. “Hold on, you get that while I’m stuck with these?”

“Want to trade? Can you even use this?” Zhao Shuangdian offered him the rifle, but Li Huowang didn’t take it.

He had never used one before, and an unfamiliar weapon wouldn’t be more effective.

“Li Huowang, over here,” a voice called out. Li Huowang turned towards the voice and spotted Wu Qi and Chen Hongyu, who were unloading a bulky suit and helmet from the trunk of their SUV.

Li Huowang recognized it immediately. It was his old bulletproof suit.

Chapter 895 - Strike

“Thanks.”

Li Huowang quickly put on the bulletproof vest with their help. It gave him peace of mind since they would soon confront an unknown enemy.

“Don’t thank us. Qing Wanglai was the one who prepared it for you. You obviously wouldn’t bring one.”

Li Huowang looked at Qing Wanglai, who was loading a magazine into his handgun. Qing Wanglai smiled and nodded back at him.

Wu Qi seemed like the most ordinary person in Qing Wanglai’s group, so Li Huowang turned to her. “Sister Wu, do you really trust Qing Wanglai? You’ve seen what kind of person he is. You must be aware by now.”

“Of course I know,” Wu Qi said, placing a helmet on Li Huowang’s head.

“But don’t you think dealing with someone like him is pretty simple? As long as you understand what makes him tick.” Wu Qi knocked on Li Huowang’s helmet. “Li Huowang, don’t assume that Zhao Shuangdian is any better. No one here is normal.”

Li Huowang remained silent, turning his attention to Wu Qi and Zhao Shuangdian’s weapons instead.

Wu Qi appeared unarmed, carrying only a medical kit. She seemed prepared to serve as a field medic this time.

As for Chen Hongyu, she pulled a nail-covered spiked mace from the trunk, “We’re about to go into combat, and that’s what you’re bringing?” Li Huowang asked.

Chen Hongyu shrugged indifferently. “No worries, I don’t rely on this. I have special abilities.”

Li Huowang sighed deeply and walked away from her.

He approached Zhao Shuangdian, who was adjusting the sights on her sniper rifle. “What’s the plan?”

The girl was unarmed, unlike the others. She pulled out a tablet and started to tap quickly.

Once everyone was ready and gathered, Zhao Shuangdian repeated the plan. “Remember, from now on, follow my instructions—no doubts or disobedience.

“No matter what the world looks like to you, the first thing to remember is that we’re all on the same team. Never betray your comrades.

“Don’t hesitate. Eliminate any signs of hostility.

“One last thing. We’re currently outside the elephant while they are inside.”

Zhao Shuangdian nodded to the girl, prompting her to put on a pair of VR glasses connected to the tablet.

She started to scan the dark desert as the group moved forward.

It was nighttime, but not pitch black. Their surroundings were in a strange state—barely visible, yet shrouded in obscurity.

Li Huowang walked at the front, dragging his heavy gear. He gripped his knives, ready to charge at the enemy at any moment.

“Is this going to work? Can we really get to another elephant this way?”

Despite his doubts about Zhao Shuangdian’s plan, Li Huowang was determined to give it his all and wait for tangible results.

Until he saw actual proof, everything they said was merely a theory to him, not reality.

To his surprise, the search took much longer than expected.

They still hadn't found anything after about an hour of walking across the desert.

Suddenly, Li Huowang spotted something. He grabbed Zhao Lei's flashlight and shone it on the ground. "Wait!"

Everyone gathered around.

"Look! There are footprints here, and they're ours! We've been walking in circles!"

Zhao Shuangdian pulled her sunglasses down slightly and stared at Li Huowang's face hidden inside his helmet. Her words came slowly and deliberately. "Follow orders."

Li Huowang didn't say anything else. He tossed the flashlight aside and continued walking.

He couldn't understand how circling around outside the elephant would get them inside.

Another hour passed, and Li Huowang began to feel exhausted. Although they were walking slowly, his gear was incredibly heavy.

A gunshot rang out, and Li Huowang's exhaustion dissipated instantly. He turned to see Zhao Shuangdian lower her sniper rifle, which she had previously rested on Ba Shengqing's shoulder.

Li Huowang tightened his grip on his weapons and charged in the direction where the rifle was pointing.

He was shocked to see a vast pool of blood on the ground. Judging by the amount, it appeared as though someone had lost almost all of their blood. However, against all odds, they had somehow managed to escape. It was unbelievable.

Zhao Shuangdian dipped a finger into the blood, then put it in her mouth and tasted it. "They know we're here."

"Be alert. Our enemies are not just on one side. We still don't know from which side they'll attack."

Zhao Shuangdian turned to the girl with the glasses. "Ling, how's it going? Are we close?"

"The elephant is formless--"

Before she could finish her sentence, a bullet shredded her tongue and exited through her mouth.

Her head exploded, and half of her terrified face landed at Li Huowang's feet.

"Get down! They've got an anti-materiel rifle!"

As the girl's headless body fell, everyone except Chen Hongyu immediately dropped to the ground. She was standing in place and channeling her energy.

"Mm... mm...!!" Chen Hongyu, who was concentrating her energy on her dantian, was tackled by Li Huowang.

"Do you want to die?!"

"Let me go! Let me use my power!"

Li Huowang held Chen Hongyu down while cursing Qing Wanglai in his mind for bringing a useless lunatic with them.

"Let her go. She can handle it," Qing Wanglai said calmly. Zhao Shuangdian echoed the command, and Li Huowang finally rolled off Chen Hongyu after a moment of hesitation.

He lay on the ground and watched as she stood up again, curious about how she intended to solve this crisis.

Clack, clack, clack. Multiple flashlights flickered and illuminated Chen Hongyu, making her an easy target in the dark desert.

Gunshots rang as Chen Hongyu levitated while channeling her powers, and she fell to the ground.

"Enemy at eleven o'clock!" Zhao Shuangdian's voice rang out. Everyone with a gun immediately opened fire in that direction.

Once the shooting stopped, they tossed over a red flare, which revealed two corpses in the distance.

Li Huowang looked at Chen Hongyu's lifeless body on the ground. He clenched his teeth in rage as he glared at Zhao Shuangdian and Qing Wanglai. "So this was your plan? To use her as bait?"

“No, she had special abilities. I simply chose to believe in her,”
Qing Wanglai replied with a smile.

Chapter 896 - On The Way

Li Huowang stood frozen in place, his gaze fixed on Qing Wanglai. He trembled, trying his best to suppress his anger.

Qing Wanglai looked so sincere that if Li Huowang hadn't known his true nature, he might have believed him.

Although he had long known that Qing Wanglai was a wolf in sheep's clothing, every time he revealed his true colors, Li Huowang still found himself surprised. Qing Wanglai could use his companions as bait to deal with the enemy without batting an eyelid.

"You... you!" Li Huowang shook his head, trying to say something. In the end, no words came out.

He turned away and approached Chen Hongyu's corpse, her face a mangled mess. He reached out with his trembling hands to lift her body.

"Sister Chen, how could you just die like this? You were the Siming in charge of decay!"

"You can't die! If you die, decay will vanish too..."

Li Huowang couldn't help but think of the Abbess when he saw Chen Hongyu. She was now gone, just like Qian Fu. The sight of someone he had previously chatted with dying like that filled him with pain.

"Enough. Get ready, we're moving on."

Li Huowang felt someone pat him on the shoulder and flung the hand away forcefully. He turned to glare at the person who had tapped him—Zhao Shuangdian.

Zhao Shuangdian didn't offer an explanation. She simply looked at Li Huowang. “What did I tell you before we started? Follow orders, no matter what happens. We don’t have time for grief.”

Li Huowang stared into her eyes and slowly laid Chen Hongyu’s body down. “All of you are the same! You’re just like the others! You’re responsible for Chen Hongyu’s death too!”

Click! Zhao Shuangdian pressed the barrel of her black sniper rifle against Li Huowang’s chest. “Don’t forget what I said earlier. Li Huowang, let me ask you one more time: are you refusing to follow my orders?”

“If you refuse to comply, whether you realize it or not, you’re already one of them.”

As she spoke, her team coldly looked at Li Huowang and surrounded him. This included the two men they had recently met as well as the Ba siblings.

Li Huowang gritted his teeth and gripped his knives’ handles tightly.

As the tension peaked, Qing Wanglai stepped in and positioned himself between Li Huowang and Zhao Shuangdian.

He smiled, patting Li Huowang on the shoulder as he guided him out of the encirclement.

“Li Huowang, this won’t work. It’s alright if you offend me, but if you offend Zhao Shuangdian, you won’t have any friends left.”

Qing Wanglai’s voice was filled with sincerity. “I remember you once said we’re friends, right? So, as a friend, could you do me a favor?”

“Who the hell is friends with you?”

Qing Wanglai remained calm in the face of Li Huowang’s temper. He smiled and said, “Just don’t oppose Zhao Shuangdian for now. Let’s work together to get through this crisis. Once we’re back, we can think about dealing with her.”

Li Huowang coldly mulled over Qing Wanglai’s words for a moment. Then, he shoved him aside and wordlessly returned to the group.

The others saw the change in his attitude, and they dispersed back to their previous positions as if nothing had changed. Only Chen Hongyu remained lying lifelessly on the ground.

“Sister Zhao, I checked the two dead bodies over there. They’re poachers,” said a bearded man carrying a heavy-looking gun as he returned from the distance.

“Poachers? Using anti-tank weapons to poach?”

Li Huowang’s question went unanswered. Zhao Shuangdian knelt on one knee and quickly typed on the laptop resting on the ground. “We’re close, just a bit further.”

Li Huowang silently walked up behind her and peered at the screen, where a blue 3D wireframe map rapidly shifted with each keystroke.

Zhao Shuangdian closed the tablet and stood up. “We need to move quickly before their reinforcements catch up.”

“Which way do we go?” Qing Wanglai asked.

Zhao Shuangdian didn’t respond. Instead, she looked at Li Huowang.

“Why are you looking at me? How the hell would I know which way to go?”

“You do know. I have told you that you’re special. Lead the way.”

Her words drew the attention of everyone present.

Li Huowang found the situation absurd. “I don’t even know where we are! How am I supposed to lead you anywhere?”

“You don’t need to know. Just trust your instincts.”

Zhao Shuangdian’s reply left Li Huowang speechless. He thought the others would reject this ridiculous idea, but none of them objected.

“I must have been out of my mind to have trusted you all,” Li

Huowang muttered, stepping into the dark unknown. The rest of the group followed closely behind.

In the pitch-black desert, Li Huowang could only trust his instincts and keep walking. Whether he trusted his instincts or not made no difference since he couldn't see a path anyway.

Dawn slowly broke. Despite walking all night, they were still in the same desolate desert. The surrounding landscape hadn't changed at all.

Li Huowang shoved past the others and struggled to remove his helmet, which revealed his sweat-soaked face. "I'm tired! Let's rest for a bit!"

He lay down right where he was without waiting for a response.

Spending a night stumbling in heavy gear had drained him, especially after their exhausting journey to wherever they were.

Wu Qi walked over and handed him a bottle of clear liquid from her medical kit. "Drink this. Don't get dehydrated."

"What is this?"

"Saline solution for cleaning wounds."

Li Huowang gulped it down, not caring about the saltiness. His body felt much better after that.

Li Huowang sighed deeply and looked at Wu Qi with a complicated expression. "Sister Chen Hongyu is dead."

"I know," Wu Qi replied.

She took the bottle from him and drank a large gulp. A hint of sadness appeared on her face as she gently patted Li Huowang's sweat-drenched hair. "It's okay. Don't be afraid."

"Sister Wu, I'm not afraid. I just don't understand them, and I don't understand you either."

"If you can't understand, then don't try to. Just focus on yourself. Empathy can lead to depression."

"Focus on myself...?" Li Huowang muttered.

He took another big swig from the bottle. He looked around at the barren desert and mumbled to himself, “Why is the place where god Yu’er exists so strange? Is this really the elephant where the Simings live?”

Chapter 897 - Decay

After a short rest, Li Huowang lifted his helmet and resumed walking. Whether it was real or not, they were already halfway there, and he had to continue forward.

As the sun rose, the temperature in the desert increased, making it even more unbearable than at night.

Everyone's faces showed signs of exhaustion, exacerbated by the fatigue of not sleeping or eating all night.

Li Huowang pressed forward in this tired state. By this point, the sun was high up in the sky.

Upon noticing something up ahead, Li Huowang and the others stopped. "Is that... Chen Hongyu?"

Li Huowang froze, looking at the familiar figure ahead. A flicker of joy crossed his face. "Could it be true? Does she possess supernatural abilities? Is she really alive?"

Li Huowang quickly rushed over, slowing down as he got closer.

It was indeed Chen Hongyu, but she hadn't come back to life. Her body had begun to decay under the intense heat, with large flies crawling in and out of her facial orifices while devouring her corpse.

After a day and night of decomposition, Chen Hongyu's corpse gave off an overwhelming stench. Although Li Huowang had killed many people, he had never imagined that a corpse could have such a disgusting smell.

The smell was so overwhelming that it was almost like an invisible wall, stopping Li Huowang from getting closer. It infiltrated his nostrils, causing his stomach to churn. It threatened to make him vomit everything inside.

Even with his helmet on, Li Huowang's eyes stung, and tears flowed uncontrollably. He tried to get closer, but he could not do it.

"Hey, madman! What's going on? Why did you bring us back here?" Ba Nanxu raised her pistol and shot Li Huowang in the back of the head.

Li Huowang stumbled forward a few steps and then turned around furiously. "Shoot me again if you dare!"

Ba Nanxu shot him again. "I'm asking you a question. Can you do this or not?"

"You're asking for it!" Li Huowang charged at Ba Nanxu while the others quickly grabbed him and pulled him back.

Smack! A loud slap echoed as Zhao Shuangdian hit Ba Nanxu across the face. "Don't cause trouble."

Ba Nanxu paused briefly, then tilted her head and chuckled. She stuck out her forked tongue and licked the air in the direction of Zhao Shuangdian before taking a step back.

Zhao Shuangdian ignored her and walked to Li Huowang. "Ignore her. I believe in you. You are the most special one. Keep searching."

Li Huowang paused for a brief moment, silently paying his respects to the lifeless body of Chen Hongyu. Then, he walked around her, determined to leave some marks behind to prevent himself from going in circles again.

After a few steps, he stopped abruptly. If the Siming of Decay had died, why hadn't decay disappeared?

Li Huowang suddenly turned back, rushing toward Chen Hongyu while enduring the overwhelming stench. As he drew near, a cloud of flies rose from her body.

He looked up at the swarm of flies in the air and laughed. "I knew it! I knew it!"

"Li Huowang! What are you doing? Come back!"

"Get away from there! Breathing in too much of that stench can cause a lung infection!”

He ignored their shouts and focused entirely on the movement of the flies. While most of the flies returned to Chen Hongyu’s body, a few veered towards the east.

“I found it! Let’s go! Decay hasn’t disappeared yet!”

With Li Huowang in pursuit, the flies flew even faster.

Everyone ran behind Li Huowang for a long time, almost exhausting their stamina before he finally stopped.

He stood at the edge of a shallow depression, watching two flies disappear into a hole in the ground.

The opening was just big enough for someone to crouch and crawl inside.

“We’ve found the way into the elephant.”

Once everyone had caught their breath, they prepared their weapons and entered.

The desert heat was intense, but it felt cool and refreshing inside the cave. In fact, some shade-loving plants and mushrooms were even growing in the corners.

The cave showed signs of human construction. It resembled a tunnel, though narrower than typical ones.

After quickly inspecting the structure, Qing Wanglai said, “This is probably part of an ancient Karez water system. It collapsed over time, which exposed the opening.”

“What’s your point?”

“Nothing, just explaining the technical information about the projection in this environment. While Karez tunnels are generally not wide, they can extend over very long distances. A single tunnel can even be comparable in size to multiple football fields. We should be prepared for enemies.”

Li Huowang did not pay any attention to their conversation. He spotted a gray rat crawl along the wall and couldn’t help but smile. His earlier negative emotions faded away.

Suddenly, a squeaking sound echoed through the tunnel from the direction where the rat had disappeared. Li Huowang's heart sank, and he charged into the darkness. "Light a flare!"

A red flare illuminated the dark tunnel. Li Huowang was already in motion, lunging toward a shadowy figure with his military knife.

A black umbrella came from the shadows and blocked his knife, sending sparks flying.

Li Huowang was about to counterattack when gunfire erupted and forced him back.

He looked at the figures emerging from the darkness and shouted back, "What are you waiting for? Help me!"

"Help with what?" Qing Wanglai asked, puzzled.

"What do you mean? Can't you see them? There are so many of them! Are you all blind?"

"No, we can't see anything."

Li Huowang turned around in shock and noticed the bewilderment on their faces. "You guys can't see them? You really can't see them? Could it be..."

As the realization dawned on him, the shadowy figures disappeared into the darkness.

Li Huowang paced back and forth while he panted heavily. He occasionally slammed his fist against his helmeted head.

The image of the swarm of flies and the gray rat flashed repeatedly in his mind. He felt a wave of suppressed anger and sorrow growing inside him.

Finally, Li Huowang stopped in his tracks. He raised his head and smashed it against the wall. "I knew it! I told you I wasn't okay, but you insisted I was! I'm insane! How could I lead anyone anywhere?!"

Chapter 898 - Contact

In the dim underground culvert^[1] of the Karez system, Qing Wanglai reached out to catch the dust that gently fell from above due to the vibrations. The unstable structure made everyone feel uneasy.

Qing Wanglai tried to calm Li Huowang, who was hysterically banging his head against the wall. “Li Huowang, you’d better stop. We don’t know how old this Karez system is. If you collapse this culvert, we’ll all get buried here.”

Li Huowang suddenly froze in place like a statue. It wasn’t because of Qing Wanglai’s words. It was because Zhao Shuangdian pressed a finger to her lips.

Zhao Shuangdian hushed him, and the noise gradually died down.

She seemed to have noticed something. His heart started to race as he became confident that she had unearthed something beyond his hallucinations.

Ba Nanxu saw Zhao Shuangdian crouch down silently and immediately threw herself over. She kneeled on the ground and used her back and hips to support the rifle.

Zhao Shuangdian stared into the pitch-black culvert ahead for a long time before suddenly pulling the trigger.

Bang! Blood appeared to seep out from the distant darkness.

Was I right? Could it be that what happened earlier wasn’t entirely my hallucination?

Li Huowang felt a surge of joy at the possibility, motivating him to charge forward. The gunfire behind him didn’t slow him down—it spurred him to move even faster.

When he emerged from the darkness again, he grabbed a terrified black man with both hands. “Can you all see him? Can you see him now? Is this man real or just another of my hallucinations?”

Everyone nodded, acknowledging that they could see the man. Li Huowang burst into laughter before raising his knife and stabbing it into the man’s neck.

As Li Huowang yanked the knife out of the man’s neck, a chunk of his trachea still clinging to it, a powerful force suddenly struck him from behind and sent him flying.

The force was so strong that Li Huowang was launched into the air. He saw the uneven ground below and knew that if he hit the ground, he would sustain serious injuries.

Li Huowang didn’t want to get injured right after finding the enemy. He used all his strength to position the corpse beneath him as he fell.

Thud! Li Huowang landed heavily on the corpse, its face and skin grinding onto the rough ground below.

Li Huowang panted as he stood back up and returned to the side of his comrades. Everyone focused ahead, and more people began to emerge from the darkness.

They were human and primarily black people. They all held various firearms, though many of them were injured, likely from the earlier confrontation.

At the forefront was a towering black man. He looked at the body of his fallen comrade with a hint of restrained anger. Instead of lashing out, he furrowed his brow and looked at Li Huowang. “Nafurahi kukuona[2].”

Qing Wanglai stepped forward past Li Huowang, smiling as he replied, “Jumbo na gomvi maridhawa[3].”

The man’s expression softened slightly since Qing Wanglai could communicate. He stepped closer and continued, “Rafiki, mungu wetu na mfalme wetu[4].”

The next moment, Qing Wanglai raised his hand and shot the man in the head. The element of surprise had allowed him to get rid of their leader.

“Nye[5]!” Furious shouts erupted as the enemy raised their weapons.

Without hesitation, Qing Wanglai turned and hid behind Li Huowang, pushing him forward with both hands.

“Get out of the way!” Li Huowang kicked backward, using the momentum to charge forward with his knife.

Li Huowang’s sharp blade sliced through flesh. Sensing the vibration of the blade, he slid it to the joint and cut off the enemy’s arm with a resounding crack.

As he saw a heavy weapon aimed at him from afar, he roared and used his knives to impale the man. Li Huowang used him as a shield and advanced on the others.

Gunfire erupted, and Li Huowang’s human shield was quickly torn into shreds. He had crouched just in time to dodge the attack.

Li Huowang gripped his knife and hurled it at the shooter, hitting them with pinpoint accuracy.

It wasn’t over yet. He couldn’t let that weapon fall into enemy hands. His bulletproof vest wouldn’t stop that kind of firepower.

As Li Huowang was about to charge forward and clear a path, a dark object rolled to his feet.

A grenade?! Li Huowang lifted his right foot and kicked it away.

Before it could get far, a massive explosion shook the ground.

Li Huowang bore the brunt of the blast since he was the closest to it. If it weren’t for his equipment, he might have died.

Even so, when the dust settled, he found himself buried in debris, with only one hand exposed.

In the darkness, he felt someone pat his hand to signal him to stay calm. After a while, his surroundings lit up as he was rescued from beneath the rubble. He finally felt a sense of camaraderie as he watched his companions work together to clear the debris from him.

“Are you okay? Can you hear me? Li Huowang, how many fingers am I holding up?” Wu Qi’s face swayed before him while his head buzzed.

Li Huowang turned around and looked at the collapsed culvert, now filled with rubble. There were no more enemies in sight.

The buzzing in Li Huowang’s head subsided a bit, and he could hear Qing Wanglai’s voice nearby.

Qing Wanglai said, “They intentionally did this to block our way and prevent us from getting closer.”

He took out a compass from his pocket and shook it briefly. “But it’s fine. This will only delay us. Karez systems are long, with access points at various intervals. If we follow this direction, we’ll find another entrance.

“Alright, let’s not waste any more time. Judging by their reaction, we’ve found the right place.”

Li Huowang, lying on the ground, suddenly reached out and grabbed Qing Wanglai’s ankle tightly. “Three Pure Ones! I’ve been meaning to ask you this for a while. How come you speak their language? Are you close to them?”

Chapter 899 - Culvert

Qing Wanglai chuckled and adjusted the bridge of his glasses with one of his fingers. “It’s a secret.”

Qing Wanglai and Wu Qi helped Li Huowang stand up.

“You can communicate with them, so why not try to negotiate and make peace? What do they want? Or do you have some other purpose?”

“If things were that simple, I would’ve done it long ago. It’s too late now. After what happened before, there’s no way for us to coexist peacefully.”

Just then, Wu Qi glanced at Qing Wanglai. “Be careful, his ribs are broken.”

“It’s fine. This wasn’t from the rocks—it was from being smashed by a lunatic earlier. I can walk by myself.” Li Huowang pushed them away forcefully and staggered along with the others to leave the area.

Although Li Huowang was injured, he seemed more composed than before. He now knew that not everything he had seen was a hallucination. Chen Hongyu hadn’t died—she was now another kind of existence.

Li Huowang began to notice a pattern emerging, albeit vaguely. Certain aspects of these peoples’ worldviews were untrue, while others held true to reality.

For example, Qing Wanglai’s projection theory had been confirmed in Chen Hongyu’s case.

Li Huowang quickened his pace, bent down, and picked up a fat, gray rat lying on the moss. “Are you okay?”

The shockwave left it stunned, but it was still alive.

Li Huowang placed it on his shoulder and walked out, ignoring the hushed comments coming from behind.

They returned to the hot desert, with Qing Wanglai taking the lead this time. Fortunately, the paths he had mentioned earlier were there. After about an hour of traveling toward the collapsed area, a dark wellhead came into view.

“The collapse should be about a kilometer away. If we enter from here, we won’t be blocked,” Qing Wanglai said, slipping the compass into his pocket.

He continued, “There’s just one problem. We don’t know if those people are waiting to ambush us below. So, we need someone to scout ahead.”

The well was deep and dark, and its interior was completely unknown.

Everyone looked at each other, and eventually, all eyes fell on Li Huowang.

“Why me? Do I have ‘sucker’ written on my face?”

Qing Wanglai said, “Li Huowang, this isn’t just for everyone else—it’s also for yourself. Your gear is better than ours, and if you help us, I’ll agree to do one thing for you—anything within my power.”

“Sorry, I don’t buy into empty promises. If you want to be fair, let’s draw lots.”

Li Huowang had lost all trust in them, having witnessed how they manipulated Chen Hongyu. While thinking about this, he glanced down at the rat he was holding. It had woken up and was sniffing around.

He gently stroked the rat’s head, but a look of panic suddenly crossed his face.

He hurried over to Zhao Lei and lifted the rat to his face. “Can you see this? Tell me, can you see this rat?”

Zhao Lei jumped back, startled. “Yes, I see it! I see it! Li Huowang, what’s gotten into you? You’re acting crazier and crazier!”

“If you can see it, I know it’s not a hallucination,” Li Huowang said, gently patting the rat’s head and taking a long breath.

He paused for a second before walking over to Qing Wanglai and Zhao Shuangdian, who were discussing their next steps.

“I can go down and scout the path, but there’s something I’ll need you to do for me when we return.”

“What is it?” Zhao Shuangdian asked.

“I need you to help me get the prescription meds Yi Donglai gave me regularly.”

Li Huowang knew he couldn’t continue like this, confusing reality with hallucinations.

If he was genuinely ill, he needed to keep taking his medications. Although they wouldn’t cure him, they could at least help stabilize his condition and prevent further hallucinations.

Qing Wanglai and Zhao Shuangdian exchanged glances and nodded. “Alright.”

Li Huowang wasted no time. He headed straight to the well.

He placed his feet against the sides of the well and peered into the pitch-black darkness below. A cold wind whistled up from within, adding to the sense of danger.

“Light a flare.”

As he reached out to take the flare stick, the rat in his hand suddenly wriggled free and leaped into the darkness below.

Li Huowang tried to stop it. However, the rat had already disappeared into the darkness.

After a brief pause, Li Huowang shouted, “Sister Chen! How’s it down there? Are there any ambushes?”

Faint squeaking echoed up from the depths. Li Huowang relaxed his legs and swiftly descended.

As soon as he landed, he raised the flare stick high. The bright red light illuminated everything around him.

Li Huowang scanned the surroundings, finding no trace of any enemies. He waved the flare stick, signaling for the rest of the group to descend.

While waiting for them, Li Huowang said, "Sister Chen, thank you. You don't need to help me next time. I can handle it myself."

At that moment, Wu Qi climbed down the rope and looked at Li Huowang with concern. "Who are you talking to?"

Li Huowang shook his head and did not offer any explanation. He knew that no one would believe him anyway.

"Stay on high alert," said Zhao Shuangdian, taking the lead. "We have already alerted the enemy, so they will be on high alert now."

Li Huowang had believed their side had the advantage, but now it seemed like they were walking into a death trap. "Are you sure there are enough of us? It looks like they have way more people."

Zhao Shuangdian shook her head. "They're not as strong as you think, and we're not as weak as you think. Last time, we hurt them badly. They're scared now."

She turned to Li Huowang. "There's no need to force yourself to understand me. It's fine. You can interpret things through your own worldview.

"Whether it's the elephant's tusk or leg, both are parts of the same elephant. Everything is interconnected.

"However you perceive me in your world, that's exactly what I am."

Li Huowang looked at her delicate profile. "I'd like to know, but right now, I really don't understand what kind of Siming you are."

The culvert grew quieter as they advanced. They even switched off their flashlights, moving forward in complete darkness to avoid detection.

After about half an hour, the air became thick with the acrid smell of burning metal and chemicals. The stench was unbearable, even through Li Huowang's helmet.

Qing Wanglai's soft voice reached his ears. "That's the smell of methamphetamine. We're almost there."

Chapter 900 - Fight

Li Huowang panted heavily, his breath causing the bulletproof glass to repeatedly fog up and then quickly dissipate.

The air in the culvert was stagnant. Li Huowang felt increasingly irritated, especially after walking for so long with nothing to show for it.

“That smell in the air is getting stronger. Qing Wanglai, what was that thing you mentioned earlier?”

Qing Wanglai didn't answer Li Huowang's question. He gripped his gun and stood behind Li Huowang as if he were a human shield.

“Shh... We're almost there...” Zhao Shuangdian walked past Li Huowang, deliberately lowering her voice as she spoke.

Her fingers rapidly moved across the keys of her laptop as if she were playing the piano. Only she could understand whatever was displayed on her screen.

After walking through the chilly tunnel for about twenty more minutes, Zhao Shuangdian abruptly extended her hand and snatched Zhao Lei's crossbow. She aimed the weapon into the darkness ahead.

The sound of metal tore through the air. There was no immediate movement, but Li Huowang knew something had died in the dark.

They approached slowly and illuminated the area with their flashlights, revealing a man lying beside the tunnel with a bolt through his neck. A large iron door protruded from the wall beside him.

This man had been guarding the door, but Zhao Shuangdian had taken him out before he could raise the alarm.

“Shh...” Li Huowang stepped forward and pulled the door open a crack.

Bright light poured out from the crack, making it hard for him to keep his eyes open after being in the dark for so long. Once his eyes adjusted, he was stunned by the sight of an empty factory within.

There was a factory beneath this desolate desert. This was something he hadn't expected.

The area had been completely hollowed out, creating a space approximately the size of half a soccer field. Various items were scattered haphazardly throughout, with bags of raw materials, jars, and freezers being the most numerous among them.

In the distance, there was a railway track with several minecarts parked on it, suggesting it had been used for transporting goods.

Li Huowang couldn't tell what this factory produced. However, he felt a sense of familiarity, as if he had seen a similar scene on television before.

He quickly pieced everything together. This place had been used to produce drugs, and these people were drug lords. It explained why the sentry outside was armed with an anti-material rifle.

The factory seemed to be closed. Black-masked workers frantically loaded goods onto the minecarts while armed men paced nervously and shouted orders.

It was evident that the earlier disturbance had alarmed them.

Li Huowang quickly counted the people and was startled to see at least one or two hundred of them. He knew that his group was no match for such a large number.

The others had also seen what was happening through the crack of the door. Without hesitation, Zhao Shuangdian said, "See that generator? That's their power source. On my count, fire at it."

Her tone was calm. It was as if she had anticipated this, even though the enemy outnumbered them ten to one.

“What’s the point of charging in? We’re sending ourselves to our deaths. Didn’t you see their firepower?” Li Huowang whispered. He knew that they were outmatched in every way.

When Zhao Shuangdian mentioned a counter-attack, he initially thought the two sides would be somewhat evenly matched. But now, it was clear that the enemy far outclassed them.

With their current group, they could not win against so many Simings. To have a chance, they needed to bring reinforcements from the Simings in the Baiyu Capital.

“Remember what I said earlier? Let me ask you again.” Zhao Shuangdian’s chilling voice emerged from behind. “Are you refusing to follow my orders, Li Huowang?”

Li Huowang stared intently at Zhao Shuangdian, carefully studying her expression. He could tell that she was being sincere and not joking around.

Does she have some hidden trump card I don’t know about? It made sense. While she may not value his life, she couldn’t be reckless with her own.

Even more surprisingly, Qing Wanglai hadn’t objected to such a crazy order.

“Fine, if you’re willing to die, I’ll be happy to dig the graves,” Li Huowang muttered. He stepped aside to allow more guns to point through the door.

“4, 3, 2, 1!” A rapid burst of gunfire filled the air, causing the once vibrant light behind the door to dim instantly. Li Huowang quickly kicked the door open and charged in.

In the pitch-black darkness, Li Huowang couldn’t tell friends from foes. Still, he knew that his allies were all behind him, which meant that anyone in front of him had to be an enemy.

Whenever he ran into someone in the dark, he decisively stabbed them in the heart.

Gunfire suddenly broke out from his left, and a series of bullets painfully struck his vest.

“Take action! What are you standing around for?!” Li Huowang shouted.

The gunfire intensified, surrounding him from all sides. He felt like he was in the middle of a storm of bullets.

At the moment, the darkness had become Li Huowang’s shield, offering him some protection from the barrage of bullets flying all around.

Just as Li Huowang was wreaking havoc, a sharp pain exploded in his back, sending him stumbling to the ground.

He struggled to his feet and looked around at the chaotic scene. The darkness that protected him also concealed the enemy, and he had no idea what had hit him.

He cautiously touched his back and discovered a slight depression. It felt as if he had been struck by a blunt weapon, which his bulletproof vest failed to stop.

Since he couldn’t see anything, he decided not to bother. If he couldn’t see the enemy, they couldn’t see him either.

He crouched down and slashed at any legs he encountered. Every time they screamed and fell, he’d follow up with a knife to silence them.

He wasn’t attacked with any blunt weapons again, suggesting his strategy was working.

The battle had descended into chaos—everyone was killing blindly, unable to see or know who they were killing.

The sharp sound of glass shattering echoed. Moments later, Li Huowang’s mind felt hazy.

It wasn’t just him. He could hear the sounds of people collapsing around him. Fortunately, his helmet slowed the effects.

He reached out and touched a broken test tube. He immediately realized that Qing Wanglai had thrown in some anesthetic gas.

He had thrown it in without waiting for Li Huowang to move out of the way, aiming to knock out as many people as possible.

“Damn!” Li Huowang fought to stay conscious. Li Huowang ripped off his helmet and drove his military knife into his shoulder blade, using the pain to stay awake.

Chapter 901 - Big

The intense pain jolted Li Huowang back to a state of partial consciousness, but it wasn't sufficient. As the anesthetic took hold, the pain slowly diminished.

He stumbled backward, faintly hearing Wu Qi's voice. Finally, his consciousness slipped away, and he collapsed to the ground.

Li Huowang had no idea how much time had passed, but he gradually regained awareness. The flickering lights on the ceiling made him realize he was still in the factory, and the quiet surroundings indicated that everything was over.

The pain in his head was so intense that Li Huowang could barely lift his hand to touch it, feeling as if his skull might crack open.

"Here, drink some water. Don't worry—this is just a side effect. It'll pass soon," Wu Qi said, helping him up.

"Is it over? Did we win?" Li Huowang turned to see corpses lying around in disarray.

"They escaped, but Zhao Shuangdian said we accomplished our objective. It's time to retreat."

"Retreat?" Li Huowang looked at the others. They were draining the engine oil from the machines and pouring it over everything in the factory. It seemed that they were preparing to set it all ablaze.

Li Huowang had many questions that he wanted to ask Zhao Shuangdian. However, now wasn't the time for questions. He probably wouldn't get any answers now.

With Wu Qi's help, he stood up and retreated into the dark culvert. "Since it's over, let's get out of here."

Li Huowang didn't fully understand what this place translated to. Based on his experience, this underground factory was likely similar to the Baiyu Capital, and the people they had encountered were the Simings in charge of this place.

However, the more he thought about it, the less sense it made. God Yu'er is very powerful, so how come the Simings on its side were so weak? They couldn't even take down a small group like this.

Am I wrong? Could they have torn down the Baiyu Capital? Li Huowang pondered while they retreated further into the darker part of the canal.

Wu Qi propped Li Huowang against the wall and went to help the others.

Li Huowang shook his head violently and glared at Qing Wanglai, who was rummaging through a freezer.

Before he could release his anger, he heard a strange sound coming from the left side of the tunnel. Looking in that direction, he saw many eyes staring at him from the darkness.

Suddenly, a light flickered on. A flashlight rolled across the floor, stopping at Li Huowang's feet and illuminating him—just like what had happened to Chen Hongyu.

"Enemy ambush!" Li Huowang shouted with all his might and threw himself toward the door. At that exact moment, Ba Nanxu flicked a cigarette butt, igniting the factory in flames.

With enemies behind and fire ahead, Li Huowang and the others were trapped.

Li Huowang picked up a helmet, quickly putting it on as the enemies burst through the iron gate.

They were all black people dressed in camouflage uniforms. They erupted in fury at the sight of the burning factory, raising their guns and shouting in a language Li Huowang couldn't understand.

Gunfire erupted, and someone tossed ten grenades toward Li Huowang and his group.

Li Huowang's heart skipped a beat as he watched the black balls of death flying through the air toward him. He was sure he was done for.

Li Huowang lunged forward without hesitation, grabbing two of the grenades before sprinting toward the enemies.

They spotted him holding the grenades and panicked, shooting at him as they retreated toward the door.

Thump! The door slammed shut. Li Huowang looked down at the grenades in his hands and ran toward the door.

As he did, the grenades cracked open, revealing something yellow inside of them.

At that moment, everything came to a standstill. Li Huowang stared in disbelief at the mooncake in his hands, momentarily unable to comprehend what was happening.

"Eat it! This is the result of everyone's hard work," a nurse said, lightly patting Li Huowang on the back.

Li Huowang glanced around at the peaceful break room. Mooncake? White Tower Prison? I'm back here again? What's going on...

Suddenly, he recalled something. He took a bite of the purple yam mooncake and discovered another piece of paper inside. He unrolled the paper and saw the same words as before.

Smack! Li Huowang slapped himself hard across the face. The stinging pain confirmed that this wasn't a dream, and he began to understand something.

Forcing himself to stay calm, he swallowed the paper and headed to the restroom, where he once again saw a person disguised as himself.

Li Huowang found that everything that followed was exactly as he remembered. The rubber gloves were the same, and Yi Donglai questioned him again.

After Li Huowang used the access card to leave White Tower, he immediately got into Ba Nanxu's car. "Take me to Zhao Shuangdian! Hurry!"

"Oh? You in a rush? I thought you'd want to visit your little girlfriend first." Ba Nanxu kicked the driver's seat, making her brother speed up.

Before long, Li Huowang found Zhao Shuangdian at the Bloody Bonfire tattoo parlor again. "What's going on here? Why am I back again?!"

Zhao Shuangdian looked puzzled. "Sorry, I don't know what you're talking about."

Li Huowang suppressed his unease and recounted everything that had happened. Only then could Zhao Shuangdian explain it all.

Zhao Shuangdian looked surprised. "I don't know how you found out, but I did want to recruit you for a counterattack. However, what you're describing doesn't make sense."

She continued, "The timing is off. We acted on February 6, not February 3. According to our calculations, we wouldn't need a flight to reach the other elephant. It's at sea—we would have taken a boat."

"How can this be?!" Li Huowang was utterly shocked. He stumbled back half a step. "No! Something's not right!"

The shock on Li Huowang's face turned into confusion. "This isn't the first time... There was the ship! The Abbess's son really exists! And... there was another time! What was the second time? I forgot! But there was definitely a second time! This is the third!"

His expression twisted into a mix of fury and struggle. He clenched his fists and began to pound his head, trying to force out the details he had missed.

"Big... big...[\[1\]](#)."

Zhao Shuangdian watched Li Huowang with great interest. "The elephant is formless?"

Li Huowang shook his head violently and rejected that idea.

Then, his eyes suddenly lit up.

“No! That’s not it! It’s not the formless elephant—it’s the Grand Siming! There are no boundaries! I finally get it!

“There is no before or after! It’s all happening at the same time! The reason you changed the plan now isn’t because that place doesn’t exist anymore—it’s because we have already destroyed it in another timeline! That factory! That factory was the projection of the Siming!

“We destroyed the factory, so everything about it—its related time and history—has been erased! Everyone forgot, except for me! Just like the last two times!”

1. In Chinese, “elephant” (大象 dàxiàng) begins with the character 大 (dà), which means “big” 🐘

Chapter 902 - Fake Skill

“Father, a little more to the left? Is it straight now?” Li Sui asked, extending a tentacle. She tilted her head and followed the instructions from behind while pasting the spring couplets on the wall.

The aroma of meat in the air and the distant crackling of firecrackers brought a joyful smile to Li Sui’s face. She loved the lively atmosphere, and the New Year was the most exciting time of the year for her. Celebrating it brought her immense joy.

“Suisui, can you recognize all the characters in the couplet?”

She felt her mother gently stroke her head and nodded proudly. “Yes! I recognize all of them!”

“Really? That’s impressive. Then tell me, what do the characters in the couplet say?”

“The upper line says: ‘Wealth flourishes in a prosperous place.’

“The lower line says: ‘Blessings shine upon the home, to bring fortune and glory!’”

“Very good. And what about the horizontal inscription?”

“The horizontal inscription says, ‘May all wishes come true!’”

“You’re amazing, Suisui.” Li Sui squinted her eyes joyfully as her mother hugged her from behind.

“But Suisui, isn’t the horizontal inscription a little crooked?”

“Is it crooked?” Li Sui took a few steps back and carefully examined the horizontal plaque beneath the inscription.

After observing it thoughtfully for a while, she still couldn’t find any signs of the red inscription being crooked. “Mother, it’s not crooked. Father, do you think it’s crooked?”

However, there was no response.

“Father? Mother?” Li Sui called out in confusion, turning around to find no one behind her. Nobody was there, and at some point, the smell of meat and the sound of firecrackers had completely vanished.

She saw two figures, one dressed in white and the other in red, gradually walking away in the distance. Li Sui panicked and struggled to run toward them. “Father! Mother! Where are you going?”

However, no matter how fast Li Sui ran, the figures only seemed to get further away.

As Li Sui’s desperation grew, her human form began to crumble. More than ten tentacles emerged as she transformed and rapidly moved towards them.

“Father! Mother! Please don’t leave me! I promise I’ll be good! I won’t make you angry anymore!”

No matter how fast she ran, the figures in the distance stayed just out of reach, eventually disappearing at the far end of the road.

Li Sui finally collapsed. She stumbled to the ground, where she sat and sobbed uncontrollably.

As she cried, she slowly woke up and glanced tearfully around the cave. She realized it had all been a dream.

Several days had passed since she had fallen from the sky, and she still hadn’t found the You Capital.

Li Sui couldn’t hold back her sorrow and cried loudly once more.

However, crying wouldn’t change anything, and she needed to complete her journey. Half an hour later, Li Sui emerged from the stone cave and continued along the path toward You Capital.

She wasn’t sure if she was going the right way, as the road seemed to split off in many directions.

More importantly, a lot of time had passed. She wondered how her father was doing. Li Sui didn’t know if he still needed Dragon Qi or if she would make it in time.

After several hours of walking, the small path gradually expanded into a wider road, and Li Sui continued on.

She caught wild animals in the forest to satisfy her hunger and quench her thirst. Two days later, she finally arrived in a town.

Li Sui looked around curiously at the bustling town. In the past, she would have run around excitedly and joined in the fun, but now her mind was occupied with other thoughts.

“I wonder how much farther I have to go. I need a map.

“Should I buy a cart like Father did? Walking is so tiring, but I don’t have any money.

“Good thing I didn’t throw away those animal pelts. I should be able to trade them for some money.” Li Sui reached inside her skirt, where she had secured some animal pelts with several tentacles.

She wore the skin of a woman, allowing her to wear a skirt and carry more things.

Li Huowang had always been the one making decisions for her in the past, but it was time for Li Sui to take charge and make her own choices. She decided to follow his example.

As she walked, she noticed a crowd gathering ahead. She tiptoed to peek at the scene and saw a few shirtless men performing with spears and staffs.

A gong echoed as a boy around eleven circled the crowd. He banged the gong, flipping around and shouting.

“A little gong spins round and round! Friends from all around! From the south to the north, from the east to the west, we’ve wandered everywhere, and now we’ve come to Luoshan! Dear audience, it is said that mere talk is cheap, so today, we’ll show you our true skills! Witness the feat of breaking a stone upon flesh!”

Soon, a long bench was placed in the center of the performance area. A strong man lay down on it while two others placed a large stone on his stomach. An old man raised a hammer and approached him eagerly.

“Hey-yah!” The hammer began crashing down onto the stone.

The shocking scene caused some young women in the crowd to close their eyes in fear.

The stone shattered with a crack, but the man underneath was unharmed. The crowd erupted in cheers.

Feeding off the crowd’s excitement, the performers launched into their acts—breathing fire, swallowing swords, and walking on tightropes. Each feat drew a round of applause.

Li Sui had initially planned to leave, but she was still a child at heart. She became engrossed in the performances and forgot about everything else.

The performers worked tirelessly, putting on a performance that captivated the crowd. The bearded old man sensed the atmosphere was right and signaled to the young boy.

The boy lay down reluctantly on the ground and turned his palm upward.

The old man stepped on his hand while the boy straightened his legs. He screamed as his hand was twisted and dislocated.

The boy ignored the pain, grabbing a bowl and begging for tips from the crowd while dragging his dislocated hand along.

Once the collection started, the crowd began to disperse quickly. Only a few compassionate souls remained and tossed a few coins into the bowl.

When the bowl reached Li Sui, she thought momentarily and placed a rabbit skin into it.

She lingered, hoping to ask the performers for directions. Their show had stirred memories of the Lu Family Troupe, making her feel oddly at home.

She remembered her father had once asked the Lu Family Troupe for directions. They were well-traveled and knowledgeable.

However, unlike the Lu Family Troupe, this group of performers did not include any women.

Chapter 903 - Same Path

Li Sui observed the performers closely, and they returned her gaze. Their eyes widened in astonishment—they had never encountered a girl of such striking beauty.

“What are you looking at? Never seen a woman?” The old man flicked each of them on the head.

After glancing at the bronze coins resting in the bowl, the old man grabbed the boy’s shoulder, giving it a twist before reattaching his hand. “Let’s step out of the city. Despite our efforts, we barely made enough for a meal.”

They packed up their belongings and drove their cart out of the city gate, only to notice Li Sui following closely behind them.

The younger men in the group immediately became restless, wondering if the girl had taken a liking to one of them.

The old man kicked them swiftly and pushed them aside. He clasped his hands respectfully toward Li Sui. “Miss, you’ve seen the performance. It’s getting late, so you should hurry back home before your family starts to worry.”

At the mention of family, Li Sui’s expression dimmed slightly. “Grandpa, is this road the way to the You Capital?”

“Yes, it is. However, there are a few forks in the road along the way. It’s not far, but it would take about ten days on foot. Miss, you’re traveling empty-handed. I’m afraid you might not make it,” Chen Bin said before continuing on with his apprentices.

But soon after, he saw the girl following them again. “Are you also heading to You Capital? Can I go with you? I’m afraid I’ll take the wrong path.”

“Sure, sure! We’re going to You Capital too! It’s on the way!” Several young men, around eighteen years old, responded eagerly.

“What do you mean’ sure”? Are you the master now?” Chen Bin said, then solemnly clasped his hands again toward Li Sui. “Miss, it’s improper for men and women to travel together. The road is long, and if you need to go to You Capital, it’s better to travel with your family or hire guards for protection.”

Chen Bin was not as lustful as his apprentices. It was too unusual for a pretty young girl to want to follow this group of men. There had to be a catch somewhere.

“But I can’t find my family...” Li Sui’s voice trailed off as she looked down. The young men felt their hearts ache, and they stumbled over their words as they rushed to comfort her.

Their sympathy was of no use. Chen Bin pushed them aside, grabbed the rabbit pelt she had given them earlier, and offered it to Li Sui with a bow. Without saying another word, he hurriedly led his apprentices away.

They ran for two hours straight and only stopped when the sky began to darken.

“Master, wasn’t that a bit much?” Lin Qishan, the fourth apprentice, asked while wiping the sweat from his chin.

“Better safe than sorry. It’s always best to be cautious. Something feels off with that girl. Anyway, start the fire and cook dinner.”

Dinner wasn’t much. There were just some coarse grain buns and a pot of wild vegetable soup. The only real flavor came from a small jar of vinegar, but even that was rationed carefully.

Each person was only allowed seven dips with their chopsticks. That was Chen Bin’s rule.

They couldn’t afford to let the boys eat too much. If they were allowed to eat freely, the vinegar wouldn’t last a single day.

As they were eating, the youngest apprentice wandered to the edge of the forest to relieve himself, still chewing on his bun.

As soon as he reached the forest, he let out a bloodcurdling scream, much louder than when his hand had been dislocated earlier.

Everyone immediately dropped what they were doing. They grabbed their weapons and rushed over.

“What happened? What is it?” Chen Bin asked. The boy pointed a trembling finger toward the dark forest. Chen Bin threw his torch in that direction.

They all froze at the sight before them. The girl, who had asked for directions, now stood in the forest as she held a bloody lump of flesh in her hands. She gently squeezed it while she took small bites from it.

Li Sui’s cheeks were puffed up. She wiped the blood at her lips with the back of her hand and pleaded, “I didn’t mean to follow you, but I really do have something important to do in You Capital. It’s safer to travel together. If we run into any demons on the road, I can help fight them off.”

Chen Bin opened his mouth but was at a loss for words. His hands trembled as he reached into his pocket.

“Please?” Li Sui took a step forward. Seeing this, Chen Bin clenched his teeth and pulled out a string of something, raising it high in the air.

It was a string of bronze coins, a protective artifact passed down from his grandfather to ward off evil.

As Li Sui’s gaze fell upon the bronze coins, memories of her father and the bronze coin sword he always carried on his back flooded her mind. Tears welled up in her eyes.

As she burst into sobs, Chen Bin and his apprentices collapsed to the ground in fear. Lin Qishan, the most quick-witted of them, threw himself flat on the ground and kowtowed. “Deity, please spare me! Don’t eat me!”

After a while, under Li Sui’s tearful pleading, Chen Bin readily agreed to let her travel with them.

He didn't even bother to pack up the pot or let anyone sleep. They hitched the horses and set off under the moonlight, trembling with fear as they led the way, with Li Sui following behind.

As daylight broke, they would have stopped to rest under normal circumstances, but Chen Bin didn't dare. The image of that bloody lump of flesh haunted his mind. He feared they might end up as the next meal she stuffed into her mouth.

"Master, we shouldn't go this way. Isn't this Kai Shanbao's territory? We could be robbed if we pass through here," the eldest apprentice said.

Chen Bin glared at him and then glanced back at the girl, who was staring intently at the protective artifact. He whispered, "That's exactly why we're going this way. Let the wolves fight the tigers. Remember, when they start fighting, we run for our lives!"

Silently cursing his grandfather for the useless artifact, Chen Bin continued on.

Three hours later, a large tree suddenly fell across the road and blocked their path. Several burly men with knives approached them. Chen Bin's heart leaped with hope—this might be their chance!

"This mountain is mine, and this tree I planted! If you want to pass, leave... Huh? This girl is quite something," the bandit leader said as groups of bandits appeared.

They eyed Li Sui with a lecherous grin, who was lost in her memories. When she snapped back to her senses, she saw the man in front of her starting to undress.

She blinked in confusion, then stepped back and waved her hands frantically. "Thank you, but I'm not hungry right now."

Chapter 904 - You Capital

Li Sui sat dejectedly on the belly of a dead horse. She lowered her head and pursed her lips, lost in thought. The corpses of the bandits were scattered haphazardly around her. They had died gruesome deaths.

Chen Bin stood with his troupe of street performers, frozen in terror. At this point, running away was out of the question. They didn't dare move a muscle.

He had miscalculated. The bandits weren't a match for this thing! They couldn't even harm a single strand of her hair. This girl was something otherworldly!

After venting her frustrations, Li Sui turned around and rummaged through the bandits' belongings, collecting any valuables she could find.

"Deity! Let us help you! We'll help!" Chen Bin had now fully surrendered to her power. He had no will left to resist and had completely submitted.

"Thank you."

"Our pleasure!" Chen Bin nervously waved his hands, hoping he and his disciples could be useful enough to avoid being eaten.

"Master, maybe this girl isn't some evil spirit. Why would a demon even need silvers?"

Everyone instinctively turned their eyes toward Li Sui. Just then, Li Sui lifted her skirt, and a few black, fur-covered tentacles slipped out.

The sight caused everyone's faces to pale, and they hurriedly began rummaging through the corpses, desperately searching for money. They were too terrified to think any further.

After a while, Chen Bin nervously held some silver and bronze coins in his trembling hands. He presented them to Li Sui, forcing a fawning smile onto his wrinkled face. "Deity, this is all we found. We wouldn't dare keep a single penny for ourselves. These bandits are here to rob people, so they wouldn't carry too much silver with them."

Li Sui pushed the silver back into Chen Bin's arms and furrowed her brows with determination. "Take me to the You Capital! I need to go there!"

Chen Bin did not dare to refuse and nodded repeatedly. "Of course! To the You Capital! We'll go to the You Capital right away!"

At Li Sui's command, everyone hurried to pack up and set off.

They rushed day and night, reducing a ten-day journey to just seven. Their sole purpose was to escape this deity as soon as possible.

"Deity, look! We've arrived," Chen Bin stammered, his lips pale as he pointed at the bustling city gate with trembling fingers.

Li Sui saw the familiar gates, and her spirits finally lifted. "Wonderful! I can finally see my father!"

After enduring so many grievances throughout this journey, she was determined to pour her heart out the moment she laid eyes on her parents.

"Oh, right! I need to find the Emperor of Great Qi! My father still needs Dragon Qi!" Li Sui shouted before dashing toward the city.

The You Capital was vast and bustling, with shops selling various goods lining both sides of the streets. Li Sui ignored these distractions and headed straight for the imperial city at the center.

Before Li Sui could even approach, a group of people blocked her path. Their clothing differed, but they all wore the badge from the Surveillance Bureau, which Li Sui recognized from playing with her father's badge.

She turned around and saw more people closing in behind her.

They had surrounded her.

A burly soldier stepped forward and spat on the ground before her. “You’ve got guts, coming to the You Capital in broad daylight like this! Do you think we’re here just for show?”

Li Sui had been monitored the moment she entered You Capital.

She hurriedly explained, “Don’t stop me! I have an urgent matter. Is Xuan Pin here? I need to see Xuan Pin.”

“Who the hell is Xuan Pin? Never heard of him!”

Li Sui blinked in confusion for a moment. Xuan Pin was the Chief of the Surveillance Bureau. How could they not know him?

She quickly realized her mistake. Xuan Pin belonged to the Surveillance Bureau of the Great Liang, and this was the Great Qi. It made sense that they didn’t know him.

“Sorry, I misspoke. Let me try again. Is your Chief here? I have urgent business with him. It’s about the Dharma Sect. My father is helping you fight against the Dharma Sect!”

They didn’t care about her explanation. Their weapons and magic artifacts were already flying towards her.

“What are you doing?! I don’t want to fight you! We’re on the same side!” Li Sui cried and dodged the attacks, but she was overwhelmed by their sheer numbers. A silver vajra flew at her with lightning speed and pierced her left arm.

“You’re all bullying me!” Li Sui cried out. Her human form began to split apart as she sobbed. A bloody, dog-like head emerged from beneath her skirt, accompanied by black tentacles that burst out from her clothes and flailed around in all directions.

“Don’t kill her! Keep her alive! We need to find out who she’s spying for!”

The Surveillance Bureau agents replied as they closed in from all sides. “Understood!”

A blind nun was the first to strike. Her whisk swept like a steel hook, instantly severing three of Li Sui's tentacles and spraying blood everywhere.

That was only the beginning. Two burly men dressed in tight-fitting outfits rapidly stretched a dripping black ink line into a massive net, which they then cast over Li Sui.

Li Sui refused to give up. She reached out with her remaining tentacles and attempted to draw symbols on turmeric paper. However, in the distance, a Daoist with a painted face made a hand gesture. All of her talismans burst into flames, reducing them to nothing but ashes.

Li Sui couldn't use her talismans without turmeric paper. She was no match against the soldiers in physical combat, and the situation became desperate in an instant.

The sharp-eyed Surveillance Bureau members sensed her growing weakness. They quickly tightened the encirclement, determined to finish her off.

Whoosh! Her tentacles were sliced off one after another and writhed on the ground.

The pain brought tears to Li Sui's eyes, but the attacks didn't stop even as her tears flowed.

Now that she had no tentacles left, the soldiers stepped forward and formed a Flying Dragon formation to charge at her.

Their killing intent wrapped around their gleaming sabers. They pierced Li Sui's heart, inflicting a chilling pain.

She saw the wall of blades coming toward her and cried desperately. "Get away from me! I want to go home!"

The next moment, something unexpected happened. It was as if the Flying Dragon formation had hit an invisible barrier—it completely broke down, and the soldiers were sent flying.

These were the imperial guards of the royal city. How could their formation be broken so easily?

"Be careful! This demon still has tricks up her sleeve! Don't let your guard down!”

Chapter 905 - Goodbye

Everyone around Li Sui grew tense. A horn rang out in the distance as more soldiers gathered toward them. Everyone started to prepare their trump cards.

A playful, androgynous voice cut in. "Oh, stop it, all of you."

The atmosphere gradually calmed down. The crowd parted, and Li Sui saw a man step forward. He had a round face, appeared to be in his thirties, and was dressed in green silk.

He looked at the injured Li Sui, twirling a strand of hair by his left temple with his finger. "A Black Taisui Strayed One? Oh my, how interesting. You speak so fluently. It's been a thousand years since I've seen something like this."

Although he looked like a man, there was something feminine about him. It reminded Li Sui of the eunuchs in the palace, but this person seemed even more feminine.

"Excuse me... are you a eunuch serving the Emperor? Do you know the Emperor?" Li Sui thought the Emperor of the Great Qi would surely know her father.

The person, who appeared to be neither entirely male nor female, snorted and replied, "Not all androgynous people are eunuchs. When I was six, I did want to enter the palace for work, but they didn't want me because I allegedly wasn't qualified. What could I do? People need to eat, so now I'm just serving as the Chief of the Surveillance Bureau."

"You're the Chief of Great Qi's Surveillance Bureau? Really?" Li Sui became excited. She felt she had finally found someone who could help.

"Please help my father! He's in danger!"

She quickly recounted the entire story to him. The Chief of the Surveillance Bureau hesitated for a moment and studied her closely. It all seemed too strange.

After some time, he glanced at the chaotic streets around him. He pulled a handkerchief from his sleeve to wipe away his nonexistent sweat, then turned down a side alley. "Come with me."

Li Sui quickly followed, trailing behind him through the bustling streets. Eventually, they arrived at a small courtyard. It wasn't large, with only a grape arbor, a rocking chair, and a stone table beneath it.

This place felt exceptionally quiet compared to the streets outside. The Chief of the Surveillance Bureau reclined on the rocking chair, crossed his legs, and squinted as he observed Li Sui carefully, trying to deduce what she truly was.

Could she be lying? How could a Black Taisui know about the Great Liang and speak so clearly about it? But if she was telling the truth, how could her father be helping the Simings? That's even more absurd!

"Can you send me back to Great Liang? Something urgent is happening there, and my father is waiting for me." Li Sui couldn't wait any longer.

"Hold on. You need to explain everything in detail before I can think of a way to help you. Start with the Dharma Sect. Did they really wipe out all of the Great Qi?"

During their brief interaction, the Chief of the Surveillance Bureau recognized Li Sui's naïve nature. He took advantage of this and tried to gather as much information as possible.

"But my father..."

"Your father's in the heavens. What's there to worry about? As the saying goes, one day in heaven is ten years on earth. Relax, I guarantee your father's fine."

Li Sui felt a little more at ease and began to share everything she knew about the Great Qi, the Great Liang, and the Dharma Sect.

The Chief of the Surveillance Bureau couldn't remain calm. If this was all true, it was too bizarre. Yet, the more he asked, the more credible her answers seemed.

Suddenly, he raised his hands and interlaced his fingers. Two white threads appeared between them. He smiled and said, "Li Sui, your face is quite dirty. Let me fix it for you."

The two crisscrossed threads slid swiftly across Li Sui's bloodied dog-like face, slicing off tiny bits of flesh and scabs with precision. The blood-soaked threads were stained red when they were retracted.

The Chief of the Surveillance Bureau collected the threads and thought to himself. Not bad, at least she's not from the Sitting Oblivion Dao. His suspicion eased a little.

"Li Sui, tell me, when the Dharma Sect was causing trouble in Great Qi, what era was it?"

"Era? I don't know. My father never taught me that."

"Hmm... then surely you know the name of the Emperor at the time?"

"Yes, I know that. His name is Gao Zhijian."

"Gao Zhijian? Good name."

The Chief of the Surveillance Bureau began to calculate. After a while, he stopped and furrowed his brow. "Strange. Why can't I calculate anything? Could it be that the name wasn't based on the Eight Characters and Five Elements?"

Li Sui looked around at the serene environment, hesitating briefly. "Sir... may I ask something? The Great Qi was supposedly occupied by god Yu'er. Why is everything back to normal now?"

She had been wondering about this ever since she fell from the sky, but there hadn't anyone to ask until now.

Now that the Great Qi's Chief was before her, she had to ask.

"As for that..." The Chief of the Surveillance Bureau was also a bit puzzled. How could the Great Qi have been destroyed? What kind of Natural Disaster could have caused that?

He continued, “Don’t worry. I’ll fetch the Imperial Preceptor of Great Qi to help save your father.”

Li Sui didn’t have to wait long before an elderly man, donning a Nuo Opera mask, was brought into the courtyard on a wicker chair. The man’s hands were so frail that they resembled bones covered in skin, and his veins were nearly transparent.

Before Li Sui could react, the Imperial Preceptor of Great Qi grabbed her hand, and the Nuo Opera mask was placed over her dog-like face.

Li Sui struggled frantically. After some pulling at the mask, she finally managed to tear it off.

Once she pulled it off, she heard the Imperial Preceptor’s voice. “She’s telling the truth, but it’s not now. It’s three sexagenary cycles from now.”

Li Sui shuddered upon hearing this. She understood what a sexagenary cycle was, having heard Lu Zhuangyuan explain it before. Three cycles equaled 180 years! She was now 180 years in the past...

She didn’t know why or how this had happened. All she knew was that she might never see her father again.

Li Sui was dazed for a long time before slowly gathering herself. She trembled and tried to comfort herself. “It’s fine... as long as my father is okay. I have time. I just need to wait 180 years to see him again.”

As she spoke, tears kept flowing down her face, despite her constant efforts to wipe them off.

Li Sui stared blankly at Li Huowang. He was anxiously shouting at her as she recalled the memories she had nearly forgotten.

“Li Sui! Li Sui! I’m talking to you! Are you even listening?”

“Huh?”

“What do you mean ‘huh’? The sky is practically falling, and you're spacing out!"

Chapter 906 - Intelligence

Li Huowang scratched his head in frustration. He stared at Xuan Pin before him. He had been explaining for a long time, but it seemed like it had all been for nothing. His temper would have flared long ago if this weren't his daughter.

"Suisui, focus! This is no time to be distracted! The leader of Fangxian Sect has already pried open Po Daer's skull!" He walked over and grabbed his daughter's shoulders, shaking her forcefully.

He had gone through all kinds of trouble to travel to the Tianchen Kingdom, and it was all for what was hidden inside Po Daer's skull.

"Is that so? That's great. Let's go then," Xuan Pin replied flatly, as if she were merely going out for a meal.

Xuan Pin had finally come to her senses. Li Huowang hurriedly led her out towards the Surveillance Bureau.

The Surveillance Bureau of the Liang Kingdom operated underground. On every previous visit, Li Huowang feared someone would uncover his true identity as a Strayed One. However, things were completely different now.

As Li Huowang led Li Sui through the streets, everyone they passed bowed their heads and made way for them.

The Surveillance Bureau's prison was located on the lowest level. When they arrived, everyone who needed to be there had already gathered, making the place very crowded.

All of the highest officials of the Great Liang were packed into this dark and damp prison. Their attention was fixed on the severed head of Po Daer, which lay in a vase on the table.

This was the work of the Righteous Monastery. Po Daer no longer needed his body—his head was enough.

An elderly Daoist with white hair and a scraggly beard stood opposite Po Daer's head. He recited incantations and gestured at the spot between Po Daer's eyebrows.

Li Sui glanced at Gao Zhijian before turning his attention to the Daoist dressed in purple robes. "Now that everyone's here, recap the situation again."

The Daoist nodded, turned around, and bowed to Gao Zhijian. "Your Majesty, the Tianchen Kingdom has many points of interest. Where would you like this humble servant to begin?"

Gao Zhijian sat on his dragon throne, thinking for a moment. "How many soldiers and generals does the Tianchen Kingdom have?"

"None."

"Hmm?" Gao Zhijian's eyes widened slightly.

"The Tianchen Kingdom doesn't even have a court, so naturally, there are no soldiers or generals," Li Huowang said.

"Their military forces consist solely of bandits, outlaws, and robbers. However, don't underestimate them—they're quite powerful. The people who tried to steal my sword were a group of bandits."

"No court? Does that mean the Tianchen Kingdom doesn't even have an emperor?" the Imperial Preceptor of the Liang Kingdom asked.

The person from the Fangxian Sect shook his head and continued, "There is no royal family, but the Tianchen Kingdom has a patron.

"From Po Daer's memories, I learned that this patron has absolute authority there. No one dares to defy him, and that patron was the one who proposed seeking revenge against Heavenly Mater."

"A patron? What's this person's name?" Gao Zhijian clenched his fists. He would finally know who his opponent was.

“He is called Zuoqiu Yong. Po Daer only caught a glimpse of him from afar. His status was too low to speak with the patron.”

“Hmm. And how powerful is this patron?” Gao Zhijian asked.

“Uh...” The Daoist glanced at Po Daer’s head. “Your Majesty, Po Daer doesn’t know. From what he saw, the patron’s strength is unfathomable. He has never shown his full abilities.”

“He must be incredibly powerful. According to Po Daer’s memories, the entire army of Unspeakable may be under his command. The patron might be a Tuan Huang noble who betrayed the Heavenly Mater.”

Li Huowang’s words made Gao Zhijian furrow his brows in confusion, “Senior Li, what is this army of Unspeakable you’re talking about? And what do you mean by a Tian Huang noble?”

After giving a brief explanation, Li Huowang continued, “Zuoqiu Yong orchestrated everything that has happened. He and his people are the main force behind the current conflict. In fact, it could be said that the entire plan to deal with the Heavenly Mater was his idea.

“He may not be an emperor, but his authority in the Tianchen Kingdom surpasses that of any emperor.”

Gao Zhijian’s face darkened. His enemy this time was someone who could touch the Heavenly Daos. If they were to fight, there would be bloodshed on a massive scale, similar to the conflict with the Dharma Sect.

The weight of this realization hung heavily in the room, not only on Gao Zhijian. The atmosphere grew heavy.

Xuan Pin said, “Your Majesty, there’s no need to panic. We haven’t reached that point yet. They still haven’t managed to steal Li Huowang’s sword, so they can’t cross over yet.”

Gao Zhijian’s expression lightened slightly, but Li Huowang’s face grew darker.

He reached behind him and drew his spine sword. “Zhuge Yuan is not the only Twisted One in the Great Qi. While they are targeting me, they've also sent people to look for other ways in.

"Based on Po Daer's memories, even if they don't get my sword, it won't be long before they find another Twisted One."

Li Huowang's words were like a rock that weighed heavily on their minds. If they were watching from the sidelines before, they were now directly in the line of fire.

Li Sui finally understood why her father had been so anxious earlier, and what he had meant by the sky was falling.

Gao Zhijian frowned deeply, clinging to a sliver of hope as he asked, "Brother Li, you managed to hold off Tianchen's forces on your own in the Great Qi. As long as you're here, they surely won't be able to cross over so easily."

"Me? Just me?"

Gao Zhijian nodded. "Senior Li, whether it was Shai Zi or god Yu'er, they were no match for you. Surely you can handle them again."

Li Huowang had always reassured Gao Zhijian, whether during their travels or after he ascended to the throne. As long as Li Huowang was around, he felt at ease, regardless of how dire the situation was.

Li Huowang gave him an odd look. "What are you thinking? Have you forgotten what I just said? The Heavenly Mater was torn apart by the people from the Tianchen Kingdom!"

Li Huowang was not confident, having only gained a slight advantage with his Doulao incarnation. He understood very well the type of enemy he faced this time.

Li Huowang pointed to his chest. "Do you think the Heavenly Mater was stronger, or am I stronger? Don't forget, they still have the Heavenly Dao that belonged to the Heavenly Mater!"

Everyone fell silent as the atmosphere grew even heavier. Each person pondered how to break the deadlock.

After a long pause, the Liang Kingdom's Imperial Preceptor, Huangfu Tiangang, said, "There's no need for an all-out fight. They want to take down the White Lotus Sect, not destroy the world as the Dharma Sect did."

"If they want the White Lotus Sect, why don't we just hand it over to them?"

Whoosh! Xuan Pin swiftly appeared behind Li Huowang, spreading her wide red Daoist robe and tightly embracing him.

Chapter 907 - Motivation

When Li Sui hugged Li Huowang, he became intangible. He phased right through Xuan Pin's robes and then appeared before Huangfu Tiangang.

Everyone in the room instantly tensed up. However, Li Huowang didn't make a move this time. He stood less than three inches away, watching silently.

Although Huangfu Tiangang was blind, he could clearly sense Li Huowang's killing intent. His mustache trembled slightly, but he maintained his composure and said, "Li Huowang, think carefully. Which is more important: the White Lotus Sect or the lives of the people of the Great Qi and the Great Liang?"

"The Great Qi only had a few deaths from starvation, which you found unacceptable. However, if a fight breaks out, at least half of the population of the Great Liang will die, no matter who wins. How is that any better?"

Li Huowang's murderous intent dissipated instantly. He looked at Huangfu Tiangang and enunciated each word. "Use your brain and think. Are they truly after the White Lotus Sect? No, they want the Heavenly Mater dead!

"Also, don't forget that they once stole the Heavenly Mater's Heavenly Dao! Have you forgotten what it was like when death ceased to exist? Do you want to experience that again?"

"If they truly seize the Heavenly Mater's Heavenly Dao, it won't just be Death that disappears. Benevolence[1] will vanish too!"

The thought of a world devoid of death or benevolence filled Gao Zhijian with fear.

The Imperial Preceptor refused to relent. "If losing the Heavenly Dao of Death and the Heavenly Dao of Benevolence for a while means we can avoid half the casualties, it's worth it."

"How many believers are in the White Lotus Sect now? How is sending all of them to their deaths any different from losing half the population? You're putting your life in someone else's hands, hoping that they will spare you."

"Enough," Gao Zhijian said, breaking the heavy atmosphere in the room. "Send word to Hou Shu, Si Qi, Qing Qiu, Nanping, and An Xi. Inform their emperors and Surveillance Bureaus to prepare for a fight to the death."

He continued, "We can't avoid the calamity. If they want to take our very lifeblood, there's no point in further negotiations."

Li Huowang walked a few steps toward Gao Zhijian. "To be honest, these people aren't of much help. If you really want to assist, I need more Dragon Qi."

His best option was to go to the Baiyu Capital and approach the situation from the Simings' perspective.

Li Huowang's request made Gao Zhijian seem troubled. After a moment, he said, "Alright, I'll discuss it with the other Dragon Veins. Once they respond, I'll give you an answer."

"Do it quickly so we can minimize the deaths," Li Huowang said.

Without bothering to speculate on whether Gao Zhijian was being serious or simply making excuses, he turned to leave.

Li Huowang finally felt a sense of relief as he emerged from the suffocating atmosphere of the underground prison.

The information from Po Daer was valuable—he now knew much more about the Tianchen Kingdom. However, the more he learned, the less hopeful the chances of victory seemed, which was not a good sign.

"Fifteen," a familiar voice said from behind Li Huowang.

He turned and saw Xuan Pin standing there. Her tentacles were wrapped around the vase that held Po Daer's head. "What?"

“Tianchen Kingdom has fifteen divisions in a day.”

In the past, this information would have piqued his interest. Now, it barely stirred any emotion.

“Got it. If we win, the Great Qi will have a solution to its lack of divisions. By the way, is Tianchen’s Dragon Vein alive?”

“It is, but Po Daer never interacted with it. He only knew that the golden dragon is the Dragon Vein and serves as Zuoqiu Yong’s mount.”

“Heh, using the fifteen divisions of the day as a mount. That’s quite a show of status.”

“Father, what do you plan to do next?”

“What else? In their eyes, the Great Qi is full of vulnerabilities. They can come and go as they please. If we can’t defend, then we have to attack. Hopefully, we can buy some time.

“If possible, persuade the other emperors to be less stingy. If the situation becomes critical, I won’t be as accommodating as I am now.”

“Father, don’t you think something feels off?”

Li Huowang reviewed everything in his head but found nothing unusual. “Hmm? In what way?”

“It’s too fast. The timing doesn’t add up. According to Po Daer’s memories, they began preparing as soon as the Heavenly Mater returned,” Xuan Pin said, closely examining Po Daer’s head.

“I don’t think there’s anything strange about that. Maybe they have a way to monitor the Heavenly Mater,” Li Huowang replied.

Xuan Pin shook her head, and several tentacles emerged from her red robe to pull the head closer. “The Heavenly Mater must have been cautious. She possesses the Heavenly Dao of Death—if she wanted to fake her death, no one would be able to tell, and that’s exactly what she did.

“Even if the Tianchen Kingdom has supernatural powers, it’s impossible for them to have discovered it so quickly from two realms away.”

Li Huowang realized Xuan Pin had a point. His focus had been entirely on the Tianchen Kingdom’s strength, and he had overlooked this detail. “So you’re saying we have a traitor feeding them information?”

Li Huowang’s eyes suddenly narrowed. “Is it Shai Zi?!”

“True. It’s not the Sitting Oblivion Dao’s style to play such a boring game.”

“Father, I don’t think it’s an insider, but another party giving the Tianchen Kingdom information,” Xuan Pin said and briefly paused. “If they want the Tianchen Kingdom and the Great Qi to fight to the death, there must be something in it for them.”

This made the situation even more confusing. “Another party? Who else could it be besides the Great Qi and the Great Liang? Are you saying it’s someone from another timeline?”

Li Huowang continued, “I’ll keep that in mind. When I catch another informant of the Tianchen Kingdom, I’ll interrogate them thoroughly.”

He pulled out his spine sword and prepared to return to the Great Qi. As the rift opened, something red inside immediately set off alarm bells in Li Huowang’s mind. “What’s going on?”

Li Huowang stepped into the rift and was immediately struck by the sounds of battle.

The recently established city of the You Capital had completely fallen. It was currently engulfed in flames and blood.

Li Huowang quickly scaled the city walls and was met with a shocking sight: endless waves of bandits charging toward the city.

The Tianchen Kingdom had launched its attack. They intended to take over the Great Qi.

Li Huowang drew his spine sword and swung it back. “Li Sui! Get over here and help!”

A shadow darted from the rift, pulling Li Huowang's abdomen open and climbing in.

“Li Sui! This isn't enough! There are too many of them! Use your illusions to notify the others in the Great Liang! We need everyone's help!”

1. This was previously translated as the Heavenly Dao of Kindness, but Benevolence is more accurate. 🤔

Chapter 908 - Fight

Li Huowang swung open a rift, slicing through a bandit on horseback and instantly cutting him into several pieces. His internal organs scattered on the ground as he screamed in agony.

Li Huowang roared, and the ground within dozens of meters around him instantly turned into a swamp, trapping the bandits.

Liquid sand and stone filled their mouths and noses, and the swampy land returned to its original form.

This was the You Capital of the Great Qi. The forces of the Tianchen Kingdom were launching a full-scale attack, and the entire area had become a battlefield.

It wasn't just Li Huowang fighting; Li Sui was also giving it her all. Tentacles emerged from Li Huowang's back and darted at odd angles. They went from bandit to bandit, entering through their left ears and exiting through their right ears.

Dozens of tentacles strung people together like a skewer. With a quick pull, all the bandits impaled by Li Sui's tentacles turned on their comrades, raising their weapons to attack them.

Dealing with these bandits was overkill for them. The bandits and thieves from the Tianchen Kingdom were no match for them.

The bodies kept piling up, with each fallen bandit being replaced by another—there was a seemingly endless number of them. The Tianchen Kingdom clearly intended to use them as cannon fodder.

They had to use a more efficient method to deal with them.

Li Huowang let out a resounding chant, igniting himself in an instant. The flames swiftly traveled along Li Sui's tentacles, creating a breathtaking and blinding spectacle—a human bonfire that emerged at the heart of the battlefield.

The flames he conjured at the cost of his own skin carved a massive, fiery trench across the You Capital.

Li Huowang charged forward amidst the chaos. The bandits spontaneously combusted wherever he went, experiencing the agony he had endured.

Seeing the flames engulf everyone around him, Li Huowang stomped his feet and leaped onto a catapult. “Launch me! Aim for the densest crowd outside the city! Let’s see how many can burn!”

The taut rope was quickly cut with an axe.

Whoosh! The catapult launched Li Huowang high into the air. Li Sui’s tentacles unfurled from his body mid-air, and Li Huowang spread like a blazing net while flying toward the crowd below.

As Li Huowang was about to land, a rift suddenly opened in the sky. Long, delicate, flowing sleeves emerged from within. They spun rapidly and stripped the flames from Li Huowang, gradually extinguishing them.

The flames and Li Huowang’s intense pain were taken away. The army of Unspeakable, who could touch the Heavenly Daos, had arrived.

“You dare come again?” Li Huowang immediately crossed his legs and prepared the Heavenly Treasure of Deception[1].

However, it seemed the army of Unspeakable had found a way to counter him. The moment they saw him sitting down, the newly opened rifts closed, and the army of Unspeakable retreated to the Tianchen Kingdom.

Li Huowang stretched out his hands, ready to burn the endless hordes of bandits. However, the army of Unspeakable reappeared through the rifts and suppressed his attack. Their mastery of the Twisted One’s abilities was flawless, and Li Huowang found himself unable to act.

now.”

“Good! I’ll go get them! Hold the line here. I’ll be right back!” Li Huowang quickly pulled Li Sui out of his body, stomped hard, and shot toward the altar.

The army of Unspeakable was about to give chase, but the illusion of Shangguan Yuting got in their way, constantly multiplying and blocking their path.

By the time the illusions were dispelled, Li Huowang had already returned to the Great Liang through the rift.

Li Huowang descended from the sky and crashed heavily into the ground, causing the white jade tiles beneath him to shatter. A crowd had already gathered at the Altar of the Great Liang, with members from various sects and groups. Li Huowang recognized a few familiar faces.

It wasn’t just the Chief present—palace guards and some elderly eunuchs holding whisks were also there. The Great Liang had quickly summoned all their available forces.

With their help, the You Capital wouldn’t fall to the bandits and thieves, although dealing with the army of Unspeakable would still be tough.

As the Surveillance Bureau members bowed to him at the altar, Li Huowang said, “There’s no time for formalities! Follow me!”

Just like when he was delivering grain, he sliced open a rift and quickly grabbed people by the arm before throwing them through. “Pay attention! Our enemies are soldiers from the Tianchen Kingdom, and they reek of death!”

Now that the Great Liang’s Chief and the soldiers from Great Liang had arrived, the situation began to stabilize.

They quickly cleared the city of bandits and thieves. Then, they sealed the four gates once again.

However, the situation soon took a turn for the worse. The Tianchen Kingdom had a countermeasure. There were over a hundred faceless figures painted in theatrical makeup scattered throughout the You Capital, and they began to steal the Heavenly Daos from the Great Liang's Surveillance Bureau.

Soon, a Lama whose Ten Emotions and Eight Sufferings had been completely extracted fell like a dried corpse.

This was just the beginning. The Surveillance Bureau was no match against the faceless enemies who could steal the Heavenly Daos.

They would be doomed if this situation continued. If the Surveillance Bureau were to be wiped out, they would lose before the real fight even began.

This is a trap! Their target isn't me! They are targeting the Surveillance Bureau! Li Huowang pressed his face against a nearby ally's, crossed his legs, and began to cast the Heavenly Treasure of Deception.

The faceless ones realized what was happening and quickly opened rifts to the Tianchen Kingdom to escape.

At that moment, Li Huowang suddenly stopped. He peeled off his face, revealing Li Sui's disguised face as Shangguan Yuting.

The one casting the Heavenly Treasure of Deception was a fake. The real Li Huowang had slipped into the crowd and followed one of the faceless ones back to the Tianchen Kingdom.

Li Huowang realized that passively reacting to the enemy wouldn't work. He needed to seize the initiative!

As the saying goes, capture the ringleader to win the fight. When dealing with the Tianchen Kingdom, neither the army of Unspeakable nor anything else truly mattered—the key was their Twisted One, who could open a path between the Tianchen Kingdom and the Great Qi.

Li Huowang scanned the area as soon as he arrived in the Tianchen Kingdom. His gaze locked onto a man in a red robe with a fox mask, walking on stilts in the distance. That person was the Twisted One.

1. The technique from the Sitting Oblivion Dao that he had used to summon Doulao. 🤔

Chapter 909 - Zuoqiu Yong

In a clearing intentionally made in the forest of Tianchen Kingdom, Li Huowang stared intently at the man with the fox face standing on stilts in the distance.

Although the Tianchen Kingdom was powerful, it also had weaknesses. Li Huowang knew he still had a chance of victory. If he could take out this man, he could sever the connection between the Tianchen Kingdom and the Great Qi, thus averting the current crisis.

“It’s him!” The man’s eyelids twitched rapidly as various portals quickly opened and closed.

Li Huowang moved like lightning and dashed towards him. His movement set everything into motion. The faceless ones who had just returned and the guards around the fox-faced man all rushed to block his path.

The clearer their anxiety became, the more Li Huowang understood how important this Twisted One was to them.

Li Huowang’s expression turned cold. Without hesitation, he sat down cross-legged and began to chant loudly.

“Golden light shines, the sun and moon lose their brilliance, and the treasured staff rotates. Ghosts and gods tremble. Reveal your presence in the mortal realm. The holy court of Yanfu...”

If Li Huowang were to cast the Heavenly Treasure of Deception in the Great Qi, they would be able to escape to the Tianchen Kingdom. However, if he were to cast it in the Tianchen Kingdom, where could they possibly run to?

Another Li Huowang quickly formed from his spine as False Qi rapidly flowed out of him.

An abnormal phenomenon appeared in the sky, and Li Huowang could feel an otherworldly presence gazing at him. It was Doulao, who was about to arrive!

At that critical moment, a needle threaded with silk flew toward him at incredible speed. In just an instant, it sewed shut Li Huowang's eyes, nose, and mouth.

An ordinary silver needle had easily interrupted Li Huowang's ritual. The swirling clouds above quickly dissipated.

Li Huowang trembled with rage and strained his body, causing blood to splatter as he forcefully ripped his sewn mouth open. "Who is it?!"

He tore the stitches from his eyes, then finally saw who had done it.

The golden dragon he had faintly seen before was now being used like a beast of burden, pulling a carriage through the sky.

This was the first time Li Huowang had encountered someone who truly resembled an immortal in this bizarre world—someone who could genuinely ride the clouds and mist.

Li Huowang's sharp vision allowed him to finally spot the person who controlled the noble vehicle. He saw them through the pink veils billowing out of the carriage windows.

The figure was dressed in green silk and seemed strange, with a round face and rosy lips. They were holding a silver needle in a delicate gesture, and it was hard to tell whether they were male or female. However, their exaggeratedly effeminate demeanor reminded Li Huowang of the eunuchs in the palace.

Once he looked at the dragon pulling the carriage, their identity became clear—Zuoqiu Yong, the patron of the Tianchen Kingdom.

The carriage circled in the sky a few times before slowly descending. An effeminate voice came from inside. "Oh my, so the rumors were true! You really are Li Huowang, and quite the handsome fellow too!”

Li Huowang glanced at the army of Unspeakable surrounding him and the fox-faced man on stilts in the distance, who had stopped moving. “You’ve heard of me?”

“Mm-hmm, I’ve heard quite a bit about you,” Zuoqiu Yong said. “But that was all long ago.”

The carriage door opened, and Zuoqiu Yong stepped out while lightly embracing a stunning woman.

Zuoqiu Yong gave Li Huowang a sly smile. “Li Huowang~ I’d like to have a little chat with you.”

Li Huowang sneered and glanced at the enemies surrounding him. “At this point, is there anything left to talk about?”

Though he appeared calm, Li Huowang could sense the disparity in strength between them.

His mind raced as he pondered how to escape back to the Great Liang, harness the Dragon Qi, and reach the Baiyu Capital again.

In this situation, he would have to rely on Ji Zai’s abilities for any hope to turn the tide!

“Oh dear, let’s not be so hasty. We’re all reasonable people here, aren’t we? Let’s talk this out instead of fighting,” Zuoqiu Yong said, pulling a pink handkerchief from his sleeve and dabbing imaginary sweat from his forehead.

“Tell you what, why don’t you bring the Saintess of the White Lotus here? We can all sit down and have a nice chat.”

Li Huowang nodded and agreed readily. “Fine, wait here a moment. I’ll go get the Saintess of the White Lotus.”

He pulled out his spine sword and slashed open a rift to return to Great Liang.

As he approached the rift to step through, the fox-faced man’s left eyelid twitched, and another portal instantaneously replaced the rift to the Great Liang.

When Li Huowang stepped out, he found himself standing just inches away from Zuoqiu Yong.

“Oh, you’re naughty~ Did you plan to get away?” Zuoqiu Yong lightly tapped Li Huowang’s chest with the pink handkerchief.

“That won’t do~ If you go back, the Heavenly Mater won’t come.”

This time, Li Huowang intently studied the strange person before him. “Do you know who the White Lotus Saintess is to me?”

“I don’t, actually. What, do you have a deep connection to her?”

“Yes, a very deep one—she’s my wife. If you’re targeting her, you’re targeting me. There’s no negotiating this.”

Li Huowang paused and then looked directly at Zuoqiu Yong. “Another thing. I want to see if the renowned patron of the Tianchen Kingdom is as powerful as they say.”

Before Zuoqiu Yong could react, Li Huowang’s spine sword had already pierced through his chest.

Zuoqiu Yong could only watch as Li Huowang delivered a powerful kick to his side, forcefully retracting the sword.

Li Huowang took several steps back to catch his balance and looked up again. He was shocked to find there wasn’t a single wound on Zuoqiu Yong’s body—not even his [\[1\]](#) clothes were torn.

Zuoqiu Yong flicked the dust off his robe with a finger, his previously gentle smile gradually fading. “This is quite amusing.

“Li Huowang, don’t be ungrateful. Since you’ve come to the Tianchen Kingdom, neither you nor your sword will be leaving.”

Li Huowang surveyed the enemies around him and clenched his teeth, trying to figure out a way to break free from this predicament. “Come on, then!”

“Li Huowang, such big talk. Do you even know what Heavenly Dao the Heavenly Mater lost?” Zuoqiu Yong said, reaching out a hand toward Li Huowang’s head.

Just before he made contact, he turned slightly to see a large twisted hole appear in the sky to his left. A young girl with a white lotus mark on her forehead emerged from the rift. “Senior Li, we’re here to save you!”

Li Huowang’s eyes shrank when he saw her. What kind of game is this Shai Zi trying to play?

1. The author uses both male and female pronouns for Zuoqiu Yong, and it's not entirely clear if it's intentional. We've standardized them to male pronouns for readability, but we may revise them depending on how future chapters go. 🤔

Chapter 910 - Growth

“Senior Li, are you alright? You’re not hurt, are you?” Bai Lingmiao said, her eyes covered by a white silk cloth. She hurried to Li Huowang’s side, pulling on his sleeve with a face full of worry and concern.

Li Huowang opened his mouth to respond but was unsure what to say. He could tell that this wasn’t the real Bai Lingmiao—it was a disguise by Shai Zi, a master of deception.

Shai Zi’s performance was flawless in every aspect, except for its inability to capture Bai Lingmiao’s profound grudge after the death of her entire family.

The act might deceive some people, but Li Huowang had already seen through it. Having dealt with the Sitting Oblivion Dao for such a long time, he was not easily fooled.

Shai Zi knew that Li Huowang had seen through the act but continued the charade nonetheless. Bai Lingmiao stepped forward and placed herself between Li Huowang and Zuoqiu Yong.

She angrily scolded Zuoqiu Yong with a frown and said, “If you want to hurt Senior Li, you’ll have to step over my dead body!”

Zuoqiu Yong stared at Bai Lingmiao, momentarily lost in thought. Soon, a smile crept onto his lips, turning from a faint smirk into full-blown laughter.

He slapped his thigh and pointed at Bai Lingmiao as he laughed. “Hahaha! Double happiness! Isn’t this just perfect? I was worried you’d be hiding somewhere hard to find, and here you are, delivering yourself right to me!”

The surrounding troops and bandits closed in on Li Huowang and Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang tightened his grip on his spine sword and glanced at the silver-haired Bai Lingmiao before him. He couldn't figure out Shai Zi's exact plan, but it seemed like he intended to help.

Otherwise, from a liar's perspective, why would he walk into a trap to die?

"Be careful, don't let your guard down. These people can extract everything from inside you, and Zuoqiu Yong might even be able to use the previous Heavenly Dao of the Heavenly Mater." Li Huowang's warning seemed like it was directed at Bai Lingmiao, but it was actually meant for Shai Zi.

"Don't worry, Senior Li. I'm aware. The Heavenly Mater has already issued a divine decree and revealed this villain's secrets."

Zuoqiu Yong's smile faded, slowly replaced by a touch of anger. "Tough talk. Let's see how long you can keep it up!"

He waved his pink handkerchief, which instantly dissolved into threads as thin as needles that flew toward Li Huowang.

Li Huowang stomped the ground, propelling himself forward toward Zuoqiu Yong. As he passed Bai Lingmiao, he whispered, "I'll hold him off. Hurry and do whatever you came to do!"

Before Bai Lingmiao could react, Li Huowang had already engaged with the thin threads.

Li Huowang swung his sword, creating a rift that collided with the incoming threads. To his surprise, rather than cutting through them, the lines rattled as if they were made of metal. This was a first for Li Huowang.

The threads fell like rain, but they didn't hinder Li Huowang in the slightest.

His body flickered as he approached Zuoqiu Yong. He had dodged, and only his afterimage had been pierced.

Just as they were about to clash, Li Huowang swiftly sank into the ground. His sword rose up from beneath the earth, targeting Zuoqiu Yong's legs.

The moment his sword struck, Li Huowang felt the familiar sensation of cutting through flesh.

Clang! A sudden force nearly disarmed him.

Li Huowang poked his head out of the ground and saw Zuoqiu Yong gently land nearby.

He was certain he had severed Zuoqiu Yong's legs, yet he stood unharmed—just as he had after Li Huowang stabbed him in the chest.

“Wow, Li Huowang! Is this all you’ve got? I’m starting to look down on you,” Zuoqiu Yong said.

Li Huowang cast a quick glance at Bai Lingmiao, who was currently locked in a chaotic battle with the surrounding army of Unspeakable. He gritted his teeth in frustration. “You filthy eunuch! Enough talk. Let’s fight!”

Zuoqiu Yong remained unfazed by Li Huowang’s insult and flashed a condescending smile. “Eunuch? So what? Eunuchs can be emperors and kings! You mortals need descendants because you’re destined to die. I, however, won’t need heirs once I achieve immortality.”

He spoke with great pride, as if he were extremely pleased with his own status.

“Alright, enough chit-chat. Let’s get serious now.” Zuoqiu Yong lifted his right hand, and only then did Li Huowang notice the white jade finger guards on three of Zuoqiu Yong’s fingers. They were intricately carved in the shape of dragons and phoenixes, the kind that only noblewomen in the palace would wear.

Zuoqiu Yong raised his hand. Li Huowang swiftly dodged past the direction it pointed.

However, before Li Huowang could launch a counterattack, something strange happened. His body, which had been burned by fire earlier, was now rapidly healing.

Before he could feel relieved, his body began to change uncontrollably.

The hair on his chin, the hair on his head, and even his fingernails started to grow uncontrollably at a concerning speed.

“This... Is this the Heavenly Dao that the Heavenly Mater once controlled?!” Li Huowang exclaimed, watching as his nails twisted like vines, wrapping around his sword and becoming a nuisance.

“Pure Yin in solemnity, Pure Yang in grandeur. Solemnity emerges from the heavens. Grandeur arises from the earth. When the two harmonize, all things are born~” Zuoqiu Yong chanted proudly. He watched as Li Huowang’s hair was dragged on the ground, confident he had won.

“Is this all you’ve got?” Li Huowang shouted with a burst of anger. Every strand of hair and every nail were severed at once, freeing him from their constraints.

Li Huowang lifted his sword and charged at Zuoqiu Yong again. However, after only a few steps, pain surged through his hands.

A quick glance revealed that his nails were now retracting into his fingers at an alarming rate, leaving his hands bloodied and raw.

It wasn’t just his nails that were shrinking—everything that had grown out of his skin was shrinking into his body.

Old wounds reopened, and every bone that had ever been broken now seemed to snap back to its fractured state.

Chapter 911 - Borrow Everything happened too fast. Li Huowang had barely approached Zuoqiu Yong, yet he was already on the verge of death.

Li Huowang looked ghastly. There was no difference between him and a skeleton!

“This is... Growth! That bastard holds the Heavenly Dao of Growth!”

Li Huowang glared at Zuoqiu Yong with his one remaining eye.

I am... fine! I am fine! Li Huowang tried to use his “Truth” cultivation to turn himself back to normal, even if it was for a short period of time.

He succeeded. However, Zuoqiu Yong continually stripped away Li Huowang’s cultivation of the “Truth,” resulting in the abnormal growth of more tumors and flesh.

The strength gap between them was immense. Zuoqiu Yong stood out from the sects he had faced, as they merely relied on a fraction of the Heavenly Daos to acquire power. Zuoqiu Yong, on the other hand, used the Heavenly Dao itself. He was like a Siming that had descended upon the mortal realm.

Even when Li Huowang fought against the Dharma Sect’s Siming, he didn’t despair. This was the first time he felt so helpless—he couldn’t escape or fight back and had no chance to flip the situation around.

Zuoqiu Yong wasn’t in a rush. He looked at Li Huowang with interest.

“Li Huowang, you’ve caused a lot of trouble. I overlooked your actions in the past because I didn’t care. However, that doesn’t mean you can continue causing trouble for us without consequences.”

“Senior Li, are you alright?”

As Bai Lingmiao escaped from the army of Unspeakable, she saw Li Huowang getting hurt.

She caught him before he could collapse. Then, while supporting his weight, she slapped a piece of Hong Zhong into the back of Li Huowang’s skull.

A surge of information flowed through his mind, and Li Huowang stared at Bai Lingmiao in shock.

“Senior Li, what’s wrong with you? Don’t scare me.”

Bai Lingmiao’s tears drenched her eye covers, her face clouded by intense sadness.

“Hmph~” Zuoqiu Yong frowned when he saw them. “Don’t worry—I’ll send you both to hell together. You can start your next lives at the same time.”

Li Huowang suddenly laughed despite his grievous injuries. His laughter was filled with arrogance and mockery.

“You think you’ve won? You think I fought this long just to die here?”

Zuoqiu Yong was surprised. “Hm?”

He eyed Li Huowang suspiciously. What could someone weaker than him possibly do? Where did such courage come from?

“You conspired against the Heavenly Mater in the past, and now you’re openly trying to suppress her. Do you think the Heavenly Mater did not devise any plans to stop you? Don’t you know what a diversion is? The fact you’re here implies that you’ve left a certain place unsupervised.”

Li Huowang smiled proudly and hugged Bai Lingmiao’s waist.

Zuoqiu Yong’s face froze. He swung his right arm, embedding several needles and threads into Li Huowang and pinning him down.

Zuoqiu Yong stared at Li Huowang and laughed. “I heard you had some connections to the Sitting Oblivion Dao, but I never thought you would try to trick me like this. Aren't you looking down on me? I'm much more experienced in this regard."

Li Huowang clutched his belly and burst into laughter. "Hahaha! Perfect! That's exactly what I needed you to believe. Now, I highly doubt you'll be able to do anything when the Siming takes action."

Just as Li Huowang spoke, the skies changed. Li Huowang felt the Pain in his body disappear, followed by Rot.

"Hahaha!" Li Huowang extended his arm and laughed at Zuoqiu Yong. "You damned eunuch! Do you believe me now? We've won this time!"

Zuoqiu Yong hesitated when another Heavenly Dao disappeared. This time, it was Benevolence.

Zuoqiu Yong no longer hesitated. He yanked his arm, cutting Li Huowang into pieces with the threads.

He ignored Bai Lingmiao, the Twisted One of the Heavenly Mater—there was a more pressing matter at hand. Zuoqiu Yong leaped onto his golden dragon and flew towards the east.

Zuoqiu Yong's departure and the changing skies indicated that something major was going on. The army of Unspeakable and the fox-faced Twisted One raced after him.

Soon, only "Bai Lingmiao" and Li Huowang's corpse were left in the area.

A small doll emerged from Li Huowang's corpse, growing rapidly as it ate Li Huowang's shadow. Li Huowang revived once again.

Bai Lingmiao hugged her chest and looked at Li Huowang. "Look, they might be able to control the other Heavenly Daos, but they cannot do anything to the Heavenly Dao of Lies. Only the Sitting Oblivion Dao can use it freely! No matter how strong they are, they'll still fall for deception."

Li Huowang bent down and picked up his spine sword from the pool of blood. “We need to go. If Zuoqiu Yong realizes we tricked him with the Heavenly Dao of Lies, we’ll be trapped here forever.”

The Heavenly Mater didn’t do anything at all—It was just a ruse to scare Zuoqiu Yong away. In fact, Li Huowang didn’t know what Zuoqiu Yong was afraid of.

Li Huowang opened a rift to the Liang Kingdom, and the two of them returned.

Compared to the chaotic situation in the Tianchen and Qi Kingdoms, the Liang Kingdom was peaceful. They were back in the garden inside the royal palace. Some of the ladies were drinking tea and admiring the flowers with the other consorts and eunuchs.

The tranquility shattered when they spotted Li Huowang—completely naked. Shrieks of shock echoed through the garden.

Li Huowang tore off one of the eunuch’s robes and wore it. He then looked at one of the women, who was wearing a crown. “Are you one of Gao Zhijian’s wives? Where is he? Call him and tell him that the trouble has been temporarily averted.”

The woman ran away in tears. Li Huowang sighed and collapsed onto the ground, feeling the rush of adrenaline leaving his body.

That battle had been too close. One wrong move, and he would’ve died.

“Yeah, though we only forced them back temporarily. They will come back.” Bai Lingmiao said, sitting in front of a table as she drank some tea.

“Change your damn face! I’m getting irritated just by looking at it!”

“Bai Lingmiao” transformed her face into a twelve-sided die.

Li Huowang glared at him. “How did you know there was going to be a Natural Disaster?”

Shai Zi took a sip of tea and chuckled. “Don’t worry about that. I have my connections.”

Chapter 912 - Plan

“Connections?” Li Huowang stared at Shai Zi, feeling a strange irritation blossom in his heart.

“You’re still hiding things from us despite the war? What’s going on with the Natural Disaster? What else do you know?”

Shai Zi chuckled. “Hong Zhong, what good would it do to tell you? Do you even have the energy to handle it? I thought you were busy devising a plan to deal with that eunuch. You’ve seen how strong he is.

“For now, you’ve only managed to trick him temporarily. Once he sees through it, it won’t be easy to fool him again.”

Li Huowang frowned, remembering how helpless he had been against Zuoqiu Yong. He was a Siming that controlled flesh, so Li Huowang had to rely on Ji Zai’s power to deal with him.

“Don’t place your hopes on Ji Zai. He’s very busy right now.”

“So you’ve heard the news from Ji Zai?” Shai Zi’s question made Li Huowang look up.

Shai Zi continued, “Oh, you have a sharp mind. See? There’s no use in telling you right now—it wouldn’t do you any good.”

The number on Shai Zi’s face turned to one.

Li Huowang grabbed onto Shai Zi’s collar. “What else did I say? What’s the key to killing Zuoqiu Yong? Tell me quickly!”

Shai Zi shrugged. “He never said anything about that. Maybe he didn’t know who Zuoqiu Yong was.”

“Stop lying to me! He’s me from the future! How could he not know who Zuoqiu Yong is?”

“Wait.” A look of joy spread across Li Huowang’s face. “That means the future me is still alive. I’ll survive this.”

Shai Zi’s words hit like cold water. “Don’t be so sure. History can change at any moment. If you die now, Ji Zai will cease to exist.”

Li Huowang pushed Shai Zi down out of anger. “What else can you do except talk? What else?! Are you here just to watch us fail?”

“Of course, I could be helpful in many ways. If it weren’t for me, you would be dead. Your powers as a Strayed One are useless against that eunuch. Li Huowang, you owe me one.”

As Li Huowang opened his mouth to speak, footsteps came to his left. He turned, expecting Gao Zhijian, but it was Li Sui.

Seeing that Li Huowang was wearing the robes of a eunuch from the palace, Li Sui removed her red robes and covered Li Huowang. “Father, what’s wrong? What happened in the Tianchen Kingdom?”

It appeared that the siege on the Qi Kingdom stopped after Li Huowang scared Zuoqiu Yong away.

Li Huowang pulled on his sleeves tiredly and sighed. “It’s a long story...”

He kept his explanation short. In the end, he said, “Who would’ve thought that there would be a Siming in the Tianchen Kingdom that controls flesh? I never thought I would fight against someone like that.

“Tell Gao Zhijian to stop preparing for war. Regular troops are useless against the Simings. I need another Siming to deal with him.”

Shai Zi interrupted him, saying, “Don’t look for Ji Zai right now. He’s very busy and doesn’t have time for this. You need to think of another way.”

“Enough!” Li Huowang said. “I heard you the first time! I’m not deaf! Instead of repeating yourself, why don’t you help me stop their plans?”

Shai Zi had indeed helped him this time, but he looked more like he was just here to watch their struggle than to help earnestly.

Shai Zi chuckled, and he shrunk before disappearing completely. As he did, his voice lingered in the air like smoke.

“Hong Zhong, you know better than this. We of the Sitting Oblivion Dao should stand together. Time marches on whether you’re happy or not. Why exhaust yourself? You should find joy even when you’re dying.”

“Look at his damned attitude!” Li Huowang said, pointing at the empty space in front of him.

Li Sui didn’t answer—she was trying to digest what Li Huowang had told her. She paced around the place before answering, “Father, I might have a plan to fight against Zuoqiu Yong. Maybe we can try something.”

“What?” Li Huowang wanted to ask what the plan was, but he figured it out. “Do you mean stuffing the primordial breath and inner sight of other Strayed Ones into me? You want me to complete my cultivation?”

Li Sui nodded. “Yes. It was impossible last time because we had no one who could touch the Heavenly Daos directly, but now we do.”

Several people appeared from the doorway. They were members of the army of Unspeakable. Li Sui’s tentacles were embedded in their brains, making them look like walking kebabs when they approached Li Huowang.

Li Huowang stared at them with a complicated feeling in his heart. Li Sui had caught many people when he wasn’t there.

“I don’t know how strong I would be if I complete the final step. Can I fight against Zuoqiu Yong like this?”

Li Huowang had another concern, even with the path to becoming stronger lying right before him.

He still remembered how he couldn’t differentiate between truth and lies, and that was back when he had only completed the second stage. If he completed the seventh stage, he might end up unable to distinguish reality from delusions, as Li Sui warned.

It was a strong power, but the side effects were detrimental too.

Li Huowang had to use Hong Zhong to barely balance his cultivation of “Truth” and “Lies.” However, if he became stronger, the balance would be broken. Who knew what would happen then?

Still, if he didn’t get stronger, he wouldn’t be able to stop Zuoqiu Yong’s massacre.

“How will we ever know if we don’t give it a shot? It’s not as if we have any other options. Father, please don’t hesitate. Yes, he is a Siming, but you are too.

“I know what you’re worried about, and I understand the possible side effects. To get around that, all we need to do is kill Shai Zi when the time is right. If we extract a portion of the Lies inside of him, we can put them inside of you and prevent the crisis.”

Li Huowang stared at Li Sui with shock. The difference between the Li Sui he knew before and the Li Sui standing before him was massive. He was certain that the Li Sui who had lived in his stomach would’ve never said that.

“Suisui, are you hiding something from me? If so, you need to tell me everything.”

Li Sui nodded lightly, her voice still as soft as before. “Alright, Father. So, do you want to try the plan?”

Li Huowang considered it briefly before agreeing. “Fine! It’s not like we have a choice.”

The memory of Zuoqiu Yong toying with him made Li Huowang’s blood boil. Bloodlust leaked out of him.

“Come! Let’s see who’s stronger!”

Chapter 913 - Trust

Crunch! Chen Hongyu munched on a bag of chips loudly as she watched TV. She glanced to her side and noticed Qing Wanglai, Zhao Shuangdian, and Li Huowang talking incessantly.

“Why is he going crazy again?” she asked.

Zhao Lei had been furiously tapping on his phone, but he paused to look at Li Huowang. “He’s saying that he can reset the flow of time and is trying to convince them.”

“Hm?” Chen Hongyu was surprised. “I thought his special power was conjuring things out of nothing? When did he get an upgrade? How come I didn’t know about it?”

Zhao Lei remained silent, his attention still fixed on his phone, though he couldn’t help but hear Li Huowang’s words.

“I’m telling the truth. I know it happened—I was there! Why don’t you believe me? That factory is the Siming, and everything about it disappeared when we killed it, even your memories of it!”

Qing Wanglai whispered to Zhao Shuangdian when he noticed Li Huowang’s excitement. Soon, Zhao Shuangdian nodded.

Even though they said nothing, Li Huowang could tell what they were thinking from the looks they were giving him. He’d seen them before.

“Are you thinking that I’ve gone crazy? I’m not ill!” Li Huowang paused. “Well, maybe I am, but they’re just hallucinations! They can’t erase everyone’s memories of the Siming!”

Qing Wanglai raised his hands and patted Li Huowang. “Alright, Li Huowang, don’t be hasty. We said nothing about your illness. It’s just that this is very difficult for us to understand.”

Li Huowang took two steps forward and glared at Qing

Wanglai. “What’s there to understand? The factory is a Siming’s projection. Once the Siming perishes, everything about it disappears!

“A Siming has no past or future. They merely exist, and everything about them is erased once they cease to exist! It also explains what Zhuge Yuan had written on his fan!”

“Hmm... Who’s Zhuge Yuan? Why is there a new character?” Wu Qi asked in confusion.

With a cigarette in her hand, Ba Nanxu looked at the excited Li Huowang, her face etched with irritation. “What’s a Siming? Did you call us here to show off how crazy you are?”

“I understand. I think I know what he is trying to say,” Qing Wanglai said, clearing his throat. “He’s talking about his own world. It seems like he just grasped a very important rule within it.”

“Tsk. Do we need you to explain that? Isn’t it the same as him becoming crazy again?” Ba Nanxu said, exhaling her cigarette smoke toward Li Huowang.

Li Huowang replied, “Shut up! I’m doing my best to understand everyone’s world, so you should try to understand mine too! This is important—it will change how we will fight our enemy!”

“You’re right, but you did say time itself was reset. I think that’s a bit too far-fetched even within our world.” Zhao Shuangdian said, highlighting the inconsistency in Li Huowang’s narrative. “I’ve studied the worlds of other people, and none of them have claimed that their timelines were reset.”

“Is what you perceive the truth? This is not the first time I’ve experienced it—it’s the third! I only realized what was happening after the third time!”

Li Huowang was still in the middle of explaining when Zhao Shuangdian cut him off. “Okay, we get it. No need to go into more detail. So, just to clarify, you’re confirming that you’ll be collaborating with us on the sixth of next month, right?”

“That’s not the point! What I mean is—”

“Yes or no?”

“Yes.”

Li Huowang felt that his words were ineffective. Even if he continued explaining, he was sure they wouldn’t believe him.

“Fine, we will stop here today. I have a meeting later. Feel free to contact me on WeChat if there’s anything else.”

Zhao Shuangdian passed a smartphone to Li Huowang before exiting Qing Wanglai’s mansion with the rest of them.

“Oh, you are leaving now? Are you not staying for a meal? Qing Wanglai is great at cooking,” Wu Qi said.

Zhao Shuangdian reached for the door. “No need. I’m on a diet and don’t eat lunch. We’ll see each other next month.”

“Wait!”

Zhao Shuangdian frowned and turned to Li Huowang. He had called out to her to stop her from leaving.

“Your... your weapon is a sniper rifle, isn’t it?”

The hall fell into silence, save for the sound of the television.

Zhao Shuangdian froze, and Li Huowang smiled. The timeline had been deleted, resulting in a different outcome. None of them remembered anything except for Li Huowang, who still retained all memories from the deleted timeline.

Li Huowang smiled confidently. “You never told me about it before. Can you guess how I knew about it?”

Zhao Shuangdian immediately turned to Qing Wanglai. “Did you tell him?”

Qing Wanglai’s smile disappeared as he shook his head. “No, I never told him anything about you.”

Just as Qing Wanglai finished speaking, Li Huowang revealed more information. “That’s not all I know. I also know that you have a companion called Ling. She used a computer to lead us through a route. Her face occasionally twitched, which made me believe she was sick.”

The words of Li Huowang shook Zhao Shuangdian’s confidence while strengthening his own.

In a normal timeline, Li Huowang wouldn’t have known any of this. Yet here he was, aware of things he shouldn’t have known. This indicated that Li Huowang was telling the truth, and Zhao Shuangdian’s actions proved it.

Li Huowang said resolutely, “I’m not lying! I experienced all of it—it actually happened!”

“Wait for me.”

Zhao Shuangdian exited the mansion and returned after a while. This time, she had a laptop with her.

She turned on the laptop and quickly typed something on it. Li Huowang realized that she was serious and trusted him now.

Chapter 914 - Idealism

“Here, take a look at this.”

After spending quite a while on her laptop, Zhao Shuangdian showed the screen to Li Huowang.

Li Huowang felt his head swimming when he saw a complex mathematical formula. “What is this? I don’t understand any of it.”

Zhao Shuangdian frowned and looked at Li Huowang. “Then, are you willing to learn from scratch? I can teach you. If what you’re saying is real, there are only three explanations.”

“Why should I adapt to your world? Is your world the truth? Why can’t you adapt to mine? What if your world is fake?”

Zhao Shuangdian replied, “Our world is in conflict. My world is healed, but your world has many inconsistencies and contradictions. Shouldn’t we start from your world?”

“I don’t want to learn! This is the truth, and I’ve told you about the contradictions. Whether or not you trust me is up to you.”

Ba Nanxu scoffed from the side. “You want us to adapt to your world? Are you trying to turn us all into crazy bastards?”

“Shut up.” Zhao Shuangdian glared at Ba Nanxu, who shrugged and sat on the sofa to watch TV.

Zhao Shuangdian quickly opened a new notepad on her laptop. “Alright, Li Huowang, I trust you. Now, please tell me about your world in as much detail as possible.”

Li Huowang sighed in relief after seeing that Zhao Shuangdian trusted him. He calmed down and started telling his story. “Alright. I’ll have to talk about the Zephyr Temple first. Back then, I was still being treated in the hospital and thought it was fake...”

Li Huowang spent the next few hours telling her about everything he had experienced in the bizarre world. By the time he finished, it was already nighttime.

“Eat something before you continue. Your dishes are cold, but I saved you a portion,” Ba Nanxu said, taking out a couple of beer bottles for Zhao Shuangdian.

“Shh, be quiet. I need time to think and sort this out.”

Zhao Shuangdian was busy scrolling through Li Huowang’s statement.

“Hey, did you leave food for me too? I’m hungry.” Li Huowang stood up. He had calmed down now that a few hours had passed.

Ba Nanxu scoffed and wrinkled her nose when she looked at Li Huowang. “Hoh? The crazy bastard knows when it’s time to eat?”

Ba Nanxu turned to leave, but Wu Qi gestured for Li Huowang instead. “Sit here. We left you a portion too.”

“Li Huowang, I’ve sorted through your statement. While I trust you, I still find that your world has a lot of contradictions. In fact, it’s even worse than the others. I also found a lot of instances where it’s too idealistic.”

Li Huowang replied as he munched on some chicken, “You still don’t understand? That world is bizarre, and anything could happen. Also, is your so-called ‘healed world’ the truth? Maybe my world is real too. It’s just that we haven’t realized it yet.”

Zhao Shuangdian paused to think carefully as she typed, appearing to perform a series of calculations.

Li Huowang was almost done with his meal when she stopped. “Alright. You’ve convinced me.”

“Hm?!” Li Huowang was shocked. She’s so easily convinced? That’s out of my expectations. She’s the first to believe me this easily ever since I left the Zephyr Temple.

Li Huowang had made preparations to refute her if she still didn’t believe him.

“Uh... What do you mean? Does my world convince you? Is our world also the ideal world?”

“We don’t have a macro world, but we have a lot of micro ones.”

Zhao Shuangdian proceeded to shut down her laptop.

“Ideal?” Li Huowang stared at the chandelier above him. He looked at the leather sofa before staring at Zhao Shuangdian’s pretty face. Nothing had changed.

“Don’t worry. Even if it’s ideal, we can still bravely develop a hypothesis. We just need to be careful when we gather evidence. Thank you for your help. It will help me a lot with my research.”

Li Huowang continued eating his meal. “Don’t worry about it. My main concern is the possibility of the timeline resetting again if we kill the Siming on the sixth of February. If that does happen, I would have to explain everything to you again.”

“Don’t worry. If that happens, you can just align with my other self again.”

“Alright, as long as you are convinced later on.”

Li Huowang put down his plate and thought carefully. “Since my world is real, we need to reconsider certain things, including your hypothesis about the elephant. Maybe the elephant isn’t divided into separate parts but rather drawn on a single piece of paper.

“The tusk, legs, and nose could all exist on this one sheet along a single timeline. This would explain why we can resolve our crisis by jumping to another elephant’s tusk. And if we want to deal with a problem on the nose of the elephant, we need to reset the timeline by going back to the original elephant.”

“This is plausible and a reasonable hypothesis.”

“But... is the elephant still alive by this point?” Li Huowang asked, shoving the rest of his meal into his mouth.

“It’s still early to say that. We need more evidence, but no matter what, I have to thank you for your story,” Zhao Shuangdian said and turned to leave.

However, Li Huowang stopped her again. “I don’t care how many hypotheses there are. Just how much longer do we have to continue this? I’m exhausted.”

“I can’t answer that. We now have a new variable. If you want to end it quickly, you need to find a way to help us.”

She turned to leave once more. This time, Li Huowang did not stop her.

Li Huowang had finished his meal, yet he remained seated at the table, his empty plate before him. He was lost in thought.

Although he understood that part of the world was real, it didn’t help him. His situation was still as troublesome as ever. If Zhao Shuangdian was right, it meant that the Simings on the other elephant were still lurking around and staring at them.

If he couldn’t deal with them once and for all, he would forever be labeled as a patient with a mental illness.

He didn’t want that. He had finally learned more about the world, and he wanted to live normally.

Chapter 915 - Living Together

Even though Li Huowang had found answers to most of his questions, he was still in deep trouble. Still, he could now see his issues in a different light.

Li Huowang swore to fight back to his last breath. Isn't it just god Yu'er and Sir Arrogant Stone? Come on, then! You succeeded last time, but don't you dare think your schemes will work again!

No matter how many Simings he had to kill or how many times the timeline reset, Li Huowang would persevere until he accomplished his goal. He had no fear of death, let alone failure.

Just then, a fresh bowl of food was placed in front of Li Huowang. It was a steaming bowl of white rice topped with fried eggs and tomatoes.

Looking up, he saw Wu Qi had brought it over. "Thank you, but one serving is enough for me."

"Who said it's for you? I need you to give it to someone else."

This left Li Huowang perplexed. He was sure everyone had eaten. Also, why was he the one who needed to deliver the food? "Who is it for?"

"Your girl. She's still upstairs right now. Did you forget that you have a girlfriend?"

"Yang Na?" Li Huowang realized that Yang Na was still at Qing Wanglai's house since the timeline had been reset. He had originally come here to bring her back.

"I meant to tell you earlier, but you were talking non-stop with Qing Wanglai and Zhao Shuangdian. I didn't even get a chance to interrupt you."

“I don’t want to pry too much into your relationship, but your girlfriend seems off. She doesn’t have an appetite. See if you can get her to eat the meal, or I might have to sustain her through IVF.”

“Thank you, Wu Qi...”

Li Huowang felt a weight on his chest when he remembered how Yang Na had been acting. He took the bowl of food and walked up with a heavy heart.

Yang Na was still in the third room. Li Huowang opened the door and saw her in the bed at the corner of the room. She looked malnourished and disheveled.

“Nana, are you hungry? Let’s eat first.”

Li Huowang carefully lifted her up and set her down next to the table.

Yang Na held onto his wrist tightly, as if she was afraid that he would escape. “Huowang, is that you?”

She then noticed Li Huowang’s empty eye socket. She touched his face gingerly. “Huowang, where is your eye? Why is it missing? I’m sorry, is it because of me? Did I cause it?”

“No.”

Li Huowang carefully held her hands and checked her scarred wrists. “No, it’s not because of you. Don’t worry about it. You did not cause any harm to me. I’m the one who harmed you.”

“I’m relieved to hear that. But seeing you with just one eye... it breaks my heart.”

Yang Na suddenly smiled without any warning. “Huowang, I trust you. I really do. No matter what you say, I will trust you. I am the Heavenly Mater, and I’m a Siming, just like you.”

Yang Na’s words pierced Li Huowang’s heart, causing a searing pain that he couldn’t shake off, despite having gone through it before.

Li Huowang tried his best to conceal his expression. He didn’t want her to think she was hurting him. He forced the most genuine smile he could. “That’s good. That’s good.”

This time, Li Huowang decided not to send her back. Since the timeline would reset again, he wanted to make Yang Na as happy as possible.

He regarded it as a dream, one that he could wake up from at any moment. Unlike him, everyone else in his vicinity would soon forget what transpired.

Yang Na snuggled against Li Huowang’s chest dreamily as she mumbled, “Huowang, I am the Heavenly Mater. I am a Siming. I can help you now. I won’t drag you down anymore.”

“You are not dragging me down. You can help me too. Nana is the best. Come now, let’s eat first.”

Li Huowang comforted her like a child as he took a spoonful of rice and placed it close to her mouth.

He slowly fed her and saw that she was slowly becoming better. Li Huowang was relieved to see that she was eating.

“Huowang, don’t worry about me. It’s not your fault. I feel much better, and I can move now.”

She tried to push him away so she could stand up, but Li Huowang held onto her.

“That’s fine. Let’s just rest for tonight since it’s already quite late. We can talk more tomorrow.”

After finishing his meal and comforting Yang Na, Li Huowang took the empty bowl and left the room.

As he exited, he noticed Qing Wanglai standing before the door. He had been waiting for him.

Li Huowang clenched his fist upon seeing Qing Wanglai’s smiling face. However, he ultimately released his grip.

“Do you want to stay here tonight? I’ve prepared your room.”

As long as no one threatened his plans, Qing Wanglai remained as perfect as everyone thought him to be.

“No need. I will stay in the same room as her. I need to stay by her side.”

Li Huowang walked past Qing Wanglai and went down the stairs.

“Yang Na is awake. This is good news. We now have one more ally.”

Bam! In the end, Li Huowang still punched him. “I’m warning you—keep her out of this. If you don’t, I will kill you.”

Qing Wanglai chuckled and rubbed the bruise on his face. “Li Huowang, I don’t think that’s rational. Don’t you think it would be a waste if she doesn’t help us? She has the power to do so now.

“Besides, have you even bothered to ask for her permission? Maybe she doesn’t want to squander her talent. Even if she refrains from killing, having another ally by our side would still be good.”

Li Huowang smashed the bowl on the railings, and the broken pieces scattered on the stairs. Li Huowang picked up a sharp piece and pushed it against Qing Wanglai’s neck. “I said no. Are you deaf?”

“I’m not, but what are you afraid of? You’re the one who said that time would reset again as long as we kill another Siming. In that case, what’s wrong with losing our lives? We don’t have enough allies right now. Every single one matters.”

Li Huowang’s anger almost boiled over when he stopped and let go of the shrapnel.

“Alright, I will bring Yang Na to Zhao Shuangdian. I will let her join their alliance instead.”

Qing Wanglai frowned. “Hm?”

Li Huowang chuckled and looked at Qing Wanglai playfully. “Didn’t you say every single ally counts? I will let Yang Na ally herself with Zhao Shuangdian. That should fulfill your conditions, right?”

Seeing Qing Wanglai remain silent, Li Huowang walked down the stairs with pleasure.

He finally found a way to communicate with Qing Wanglai. A physical threat wouldn't work on him, but Wu Qi was right. As long as he understood what made Qing Wanglai tick, dealing with him was easy.

Chapter 916 - Medicine

“Huowang, you don’t need to feed me anymore. I’m not paralyzed,” Yang Na said, taking the spoon from Li Huowang’s hand. She scooped up some porridge and brought it to her mouth.

After a couple of bites, she looked up at Li Huowang, who was sitting across from her. “Why are you just staring at me? You should eat too.”

Li Huowang had been standing there in a daze. He smiled and nodded, then sat down to have breakfast as well.

“Hey, you’re not bad at all. You’re quite skilled at looking after people. I had my doubts initially, but it seems like I underestimated you a bit. Have you studied this before?” Wu Qi asked as she walked over.

Li Huowang shook his head and continued to eat. “No, I haven’t. I just picked up a few things during my time in the hospital.”

Yang Na looked noticeably healthier compared to before. She hadn’t been blaming herself so much, and her emotions seemed a lot more stable. She appeared much better, at least to others.

Only Li Huowang knew the truth. She wasn’t actually better—her condition was getting even worse. It was just that her logic had become more consistent with her beliefs, which made her appear normal.

Footsteps echoed as Qing Wanglai approached with a cup of coffee in one hand. “Doesn’t she share the same worldview as you? If her condition is considered an illness, what would you call your condition?”

Li Huowang glared at him angrily. “Get lost!”

Li Huowang noticed the sorrow etched on Yang Na’s face and the tears brimming in her eyes. Ignoring Qing Wanglai, he embraced Yang Na and gently carried her into the house.

After comforting Yang Na, Li Huowang walked back outside, where Qing Wanglai awaited. "I'm just trying to help you. You can't keep deceiving yourself like this.

"If you believe your worldview is real, then you should also believe she is the Heavenly Mater. You can't claim it's a battle of Simings when it involves you but dismiss it as mental illness when it involves your girlfriend. Isn't that a double standard?"

Li Huowang replied, "None of this matters. Like I said before, don't expect her to get involved. Besides, If she really wanted to, she'd probably join Zhao Shuangdian's side!"

Regardless of whether Yang Na was the Heavenly Mater, Li Huowang didn't want her to get hurt any further. She had already suffered enough.

"Whatever," Qing Wanglai said, abruptly changing his tone. "Tomorrow is the day we take action. If she decides to join Zhao Shuangdian's faction, it would still increase our chances of winning."

It seemed he had realized that Li Huowang was trying to provoke him. This time, he didn't fall for it.

"She's depressed! How could she possibly help?"

"You never know. From what you said before, isn't the Heavenly Mater supposed to govern Benevolence and Death? If she's the goddess of death, she could be helpful."

Li Huowang recalled Chen Hongyu's tragic situation and knew all too well what Qing Wanglai meant by "helpful."

"So you know we're taking action tomorrow? Do you think antagonizing me right now is a good idea?" Li Huowang asked coldly as he stepped closer.

"Li Huowang, we're on the same side. I'm just trying to help you."

“Thanks, but there’s no need! You’ve ‘helped’ me enough times already! I’m sick of having this conversation over and over again! If you’re so bored, why don’t you pay your respects at Qian Fu’s grave!”

Li Huowang left the villa and headed to the underground garage. He got on his motorcycle and revved the engine a few times. However, it was out of gas.

He looked around and then set his sights on Qing Wanglai’s luxury car.

Soon enough, he inserted a hose into the car’s gas tank. He sucked hard with his mouth from the other end, and premium gasoline started flowing into his motorcycle’s tank.

Li Huowang put on a full-face helmet and sped away from the villa.

He rode down the road, returning to the city from the outskirts. He stayed on high alert, knowing full well that people were tracking him.

Though the motorcycle was the same, he had changed the license plate and repainted the black bike with a red-and-white pattern, making it less conspicuous [1] .

Li Huowang wasn’t taking such a risk for a casual ride. He was out to get some medicine to treat his hallucinations.

The plan was set for tomorrow, and he had no way of knowing the kind of projection the Siming would throw at him. He had to find a way to deal with his hallucinations before the battle started, or they would be a huge problem during the fight.

Zhao Shuangdian had forgotten about the deal they had made before time was reversed, but she didn’t go back on her word when Li Huowang reminded her. She said she’d figure something out.

In the pedestrian street, Li Huowang looked up at the Bloody Bonfire Tattoo Parlor run by the Ba siblings.

He pushed open the door and saw Ba Nanxu lounging on the sofa with her legs crossed. She was tattooing her own neck with a tattoo gun. The shop was dead quiet, and there was no business today.

“We’re closed. No tattooing today.”

“Where is the medicine?” Li Huowang asked, his lips pressed tightly together as he walked over.

“It’s in that bag on the table. The label will tell you the dosage and how often to take it.”

Li Huowang picked up the bag and opened it to check the bottles and jars inside.

Most of the medications were familiar since he had taken them before. His rough assessment suggested that Zhao Shuangdian hadn’t tricked him.

“You’re free, so why don’t you just deliver it to me? Don’t you know it’s inconvenient for me to be out right now?”

Ba Nanxu scoffed. “You’ve got some nerve. Why would I deliver it to you? Have we slept together?”

Li Huowang paid no attention to her. He swiftly unscrewed the medicine bottles and peeled off the foil seals before taking the daily prescribed dose.

He couldn’t stand the feeling that everything he saw could be a hallucination.

After taking the medication, Li Huowang was unsure if the hallucinations had stopped, but he did feel worse physically. He couldn’t concentrate well, his reactions were sluggish, and sweat broke out across his skin.

“You alright? If you’re gonna die, do it outside. Don’t die in my shop.”

Li Huowang shook his head forcefully, grabbed the bag, and then headed for the door. “I’m fine. Medications for mental illness always have side effects. I’ll adapt.”

Whether it was an overreaction or not, Li Huowang could clearly see figures walking past him, only to vanish just as quickly.

He took a seat on the steps outside and took a long rest. After some time, he started to feel more at ease and the after-images faded away. With that, he hopped back on his motorcycle and set off for home.

He kept his speed down since he didn't want to risk an accident. He made his way cautiously from the city to the outskirts.

Now that he had handled one of his problems, he felt a bit better. Life would be much simpler if all problems could be solved as easily as this one.

As he was nearing home, a car suddenly swerved into his path, sending cold sweat down his spine.

1. The raws describe it as less conspicuous, but we think it makes more sense as more conspicuous. 🤔

Chapter 917 - Order

Li Huowang was furious at suddenly being stopped like this. “Are you trying to crash into me? Learn how to drive!”

Li Huowang saw the car door open and was shocked to see who the driver was—Doctor Yi Donglai from the White Tower Hospital!

He never expected to see his attending doctor in a place like this.

“Did you really think I wouldn’t notice someone snooping through your medical records?” Yi Donglai explained. It was clear that he had been secretly following him.

Li Huowang gripped the handlebars of his motorcycle and quickly scanned his surroundings, wary of any orderlies who might suddenly appear to drag him back.

“Stop looking around. It’s just me today. I want to talk, Li Huowang. I’m genuinely curious—how did you escape from the White Tower Hospital? That’s a maximum-security facility.”

Yi Donglai was eager to learn how Li Huowang always managed to break free, no matter how tight the security was. This wasn’t the first time he had escaped.

“How did I escape? I had help. How so? Because everything that happened was real! None of it was just a hallucination!”

“Dr. Yi, you’re a good doctor, but you’re wrong about this. Terribly wrong!” Li Huowang said with conviction.

Yi Donglai responded to Li Huowang’s outburst with a simple smile, showing no signs of being bothered. His focus remained on bringing Li Huowang back, curing him, reclaiming his own reputation, and regaining what he believed he deserved.

“Do you truly believe that? Would you say the same in front of your mother?”

Yi Donglai raised his phone, and Sun Xiaoqin, Li Huowang's mother, appeared on the screen. She was crying and had visibly aged. "Huowang, where are you? Please come back. I beg you. Seeing your eye like this breaks my heart."

Li Huowang's headache intensified. His face contorted in agony as he gripped his head tightly.

Yi Donglai approached with the phone in hand, but the screen went black with a soft pop.

"Damn it! Why now?" Yi Donglai cursed and angrily tapped the phone.

When he noticed that Li Huowang had stopped struggling, he tossed the phone aside and composed himself. "Li Huowang, no matter what you've been through, remember one thing—you are ill.

"All your logic—all the bizarre things you've experienced—might just be your delusions."

"No! You're wrong! Terribly wrong!" Li Huowang shouted. "Come with me. I'll show you what's real! As absurd as it seems, it's the truth!"

He grabbed Yi Donglai and dragged him toward Qing Wanglai's villa. He wanted to prove that the people he had encountered were real.

As they hurried along, Li Huowang incoherently recounted everything he had experienced to Yi Donglai.

"Ha! You think killing Simings will let you reverse time? Does that even sound believable?" Yi Donglai's voice dripped with skepticism.

However, he was rational enough to not put up a fight, opting to continue walking alongside Li Huowang. "If you're saying that time can be reversed and that the world is purely idealistic, you might as well say the whole world is fake."

He continued, "Even in a world with magic, there has to be logic, right? Everything has to follow strict rules. If time and causality could be altered at will, the world would be so chaotic that it wouldn't function. It wouldn't hold together at all."

Yi Donglai's words hit Li Huowang like an electric shock. Fear flickered in his eyes as he stared at Yi Donglai. "What nonsense are you talking about?"

"I'm saying there are only two possibilities: either everything you've seen is fake and a result of your delusions, or you're right, and the entire world itself is fake.

"By your logic, you're not the one who's wrong—the entire world is.

"Li Huowang, which possibility do you think is more likely?"

Li Huowang clenched his teeth, and Yi Donglai adjusted his glasses with a confident smile.

Just as Yi Donglai was about to continue, a test tube dropped in front of him, shattering on the ground and spilling its contents.

The next moment, Yi Donglai blacked out.

Qing Wanglai stepped forward and stood over the unconscious Yi Donglai. "Don't let Order come near us. Their presence will destroy everything."

His expression was serious, devoid of his usual friendly smile. "I told you that Order won't help you. Even if you don't believe in me or Zhao Shuangdian, you need to believe in yourself."

Qing Wanglai knelt and searched Yi Donglai's belongings. He found a recording device and multiple tracking devices. Yi Donglai had clearly come prepared.

"We need to move up our plan. Order is closing in. Let's get through customs first."

Li Huowang glanced at Yi Donglai, propped him against a wall, then got on his motorcycle and sped away.

Perhaps due to Yi Donglai's earlier scare, Li Huowang felt more mentally stable than before. If nothing else, his headache had disappeared.

Leaving ahead of schedule wasn't a problem for Li Huowang, but he couldn't leave Yang Na alone—someone needed to take care of her.

Fortunately, Zhao Shuangdian stepped in to help. "I can have my nanny take care of your girlfriend for a while. Still, since you're bound to return to the same point in time sooner or later, what's the point of all this?"

Her words didn't stop Li Huowang from whispering to Yang Na. He eventually convinced her to let the Heavenly Mater help from a distance. With that, they prepared to leave.

"We don't need to rush. We could just kill that doctor and bury him somewhere," Ba Nanxu said. Her suggestion drew everyone's attention.

"No, temporarily cutting off Order won't help. It will only attract more of them. We need to go," Qing Wanglai said, making the final decision.

Everyone got into the car and went to the dock. Li Huowang was lost in thought, thinking about everything that had happened, including Yi Donglai's words.

Zhao Shuangdian's voice broke through his thoughts.

"Li Huowang, regarding what you said about reversing time, I have another theory. Have you heard of parallel worlds?"

"Maybe you're not reversing time. Maybe the people you interacted with were in a different parallel world. Perhaps due to some event, maybe a Siming's death or something else, you were pushed into another parallel world. As such, you met new versions of ourselves and everything started over."

Chapter 918 - Accident

“Parallel worlds?” Li Huowang said, his expression filled with hesitation.

“Yes, parallel worlds,” Zhao Shuangdian said, her bangs lifted by the salty sea breeze. “it’s another self-consistent hypothesis.”

“Where’s the evidence? What makes you think this?”

“There is no evidence, which is why it’s just a hypothesis—a bold guess.”

Li Huowang looked down at the frothy waves stirred by the ship’s propellers. “If this is just a hypothesis, what’s the point of telling me? Are you expecting me to help you prove it?”

“No, I just want you to understand more. A person’s knowledge is linked to their cognition. The more you know, the closer you might get to the truth.”

“What are you implying? That I don’t know enough? I might not know everything, but at least my worldview holds up! In contrast, what you’re talking about is just a hypothesis!”

Zhao Shuangdian’s brow furrowed slightly before relaxing, “Li Huowang, there’s no need to be so defensive. You don’t have to be so certain that your current worldview is the ultimate reality. Gaining a better understanding can be beneficial.”

“So you’re saying that even if I showed you evidence, you’d still believe my world isn’t real?”

“Why does it have to be black and white? The world itself isn’t necessarily divided so clearly between right and wrong. Can’t you consider the possibility that the world we glimpse—the real world of the elephant—isn’t singular but rather exists in a strange entangled state?” Zhao Shuangdian said, trying to reason with him.

“What are you really trying to say?”

Footsteps approached Li Huowang from behind. “What she means is that maybe the actual world that projects all of us resembles Schrödinger’s cat, existing in a state of both being alive and dead until the box is opened.”

Li Huowang turned to see Qing Wanglai speaking.

Li Huowang found the idea ridiculous. “So what? According to you, we’re in this world, existing in a state of both being and not being?”

“No, that’s not what I meant. Let me think about how to explain it,” Qing Wanglai said and rubbed his nose.

“Forget it—no need to explain. You guys can keep thinking about it. Just don’t drag me into it. It’s just confusing me,” Li Huowang said. He turned and walked away from the deck.

He didn’t want to further complicate his worldview by listening to their nonsense, which only made his mind more chaotic.

“The Greater Siming has no future, no past. The heralds of the Simings come into existence as the Simings come into existence and get erased as the Simings are erased.”

This was the secret that Zhuge Yuan had previously exchanged with Shangji Guankou. He already understood what it meant and had the evidence to back it up, so he was convinced that this was real and would help him achieve his goal. That was enough.

Since the death of the Simings could sever the cause and effect, it was better to have it continue to be severed. Once all the Simings were eliminated, he could finally heal himself and reintegrate into society.

His worldview was sufficient for now, and he didn’t really care about what this world was really like.

Li Huowang began to search the ship while sorting his thoughts.

“What are you looking for?” Ba Shengqing asked as he watched Li Huowang lift a lifebuoy and glance at the floor.

“I need to check if Shai Zi has followed us.”

Last time, Shai Zi had shown up unexpectedly. He wasn't sure if it would happen again.

“Shai Zi[1]? This isn't a gambling ship. Where would Shai Zi come from?”

“You wouldn't understand even if I explained. Instead of wasting time, why not help me look?”

This time was different from the last. Li Huowang couldn't find any dice anywhere on the ship.

Did it really not sneak along this time? Has Shai Zi backed off?

This thought crossed his mind briefly before he shook his head and headed toward the cargo hold.

He had searched the entire ship except for that. Li Huowang knew he needed to take Shai Zi seriously. This wasn't easy to deal with, and he must have his own agenda since he even dared to get involved in the battle of Simings.

If he wanted it to help him, he had to keep a firm grip on it. He needed to ensure he could find it anytime, anywhere, and take its life at any moment.

When he entered the cargo hold, Li Huowang was surprised to find cargo containers along with several cars tied down, which resembled an underground garage.

Could Shai Zi be hiding here? Li Huowang crouched down and carefully inspected every detail.

As he looked under one of the cars, he suddenly felt like someone was watching him. However, no one was there when he quickly stood up to check.

“Is someone there?” His voice echoed in the hold, but no one responded.

Then, he hesitantly asked, “Shai Zi? Is it you?”

Li Huowang took a few more steps forward, then stopped suddenly. He raised his head slightly and sniffed the air. His face darkened.

He quickly pulled out his phone and dialed for Zhao Shuangdian on the deck. "Hey, I'm in the cargo hold. You and Qing Wanglai need to come down. I have something to discuss with you."

After a short while, they arrived along with everyone else.

"What's going on?" Qing Wanglai asked.

"You're asking me? Shouldn't you first explain what you've done?"

Li Huowang turned his head and looked at the cargo containers secured to the floor. "Nana, come out. I know you're here."

After a few seconds, the front of a large container opened like a door. Yang Na was pouting and had her head down. She walked over to Li Huowang and grabbed his clenched fist.

"Care to explain? What's going on?" Li Huowang asked the two of them sternly. "I told you I didn't want her involved, yet you still went against me?"

He continued, "In that case, I might as well quit. You all do your thing, and I'll go by myself!"

His words made the others nervous. If it had been earlier, it wouldn't have mattered. However, now that they were certain Li Huowang could reverse time, his importance had been elevated.

"Huowang, it's not their fault," Yang Na anxiously said, pulling at his hand as she tried to explain. "I snuck aboard by myself because I wanted to help you."

She quickly noticed that Li Huowang wasn't listening. "Did you two knowingly let another Siming tag along? You expect me to believe you didn't notice? That's nonsense! I may be crazy, but I'm not stupid!"

"Ji Zai!" Yang Na suddenly raised her voice. "Ji Zai! As the Heavenly Mater, who governs Death and Benevolence, who are you to forbid me from joining the battle of the Simings?!"

1. Shai Zi is the Chinese word for dice. 📏

Chapter 919 - Festival

When Yang Na called Li Huowang Ji Zai, he froze as if struck by lightning.

At that moment, Zhao Shuangdian approached and whispered, “Honestly, she finally found something she wants to do. Just let her do it.

“You can see how much better she’s doing now. Do you really want her to go back to how she was? Curled up at the foot of the bed, consumed by thoughts of ending her life?

“And don’t worry about her safety. Since everything will eventually rewind, what’s there to fear about her safety?”

Yang Na said, “You are a Siming, and I am a Siming too! I am not your object! I don’t need your protection!

“This concerns the fate of all Simings in the Baiyu Capital! I can’t run away from this! Look at me. I am a Siming who governs both Death and Benevolence!”

Yang Na’s voice gradually softened. “Huowang, in the past, I wronged you. Let me be of some use, please. It’s the only way I’ll feel better.”

“Otherwise, I’ll always feel like I’m the one who caused you to end up like this. If I hadn’t called the police then, you wouldn’t have...” Yang Na choked with emotion.

Li Huowang embraced her, his hand softly smoothing her hair. His words got caught in his throat several times before he finally managed to speak with forced cheerfulness. “Okay! Ji Zai welcomes the return of the Heavenly Mater! With you on our side, the opposing Simings won’t stand a chance!”

He continued to hold Yang Na and turned coldly toward Zhao Shuangdian and Qing Wanglai. Then, he took out his phone and sent both of them a message.

Fine, you guys win. You used Yang Na to achieve your goals. But don't forget, the initiative is no longer in your hands—it's in mine. Especially the next time the timeline rewinds and you guys know nothing.

Next time, I want to see if I can deceive you by mixing truth and lies when I tell you I can reverse time. Will you two be able to tell the difference?

“Here, does your father look like this? I made this clay figurine.”

Li Sui's gaze remained fixed on a lantern nearby, her mind lost in thought. A lifelike clay figure was then presented to her, capturing her attention. The figure portrayed a person in red robes, whose face was concealed by a bronze coin mask. They also had a spine sword on their back.

“Yes! That's my father!” Li Sui excitedly grabbed the chopstick handle at the bottom of the figure, unable to let go. She missed her father terribly, and even a clay figure was enough to provide temporary comfort.

Zuoqiu Yong smiled and shook his head. “Ah, you're just like a child. That boy Li Huowang sure knows how to raise a kid.”

“Remember, I'm called Zuoqiu Yong. From now on, just call me Auntie.”

“I'll remember, Auntie. Weren't you going to take me to Great Qi?”

“Ah, you little kid,” Zuoqiu Yong poked her forehead teasingly. “I heard you like festivals, so I brought you here to have some fun. There's no need to stay cooped up in the house all the time.”

“What's the rush to go to Great Qi? We still have 180 years to wait. We can talk after the festival.”

Li Sui nodded and laughed innocently, “You're right, Auntie. I have so many years before I can see my dad again.”

After a brief pause, Li Sui seemed to think carefully and then shook her head. “Wait, no. I don’t need 180 years. My dad looks like he’s in his twenties. In 150 odd years, I can go find the newborn him!”

“I’d advise against it. If you interfere and your dad doesn’t get captured by Dan Yangzi, he won’t eat you to suppress his hallucinations. You could mess up the cause and effect, and you may not even learn how to speak again.”

Li Sui was frightened by this and nodded quickly. “Mm! I won’t go looking for him early! I won’t mess things up.”

“Ah~ Good girl. For today, stop thinking so much and just have fun.”

Li Sui nodded once more, her gaze filled with longing as she looked at the clay figure cradled in her hands. “Auntie, now that I have my father, could you also make two mothers for me?”

“Sure! Come with me. The clay figurines shop is over here. By the way, you have two mothers? Your father sure is lucky.”

“Really? But I don’t think my father has been fortunate. He’s had a hard life these past years.”

When they arrived at the clay figure shop, the old man quickly molded two figures according to Li Sui’s description. In no time, a white-haired girl with two torsos was crafted.

Lastly, Zuoqiu Yong had him make a figure of Li Sui herself, allowing the family of four to be together.

Once the figures were finished, Zuoqiu Yong took Li Sui to a temple fair. They solved lantern riddles and enjoyed the night market.

By late evening, Li Sui had played to her heart’s content. She held onto Zuoqiu Yong’s hand as they headed home.

She looked at the three lifelike clay figures in her hands, then carefully buried them in her tentacles. “Auntie, you’re such a good person.”

“Oh, what are you saying, kid? I’m a Chief, after all. Being a good person is a requirement for this job.”

As she spoke, Zuoqiu Yong gently patted Li Sui’s head. “Ah, you poor child. What an irresponsible father you have—abandoning you in this distant place, not even bothering to search for you.

“From now on, I’m your family. If you ever need anything, just look for me. I’ll help you.”

“Mm! In 180 years, I’ll tell my father how good Auntie was to me! I’ll let him know Auntie is a wonderful person!”

“Alright, I’d love to meet the guy who raised an evil spirit as his daughter.”

The two continued to chat as they walked, and they eventually returned to the Surveillance Bureau in Great Qi.

Li Sui was sent back to her room to rest, while Zuoqiu Yong went to his residence.

Though the Surveillance Bureau were underground, his personal chambers as the Chief were lavish and grand.

He walked through the corridor, and entered his treasure room. He glanced at the treasures hanging from the beams, then kneeled at a low table, and tapped his finger on the brush holder thrice.

A small monkey, about the size of an infant’s fist, crawled out, knelt by the inkstone, and quickly started to grind ink.

Once the ink was ready, it lifted a calligraphy brush with great effort, then offered it to Zuoqiu Yong.

Zuoqiu Yong expressionlessly took the brush and carefully recorded everything Li Sui had mentioned today.

After he finished, he tossed the brush to the little monkey, who was sneakily licking the ink. Then, he pulled out a few pages of notes he had written days before and began to organize them.

Anything that happened 180 years from now could contain vital information, and even the smallest detail could be valuable. At the very least, being able to foresee the future was an enormous advantage.

Chapter 920 - Xuan Pin

“Hmm...” Zuoqiu Yong carefully examined the document, reading everything Li Sui had said. When he reached the part where the Great Qi was completely destroyed by god Yu’er and the entire Great Qi was engulfed in that strange liquid, his brows furrowed slightly.

“Hmm... A catastrophe in the Great Qi 180 years from now... Could it be that even the Great Qi’s Surveillance Bureaus couldn’t prevent it? I need to start planning for the future...”

After thinking deeply for a moment, he reached for the pen from the ink monkey. He circled the section and continued reading.

He circled the information that he found useful. However, since these were all events 180 years in the future, there weren’t many points worth circling.

Soon, he discovered a passage describing how a Twisted One had exchanged a fan with the Shangji Guankou, and his eyes lit up with interest.

Although he had heard tales of the Shangji Guankou, he had always dismissed them as mere legend. He hadn’t imagined that finding it would involve fengshui practices.

This was a valuable item. If one could trade enough secrets, this thing would be far more useful than any divination method.

“If my guess is right, this Zhuge Yuan must be the Twisted One of the Three Pure Ones. Otherwise, no ordinary person could have found the Shangji Guankou so easily.”

Zuoqiu Yong couldn’t help but feel pleased. After so many years of bad luck, he had finally stumbled upon something valuable. “I can’t let her leave. I need to find a way to keep her here. The fewer people who know about this information, the more valuable it is..."

The next morning, Zuoqiu Yong brought breakfast to Li Sui as soon as she got out of bed.

"Here, eat up. This lamb bone stew is quite tasty," Zuoqiu Yong said with a warm smile, placing a bowl of meat and bones in front of Li Sui.

"Thanks, Auntie," Li Sui said. Her skin split open from the middle, and a faceless dog head emerged from within, gnawing on the bones with a crunch.

Li Sui had discovered that Auntie seemed to know exactly what she liked to eat and was always willing to take her to festivals. She really liked her.

"In the past, no one took care of you. Hearing how pitiful your situation was broke my heart. From now on, Auntie will look after you, even if your father doesn't take care of you," Zuoqiu Yong said, affectionately patting Li Sui's dog head.

"Mm!" Li Sui nodded vigorously, her mouth stuffed with food. "Auntie, when are we going to the Great Liang?"

Zuoqiu Yong pretended to feel hurt. "What? Don't you like staying with Auntie?"

Li Sui quickly shook her head. "No, I love staying with you, Auntie! I just want to see the Great Liang."

"Alright, alright, I'm just teasing you. Eat up, and then I'll take you to Great Liang's Chief. The Great Liang's Chief is called Xuan Pin, right? He has six arms and likes to wear red Daoist robes?"

"Mm!"

"I've already contacted him. Trust Auntie. Would I lie to you?"

Li Sui nodded eagerly and gulped down the lamb bones as quickly as possible. She was eager to meet Xuan Pin.

Li Sui had never expected that she would still have acquaintances 180 years ago.

Soon, Li Sui finished her lamb stew and impatiently tugged on Zuoqiu Yong, ready to leave.

Under Zuoqiu Yong's guidance, Li Sui left the Surveillance Bureau and boarded a carriage heading out of the city.

"Don't worry. Xuan Pin heard about your situation a long time ago and is patiently waiting outside the city."

"Really? That's great!" Li Sui exclaimed, peering out of the carriage window in anticipation.

Although her father had been skeptical about the mysterious Xuan Pin, Li Sui felt a sense of closeness knowing there was still someone familiar from so far in the past. This way, she wouldn't be alone across time.

The carriage approached a bamboo grove and stopped as Li Sui watched. The wind rustled the bamboo leaves, creating a serene and picturesque setting.

Li Sui caught sight of Xuan Pin's tall figure inside a small, green bamboo pavilion. Cloaked in a red Daoist robe, Xuan Pin exuded a sense of familiarity and comfort.

Li Sui excitedly jumped out of the carriage and rushed toward the red-robed figure.

As she ran, her pace gradually slowed, and the initial excitement on her face began to fade. Eventually, she came to a stop, her expression now tinged with a hint of fear, and her gaze fixed on Xuan Pin.

"What's wrong? Why are you just standing there?" Zuoqiu Yong frowned slightly and supported Li Sui from behind. "Weren't you eager to see Xuan Pin? Xuan Pin is right there. Why don't you go over?"

Li Sui tugged on Zuoqiu Yong's sleeve and hid behind him. "Auntie, did we find the wrong person? This doesn't seem like Xuan Pin..."

Zuoqiu Yong's expression tightened. "What do you mean? Doesn't Xuan Pin wear a red Daoist robe?"

Li Sui hesitated, then shook her head slightly. “Xuan Pin does wear red, just like my father, but... his robe usually has many moving characters. This one doesn’t.”

“What moving characters? Why didn’t you mention this before?”

Li Sui flailed her tentacles in the air and tried to explain. “I don’t know the characters. My father never taught me, so I didn’t know how to tell you.”

Zuoqiu Yong pondered for a moment before bursting into laughter. Playfully tapping Li Sui with a silk cloth, he casually remarked, “You silly child, why are you so fixated on this? Do you think people wear the same clothes for 180 years?”

“After so many years, isn’t it normal to change clothes? Whose wardrobe stays the same?”

Li Sui had a sudden realization, and a smile formed on her face. “Oh, of course! After 180 years, Xuan Pin must have changed his attire! My mom bought me lots of different outfits too!”

“Good! Now that you understand, tell him everything you need to.”

Li Sui entered the bamboo pavilion and looked at Xuan Pin. She suddenly felt nervous again.

She took a moment to gather her thoughts before saying, “You have to help my father! One hundred eighty years from now, the Siming of the Dharma Sect and my father will face off in the Baiyu Capital. If my father loses, not only will the Great Qi be doomed, but so will the Great Liang!”

Once she uttered her first sentence, her words flowed effortlessly, and she promptly told Xuan Pin everything she knew.

After finishing, she waited patiently for Xuan Pin’s response. Although her father often complained about him, Xuan Pin had always seemed like a good person to her.

As the Chief, this should be his responsibility. However, since one hundred eighty years separated them, Li Sui had no idea what kind of person Xuan Pin was at this time.

After a long pause, Li Sui finally saw Xuan Pin slowly nod his head, cloaked in the red Daoist robe. "I understand. I will handle it."

Chapter 921 - Contact

Li Sui didn't suspect anything about Xuan Pin's changed voice. After all, there was a gap of 180 years—it was only natural for his voice to be different.

Li Sui felt excited, having finally explained everything to Xuan Pin.

“Oh, really? Yay, that's great news! Could you possibly take me back to the Liang Kingdom? I would like to wait there for my father. By the way, my father needs a significant amount of Dragon Qi. We need to have a lot of it ready to help him.”

Li Sui was shocked to see Xuan Pin shaking her head. “No, you cannot come.”

“Huh? Why? I want to go back!”

Li Sui thought she could finally return now that she had found Xuan Pin. She never expected Xuan Pin to reject her like this.

“You know too much, and you are still immature. Taking you back to the Liang Kingdom will only disrupt the timeline there. It's best if you stay here.”

“I won't tell anyone anything! I will seal my mouth shut!” Li Sui said.

Zuoqiu Yong approached the two of them. “Tsk, tsk. You're still a little girl. You can barely keep your mouth shut, and you nearly revealed your secret to everyone you met along the way.

“Well, I've sent some men to handle them, so there's no need to worry. For now, stay here with me. I'll teach you how to stop others from deceiving you.”

“But...”

Xuan Pin insisted, “No excuses. Consider it as a favor for your father. I'll return to pick you up in 180 years.”

Having said his piece, Xuan Pin disappeared like smoke.

“You better not come back here! If I see you again, I will beat you up!” Li Sui pouted with tears in her eyes. Although Xuan Pin was right, she still didn’t like how Xuan Pin didn’t trust her.

The current Xuan Pin was too rigid.

“Alright, let’s go back now. We still have a wait of 180 years ahead of us. What’s the difference between staying here and staying in the Liang Kingdom?”

Zuoqiu Yong patted Li Sui’s head.

“I will treat you as my daughter from now on. I don’t have any children, so I hope you don’t mind seeing me as part of your family.”

Li Sui wiped off her tears. “No, I don’t mind. You’re a good person.”

“Alright, you can go back using the carriage. I have something to do, so I won’t see you off. You know how busy being the Chief of the Surveillance Bureau is.”

Li Sui unwillingly sat on the carriage before she returned. Zuoqiu Yong, on the other hand, stood in the bamboo forest. He stared at the leaves while waiting for something.

Only after the carriage’s sound had completely disappeared did Zuoqiu Yong speak up, saying, “Come out.”

A large red Daoist robe fell down from the skies. It was Xuan Pin!

Xuan Pin took off the red robes to reveal three people standing on each other’s shoulders. Two men and a woman. They looked like siblings, and they had masqueraded as Xuan Pin.

The three of them separated and quickly kneeled on the ground, “Chief!”

“What are you doing? Do you really need my assistance for such a trivial matter? Did a cat get your tongue, or should I get your tongue?”

The three of them started sweating from Zuoqiu Yong's threats. Their mouths would've been gone for good if they had said the wrong thing.

"Chief, we..."

"Enough. Go back now. Remember, this is the last time. There's no next time."

Zuoqiu Yong then turned to leave the place. "Don't throw the robes away. We might need to use it if we want to control that little evil entity."

The trio sighed in relief. "Yes, Chief! We'll be ready at all times!"

"Soon, I will get all of the information I need from her. You can then refine her into an artifact."

"Thank you for the reward, Chief!"

A Strayed One was a walking treasure, and even more so when it was an evil entity too.

Li Sui soon got used to life in the Qi Kingdom under the care of Zuoqiu Yong.

Li Sui realized that Zuoqiu Yong was strangely interested in the things that would occur 180 years in the future, so she told Zuoqiu Yong everything.

She even tried her best to recall some of the past that she had forgotten.

At first, Li Sui was reluctant to stay in the Qi Kingdom. She felt she could've been closer to her father if she were to stay in the Liang Kingdom instead.

However, she soon got used to life here.

She felt that Zuoqiu Yong was correct. Her father would come here frequently in the future. She could wait for her father whether she was in the Liang Kingdom or the Qi Kingdom.

One day, Li Sui entered the room with a grin, hiding something behind her back after lunch. Zuoqiu Yong, who had been sewing, rolled his eyes and asked, “What are you doing?”

“Auntie, close your eyes.”

Zuoqiu Yong showed the needle in his right hand. “What if I pick myself with the needle when I close my eyes?”

“Come on, Auntie, just close your eyes.”

Zuoqiu Yong closed her eyes because she couldn’t win against Li Sui’s endearing request. When he opened his eyes, he saw a clay figurine fashioned into her appearance in front of him!

“Aunt, I love you! You take care of me just like my father did. You are my family now!” Li Sui’s happiness was overflowing. She joyfully jumped into Zuoqiu Yong’s arms and shoved the clay figurine into his hands.

“Wait, wait! The needle! Be careful of the needle! You little runt...” Zuoqiu Yong hurriedly moved his needle and embroidery to the side.

“Alright, that’s enough. Please get off me—it’s very hot. Are you hungry? I left some food for you in my study, so go and get it.”

Upon hearing that there was food, she quickly released Zuoqiu Yong and sprinted to the study.

“Don’t run! And don’t play with my ink monkeys! Their knees shake a lot every time they see you.”

“Alright!”

Zuoqiu Yong smiled as he continued embroidering while listening to Li Sui’s disappearing footsteps.

When he bit off the final thread, the three siblings appeared and kneeled before her. “Chief, we are ready for your orders at any time.”

Zuoqiu Yong’s smile slowly faded, and he realized what he needed to do. “Oh, look at how forgetful I am. I’ve already asked her almost everything I needed, so it’s time to remove her from the equation. It’s best if the others remain unaware.”

He took the clay figurine and inspected it. He hesitated momentarily.

“Chief?”

“Go.” Zuoqiu Yong threw the clay figurine. “Make it painless for her.”

Just after the siblings departed, Zuoqiu Yong wept. He dabbed away his tears and resumed his embroidery. “Sigh... Saying goodbye after sharing a life together is not easy.”

Chapter 922 - Fuse

Li Sui sat in Zuoqiu Yong's study while munching on raw flesh. She was also toying around with the ink monkeys sleeping inside the brushes.

She looked at the three figurines that Zuoqiu Yong had made for her and touched them.

"Father, don't worry. I'm fine here. Auntie is a good person, and she takes good care of me. I will wait for you to come back. 180 years is... how many months is that again?"

Li Sui set aside the raw flesh and attempted to count the months with her tentacles when, out of nowhere, the lanterns in the room were snuffed out. In an instant, the room was engulfed in darkness.

"Huh? What's going on?"

Li Sui had barely reacted when she felt her neck going cold. The next second, Princess An Ping's head flew high up in the air.

Several tentacles sprouted out from her neck, but someone in the dark knocked Li Sui away!

The bloody dog skull sprouted out beneath her skirt, sensing the impending danger from the dark. Li Sui panicked. "Auntie! Auntie help! Someone's trying to kill me!"

However, Zuoqiu Yong didn't respond, even though he was just in the room beside Li Sui.

"Oh no! Why isn't Auntie here? Is there danger? I need to escape with him!"

"Ban Luo Jie Di! Mo Ah Wan Luo Ren Li!" a complex mantra resonated through the air. Li Sui's head throbbed with piercing pain, as if something were digging its way into her mind.

She tried to retaliate, but her enemies came prepared. Li Sui couldn't see anything in the darkness. She didn't even know who was attacking her.

"Aunty! Help! Help me..."

Li Sui used the last of her strength to escape the study.

Just as she had almost reached the door, the entire study room extended. The door, which had been just inches away from her, was now positioned on the horizon!

Simultaneously, a wave of intense pain emanated from her back, making Li Sui involuntarily freeze up. She reached out to her chest only to discover a massive hole.

I cannot die! Father still needs me!

Li Sui's tentacles surged out from her tattered body. However, in a matter of moments, she sensed a force pulling at her tentacles from all directions. The sound of tearing flesh filled the air as Li Sui was ripped apart, leaving the study silent once again.

Li Sui was powerless against the three siblings—they had learned everything about Li Sui's powers.

"Brother, is that thing dead?" asked the sister.

The lanterns in the study lit up, revealing the three siblings standing around.

The eldest brother grumbled to his younger brother, saying, "Why did you tear it to so many pieces? Don't you know how much pure lifespan we can get if we sell that thing?"

The sister tried to break them up. "Brother, let's stop fighting and clear up this mess. This is the Chief's study, after all."

"Should we ask the Chief to come and see?"

"No need. The Chief is too kind and doesn't want to see the mess here."

The eldest brother took out a burlap sack and shook it. Li Sui's flesh, which had been scattered all over the room, was vacuumed into the bag.

The three of them exited the study and bowed to the room where Zuoqiu Yong was. Then, they quickly left.

They exited the Chief's residence with wide grins on their faces. They had scored big this time.

"This is something the Chief has given to us. We can't let the others know, especially Zhang Tude. Let's scatter first. We can meet up at the old place outside of the city."

The youngest brother appeared irritated. It seemed he had a grudge against Zhang Tude. "Hmph! I don't believe he would take our stuff so openly! He's so arrogant, thinking that he's the one in control of the Surveillance Bureau!"

"No need to be angry with him. We are still the Chief's closest aides. Soon, we'll be the ones ordering him around! Let's disperse for now."

The other two nodded. They each chose a different exit and left.

Since the eldest brother was the one carrying the sack, he might have been targeted first. To avoid this, he opted for the most inconspicuous route available and reached their rendezvous point by nightfall.

It was a dilapidated temple, but only the three of them knew there was a hidden chamber beneath it. A rat-like evil entity had dug it out in the past.

The two younger siblings had been anxiously waiting and immediately greeted their elder brother when they saw him climbing down with the sack.

"Brother, why are you so late? We would've thought you ran away if we weren't siblings."

As soon as they made contact with their older brother, he opened his mouth. From his mouth, numerous flattened tentacles swiftly emerged, entering his sister's body through her openings.

"Why did you kill me?!" the eldest brother shouted as the sack on his back wriggled. Li Sui was still alive.

Taking advantage of the surprise, Li Sui attacked the final sibling. The youngest brother tried to escape, but it was futile. He was consumed by the flattened tentacles too.

After resolving everything, the eldest brother gently placed the sack on the ground, revealing a large hole in his back.

Li Sui had poked a hole in the sack and extended her tentacles through it to take control of the eldest brother's body. The latter didn't even realize that Li Sui had completely spread her tentacles into his body.

The eldest brother was now dead, and Li Sui had taken over his body as a new host.

Li Sui controlled the broken body to dump out the sack's contents. Bloody pieces of her previous corpse fell out.

She sucked the shadow of her dismembered corpse, filling and engorging her flattened tentacles once more.

Li Sui controlled her new body to search for her previous body. Amidst the fragments of her former body, she discovered wrinkled, curled human skin—her father's skin doll. It was a life-saving treasure Li Huowang had given her. He had once told her that after Bai Lingmiao, he was the one who worried about her the most.

Her father's concern for her had saved her life.

Li Sui cried as she controlled her new body. She continued to look around and finally found the three clay figurines. She grabbed them and clinged onto them tightly. "Father, why is Auntie trying to kill me? I liked him so much. He said that I was part of his family. Was he lying?"

The future version of Li Huowang did not have the answer—Li Sui did.

As she assimilated the memories of the eldest brother with hers, she slowly let go of her naivety and found the apparent contradiction in her memories.

It was Xuan Pin. Could the Chief of the Surveillance Bureau from the Liang Kingdom really travel to the Qi Kingdom so easily? Furthermore, could the Chiefs of the different kingdoms really be on good enough terms to call each other just like that?

Li Sui then noticed some of the minor inconsistencies, such as the absence of runes on Xuan Pin's robes and the differences in his voice. After carefully analyzing these clues, Li Sui concluded that Zuoqiu Yong had lied to her.

Chapter 923 - Help

“That person is not Xuan Pin! It was a fake planted by Zuoqiu Yong! He deceived me instead of helping me! He was just using me for information!

“Why? Why would he do this... Why?”

Li Sui struggled to get up with her new body.

As she laid her eyes upon the corpses on the ground, a wave of panic surged through her. “Why? Why did I kill my own siblings? What have I done?!”

Li Sui froze, stunned by her own words. She held her head and shook it rapidly. “No... I’m not him. I’m Li Sui! I’m Li Sui!”

She tried to break free from the person’s body but found herself trapped. Gazing at the corpses scattered around her, a wave of grief washed over her.

She had instinctively merged with the eldest brother to save her own life, just like she had done with Bun before. The eldest brother did not die—he became a part of her.

Wiping away her tears, Li Sui scanned the cave for an exit. She was no longer the naive girl she once was. She needed to escape—one wrong move could cost her everything.

The three siblings were working for Zuoqiu Yong. If he found out the three siblings were missing, Zuoqiu Yong would immediately suspect Li Sui was still alive.

She needed to escape before Zuoqiu Yong realized what had happened.

As the Chief of the Qi Kingdom’s Surveillance Bureau, Zuoqiu Yong controlled the entire Bureau. It would be difficult for Li Sui to live.

“I can’t stay in the Qi Kingdom, and the An Xi Kingdom to the west isn't an option either. My only hope is to take a boat and set out to sea."

Li Sui didn't hesitate and ran for the exit.

However, just as she appeared in the dilapidated temple, she froze. When had she become so clear-headed? Something had fundamentally changed within her.

Li Sui realized what had happened. She had absorbed the eldest brother, making him a part of herself, just as she had assimilated Bun before. Back then, she had grown more affectionate for her father and developed a peculiar love for bones.

Li Sui trembled as she took out Li Huowang's clay figurine and stared at it.

"Father, the Black Taisui's assimilation is too strong. The people I assimilated became part of me. I can even gain half of their intelligence, but I cannot continue doing this. I fear that I will stop being your daughter if I assimilate more people.

"Father, don't worry. I'm smarter now. I can definitely help you in the future—in 180 years."

Li Sui then ran out from the temple and escaped into the darkness.

Li Sui slowly opened her eyes as she shook herself from her daydream. She looked at the three people in front of her. Although they were of different ages, they all looked at her with the same fearful gaze.

The Strayed Ones, who had been imprisoned and raised by certain sects, wore a variety of clothes and had different disabilities. The sects had shaved some of their body parts when they needed them.

"You're all here because you're Strayed Ones. But today, we'll use our methods to set you free."

Li Sui's words did little to cheer them up. She understood their skepticism. "I know that Strayed Ones who've lived as long as yourselves can't trust others easily. However, I don't need your trust. Just follow me. It's not like you have a choice."

Li Sui brought the three of them into the Surveillance Bureau. After walking in the confusing underground path for a while, Li Sui brought the three of them to Li Huowang's cultivating room.

Li Huowang had been cultivating, which distorted the room beyond recognition. Various bizarre things were unfolding in the room.

Bricks would occasionally sink and dissolve into springs of water, which would then float and metamorphose into a weeping woman. Moments later, the woman turned into a statue.

Li Sui walked over and patted Li Huowang to shake him out of his cultivation.

Li Huowang opened his eyes and looked at his daughter. "What's wrong?"

"The Strayed Ones are here."

Li Sui moved to the side, and Li Huowang finally saw the three people in front of him.

"There's just three of them? I don't think I can reach the seventh stage with them."

Li Huowang frowned, feeling anxious. Zuoqiu Yong could arrive at any moment, and he was worried.

"It's not that easy to find Strayed Ones. Two of them were in our vaults, but we had to raid an evil sect to find the third one. Most of my men are also constantly searching for more."

"Didn't you give me a lot of primordial breath last time during my fight with Shai Zi? Where did you get it?"

"Father, I spent over one hundred years preparing those. I didn't have so much time to prepare them this time. Also, those weren't meant to be used against Shai Zi—they were supposed to help Ji Zai return to his status as a Strayed One."

Li Huowang knew that Li Sui was right. Ji Zai was the key, not Shai Zi. Without Ji Zai, everyone would've been killed by the Dharma Sect.

Li Huowang sighed and approached the three Strayed Ones. "What about the other places? Are the other Surveillance Bureaus looking for the Strayed Ones too?"

"I've ordered them to do so. They will send any Strayed Ones they find to Shangjing, but there have been no replies."

Li Huowang faced the three Strayed Ones. "I'm one of you. I've lived through exactly what you're experiencing now. Letting me strip away your primordial breath and inner sight would be best for all of us."

Li Huowang then looked at their broken limbs. "I won't say much. When you become regular people once more, head to a place called Cowheart Village. You can live out the rest of your lives there peacefully."

Li Huowang then gestured at Li Sui. "Let's start immediately. We don't have much time."

Li Sui nodded. Several Unspeakables entered the room. Their heads were skewered together by Li Sui's tentacles, making them look like a massive flesh spider as they walked in.

The three Strayed Ones were filled with panic. However, before they could react, Li Sui took control of the Unspeakables, retrieving the primordial breath from the Strayed Ones and stripping the inner sight from their eyes.

After the two things had been extracted from their bodies, the three Strayed Ones became skinnier, as if something had stolen their vitality.

The Unspeakables shoved the primordial breath and inner sight into Li Huowang, and everything around him started to change uncontrollably.

His thoughts were manifesting around him without his control.

Li Huowang felt everything around him crumbling and turning into a manor.

He carefully sat down and began controlling the inner sight he had just obtained, using it to push the primordial breath toward his seventh chakra point.

Chapter 924 - Cultivation

The seven chakra points were the Root Chakra, Sacral Chakra, Solar Plexus Chakra, Heart Chakra, Throat Chakra, Third Eye Chakra, and finally, the Crown Chakra.

This was the method to cultivate the “Truth” Doulao had given him. Strayed Ones could cultivate “Truth” because of the primordial breath inside their body. Whenever Li Huowang used his inner sight to push the primordial breath into one of the seven chakra points, his control over the cultivation of “Truth” increased.

When Li Huowang controlled the Root Chakra, he could temporarily turn a stone into an apple.

When he controlled the Sacral Chakra, he could turn the ground into water and even twist arrows to miss their mark.

When he controlled the Solar Plexus Chakra, he could conjure fire out of nowhere and turn someone into mud with just a glare.

When the inner sight and primordial breath from three different Strayed Ones entered his body, he started pushing his primordial breath toward the next chakra point.

With more inner sight, he could move more of his primordial breath.

His cultivation started to grow faster. However, Li Huowang felt that the power was slowly slipping out of his control, as it wasn't his to begin with. He dared not let his guard down.

Li Huowang lost track of time, oblivious to everything happening outside. His focus was entirely on cultivation.

Li Huowang locked in as he focused on using his inner sight to move the primordial breath. Thanks to the three Strayed Ones, his cultivation speed had increased significantly.

His primordial breath, once as heavy as a skyscraper, slowly moved up to the next chakra point. The moment it did, Li Huowang felt his mind explode, and his consciousness spread out thinly. He then lost consciousness altogether.

When he finally regained consciousness, he found himself suspended in midair, with Li Sui glaring at him as if he were an enemy.

The old furniture in the room had disappeared entirely, and the entire room was painted completely white. Everything around him had completely changed.

Li Huowang looked around, and as he willed, the rafters, chairs, and floorboards returned. He restored the room to its former glory.

Li Huowang was stronger than before, and his range had improved dramatically. He was confident that he could now influence things tens of meters away.

“Father, it looks like my method was correct. You only spent...”

“Wait!”

Li Huowang interrupted Li Sui, his forehead glistening with sweat. “Hold on, don’t say anything just yet. Give me some food and water first.”

He soon ate and drank his fill before laying on the floor to sleep.

It took some time before Li Huowang woke up again. This time, he felt much better. He explained, “In the future, don’t tell me how long I’ve been out after cultivating. If it’s too long, I might actually starve to death.”

Li Huowang had to eat, sleep, and drink before the others told him how long he had been cultivating. Only then could he prevent his death.

“Alright, you can talk now. What were you trying to say?” Li Huowang said, plucking out one of his hairs and using it as a toothpick.

“I wanted to say that you only took two days to finish your cultivation. At least my plan worked.”

Li Huowang shook his head. “No, it’s not enough. Shai Zi and I tricked Zuoqiu Yong last time, but it will not work next time. Zuoqiu Yong could utilize the entire Tianchen Kingdom next time. Having a Siming that controls the Heavenly Dao of Growth and an entire world as our enemy is not a joke.

“Since this plan works, we need to quickly find more Strayed Ones and raise my cultivation to the seventh stage before Zuoqiu Yong attacks! I’m only at the fourth stage right now.”

Still, a quiet worry lingered in Li Huowang’s mind—he wasn’t sure he could defeat Zuoqiu Yong, even if he reached the seventh stage of his cultivation.

Thankfully, he wasn’t alone this time. Both the Qi Kingdom and the Liang Kingdom were on his side.

Li Huowang patted Li Sui’s shoulder before he resumed his cultivation. “I need more Strayed Ones. Find a way to search the entire world.”

Cultivating “Truth” required more than primordial breath and inner sight, but it was the best option right now.

“Father, are there Strayed Ones in the Qi Kingdom? Maybe they can help.”

“Ha. Almost everyone is dead there. I doubt that there are any Strayed Ones there. Tell Gao Zhijian not to plan everything in detail. Don’t hope for the Qi Kingdom alone to fight off the Tianchen Kingdom. It’s impossible.

“I know that the Dragon Veins are precious and that it takes a long time to accumulate Dragon Qi, but we need to use it now. If we fail here, we won’t ever get to use it in the future. The Dragon Veins will become Zuoqiu Yong’s mount if we are conquered.”

Li Huowang believed that he needed to go to the Baiyu Capital to win this time. He refused to believe that the Simings he had saved last time would ignore his plea. What are they doing to begin with?

“Alright, Father. I will find more Strayed Ones now. I’ll take care of everything while you cultivate.”

Seeing Li Sui exit the room, Li Huowang sat down to start cultivating again, but before he could, he realized that he had forgotten something very important.

“Wait, what am I forgetting?”

Li Huowang pondered a moment before he reached for his head.

With a light swipe of his fingernails, his scalp opened like a flower. Li Huowang did it again, and his skull split open. He reached into his brain to search around before he found Hong Zhong’s mahjong tile inside his brain.

Shai Zi had initially placed the mahjong tile into his brain to let him know about the incoming Natural Disaster in the Tianchen Kingdom, which he used to trick Zuoqiu Yong. However, Shai Zi had intentionally left it there. Shai Zi couldn’t have forgotten something like this.

“He’s a bastard that refuses to give up on either side. I need to be careful when I deal with him next time.”

Li Huowang proceeded to crush the mahjong tile into dust.

Li Huowang continued his cultivation once more.

Unbeknownst to him, Li Sui stood outside the cultivation room to observe him. Compared to the insides, the outside of the room had been completely twisted. Old rotting wood had fused with brand-new boards.

Li Huowang’s cultivation caused this. Even Li Sui didn’t know how Li Huowang did it. Rather than being unstable to the brink of collapsing, the room stood firm and breathed like a beast.

“Tell the others to evacuate this region. Don’t leave anyone behind.”

This was only the fourth stage. Who knew what would happen when Li Huowang reached the seventh stage?

Xuan Pin didn't want the entire Surveillance Bureau of the Liang Kingdom to be destroyed by her father before the fight even began.

One of the pillars beside Xuan Pin answered, “Yes, Chief.”

Chapter 925 - Important

Just as Xuan Pin nodded, she looked up. She floated and passed through the ground before reaching the surface.

Li Sui greeted Bai Lingmiao and asked, "Mother, why are you here?"

"I've ordered the entire White Lotus Sect to find Strayed Ones. They are scattered everywhere, and we will soon have the information we need."

"Thank you, Mother."

Now, everyone in the Liang Kingdom was searching for Strayed Ones. Xuan Pin doubted that the Strayed Ones could hide for long.

"We are family. No need to thank each other. Has your father eaten? I've brought some food for him," Bai Lingmiao said, holding out a food box.

"He's busy cultivating. Let's eat without him."

Li Sui took the food box and held Bai Lingmiao's back. She guided Bai Lingmiao to the rooftop of the Surveillance Bureau. When Li Sui opened the box, she noticed it was filled with Li Huowang's favorite dishes.

One of Li Sui's arms sprouted out from her robes. She took a pair of chopsticks and picked up a winter melon before eating it.

"Mother, is there something you need to discuss with Father?"

Bai Lingmiao smiled as she tucked some of her hair behind her ears. "I've heard about the situation in Tianchen Kingdom. Your father must be worried, right? I understand him, and I know he will try to handle it all by himself.

"I came to tell him that the Heavenly Mater is sending a signal to stop him from being so rash. If the Tianchen Kingdom were coming already, the Heavenly Mater would not sit idly."

“Oh? Has the Heavenly Mater given out her sacred decree?” Li Sui replied.

Bai Lingmiao shook her head.

“No, but it’s better than before. I’m certain that the Heavenly Mater will soon help us.”

“That’s good news. I’ll let Father know.”

Li Sui ate her meal, enjoying the stir-fried meat with chestnuts. “This is delicious.”

“Is that so? Suisui, if you like it so much, I will bring you a portion next time.”

Bai Lingmiao tried to pat Li Sui’s head, but she soon gave up after seeing how tall Li Sui was.

“Mother, do you want to stay with Father forever?”

Bai Lingmiao’s smile slowly disappeared. “Why are you asking that?”

“I just want to make it clear. You can’t keep dragging this.”

“We can talk more next time. The Tianchen Kingdom is knocking on our doorstep. We don’t have time for this now.”

Bai Lingmiao stood up to leave.

“You always run away when we bring this up.”

Shangguan Yuting’s illusion floated from beneath the tiles, stopping Bai Lingmiao from leaving.

Shangguan Yuting displayed a paper filled with words before Bai Lingmiao.

“What... What is this?” Bai Lingmiao took several steps back when she saw the familiar names.

“These are the names of the Bai family and their sins. We’ve recorded their every transgression and the names of the people they’ve killed. A disciple of Moongate recorded this, so their information is accurate.”

Xuan Pin put down her bowl and approached Bai Lingmiao. Shangguan Yuting smiled, and her illusion floated into the large red robes.

“Mother, you’re kind. You even became the head of the White Lotus Sect to protect it from being oppressed. Don’t you think that those who have committed such heinous sins should be executed?”

“According to your teachings, do you think your family could enter the Heavenly Mater’s Void Home?”

Bai Lingmiao took another step back out of shock. Her voice trembled. “Suisui, what are you trying to do?”

“Nothing. I’ve tried advising both sides, but both of you refused to give up on one another. As your child, I just want to help you get over your trauma and see if we can repair your relationship.”

Bai Lingmiao found herself pursing her lips as she read about the lives that her family had taken, the words written in red ink. She struggled to reconcile her warm memories with her family and the contradicting cold words on the paper.

“Mother, as the Saintess of the White Lotus Sect, I know that you would not give your family special treatment, especially after they’ve committed such atrocities.”

Bai Lingmiao’s eye cover was wet with tears. She shook her head rapidly.

Li Sui approached and hugged her. Her red robes wrapped around Bai Lingmiao like a warm blanket. “Mother, let it all go. Father did the right thing, and so did you.

“If you want to do something for your family, let’s work together to change the world and prevent such a tragedy from happening again.”

Feeling the warmth enveloping her, Bai Lingmiao broke down. Her tears overflowed tears as Li Sui held her tightly.

Li Sui extended her six arms and hugged Bai Lingmiao, holding her close. She gently stroked her back, offering what comfort she could.

Though Bai Lingmiao had grown stronger, Li Sui saw through her facade. She was barely eighteen—far too young to bear such crushing weight.

Since her father wasn't exactly reliable, Li Sui had to do it herself.

After a while, Bai Lingmiao pulled away from Li Sui's embrace. "Suisui, thank you. However, we should focus on the Tianchen Kingdom first, rather than my relationship with your father."

"Why not? We're not like Father, stuck thinking of one thing at a time. We can do both things at once."

Bai Lingmiao shook her head and pulled off her white silk eye cover, wiping away her tears. "Suisui, you don't get it. The issue between me and your father—it's not important. It's just a relationship. Whether we stay together or split up, it means nothing. What truly counts are the lives of everyone in this world.

"Suisui, I'm not the only one thinking of this. Your father is thinking about this too. It's just that he hides everything in his heart and does everything on his own. He tells no one about it, but I understand him well."

Xuan Pin froze. Her voices slowly superimposed on each other until returning to Li Sui's own voice. "But this is important to me. I just want the both of you to live better."

Bai Lingmiao covered her eyes again and smiled before extending her arm into the darkness of Xuan Pin's red robes. "Suisui, don't worry. We will be fine. We are both working hard for our goals. This is good enough.

"Go home now. I know you're working hard too. I'll try to establish contact with the Heavenly Mater as soon as possible. That way, she can help when the Tianchen Kingdom attacks."

Bai Lingmiao turned and slowly descended from the roof.

Just as she was about to reach the lower floors, the Second Deity sprouted out from her back.

The Second Deity fixed her beast-like eyes on Xuan Pin.
“Suisui, be careful when you and Li Huowang face Zuoqiu Yong.
The Bai family’s live sacrifice ritual means the previous Heavenly Mater held onto more than just the Heavenly Dao of Growth. I’m certain Zuoqiu Yong didn’t take just one Heavenly Dao. She must’ve kept some hidden cards up her sleeves.”

Chapter 926 - Target

“...Glory over 18,000 lands, all earth turning golden. All life in six realms under a single light... free from the dust of the mortal world. Today, hearing this scripture chanted in person, realize that every verse is a treasure...”

In the deepest part of the hall belonging to the White Lotus Sect, the 36 White Donkeys chanted continuously. Amidst them, Bai Lingmiao sat upon the enormous lotus throne, her legs crossed in a meditative position.

She was utterly transformed from her earlier demeanor with Li Sui. Now, her face was filled with compassion and divinity, and even the Second Deity’s fearsome face was the same.

She had two torsos, with four gracefully extended arms. Her twenty slender fingers were positioned in lotus seals, resembling the branching of a tree.

The white lotus marks on Bai Lingmiao’s forehead flickered amidst the chanting, and her consciousness drifted beyond.

Bai Lingmiao sensed the emotions of the Heavenly Mater. She opened her heart completely and strove to merge her compassion with the Heavenly Mater’s boundless mercy.

Bai Lingmiao began floating in the air, exuding compassion that radiated outwards and enveloped the White Donkeys nearby. They now wore expressions of pure benevolence.

In the chaos, Bai Lingmiao felt a deep connection with the Heavenly Mater. Their emotions blended into one, becoming indistinguishable from each other.

Unlike before, the overwhelming sense of death that had almost materialized vanished, leaving only compassion.

Bai Lingmiao knew that this feeling hadn’t disappeared entirely. It had simply been concealed.

Bai Lingmiao carefully gathered her memories of today's events and offered them reverently to the Heavenly Mater.

She hoped to reestablish contact and attempted to implore the Heavenly Mater to intervene with divine powers. That way, the White Lotus Sect could help fend off the Tianchen Kingdom.

Tianchen Kingdom harbored a deep-seated enmity against the Heavenly Mater and mobilized a massive force specifically to fight her.

The Heavenly Mater would surely act out of self-preservation, but Bai Lingmiao remained uncertain without any explicit confirmation.

Despite her pleas, Bai Lingmiao received no concrete answer from above, only some vague emotional feedback.

There was neither explicit acceptance nor rejection—it seemed as though the Heavenly Mater was distracted.

Bai Lingmiao tried to push further, but her connection with the Heavenly Mater began to fade. When she opened her eyes again, she found herself back inside the hall.

Looking around at the gazes of the White Donkeys, she took a deep breath. With her four hands raised, she proceeded to attempt another ritual.

The Tianchen Kingdom and the Heavenly Mater shared a deep grudge. Bai Lingmiao needed to ensure that the Heavenly Mater would lend her assistance when the kingdom launched an attack.

Somehow, the Heavenly Mater of the past seemed different from the one now.

A voice suddenly interrupted Bai Lingmiao's ceremony. "Saintess."

Bai Lingmiao sensed who it was and realized it was Lian Zhimei. She had helped her ascend to the position of Saintess.

With the growing influence of the White Lotus Sect, Lian

Zhibei's status had also risen, and she was now Bai Lingmiao's right-hand woman within the sect.

Though Lian Zhibei appeared to be a woman in her 30s or 40s, she showed no disrespect toward the young Bai Lingmiao. She bowed deeply. "Saintess, there's news regarding the Strayed Ones. There are four of them, and I've already sent people to bring them back."

Bai Lingmiao nodded lightly, "Good. Don't use force right away. Speak to them gently first. Tell them there's a way to help them find clarity and rid themselves of their bewilderment.

"If they still refuse to listen, we'll think of other methods to bring them back."

This would actually benefit both sides, but the living Strayed Ones were unlikely to fully believe it. Even Senior Li would probably have doubted them.

"Yes," Lian Zhibei replied with a bow.

"Still, to mobilize the entire White Lotus Sect and only find four Strayed Ones... I wonder how many Suisui has found. It still doesn't seem like enough."

Four Strayed Ones might not be sufficient for the seven chakra points of "Truth" cultivation to succeed.

Upon hearing this, Lian Zhibei hesitated momentarily. "Saintess, some of the disciples have heard rumors from the elders. It is said that some of the Strayed Ones have conspired together to go into hiding."

"Hiding? Does that mean there are more?"

"There may be more, but their hiding place is very difficult to locate. I've heard they've concealed themselves within the karmic obstacles of a Muddled One."

"Muddled One?" Bai Lingmiao's heart skipped a beat. The Muddled One was not easy to deal with—they belonged to the same family as the Strayed One.

They had a unique ability: forgetfulness. They could make people vanish entirely from the recollections of every person in the world, banishing them to a lost realm.

That place was not good. It was utterly dark, with no Heavenly Dao of Death. No matter what happened there, one would never die. More importantly, once someone was forgotten by the Muddled One, it was nearly impossible to escape.

They had to be remembered by someone. Otherwise, even killing the forgotten individual wouldn't release them.

Communication with the Muddled One was nearly impossible—they would forget everything even as they spoke.

However, Bai Lingmiao was vastly more powerful than before. The Muddled One was troublesome but no longer so dangerous.

Bai Lingmiao just hadn't expected that some of the Strayed Ones had voluntarily chosen to be forgotten by a Muddled One to survive.

The Second Deity cut in from behind. "Is the information reliable?"

Lian Zhibei carefully explained, "Yes, I confirmed it with the masters of the Fangxian Sect. It's true, and several others have heard the same."

Bai Lingmiao pondered the matter carefully. "There's one issue. Even if we know the Strayed Ones are hidden, we still don't know which Muddled One has forgotten them."

Lian Zhibei hurriedly explained, "Saintess, that's not a problem. All the realms of forgetfulness of the Muddled One are interconnected. No matter which one we use, it'll lead to the same place."

"Interconnected?" Bai Lingmiao was surprised. If that were true, then being forgotten by any Muddled One would result in banishment to the same realm.

Bai Lingmiao thought seriously for a while. "Do we have a Muddled One?”

“We don’t, but the Surveillance Bureau has one. They captured a living Muddled One two years ago. With the relationship between Saintess and the Surveillance Bureau, we should be able to borrow it.”

Bai Lingmiao rose from the lotus throne without hesitation.

“Go to the Surveillance Bureau and borrow the Muddled One. We’ll retrieve those hidden Strayed Ones.”

The Tianchen Kingdom could attack at any moment. The sooner they acted, the better their chances.

“Yes, Saintess,” Lian Zhibei said, then bowed deeply with both hands raised above her head.

Bai Lingmiao glanced at the 36 White Donkeys, her demeanor completely different from when she was with Li Huowang. “Prepare your weapons and artifacts. We’re going to claim the Strayed Ones.”

“Yes, Saintess!”

Chapter 927 - Muddled One

Lian Zhibei left and returned just as quickly. When she returned, eight strong young White Lotus followers carried a tall black coffin into the hall behind her, grunting as they worked.

The Muddled One was clearly inside the coffin, sealed to prevent mishaps.

This entity was dangerous and couldn't be released in the hall. Under Bai Lingmiao's instructions, the coffin was relocated to an underground chamber initially intended for the Heavenly Mater's statue.

"Remember, once the Muddled One comes out, it could erase your memories of me. That's why I suggested you write it down on paper or even etch it into your skin," the Second Deity impatiently said.

The people on the periphery nodded and gripped their brushes tightly, hurriedly recording everything on paper.

They would vanish if the Muddled One forgot them, but they could force it to remember them and release them when the time came.

The timing was crucial. If it was too early, they might not find what they needed, and if it was too late, something worse could happen.

"Miaomiao, maybe... let the White Donkeys go instead. You don't need to go in there. I've heard it's terrifying. What if something happens to you?" Chun Xiaoman said with concern. She was in charge of coordination outside.

Bai Lingmiao glanced at the coffin and shook her head gently.

“Sister Xiaoman, I’m not that weak anymore. Besides, how will the others bring out all the Strayed Ones if I don’t go in? I have plenty of experience with them, so don’t worry.”

The coffin’s nails were pried off, releasing black mist. As the lid fell open, a man with a large birthmark covering half his face emerged, crawling out in tattered clothes.

He looked around in confusion, his eyes filled with deep bewilderment. It was as if he’d forgotten who or where he was.

“Everyone, leave. Shut the door. Don’t let him see you. In three days, show him our portraits to remind him, and then force him to release us,” Bai Lingmiao said, leading a group of White Donkeys toward the man.

“Where... where am I? Why am I here?” the Muddled One asked Bai Lingmiao.

Bai Lingmiao walked before him and carefully observed him. She ensured her reflection appeared fully in his eyes, then placed a red veil over his head.

When the Muddled One removed the red veil, the surroundings were empty, and his face showed no surprise. He had completely forgotten about Bai Lingmiao and the White Donkeys.

“Where... where am I? Why am I here?” He circled in confusion and repeated, “Where.. Where am I? Why am I here?”

By this time, Bai Lingmiao and her group had already left the dark room. However, the outside of the hall and the entirety of Shangjing had transformed.

The sky hung in pitch blackness, and everything was caught between being visible and invisible. Large sections of buildings had crumbled, creating a desolate and bleak atmosphere, as if the Great Liang had already fallen. This was the world of those forgotten by the Muddled One.

“Let’s go. Stay alert. The people trapped here have been tormented a lot. They are caught between life and death, and they are neither humans nor ghosts anymore. They can be very hostile toward the living.”

Bai Lingmiao guided the White Donkeys through the ruined imperial city, intending to capture someone for directions.

Given their unique abilities, if there were any Strayed Ones here, they would likely be well-known among those trapped here.

Their journey was short-lived. Bai Lingmiao’s keen senses had quickly noticed frenzied murmurs echoing from within the three palaces.

“Ha ha ha! Strange, weird! The grandson marries the grandmother...”

“This way. The voice is coming from over here,” Bai Lingmiao said, leading the White Donkeys toward the sound.

“Pigs and sheep sit on the stove—six relatives boil in the pot... Women eat their mother’s flesh—sons beat their father’s skin... heh heh heh...”

The strange voice didn’t seem to expect anyone to come. Bai Lingmiao approached and saw the source of the voice.

It was from a monk sitting upside-down on a lotus seat. His shoulders twitched as he spouted incomprehensible words.

“Everyone comes to celebrate, but I see only suffering... suffering... heh heh heh...”

With a wave of her hand, two White Donkeys wearing robes with talismans rushed forward. They took some chains out and wrapped them around the monk, pulling him to the ground before Bai Lingmiao.

The monk looked emaciated, barely skin and bones. He seemed long gone mentally, and he had used his claw-like hands to pull out his intestines and spin them like prayer beads.

“Master, have you seen any Strayed Ones around here? If you can help me, I’ll free you from this agony after it’s over,” Bai Lingmiao said.

The monk ignored her enticing reward and continued his gibberish, saying, “Pigs and sheep sit on the stove—six relatives boil in the pot. Women eat their mother’s flesh—sons beat their father’s skin.”

After several more attempts, the Second Deity said, “It’s no use. This guy’s completely mad. Who knows how long ago he’s been here.”

She continued, “If we want any real answers, we’ll have to find someone who ended up here more recently.”

Bai Lingmiao didn’t reply. She quickly retreated into the safety of the White Donkeys. “Be careful! There are a lot of people coming from behind the ruined temple!”

The tattered curtain of the temple was ripped open as a swarm of bloated, naked figures with bloodshot eyes surged toward them.

Men and women were amongst them, all driven mad by their endless torment in this forgotten world.

They became even more frenzied when they saw Bai Lingmiao’s face, throwing themselves at her with reckless abandon.

“Formation! Protect the Saintess!” The White Donkeys, possessed by various spirits, easily held the crazed attackers at bay.

However, even decapitating them didn’t stop them. There was no death here.

It was unlike the world outside, where the Heavenly Dao of Death had vanished. The people here were still consumed by madness and a desire for slaughter.

A voice suddenly called from outside. “This way! Hurry! If you stay here, they’ll only keep coming!”

Bai Lingmiao was surprised to recognize the person who spoke. It was Tuoba Danqing, the former superior of Senior Li in the Surveillance Bureau.

He had been left behind back when Li Huowang and other members of the Surveillance Bureau fought against the Muddled

One.

From his expression, Bai Lingmiao deduced that he hadn't been here long enough to lose his sanity and could still communicate.

“Retreat southeast! Follow that man!”

Chapter 928 - Information

“Dong dong dong~ Beneath the high mountains of the Hong and Huang sects, four large pythons and snakes leave the serpent mountain, and a gust of wind departs from the high tomb.”

As rhythmic drumbeats and chants filled the air, a sharp claw swiftly tore a person in half.

Twisted beast faces hidden beneath red veils surrounded Bai Lingmiao, encircling her to prevent sneak attacks from the insane creatures around them.

There were too many of these beings. Despite the defense of the White Donkeys, a few still managed to slip through and reach Bai Lingmiao.

Bai Lingmiao led the White Donkeys on the wide road, following Tuoba Danqing from behind as they dodged the crazed mob that had lost all reason.

More and more lunatics gathered behind them, surging toward Bai Lingmiao like a tidal wave.

Although their individual strength was weak, their overwhelming numbers made them dangerous. More importantly, they were immortal in this place.

The two people that the Second Deity had just torn in half were now dragging their spilled intestines and crawling toward her on all fours like spiders.

“Take the small path! Hurry, this way!” Tuoba Danqing said. He urgently led the way forward, his hair disheveled and whipping through the air.

After a tense but brief chase, Tuoba Danqing took a sharp turn and crawled into a drainage hole.

Bai Lingmiao used her senses to quickly scan the area, ensuring there was no ambush lurking within. Satisfied with her findings, she wasted no time and hurriedly followed him inside, urging the others to keep up.

The tunnel was dark and narrow. After a short while, Bai Lingmiao felt the space before her widen unexpectedly. It was connected to a cellar.

As the thirty-six White Donkeys crawled out from the tunnel, Bai Lingmiao lashed her ritual whip at the entrance, causing the entire passage to collapse and crush the creatures that had just begun to emerge.

Dust filled the air as Bai Lingmiao and her group stepped back, covering their noses. Finally, silence returned.

Before Bai Lingmiao could catch her breath, Tuoba Danqing rushed toward her excitedly. "I... I wasn't mistaken, was I? You're Er Jiu's wife, right? We met a few years ago, didn't we?"

She greeted him with a bow. "Senior Tuoba, long time no see. I am Bai Lingmiao."

Tuoba Danqing's voice trembled. "Did you come here to save me? You must have come to take me out of here, right?"

"That's right, Er Jiu sent me to rescue you." Bai Lingmiao had no reason to refuse—saving him was just a secondary task. In fact, by helping him, she might even obtain the information she needed about the Strayed Ones.

Tuoba Danqing seemed to deflate. He collapsed to the ground, his hands pressed against his face. His shoulders shook with raw, uncontrolled sobs.

Bai Lingmiao recognized he was emotionally overwhelmed. Though he hadn't gone mad yet, he was dangerously close to breaking down after being trapped in this place for so long.

She handed him a handkerchief and gently said, "Senior Tuoba, I know you've suffered a lot, but my purpose here goes beyond just getting you out."

Tuoba Danqing looked up at her while holding the handkerchief to stem his tears and snot.

“Senior Tuoba, you’ve been here for quite some time now. Do you know of any Strayed Ones in this place? Have you heard rumors about them?”

Tuoba Danqing hesitated before urgently standing up. “Let’s get out first. We can talk about Strayed Ones later. Forget the Strayed Ones for now—there are plenty of them outside! I’ll help you catch some once we’re out!”

“No, there are none outside anymore. I’ll explain everything to you from the beginning.”

Bai Lingmiao spent half an hour explaining the situation outside to Tuoba Danqing. Upon learning everything, Tuoba Danqing sat in stunned silence. His mind struggled to process the sheer volume of events that had unfolded in just a few short years.

“In short, to defend against the Tianchen Kingdom’s attack, we must find the Strayed Ones. Do you understand, Senior Tuoba?” Bai Lingmiao asked, her tone growing more serious.

Tuoba Danqing had calmed down now. He nodded. “I understand, I understand. It’s not that I don’t want to help. But after all these years in this damned place, I honestly don’t know where to find Strayed Ones here.”

Tuoba Danqing quickly changed his tone when he saw Bai Lingmiao’s expression change. “Wait, don’t worry! Although I don’t know, there’s someone here who’s well-informed!”

“Who?”

Tuoba Danqing immediately started to rummage through the cellar and prepared to leave. “Come with me. I’ll take you to them.”

Bai Lingmiao followed him cautiously as they headed toward the city’s outskirts. She did not want to be entangled by those creatures again.

Soon, Bai Lingmiao saw what Tuoba Danqing meant. There were withered human heads hanging down from a willow tree.

These decapitated heads should have been dead, but in this place, they remained alive.

While Bai Lingmiao wasn't surprised that they were still alive, she was shocked that the heads hadn't gone mad.

Tuoba Danqing whispered, "Miss Bai, you can ask them. These heads are the most well-informed beings in this place. If there are any Strayed Ones here, they'll know."

One of the heads hanging from the tree took over the conversation. "Strayed Ones? You mean those daydreaming lunatics? Heh heh... of course I know."

Bai Lingmiao immediately stepped forward and asked urgently, "Where are they now?"

The heads on the tree burst into laughter, filled with mockery and glee. Bai Lingmiao couldn't tell if it was the heads laughing or the enormous tree itself.

The White Donkeys quickly formed a protective formation around Bai Lingmiao. They scanned the surroundings in case the laughter attracted other threats.

Finally, the laughter subsided. "Why should I help you? What's in it for me?"

"How about this? Give me the heads of half of the thirty-six people behind you, and I'll tell you. It's been so long since I had any new company."

Bai Lingmiao's refusal was firm. "No!"

The heads slowly turned away. "No? Fine, then search on your own. I won't be helping."

The White Donkeys gathered around and said, "Saintess, we are willing to offer ourselves!"

"Silence! This is not your decision to make!" the Second Deity said.

Bai Lingmiao frowned in deep thought for a moment. “My subordinates are human—I will not use them as bargaining chips. However, I can offer something else in exchange for your information.”

“Hmph... In this wretched place, other than new heads for amusement, I need nothing else,” the heads retorted without looking back.

“No, you do need something. I can offer you death.”

All the heads turned to face her at once. “What?! You think you can kill me? I’d love that, but this place has no death.”

“True, there’s no death here, but that doesn’t mean the Twisted One of the Siming of Death can’t grant you death.”

Bai Lingmiao finished speaking and then gently reached up, plucking a human head from the tree as though she was picking a fruit.

Chapter 929 - Contact

“Transcend the three realms. Break the cycle of reincarnation...”

Bai Lingmiao gently brushed her slender fingers over the top of the head, causing it to close its eyes forever. A slight smile curled on its lips, signaling its liberation from this infernal prison.

Bai Lingmiao gently cradled the dead head, then turned to the willow tree again and asked, “Can I exchange this for information?”

“Yes! Absolutely!” the voices from the tree chimed together, anxious that Bai Lingmiao might change her mind if they didn’t respond quickly enough.

Everything that existed here was willing to trade anything for the eternal peace of death. In this realm of karmic obstacles, death was deemed the most precious thing.

“The Strayed Ones are in the east!”

“Not far, just thirty miles!”

“After crossing the river, follow the mountain path into the large mountain!”

“Once you’re in the mountain, you’ll likely find them!”

The heads competed to share information about the Strayed Ones, and Bai Lingmiao’s heart brimmed with joy upon learning that there were twelve of them. She realized coming here had been the right decision.

“We’ve told you! Now, kill us! Quickly! We want to die!”

“Don’t go back on your word! If you don’t let us die, we will haunt you forever!”

The heads began falling from the tree like hailstones, rolling around Bai Lingmiao's feet like a pack of puppies begging for food.

As Bai Lingmiao's hand brushed over their heads, they quieted down, and their faces showed serene smiles.

Tuoba Danqing stood and watched from nearby. There was a deep longing in his eyes. Over the years, he had always yearned for death. Day and night, he had endured starvation and the torment of hunger, yet he couldn't die.

Death would free him from all suffering—it was an enormous temptation for him.

However, just as he was about to approach Bai Lingmiao, he shook his head violently and turned away. "No! I can't! I must live! I must find Feng Erniu and get my revenge!"

Suddenly, he began to laugh hysterically. "Hahaha! Feng Erniu! You never thought I'd make it out, did you? Just wait! I'm going to kill you! I will definitely kill you!"

As the heads gradually died, the once lush willow tree quickly withered, eventually turning black and splitting apart.

Bai Lingmiao now understood that the heads hadn't gone mad—the tree itself was alive. The heads were merely tools for it to speak.

After finishing the deal with the heads, Bai Lingmiao and her companions set off to the east.

They made swift progress with a clear goal and reached the river the heads had mentioned in less than one day.

The calm waters were marked by a lonely floating bridge, with a sign beside it that read "Bridge of Oblivion." [1]

"Bridge of Oblivion?" Bai Lingmiao pursed her lips, leading the others across the floating bridge with increased vigilance.

Much to her surprise, nothing happened as they safely crossed to the other side. Ahead of them loomed the massive mountain, home to the group of more than ten Strayed Ones.

The dark mountain loomed like a sleeping giant, exuding an overwhelming sense of oppression. A gravel path extended from Bai Lingmiao's feet and led deep into the mountain.

"Be careful, it's over ten Strayed Ones... If they go mad, it'll be quite a show."

Bai Lingmiao nodded in agreement as they made their way into the mountains. She thought about Li Huowang and how other sects had kept him under control.

As soon as they entered, Bai Lingmiao had the White Donkeys call out into the forest to assure the Strayed Ones that they had no ill intentions.

"Everyone! Come out, I can help you escape this endless torment, whether it's the torment of the Strayed One or the Muddled One!"

She wanted to make it clear she had no hostility and sincerely wanted to make contact with them.

She didn't plan to treat the Strayed Ones like others had, perhaps because Li Huowang was a Strayed One. She believed they were still capable of reason. A win-win situation didn't require tricks. Any sensible person would know how to choose.

After walking about two miles on the gravel path, they were stopped by a disheveled woman.

She hoarsely rasped at Bai Lingmiao, saying, "Go back..."

Her attitude made Bai Lingmiao clench her fists tightly inside her sleeves.

"We're here to help you. Don't be afraid—I'm here to help you." Bai Lingmiao took a step forward.

"Get lost!" the woman roared, and the ground suddenly swelled. A massive boulder rolled toward Bai Lingmiao and her group, causing the earth to shudder as it moved.

The White Donkeys quickly stepped forward. All thirty-six of them squatted simultaneously, sending the boulder flying away with a mighty heave.

They stopped in their tracks as they were about to surround the female Strayed One. It was not because of fear but because another ten people had appeared beside her.

These people varied in height and gender. They were dressed in ragged clothes like beggars.

The White Donkeys remained on high alert. These were Strayed Ones, capable of creating something from nothing. It was rare to see ten of them gathered together—every single one was priceless.

“Miss Bai, maybe we should retreat. These Strayed Ones might have already gone mad. Let’s go back and plan this carefully,” Tuoba Danqing said.

“We’re not mad.”

Bai Lingmiao looked up. There was a dark-skinned man with bone rings in his hair who was clearly from Qing Qiu. He was the leader of the Strayed Ones.

“If you’re not mad, then why are you acting crazy?! Can’t you understand? Come with us! We know how to get out! Or do you plan to stay here forever?” the Second Deity shouted.

The Strayed One from Qing Qiu retorted, “Go out? For what? To be hunted like rats by humans?”

“We can remove the primordial breath inside you—you can live like normal people,” Bai Lingmiao said.

“Hmph! Normal people? So we went through all this suffering just to become ordinary people?”

Bai Lingmiao grew anxious. “If you don’t leave, will you stay here forever? There’s no death here. What do you intend to do here?”

“What do we intend to do? We want to become the Ten Kings of Hell!”

Bai Lingmiao and her companions were stunned into silence, unsure of how to respond.

The Strayed One from Qing Qiu pointed to the ground. “Do you think this is just some random place? This is the Underworld! It only looks like this because nobody cares!”

He continued, “As long as we become the new Kings of Hell, we will join the ranks of immortals!”

1. In Chinese mythology, Meng Po is the goddess of oblivion. She serves soup on this bridge to make people erase their past lives before they are reborn. 🙌

Chapter 930 - Yuan Er

“The Underworld? King of Hell?” Bai Lingmiao’s mouth fell open slightly. She stared at the Strayed Ones, her disbelief etched across her face. She truly hadn’t expected these people to come here just for something like that.

She tried to understand what they were saying, but their words were too shocking. What Underworld? And joining the ranks of immortals?

The Second Deity hesitated momentarily. “You guys didn’t get tricked by the Sitting Oblivion Dao, did you?”

Her words struck a nerve with the leader of the Strayed Ones. His face twisted with rage. “Don’t mention those frauds! They couldn’t possibly deceive us! Now get lost, or don’t blame us for being rude!”

Sensing the hostility from the Strayed Ones, Bai Lingmiao and the Second Deity quickly conferred in their minds.

In the current situation, persuasion seemed unlikely. They needed to stabilize things first. Force wasn’t an option with so many Strayed Ones present. They would have to take a different approach to deal with them.

After a moment’s thought, Bai Lingmiao spoke again. This time, she followed the leader’s lead instead of contradicting him.

“Since you want to become Kings of Hell, you’ve been here for a long time and still haven’t succeeded. There must have been some difficulties. If it stumped eleven Strayed Ones, it must mean it’s no easy task.”

Bai Lingmiao said this with confidence because she knew they couldn’t become Kings of Hell. The dead belonged to the place underneath Qing Qiu, so this couldn’t be the Underworld.

Moreover, the Heavenly Dao of Death was governed by the Heavenly Mater. If there were a King of Hell, it would be her.

Regardless of whether they had been deceived by the Sitting Oblivion Dao or something else, they would not leave willingly unless their obsession was shattered.

Force was out of the question—it was no simple task to subdue eleven Strayed Ones.

“How about we strike a deal? We help you overcome your difficulties and help you become Kings of Hell. In return, once it’s done, you come out with me. Think of it as a favor to me.”

“We don’t need you!”

The leader of the Strayed Ones flatly rejected her. He retreated along with the others, his eyes filled with profound hostility.

He clearly didn’t trust the strange woman with two upper bodies and had no intention of negotiating.

As they prepared to leave, Bai Lingmiao clenched her fists and stepped forward. “How much longer do you plan to stay here? You might be able to waste your time here, but what about your families in the world outside? Can they afford to wait as long as you can? Have you ever thought about how they’ve been doing all these years?”

The Strayed Ones, who had just turned to leave, stopped abruptly and glared at Bai Lingmiao. Their expressions had completely changed, clearly affected by her words.

Bai Lingmiao wasn’t speaking out of nowhere. She had been by Li Huowang’s side for long enough to understand some things about Strayed Ones.

She gazed into the eyes of the Strayed Ones and noticed the exhaustion and numbness hidden beneath their determined expressions. It became evident that they were barely holding on, much like Tuoba Danqing. These Strayed Ones weren’t as resolute as they seemed.

Bai Lingmiao and the Second Deity quickly devised a new strategy.

“Haven’t you suffered enough here? After all these years, I know you must have regrets. You had no choice before, so you were forced down a dark path. However, you have a choice now.

“Look at how we’re dressed. We voluntarily came in here just yesterday. If we could come in, we can certainly leave.

“Let me help you. I can take you out of here and remove your primordial breath. That way, you’ll never have to suffer from bewilderment again. Once you’re no longer Strayed Ones, you can live the life you want!

“And you don’t need to worry. Even though Strayed Ones are immensely valuable, the eleven of you together are far beyond our abilities.”

The Second Deity chimed in, “Exactly, give it a try. What do you have to lose? It’s better than wasting away here.”

Bai Lingmiao’s encouragement gradually eased the tension, and everyone’s attention shifted to her.

Yuan Er saw the shifting expressions of the Strayed Ones and realized things couldn’t continue like this. If they continued listening to her, their unity would falter!

“Don’t trust her! She’s lying! She might even be with the Sitting Oblivion Dao! Once we become Kings of Hell, we’ll control the world over there too!”

Bai Lingmiao replied, “Is that really true? Is that just your own belief, or do others think that as well? How can you be so certain that everyone wants to become a King of Hell? And how can you be sure that becoming the King of Hell will allow you to control the Underworld of the other world? Have you ever seen a soul from the other side?”

She continued, “Why are you forcing your own beliefs on others? Can’t you listen to their thoughts? Or do you see them as mere tools for your own gain?"

The Second Deity added, "And you're so confused that you doubt whether this world even exists, so how can you be so sure of what you say?"

Bai Lingmiao's words were sharp and unrelenting, making Yuan Er's face darken.

He couldn't kill her. Making a move would only sow further division among his companions.

"Enough! I won't let her keep leading us down this path!" Yuan Er said, waving his hand. "Fine! You don't believe me, right? Well, come along and see for yourself! We've encountered difficulties, and if you help us solve them, we'll help you in return!"

After years of fruitlessly searching for a solution, Yuan Er doubted that this young woman could truly help. Whether she made him a King of Hell or died trying, it was a win for him either way.

"We have a deal." Bai Lingmiao stepped forward resolutely.

Yuan Er cast a quick glance at the other Strayed Ones before turning around and starting to ascend the mountain. "Come with me."

Bai Lingmiao nodded and followed. She wasn't concerned about the Strayed Ones turning against her—they wouldn't discard another option without a good reason.

Besides, without the Heavenly Dao of Death, they couldn't kill her even if they tried.

As they walked up the rocky path, Yuan Er casually explained their predicament.

"To become King of Hell, we need to obtain the Book of Life and Death, but it's hidden in the Underworld Palace.

"However, the Underworld Palace is extremely dangerous. We arrived with hundreds of people, but only eleven remain."

Bai Lingmiao's voice rose in surprise. "Hundreds of Strayed One?!"

“Not all were Strayed Ones. Some were patrons, some servants, some family.”

“And where are they now?”

“Dead.”

Bai Lingmiao shook her head slightly. “That’s impossible. This place has no Heavenly Dao of Death. No one can die here.”

Yuan Er sneered and said, “When the King of Hell calls for you at midnight, no dares live until dawn. The Book of Life and Death is in the hands of the Judge. Once the Judge writes your name, no Heavenly Dao can save you. You will be dragged into the eighteenth level of hell!”

Yuan Er smirked. “Now, do you still want to continue?”

Chapter 931 - Underworld

The Book of Life and Death? Could it actually call for someone's soul?

Bai Lingmiao doubted Yuen Er's words.

If that was the case, that meant the Underworld Palace was real.

Despite Yuen Er's apparent confidence, Bai Lingmiao remained skeptical. If Yuen Er was telling the truth, then where would the Heavenly Mater, who controls the Heavenly Dao of Death, be positioned?

Ultimately, the Second Deity voiced the questions that lingered in Bai Lingmiao's heart. "Is it really the Underworld Palace?"

"Of course! If not, I wouldn't have allowed you to help us. It's not only the palace but also the eighteen layers of hell! Do you know what we're stepping on right now? It's the Yellow Spring Road^[1].

Tuoba Danqing was taken aback, his gaze shifting downward to the stone path beneath his feet. He glanced around, questioning whether his presence here was a mistake.

Afterward, there was silence as they pressed on. The group remained vigilant, keeping their senses sharp as they advanced.

The road was long, but it still had an end. Soon, a pitch-dark cave appeared in front of them.

On both sides of the cave, a couplet caught the eye: Only you can decide when to harm others. This applies to all three worlds in the land of the living.

The Underworld Palace had never let anyone go. There was another couplet at the top: You are here.

The cold wind blowing out from the cave made everyone tremble.

Noticing Bai Lingmiao's shocked gaze, Yuen Er chuckled. "This is the door to the underworld. What's wrong? Do you dare to enter?"

Bai Lingmiao checked the couplets and shook her head lightly. "This isn't the door to the underworld. If it was, the couplet is wrong. There's no such thing as punishment in this world."

She led her followers into the cave. It was filled with stalactites and stalagmites resembling little demons.

Green smoke rose out of nowhere and enveloped everyone's legs. The dark road led everyone deep into the cave.

The cave was also very spacious, making Yuen Er's voice echo. "Continue downwards, then. We've cleared almost everything around the entrance. Our true enemies are in the Feng Capital. The Underworld Palace is inside the Feng Capital too."

They continued walking and saw several corpses and skeletons on the ground. Clearly, they were the people who had previously followed the Strayed Ones.

"It seems like they were telling the truth. Something really did grant them death."

Bai Lingmiao frowned and put her guard up as she continued to walk forward.

They were unsure of how long they had walked, but they were certain they had arrived at Feng Capital when a colossal wall dotted with glowing green lights appeared from the depths of the darkness.

In contrast to the strange black holes that Li Huowang had described, the Feng Capital that Bai Lingmiao encountered seemed real. At the very least, it was a city.

At that moment, accompanied by the pounding of everyone's hearts, the massive metallic door emitted a deep groan as it swung open.

Green smoke spewed forth as beings walked out of the city.

“Sh! Lie down! Don’t let them see you!”

Upon hearing Yuen Er’s words, the Second Deity twisted and forced Bai Lingmiao onto the ground like a prowling beast.

Through her beast-like eyes, Bai Lingmiao saw strange, emaciated people walking out in rows. Each person held a broken yellow lantern and wore tattered robes. They were incredibly tall, with their shoulders disappearing into the darkness above.

It was clear that the Strayed Ones feared those beings. They didn’t even dare to breathe until the giants had left.

“What are those?” asked Bai Lingmiao.

A Strayed One with an unruly beard answered her question. “Those are the soldiers of the Underworld Palace! Haven’t you heard of them before?”

“Are they strong? Why are you afraid of them?”

“We aren’t afraid of them, but we cannot provoke them. The little demons on the city walls would sound the alarm if we did. By then, everyone in the city would know we’re here. If that were to happen, how could we possibly steal the book?”

Yuen Er pointed at the gates. “I thought you were here to help? Come, this is our problem. Go and deal with it for us.

“Those soldiers are swarming the Feng Capital! If you can help us, we will help you!”

“Still, you guys are Strayed Ones. Even if they all poured out from the city, I doubt they’d be able to defeat you,” Bai Lingmiao said. In her eyes, a group of eleven Strayed Ones were nigh unstoppable.

“So what if we can fight? There’s no death here, and we can’t kill them! They’d surround us and keep us here until we eventually lose all our strength. If it weren’t for the three comrades who helped us escape last time, none of us would still be alive today.”

Yuen Er recounted the events that had taken place, noting that while the soldiers had the power to kill them, they were unable to kill the soldiers. Given the unfair nature of the fight, it was no surprise that they found themselves trapped.

“No.” Bai Lingmiao shook her head firmly. “As long as I’m here, there will be death. Just fight.”

The Strayed Ones didn’t trust Bai Lingmiao, so they refrained from acting. Bai Lingmiao commanded her thirty-six white donkeys to charge into the Feng Capital, using their techniques simultaneously.

Several demons emerged from the darkness, each about half the size of an average human. They were naked and had large pot bellies.

The demons struck their gongs with all their might, and the entire Feng Capital soon buzzed with life.

The city gates opened again, revealing a large minotaur wielding a heavy chain. It charged forward in the direction of the white donkeys.

“The disciples carry the thirty-three heavens. The masters surrounded them along with the eighteen Arhats and the twenty-four celestial beings! Turn our body into bronze and our bones into metal. Mold us into Mount Tai. We wear the twelve metal hats and the twelve armors. Wrap us in three layers of bronze and three layers of metal!”

The large chain crashed into the white donkeys, producing sparks and making the minotaur’s hands go numb.

It wasn’t over. With their reinforced bodies, the white donkeys turned their palms into knives and cut into the minotaur’s legs.

The minotaur cried in pain and crashed down. The white donkeys surrounded it and cut off its neck.

A wave of joy swept through the Strayed Ones as they realized the minotaur had truly died. The woman hadn’t lied—she was able to kill the soldiers!

1. The road that the dead walk on as they travel to the underworld. 🗨️

Chapter 932 - Hellhounds

“Everyone, charge! Kill those soldiers and snatch the Book of Life and Death! This place is ours!” Yuen Er shouted, leading everyone to charge into the city.

Bai Lingmiao was surprised to see them use techniques from various sects rather than cultivating “Truth.”

They were just like Li Huowang, learning techniques from other sects.

Soldiers poured out nonstop from the city, and Bai Lingmiao's doubts increased. “The Cow-head, Horse-face, and even the Black and White Impermanence... Is this really the underworld? Is my family here, then?”

Bai Lingmiao halted her wandering thoughts, noticing the others were engaged in a fierce battle. She retrieved a bunch of prayer beads made from human bones. Every time she rotated it, a soldier who had been severely wounded would die.

As Bai Lingmiao chanted, the Second Deity took control of her lower body.

Her snarling face split open as she rapped her black fingernails on her drum.

“Step firmly and stand tall! Wear your armor while you hold the whip! I call for the Red family before the Yellow! I call for the pythons and spiritual ferret to bring the King of Sadness!”

In no time, her beast-like features melded together, and multiple organs extended out of her body. With her limbs contorted inside out, the Second Deity charged forward, leaving a trail of blood in her wake.

Despite the relentless steam of soldiers pouring from the city gates, Yuen Er and the others had finally glimpsed a glimmer of hope in the fallen soldiers littering the ground. This breakthrough invigorated them and motivated them to fight even harder.

As more and more bodies piled up around them, something unexpected happened. The wind carried down a judge of the dead, split in half. One half had a snarling beast face, while the other had a rotting face

The Second Deity stopped chanting from the shock. "There's actually a judge of the dead here! This is the underworld!"

Bai Lingmiao momentarily halted, then quickly resumed her chanting while tightly gripping her prayer beads.

The judge stood atop a roof and observed everything below it. It stared with an unblinking eye at them, and its voice resembled an actor in the theater. "Ehm, such impudence~"

It raised its brush and wrote furiously in a purple book.

As it did, the corpses on the ground revived and surrounded Bai Lingmiao's group.

Bai Lingmiao's chanting came to an abrupt halt, her lips trembling. Her gaze was fixed on the book held by the judge.

"That thing is real! They are telling the truth! It's the Book of Life and Death! I can revive my entire village with it!"

The Second Deity howled and shouted, "Grab it!"

Everyone, from the Strayed Ones to the white donkeys, ignored their enemies and rushed towards the judge.

The judge scoffed and raised its brush. It looked at one of the white donkeys before crossing something in the book. Without warning, the white donkey collapsed, lifeless.

The moment the judge looked at the Strayed One with the unruly beard, Bai Lingmiao appeared behind the Strayed One.

The judge crossed another name off his list, and Bai Lingmiao placed her hands on the Strayed One's head.

With a swift stroke, the judge crossed out the name, but the bearded man was still alive. The book had not taken his soul.

Bai Lingmiao held onto the Heavenly Dao of Death, so she would've been embarrassed if she hadn't been able to intervene.

"Do not be afraid. It cannot decide your fate with me here! Grab the book!"

Upon hearing her, everyone stopped defending themselves. They charged recklessly at the judge, allowing the soldiers to attack them relentlessly. Since they couldn't die, there was no reason to defend themselves.

Now that the book had become useless, the judge panicked. Despite crossing off name after name, no one died. It floated upwards to retreat.

"Immortal Families! Don't forget to bring the three treasures when you are here! Find the Immortal-Shackling Chains, the Horse Saddle, and the Soul Imprisoning Bottle! Toss them towards the enemies to stop them from fleeing and escaping!"

The sound of the drumbeat paused as the Second Deity raised her drum whip and swung it towards the judge floating in the air. Then, she made a pulling motion downwards.

The judge fell down, as if it were truly bound by something.

The judge tried to get up, but it was too late. The white donkeys had already hurled their Saintess into the air, sending her soaring toward it.

The Second Deity let out crazy laughter as she sunk her black fingernails into the judge's face. She pulled and tore out the judge's cheek.

As the Second Deity attacked, Bai Lingmiao held onto the Book of Life and Death and pulled it hard.

She wept with joy as she held the Book of Life and Death in her hands. Though it was slightly larger than she was, its weight didn't matter—she could finally bring her family back to life!

Her triumph lasted only a single moment. The soldiers began retreating like a tide as another judge floated down with another Book of Life and Death.

Moments later, a second judge appeared and floated down, then a third, and so on, until there were nine judges before her.

Bai Lingmiao clutched the Book of Life and Death against her chest, her voice trembling with shock. "What's happening?"

Yuen Er approached her while leading the other Strayed Ones. "There are ten palaces, so naturally, there are ten judges! Don't you know that?"

"Who told you that there are ten judges?"

"My grandmother! Everyone in my village says that. How could you not know that?"

A terrifying thought gripped her as she processed his words.

"Sorry, I underestimated you. I never thought you could actually kill the judge. I suppose you could do it nine more times?" Yuan Er said, firmly gripping his own weapon.

The Second Deity heard Bai Lingmiao's question in her heart and immediately warned Yuen Er. "We can deal with nine judges, but we cannot deal with the hellhounds of the Underworld Palace."

"Hellhounds?"

Chapter 933 - Strayed Ones

“Hellhounds?” Yuen Er asked, dumbfounded.

“Yes, hellhounds! We obtained that information from the archives of the Surveillance Bureau. Regular people wouldn’t know about this,” the Second Deity said. “It has three heads and devours the souls of people. None of us will survive when it appears!”

The Second Deity suddenly turned and stared into the darkness with fear. “Look! It’s appearing! The hellhound is coming!”

As the Strayed Ones stared into the darkness with fear, a hellhound emerged from the black fog. It was rotting and emanating the air of death, striking fear in everyone’s hearts.

When Bai Lingmiao saw the hellhound appear out of nowhere, she understood everything. She looked at the Book of Life and Death in her hands with despair.

She released her grip. The book slipped from her fingers, tumbling to the ground with a soft, devastating thud.

“She’s lying...” Bai Lingmiao said.

“What?”

Bai Lingmiao pointed at the hellhound with her trembling fingers. “There’s no such thing as a hellhound here. It’s just something she made up. Have you not noticed that the things she’s making up are becoming reality?”

Bai Lingmiao closed her eyes and clasped her head in pain. “There’s no underworld! There’s no Book of Life and Death! You were all deceived! The dog, the book, this entire place—you created it all! You are all Strayed Ones! Whatever you think is real will become real! If you think that this is fake, then everything will disappear!”

Her words were like a beating hammer that struck their hearts. A wind blew past, and the bodies of the nine judges slowly turned translucent. No one died, even as the judges continued to cross out names on the books. Soon, they disappeared in front of them.

The judges weren’t the only ones disappearing. The soldiers, the city, and even the hellhound disappeared.

Bai Lingmiao looked at the disappearing Book of Life and Death and cried. Her tears stained her eye mask, and they dripped onto the ground.

The Second Deity felt irritated, but in the end, she sighed and turned around to give Bai Lingmiao a gentle hug.

The two of them shared the same body, bearing the burden together.

Bai Lingmiao sobbed. “I... I thought it was real... I thought I could revive them using the book... Now... it feels like they died again in my heart...”

“I understand. I know. Don’t be sad. Be happy for a bit. See, we get to take back eleven Strayed Ones.”

The Second Deity couldn’t do much except lick the tears off Bai Lingmiao’s cheek with her snake-like tongue.

Bai Lingmiao’s heart felt like it was being torn apart. However, she quickly composed herself, remembering the dire situation outside.

She took a deep breath before speaking. “Let’s go out. We can help you escape your suffering. You won’t be stuck between two worlds anymore. No matter who deceived you before, I’m sure no one will trick you again once you become regular people.”

The Strayed Ones found themselves uncertain about what to do next, as their years of perseverance turned out to be nothing more than dreams. They silently trailed behind Bai Lingmiao.

They walked back out and saw that the entrance to the underworld and the Yellow Spring Road had disappeared. They had confirmed everything.

A lone Strayed One couldn't accomplish it all, but the presence of all eleven was enough to achieve this.

What exposed this as a sham was that none of the eleven Strayed Ones knew what the underworld looked like. They had simply fabricated it based on hearsay.

They returned to the place where Bai Lingmiao had originally come from. However, Bai Lingmiao stopped in front of the underground chamber.

“Wait here. I will chant and conduct the ceremony right now. Once it’s done, the exit will appear. We can use the exit and get out from the Muddled One’s Karmic Obstacle.”

Bai Lingmiao sat down and started the chant. “The rain of Mandalas, the red spider lilies, and the sandalwood fragrance that pleases the hearts... Everything is but karma. The earth is pure and serene... At that time, the four assemblies were all joyful, their bodies and minds at ease, experiencing what had never been before... A light between the eyebrows illuminates the east, and the eighteen thousand worlds appear golden...”

Her chanting caused the space before her to quiver, with two different forces colliding.

As she continued to chant, the vibration grew stronger and stronger. Once she completed her chant, the sound of shattering glass filled the air. Right before her, a circular hole materialized, leading to the main branch of the White Lotus Sect in Shangjing.

As soon as everyone went into the hole, it disappeared.

The Second Deity was confused and intrigued. I didn’t know that the Lotus Sutra of Wondrous Dharma had such power. I remember it was used to calm one’s heart.

Bai Lingmiao shook her head and looked at the eleven Strayed Ones behind her. It doesn’t matter. This will work as long as they trust me, especially since we have eleven Strayed Ones.

Bai Lingmiao had learned a lot about Strayed Ones from spending so much time with Li Huowang. She made sure none of them suspected her words.

Since they could construct an entire underworld, forming an exit would be a piece of cake.

"Miaomiao, you're back! How did you get out?" Chun Xiaoman's voice rose in shock as she guided a group of White Lotus Sect devotees to encircle Bai Lingmiao.

Bai Lingmiao didn't want to talk much and shook her head, her voice tinged with exhaustion. "Put the Muddled One back in the coffin. I'll take the Muddled One and the Strayed Ones to the Surveillance Bureau."

Bai Lingmiao was about to say something else when she turned around and saw Tuoba Danqing struggling painfully on the ground.

She rushed to help him up, horrified to see his muscular frame withering at an alarming pace. He was rapidly turning into a skeleton.

"He's dying from hunger," the Second Deity said.

The consequences of prolonged starvation within the Muddled One's Karmic Obstacle were becoming horrifyingly clear.

Tuoba Danqing was fundamentally different from the eleven Strayed Ones—if they believed they weren't hungry, they wouldn't feel hungry.

Chapter 934 - Expected

“I cannot die... I... I cannot die... Feng Erniu!”

Tuoba Danqing grappled weakly on the ground, his emaciated arms clawing desperately at the earth. Death was not an option—not now, not when he was so close.

Feng Erniu had been the one to trap him within the Muddled One's Karmic Obstacle. For all this time, Tuoba Danqing's mind had been consumed by thoughts of revenge.

Now, he was finally out, but he was going to die soon.

Tuoba Danqing refused to succumb to his fate. However, he didn't have much time left. All he could do was say his last words. “Bai... Madam Bai! Tell my son that he must never join the Surveillance Bureau!”

Bai Lingmiao watched Tuoba Danqing with deep concern. “Don't worry. You won't die while I'm here.”

She made a Lotus Seal with a single hand before lightly tapping Tuoba Danqing's forehead. A black lotus appeared briefly on his skin.

Tuoba Danqing felt his body stop decaying. While he hadn't revived, he also hadn't succumbed to death. It seemed as though he was suspended in a state between life and death.

“You are neither dead nor alive. I can only maintain you like this for twenty years or so. You should seek the masters from the Righteous Monastery before coming to find me again.”

Tuoba Danqing looked at himself, shocked by Bai Lingmiao's powers.

He never thought Er Jiu's wife would be so powerful. The only people he knew with similar abilities were the Lamas from Qing Qiu.

He recalled she had once been barely qualified as a Shaman. What could have possibly transformed her so drastically in these past few years?

“What’s wrong with him?” Yuen Er said, leading the other Strayed Ones.

Bai Lingmiao's heart raced as she heard footsteps approaching from behind. She quickly lifted Tuoba Danqing with her four arms. “It's nothing. He's just dealing with internal injuries, and we were tending to him. Let's move on.”

They grouped all of the Strayed Ones into a single carriage. They departed from the White Lotus Sect and headed towards the Surveillance Bureau.

When they arrived, they were all shocked by the twisted room where Li Huowang was cultivating. As Li Huowang continued cultivating, his surroundings twisted and changed even further.

“You’re here?” Xuan Pin floated out from the ground.

Tuoba Danqing fell onto the ground limply and kneeled when he saw the big red robes. “I greet the Chief!”

He was very nervous. He didn’t have the qualifications to approach Xuan Pin in the past.

Xuan Pin remained silent after glancing at Tuoba Danqing. Instead, she pushed open the door to Li Huowang’s cultivation room. “Come, follow me in.”

The room wasn’t any better. Various scenes and objects swam around Li Huowang. He also flickering in and out of existence.

“Wait for a moment. I’ll go wake Father up. It’s actually a bit difficult right now, even for me.”

Xuan Pin phased past the floating motorbike and approached Li Huowang.

“Father...?” Tuoba Danqing froze in place. He felt that his world was crumbling.

He recalled that Er Jiu was supposed to be his underling. How did he make the Chief call him his father?

After working for the Surveillance Bureau for so long, Tuoba Danqing had seen many bizarre things. However, this was the first time he had encountered something like this.

If the Chief of the Surveillance Bureau addressed Er Jiu like that, what should he call him then?

While Tuoba Danqing was wrestling with his thoughts, the people from the Surveillance Bureau brought in eight more people with yellow talismans placed on their foreheads.

Bai Lingmiao knew those were the eight Strayed Ones the Surveillance Bureau had hunted down.

The palace, the Surveillance Bureau, and the regular people had been hunting for Strayed Ones. Even so, they had only managed to find eight. Unless more of them were born, there were no remaining Strayed Ones.

Li Huowang frowned when he opened his eyes and saw the group of Strayed Ones in front of him.

“There’s so many of them this time!” With that amount of Strayed Ones, Li Huowang could strive for the next two chakra points.

“Yes. Mother helped us a lot.”

Li Huowang looked at Bai Lingmiao. Both of them nodded at the same time.

Li Huowang then saw someone familiar. He was Tuoba Danqing, emaciated beyond recognition. If it weren’t for the prayer beads on his arms, Li Huowang never would’ve recognized him.

Without waiting for Li Huowang to say anything, Tuoba Danqing stumbled over. “Brother Er Jiu! Where is Feng Erniu? Where is he?!”

“Who’s Feng Erniu?” Li Huowang had never heard that name before.

One! That damned bastard that used the abacus!”

“Oh! I remember him. He’s dead. His wife is dead too,” Li Huowang said plainly.

He ignored the frozen Tuoba Danqing and approached the Strayed Ones. “Time is short. Let’s start now.”

The other Strayed Ones became agitated upon seeing Li Huowang approach, but they relaxed when they realized that other Strayed Ones were still alive even after losing their primordial breath and inner sight.

The woman had not lied to them. They could live properly from now on.

“Feng Erniu is not dead,” Xuan Pin whispered to Li Huowang as she stuffed the primordial breath and inner sight into Li Huowang.

Li Huowang gritted his teeth, controlling the external primordial breath and inner sight. “Feng Erniu is still alive? I thought his death had been documented.”

“It was to fool you. You were fighting against us last time, remember?”

“Hmph! What a bunch of sly old foxes. Don’t tell Tuoba Danqing, or they will fight to the death. Both of them are very vindictive.”

Xuan Pin nodded as she controlled the Unspeakables. This time, they reached for the Strayed One with the unruly beard.

Once they touched him, Xuan Pin realized that something was off. Confused, she asked, “Why don’t you have any primordial breath?”

The man chuckled and tore off his face, revealing the Lan Hua mahjong tile. “That’s because I’m from the Sitting Oblivion Dao! Haha!”

Staring at the strange mahjong face, the Second Deity growled. “I knew it! There was no way all eleven Strayed Ones would randomly want to become the Kings of the Underworld!”

The Strayed Ones instantly surrounded the poor bastard. “You bastard!”

They ripped him apart, tearing him in bits and pieces. However, Lan Hua didn’t stop his laughter, even in his last moments.

Chapter 935 - Truth

No one had thought the Sitting Oblivion Dao would infiltrate an entire group of Strayed Ones.

After Bai Lingmiao informed him about the origins of the Strayed Ones, Li Huowang organized his thoughts. “The Sitting Oblivion Dao hid ten Strayed Ones in the Muddled One’s Karmic Obstacle. They were probably trying to accomplish something, but we reaped the fruits of their labor instead.”

Xuan Pin nodded but corrected him. “Father, this is Shai Zi’s way of helping us.”

“What? Him? Help us?”

“Ten Strayed Ones hiding in the Muddled One’s Karmic Obstacle. I doubt that the regular folks of the White Lotus Sect could discover such a hidden resource. No one would’ve learned about it if Shai Zi hadn’t disclosed it.”

Li Huowang wasn’t in a hurry to absorb all the primordial breath. He meditated on the strange events. “Is he the one who revealed the information to us? I have a bad feeling about this.”

“Father, you don’t need to be suspicious of him all the time. Things are different now—he wouldn’t be able to win against us even if he tried. He’s not that stupid.”

Li Huowang nodded. “Frankly, I would feel more at ease if he had some hidden agenda. I was worried that Shai Zi was genuinely trying to assist us.”

He continued, “It’s quite troubling. Just how dire must our circumstances be for even our enemies to extend a helping hand?”

Li Huowang pondered momentarily before tossing his spine sword into the darkness of Xuan Pin’s robes.

“While I’m cultivating, help me check on the Qi Kingdom. Send some men if you need to. Don't let the Tianchen Kingdom attack it. Let me know the moment they attack the Qi Kingdom."

"Alright," Li Sui said as she extended several tentacles from her robes, tightly grabbing onto the spine sword.

Li Huowang looked at the remaining Strayed Ones and took a deep breath. "Come, let's continue. We need to reach the seventh stage before Zuoqiu Yong comes here."

As Li Huowang absorbed the primordial breath and inner sight of the Strayed Ones, he started to deform uncontrollably. Veins bulged on his forehead, and his brain expanded to the point of imminent rupture.

Li Huowang waved his arm, urging them to leave despite his pain. "Leave! Run as far away as you can!"

Bai Lingmiao and the others quickly exited the pulsing room. Once outside, Yuen Er and the others turned to Bai Lingmiao with grateful expressions. "Thank you, Miss Bai! We were deceived a lot of times in the past, but now we've finally found someone trustworthy."

Bai Lingmiao shook her head. "Don't worry about it. The White Lotus Sect focuses on accruing good karma, so we merely did the right thing. Do you have any other plans?"

Yuen Er and the others exchanged glances, uncertain of what to do next.

"Why don't you head to Cowheart Village? My people are there. It's a good place to stay while you figure out what to do."

"Thank you, Miss Bai! You are a real living Bodhisattva!"

At that moment, a powerful suction force emerged from the cultivating room, drawing everyone uncontrollably towards it.

Just as abruptly, the force vanished, replaced by a thunderous explosion that threw them into the air.

What was once an underground room had been transformed. Li Huowang's cultivation had violently displaced the earth, ripping away the ceiling and exposing a vast expanse of the sky.

Bai Lingmiao turned in the air and landed safely on the ground. “Save them! Take them and distance yourself from Senior Li!”

Fortunately, each person present had their own cultivation techniques. They all survived, even though they had been sent flying into the air.

Still, the aftermath was not without consequences. The blast impacted the room to the left—a repository of histories and ancient records. The books and scrolls lay scattered on the ground.

Bai Lingmiao stood at the crater's edge and looked down to see what had happened. They were shocked to find something weird down in the crater.

Something was slowly growing upwards from the crater like a distorted tree. It kept replicating and pasting itself repeatedly.

A distorted tree was slowly growing upwards from the crater, replicating itself repeatedly.

The tree had flesh, blood, grass, flowers, wood, and various other things that Bai Lingmiao could not identify.

The tree stopped growing an hour later, though its roots kept growing underground.

Bai Lingmiao stared at the large “tree” in front of her. It was both chaotic and majestic. She reached out and plucked an apple from a flat piece of a black mirror.

She stared at the apple for a long time before the Second Deity chomped into it.

“This is something Senior Li conjured. Don’t eat it.”

The Second Deity swallowed with delight. “Don’t you understand? This isn’t a conjuration or an illusion. This is the real deal. From now on, everything that Li Huowang conjures will be real. It will never fade away, even if he stops channeling his power. This is the true power of his cultivation.”

Bai Lingmiao frowned as she looked at the chaotic crater.

Maybe the others had forgotten, but she had not forgotten the side effects of “Truth” cultivation.

“Li Huowang, let’s talk.”

Li Huowang hugged his chest and stared at Qing Wanglai and Zhao Shuangdian.

“I understand that you aren’t trying to break up with us at this moment, especially since you reached out to discuss this. Regardless of our current situation, we are all literally and figuratively tied down in the same boat.”

Li Huowang turned to look at the seagulls flying past their boat.

He wasn’t worried—they should be the ones worrying. Once the timeline reset, he would be the only one to retain his memories.

By then, Li Huowang would be in control of the situation.

Of course, since they were in an alliance to fight against a common enemy, Li Huowang would still tell them about his ability to reset the timeline.

However, he planned to mix false information with real information. No one would be able to tell the difference.

“We understand what you’re thinking, but you must also know where we’re coming from.

“We worked hard to fulfill some of your demands, such as bringing you the medicine to suppress your hallucinations.

“We also understand that you’re worried about your girlfriend. We promise that this is the first and last time. We will not bring your girlfriend next time.

“We can even share some of our secret codes with you. This way, you’ll quickly prove your ability to reset the timeline the next time it happens, and we won’t bring your girlfriend along then.”

Li Huowang looked at them silently as they talked. At the same time, Yang Na opened the door and entered the room.

She sensed the tension in the room and realized that the negotiations were going poorly. She bowed apologetically to the two before tugging at Li Huowang's sleeve, urging him to step outside with her.

However, Li Huowang remained still. Yang Na had to drag him out by force.

Li Huowang was confused. "Why are you helping them? Can't you see that they are using us? I'm finally sorting out the relationships between us Simings. If you don't want to be used by them, you need to use them instead!"

The wind on the sea blew through Yang Na's hair, causing it to flutter wildly. "I'm not helping them—I just want to help you. It's better to have another Siming, after all.

"Huowang, I know you're worried about me and don't want me to risk my life, but you need to think ahead. What if all of you died because I wasn't here? Would I really be able to defend the entire Baiyu Capital by myself?"

Chapter 936 - Desert

Li Huowang was momentarily stunned by Yang Na's words. He wanted to argue but soon realized she was right.

If Ji Zai, Ba-Hui, the Three Pure Ones, the Five Dhyani Buddhas, Doulao, and the others were unable to win, then the enemy must be extraordinarily powerful. The Heavenly Mater could not defeat them either, and his current attempts to keep her out of the conflict were ultimately meaningless.

Something isn't right. Li Huowang shook his head vigorously, attempting to clear his thoughts from her perspective. His head began to throb slightly.

"It's not like that. You don't have to worry about any of this. You can just... leave! Go home and get better! You're not the Heavenly Mater! Nana, you're just ill!"

Yang Na looked confused. "Get better? Are you saying I'm mentally ill? If I am, what about you? Are you saying you're also mentally ill? Are Ji Zai, the Simings, and everything else just figments of your imagination?"

While speaking, Yang Na reached out and gently held Li Huowang's hand, her eyes filled with concern. "Huowang, you have to decide whether the Simings are real or not. You can't claim that I'm mentally ill while believing the Simings are real for you."

"But..." Li Huowang frowned, standing still with pursed lips.

Yang Na burst into laughter. She embraced him, wrapping her arms around his waist and planting a kiss on his lips.

Then, she turned around, cupped her hands around her mouth, and shouted out into the deep blue sea, releasing everything she had bottled up inside.

She raised her scarred wrists with joy, letting the sea breeze gently rustle through her hair. At that moment, she let out a burst of passion and energy that suited her age.

“I’ve decided not to commit suicide anymore! Since I’m in charge of death, I will deliver death to our enemies!

“Whether it’s a Siming or a Greater Siming standing in our way, we’ll kill them without mercy, whatever they might be!”

Li Huowang looked at her as she smiled. He wanted to say something but couldn’t find the right words.

Compared to her past self, Yang Na seemed much happier, as if she had let go of many of her burdens.

After thinking for a long while, Li Huowang sighed deeply. He opened his arms and hugged her tightly from behind.

“Alright! Let’s deal with them together! Let them come! Let them taste the consequences of messing with us, the Simings of the Baiyu Capital!”

After saying that, he pulled out a military knife from behind and handed it to Yang Na, then guided her hand to grip it firmly.

The best defense was a good offense. Since there was no way to avoid it, the only option left was to do everything possible to eliminate those who wished them harm!

Li Huowang heard a knock on the metal door. He turned around, still holding Bai Lingmiao, and saw Zhao Shuangdian. “The coordinates are almost set. It’s time to discuss our strategy.”

Li Huowang’s expression gradually became serious. He led Bai Lingmiao into the cabin.

A tablet displayed a map of the ocean. Zhao Shuangdian rapidly moved her fingers to zoom in on the map.

“There was a miscalculation before. I originally thought it was on the island, but it turns out it’s underwater.”

“Underwater? Do you mean we’ll have to dive this time?”

“Exactly. The environment is extremely harsh this time. Although we’ve prepared diving suits, everyone must be very careful.”

“Under the deep sea, huh...” Li Huowang furrowed his brows, his gaze fixed on the deep-sea map displayed on the tablet.

What kind of projection is this illusion? Could the place where this Siming lives truly be so bizarre? Maybe the Simings of the Baiyu Capital have to prepare for this.

“There will be headsets in the diving suits. This time, Ling’er and I won’t be going down. We’ll be guiding you from above using your cameras. Once underwater, follow my instructions. If communications are cut off, follow Qing Wanglai’s orders.”

“And Li Huowang, your bulletproof vest won’t work underwater, so don’t be too reckless.”

“If my vest won’t work, will your firearms work underwater?”

“Don’t worry about that. Ours won’t work, but neither will theirs,” Qing Wanglai said.

“Are you sure the projections we’re dealing with now are still human?” Li Huowang’s words sent a chill through everyone present.

Li Huowang didn’t believe there would be some kind of illegal drug factory underwater this time.

He began to observe the people in the room. The girl whose lips twitched was naturally there, just like Chen Hongyu, who had returned to life.

Since she was here, the two men had naturally arrived as well.

One was a cold-faced skinny man, and the other was a burly man with the word “courage” tattooed on his shoulder. They seemed like mere spectators, rarely offering any opinions.

Li Huowang couldn’t figure out what Simings the three of them were. However, since they were Zhao Shuangdian’s people, they were surely Simings from the Baiyu Capital.

Still, there was no point in speculating without seeing it for himself.

Everyone put on their diving suits and began to descend the metal ladder.

Li Huowang removed the oxygen mask from his mouth and looked up at Yang Na. "Once we're down there, stay close to me."

"I'm not that weak. After all, I'm the Siming of Death! I can't die."

Li Huowang didn't have a chance to explain the story of the previous Siming of Death, Qian Fu. Yang Na jumped into the icy water before he could.

The water was extremely cold. Li Huowang shivered when he jumped in, and Zhao Shuangdian's voice immediately came through his earpiece.

"Hello? Can you hear me? If you can, please cross your hands in front of the camera."

Li Huowang crossed his hands and then lowered them. He carefully observed everything underwater.

He trembled at the sight of the seabed. It was a desert. There was an entire desert underwater.

Golden dunes rose and fell, appearing dreamlike under the shimmering reflection of the water.

What is going on here? Is this the strange place where god Yu'er lives?

As Li Huowang observed the scene below, Qing Wanglai pulled out two sticks from behind and broke them apart. A thick green mist began to dye the surrounding water green.

What is he doing with his Heavenly Dao? Li Huowang watched the scene cautiously, realizing that the Three Pure Ones had come well-prepared.

At that moment, Zhao Shuangdian's voice explained through his earpiece. "This is shark repellent, meant to prevent attacks from sea creatures. Stay close to Ling'er, and don't fall behind."

While they were all wearing diving suits, Ling'er's occasional twitches were still very noticeable.

Even underwater, she continued to type away at her small computer. However, the keyboard was now embedded in the sleeve of her diving suit.

Chapter 937 - Danger

Li Huowang moved his flippers in the cold seawater. With his military knife clenched in one hand and Yang Na's hand held firmly in the other, he followed closely behind Ling'er.

Glancing downward, he found himself hovering just above the desert-like seabed. Oddly enough, it felt as if he were floating instead of swimming.

Could their Simings really be in a place like this? Last time, the Siming's projection was a factory. What could it be this time?

Li Huowang looked around for anything that could be the projection of the Siming.

The area was barren, allowing them to see far into the distance. There was nothing apart from the occasional fish and the large expanses of sand at the seabed. It didn't seem like there was anything substantial enough to serve as a Siming's projection.

If it was the projection of a Siming, it should at least be able to move and pose a threat.

It would be like the drug factory from last time, where the drug lords were likely the limbs of the Siming.

At that moment, Li Huowang felt someone tug his arm. It was Yang Na.

She couldn't speak with her oxygen mask on, so she pointed upwards toward the surface.

Li Huowang carefully examined the water and noticed ripples forming on the surface of the inverted water. It's raining.

Zhao Shuangdian's anxious voice rang in their ears, saying, "Attention! Everyone, return to the ship immediately! A typhoon is heading this way. I repeat, return to the ship!"

They abandoned their search and turned rapidly toward the surface. Ocean weather was notoriously unpredictable, and this typhoon was closing in faster than anticipated.

Li Huowang removed his mask upon reaching the surface. The sight that greeted him was shocking—dark clouds loomed in the distance like a collapsing sky, accompanied by the deep rumble of thunder.

His face paled. What's going on? Could this be the Siming's projection? Why is this Siming so powerful?!

He was a Siming himself, but his projection was a human. The terrifying force before him was beyond human, so what could it be?

“Hurry!” he shouted desperately. “Get on the ship! We’ve been discovered. It’s a trap!”

It was clear that after the successful ambush last time, the Simings from the other elephant would not fall for the same trick.

It had been lying in wait for them, whatever it was.

Ignoring the downpour, they pressed on, swimming toward the distant ship as the waves crashed around them.

The storm was intensifying. Fortunately, they still had their diving equipment. When swimming on the surface became impossible due to the wind, they could dive underwater to get closer to the ship.

However, it was dangerous even underwater. The undercurrents posed a threat, threatening to drag them away multiple times.

The sight of the ship’s barnacle-covered hull spurred Li Huowang to swim hard, breaking the surface and reaching for the metal ladder.

Creak! Just as his hand was about to grasp the ladder, the ship began to lift, accompanied by an eerie creaking sound. It was as though a large invisible hand had grabbed it.

As the ship bobbed in the water, Li Huowang glimpsed what was concealed behind it—a towering waterspout reaching between the sky and sea.

“Waterspout!”

There was little Li Huowang could do. He pushed his companions’ heads back underwater. “Don’t surface! Head to the seabed and bury yourselves in the sand!”

There was no escaping now. Their only chance was to dive to the seabed and minimize the impact from above.

Li Huowang felt a shadow above him. When he looked up, he was hit by a wave of suffocating fear.

The ship, which had been spinning in the air, was now directly above him and plunging down with the rain.

A sharp ringing sound filled Li Huowang’s ears. He reacted instinctively, diving as deep as possible into the water.

Before he could swim far, a powerful shockwave from above flung him away.

Luckily, the area was free of hard objects. Li Huowang crashed into the sand dunes below, and a deafening roar replaced the ringing in his ears.

Li Huowang struggled to regain his strength, eventually managing to crawl out of the sandy pit. As he did, he came face-to-face with the severed head of Ba Shengqing.

Ba Shengqing seemed alive, and his tattooed eyes blinked slightly at Li Huowang. “The Sacrificial God... is dead?”

Li Huowang suddenly thought of something and immediately started to look for Yang Na.

The ship had completely disintegrated, and its parts sank to the sandy seabed like a dying whale.

Li Huowang searched frantically and suddenly noticed movement in the upper left corner. To his dismay, it was Ba Nanxu, crushed in half. She had likely been hit by debris from the shipwreck.

Without her mask, she continued to struggle to swim away as though searching for something in the shipwreck.

Although she was still moving, Li Huowang knew such injuries were fatal. Ba Nanxu wouldn't live long. The two Simings that controlled pain were dead.

Next, Li Huowang spotted Qing Wanglai, who was still alive and uninjured. Qing Wanglai was dragging Zhao Lei to an area free of debris.

He noticed Chen Hongyu's large frame rolling continuously in the water, so he quickly swam over.

He steadied Chen Hongyu's body but noticed a steel plate impaled through her face. Decay had also perished.

Yang Na! Yang Na! Li Huowang was consumed with worry. No matter how desperately he searched, he couldn't locate her.

It was Yang Na, but not as he remembered her. Her body had been severed at the waist, and her lower half was gone, replaced by a crimson tail formed by spilling intestines and blood that mingled in the water. She looked like a grotesque parody of a mermaid.

Yang Na had clearly died. Her skin was pale from blood loss, making her look like a withered rose. It was a beautiful embodiment of death.

The ocean currents shifted Yang Na's corpse, circling around Li Huowang while moving its tail.

Chapter 938 - Projection

“Hurry up! We’re going to miss the bus!” Dressed in a blue school uniform, Yang Na shouted impatiently at Li Huowang, who had just opened the door.

Yang Na smiled brightly at Sun Xiaoqin, who was in the back wearing an apron.

“Good morning, Auntie.”

“Nana, here to pick up Huowang for school again? You’ll be starting middle school next year, right? Will you still be going to the same school as our Huowang?”

“Yes, Auntie.”

“If you’re late, why aren’t you running?” Li Huowang shoved her aside and bolted down the stairs. “Hurry up, Yang Erlang!”

“How dare you shove me!” Yang Na grabbed the railing and raced down the steps after him.

She crashed heavily onto Li Huowang’s backpack, causing him to stagger forward. She wrapped her arm tightly around his neck.

They wrestled and laughed, racing to the bus stop just in time to catch their ride.

Both of them sighed in relief as they finally sat down. Without exchanging a single word, they silently retrieved something from their bags—one took out a handheld game console, while the other pulled out a romance novel.

They immersed themselves in their worlds, side by side, as the bus rumbled along.

Good times were short-lived. They reluctantly put their things away at the seventh stop and prepared to get off the bus.

“Wait, you’re crying? You actually teared up from reading a book? Hahaha!” Li Huowang said, noticing Yang Na’s reddened eyes.

Yang Na hooked her right arm around his neck and gave him a swift knee to the stomach.

“You don’t understand. The novel is touching and well-written. It’s about two people who have a crush on each other but ultimately miss their chance. It’s easily one of the top five stories in my heart.”

Clutching his stomach, Li Huowang stood up. “What? If they liked each other, why didn’t they just say so? That’s just stupid!”

“I’m never going to be like that when I grow up!” he quickly added.

At that moment, their eyes met. Yang Na blinked and pointed a finger at his nose. “Oh? Did you just say a bad word? I’m telling the teacher!”

She turned and ran, with Li Huowang chasing after her. While watching her run, he couldn't help but notice her smile, the dimples on her cheeks, and the radiance of her grin.

It dawned on Li Huowang that Yang Na, who had played with him since childhood, was actually very beautiful.

As the years passed, Li Huowang noticed how Yang Na became increasingly beautiful. Little did he know that the most beautiful moment would come after her death.

Yang Na's lifeless body was completely severed in two. Her long hair spread out in the icy seawater, its beauty so stunning that it shattered his heart.

Yang Na was dead. The girl he had grown up with was dead, just like that.

“Na... na...” Li Huowang’s mouth opened in despair as seawater flooded into his throat, making him cough violently.

Clutching the oxygen tube between his teeth, he rushed forward, his tears streaming down his face. He grabbed Yang Na’s half-body, hugging her tightly to his chest.

His mind buzzed as he felt the coldness of her skin against his own. His heart throbbed with pain, but it felt as if the rest of his body had ceased to exist.

No! I refuse to accept this reality! I won't accept it! I am Ji Zai, and I control Bewilderment, Truth, and Lies! I am a Siming! I am a deity! If I want someone to live, they must live!

Li Huowang desperately grabbed onto the mermaid's tail and tried to shove it back into Yang Na's body.

She would come back to life if he could stuff it back! He could fix her!

However, the tail was very slippery. It slipped away with the current every time he grabbed it.

He reached out and wrapped a strand of intestines around his arm, but a huge force knocked him several meters away.

A porcelain toilet came crashing down right where he had been standing, narrowly missing his head.

Wu Qi had saved him. Then, she gave him a hard slap to snap him out of it.

Qing Wanglai floated over and glanced at Yang Na's corpse. He grabbed her by the neck and tossed her aside.

Li Huowang yanked on the intestines and pulled her corpse back toward him, holding it tightly in his arms.

His eyes filled with fury, and he raised his knife toward Qing Wanglai. "It's all your fault! You caused all of this!"

A voice rang in his ear, causing Li Huowang to freeze. "Is this really the time for infighting? Don't forget you can still rewind!"

His congested mind cleared, and reason returned. He trembled as he gently stroked Yang Na's snow-white cheek.

It's okay! It's okay! I'll bring you back! I'll bring you back! As long as I kill this Siming, I can bring you back!

He looked up at the sea above him. The surface was in chaos. Waves crashed at an alarming speed, churning the waters into a violent frenzy.

From underwater, it looked like a view from the sky—a boiling tsunami consuming the water's surface.

Li Huowang kicked his flippers and swam toward the surface. When his head emerged, a massive wave hit him and disoriented him.

He broke through the surface once again and finally caught sight of the Siming's projection. Beneath the pitch-black sky, his view was filled with towering waves and a swirling waterspout.

It felt as though he was about to confront the entire world, not just a Siming. This was nothing like the last Siming's projection.

At that moment, Qing Wanglai appeared beside him and pulled off his oxygen mask. "There's nothing we can do in this situation! Whatever that projection is, it's far more powerful than us!"

He continued, "The most sensible choice now is to retreat! Leave this sea!"

Li Huowang lowered his head and kissed Yang Na's forehead. His eyes were filled with obsession and determination. "It's okay! No matter what this projection is, I will kill this Siming! I will kill him!"

Li Huowang raised his knife, pointing it at the dark clouds above. "Did you hear me? I'm going to kill you! I will give up everything, even my own life, to kill you!"

Crack! Lightning split the sky, and a bolt of silver struck the knife in his hand.

Chapter 939 - Eye

Li Huowang was suddenly overcome by a constant ringing in his ears, causing him to lose all sensation. Convulsing uncontrollably, he sank into the water.

“Huo.. Huo..” Several faint voices seemed to come from the distance.

His hearing suddenly snapped back, and the voices became incredibly loud. “Li Huowang!”

Two large hands burst from the water and laboriously pulled him up.

“Li Huowang! Are you crazy? Holding up metal in a thunderstorm? Do you have a death wish?!” Wu Qi shouted furiously at him.

Li Huowang glanced downwards, his eyes landing on the knife in his hand. It had turned completely black. Burn marks traced their way along his veins, starting from his hand and spreading everywhere.

He replayed the events in his foggy mind and realized he had been struck by lightning.

He wiped the seawater from his face and lifted his gaze to the vast, swirling black clouds overhead.

Li Huowang took a deep breath, then tilted his head back and unleashed a hysterical scream toward the sky. “You want to kill me? No way!”

He hoisted Yang Na’s corpse with some difficulty, clutching her tightly. “Death is on my side! If you’re so powerful, strike me down!”

“You can’t fight it! Now is not the time to go crazy. We need to go!” Qing Wanglai grabbed Li Huowang’s shoulder and tried to pull him underwater, but Li Huowang violently pushed him away.

His face twisted in rage as he shouted, “No! I can’t leave! If I go, it’s all over! Yang Na will never come back!

“We still have a chance! If we retreat, they will seize the Heavenly Daos of Decay, Pain, and Death. It will be the end for us if we let them!”

Zhao Shuangdian’s voice echoed in Li Huowang’s ears. “Li Huowang, I understand how you feel, but you need to look around.

“This time, the enemy is a spiraling rainband. It’s nothing like the factory we faced the last time. You can destroy a factory, but how can you destroy a typhoon?

“It isn’t even alive. It has no life. How could you kill something like that?”

Li Huowang’s rage subsided. He looked down at Yang Na and said, “Nana, did you hear that? This Siming isn’t alive. It doesn’t even have Death.”

He flashed a sudden, gentle smile. “But that’s alright. We have you. You are the Siming of Death. You can give it Death!”

“Exactly!” The realization hit Li Huowang like a thunderbolt. Disregarding the raging waves, he grabbed Yang Na and plunged underwater, rushing toward the distant waterspout.

Even as he got close, the fierce winds prevented Li Huowang from breaking through the surface.

Li Huowang took off his oxygen mask while still underwater. He held Yang Na close, kissed her passionately, and then pushed her towards the surface with both hands.

Yang Na reached the water’s surface, and the strong gusts of wind quickly swept her upward, flinging her toward the sky like the cruise ship.

As he watched Yang Na sway in the wind like a ragdoll, a wave of reluctance washed over him. It’s okay, don’t be afraid. I won’t let you face this alone. I’ll be with you!

Li Huowang kicked hard with his flippers and burst through the water's surface. The violent wind and rain instantly swept them up toward the towering waterspout.

The fierce wind chilled Li Huowang, soaked to the bone, yet he could barely feel it. The lightning had already numbed him.

"It's alright, Yang Na, don't be afraid!" Li Huowang squinted through the fierce storm, gripping his military knife tightly with both hands as they approached the waterspout.

"I figured it out!" Zhao Shuangdian's voice suddenly rang in Li Huowang's ear. "It's topology! I was approaching it from the wrong direction earlier!"

As the waterspout loomed closer, Li Huowang roared, "What the hell is topology?!"

"Li Huowang! Listen carefully!" Zhao Shuangdian's voice turned uncharacteristically urgent. "I'll guide you! Don't do anything rash! Let go of Yang Na and grab her again after one second!"

Li Huowang hesitated briefly, then released his grip.

Though he didn't fully understand her reasoning, he trusted her. Zhao Shuangdian was on his side and wouldn't betray him now.

Yang Na drifted from his grasp and floated leftward like a kite in the wind.

"Now!"

Li Huowang's hand shot out and grabbed the "kite string" tightly.

With the lift from the kite, Li Huowang was instantly pulled higher, narrowly skirting past the left side of the waterspout.

"Let go of Yang Na and strike it!"

He tightly gripped his knife with both hands, letting out a fierce roar before slashing at the swirling waterspout.

A powerful force instantly engulfed him, causing the world around him to spin rapidly.

When Li Huowang's vision stabilized, he found himself upside down, plummeting down with a terrifying sense of weightlessness.

Thump! Li Huowang crashed into the water. Intense pain shot through him, as if he'd been smashed to pieces.

He summoned his last reserves of strength and dragged himself onto a nearby shipwreck, despite his multiple fractures.

He panted heavily and looked around. The sea was eerily calm and quiet compared to before.

Although the thunderclouds still loomed low and the sky was dark, there was no wind at all. The sea was so calm that it resembled a mirror.

"Where... where is this? Why is it so strange?" Li Huowang muttered as he reached into the water and pulled Yang Na up.

Yang Na had done it. Death was now in place. Soon, he could kill the Siming.

"This... the eye... of the typhoon..." Zhao Shuangdian's voice cut off with a crackling sound in his earpiece.

"The eye of the storm? I see! So this is the Siming's weak point!" Li Huowang stood up, aching all over. He looked at the calm sea around him and gripped his military knife tightly. Then, he plunged it into the water with all his might.

However, nothing changed. He had merely made a small splash.

Li Huowang froze and stood still in confusion. He climbed back onto the shipwreck and looked around blankly.

In the distance, black clouds loomed like towering mountains, pressing ever closer.

Chapter 940 - Death

Li Huowang gazed at the distant black mountains, realizing the eye of the typhoon was approaching. If he could not resolve the situation before the mountains arrived, everyone with him would likely perish.

Isn't this the eye of the typhoon? This should be the Siming's weak point, right? If it isn't, why would Zhao Shuangdian send me here?

Li Huowang jumped into the water and frantically slapped the surface with all his strength.

However, no matter how many times he struck the water, the surface always returned to its original state.

No... something's wrong. This has to be the place. It's just that I'm too weak to hurt it!

A trace of despair arose in Li Huowang's heart.

His enemy's weakness was right before him, but he still couldn't kill his enemy. The gap between them was too big.

Could it be that... I'm about to lose?

His expression hardened with unwillingness as he glanced at Yang Na's pale face.

No, there must be a way. I can find a way! They can't be that strong! If they were that powerful, we would've lost the last time! These projections are fake! They're bluffing!

As Li Huowang frantically searched for potential counterattacks, he suddenly focused on the black scar that spread along the veins of his arm.

An idea flashed in Li Huowang's mind. He climbed back onto the wreckage of the cruise ship. Lightning trembled in the clouds above him, roaring like a beast.

He took some time to calm himself down. With one arm holding Death, he used his other hand to raise the military knife toward the sky. “Come on! If you’re strong enough, kill me! I am Ji Zai! Do you want the Heavenly Dao of Bewilderment? Then come and take it!”

Crack!

A powerful bolt of purple lightning descended from the sky, heading straight toward Li Huowang. It was noticeably stronger than the previous one.

Just as Li Huowang was on the brink of annihilation, he roared and gripped his knife. He fiercely stabbed at himself, with lightning coursing through him.

“Die!”

In the blink of an eye, everything around him turned white. He felt his remaining eye burst, much like the salted egg yolk within a mooncake.

“Egg yolk?”

Li Huowang stared blankly at the salted egg yolk mooncake on the table. He was now seated inside the White Tower Prison.

He realized what this meant. Time had rewound, and he had won.

“Hahaha!”

Li Huowang’s sudden laughter startled the other patients and caregivers around him, making them shrink away in fear.

“Hey, Li Huowang, calm down. It’s the Mid-Autumn Festival today,” a nervous orderly said.

Li Huowang was notoriously difficult to deal with, and unfortunately, the orderly had been assigned to him today.

“Hahaha...”

Tears of joy rolled down Li Huowang’s face. He was elated.

He lowered his head and rummaged through the mooncake box, searching until he found the purple yam mooncake—the one with the hidden note. He stuffed it into his mouth and began chewing in big bites.

“Crazy...” the other patients muttered.

They gradually lost interest in him and returned to watching the TV programs.

Three... two... one.

Li Huowang silently counted down, and the band of inmates with serious crimes commenced their performance in the prison yard as if on cue. The majority of the people in the room gravitated toward the exercise area.

Once Li Huowang saw that most people had left, he stood up and headed to the men’s restroom, following the same steps as before.

This time, after putting on his disguise, he deliberately waited a few more minutes to avoid running into Yi Donglai again.

Thump!

The car door slammed shut.

Li Huowang ripped off his mask and coldly spoke to Ba Shengqing at the wheel, saying, “Drive to Qing Wanglai’s villa!”

With the Simings dead, the siblings who had died in the water returned to life. Everything was back.

Sitting beside Li Huowang, Ba Nanxu gave him a teasing look. “Do you really know who pulled you out? Do you think getting someone out of a psychiatric hospital is that easy? You should show some gratitude, Huowang.”

“Dial Zhao Shuangdian’s number. I’ll talk to her,” Li Huowang said.

Ba Nanxu frowned slightly and licked her lip piercing with her forked tongue. Something felt off about Li Huowang. He seemed different from the crazy person he used to be.

“Hello, it’s me. Li Huowang just left the psychiatric hospital, and now he wants to go to Qing Wanglai’s place.”

Li Huowang snatched the phone from her hand before she could finish. “Hey, Zhao Shuangdian, this is topology. You were thinking in the wrong direction earlier.”

Li Huowang could feel Zhao Shuangdian’s shock even through the phone.

After a long silence, Li Huowang added, “Have your people take me to Qing Wanglai’s place. You should also come quickly. I’ll explain when we get there.”

He returned the phone to Ba Nanxu. She spoke a few words in acknowledgment to Zhao Shuangdian before hanging up and looking at Li Huowang with a strange expression.

“What are you looking at?! Drive!”

Ba Nanxu kicked her brother’s seat, and the car started moving.

As they drove, Ba Nanxu kept glancing at Li Huowang. He was staring out the window, deep in thought.

This expression was something she had never seen on him before. She had expected him to be more agitated. After all, he had spent months confined in a psychiatric hospital.

And what was that “topology” he mentioned? If she wasn’t mistaken, wasn’t that a mathematical term?

Given what she knew about him, how could he possibly understand something like that?

When the car entered the area of the villa in the suburbs, Li Huowang didn’t even wait for it to stop. He threw the car door open and rushed inside.

He ignored Chen Hongyu, who was watching TV in the living room, and headed straight to the third floor.

With a single kick, he broke down the door of a room and rushed in. He tightly hugged Yang Na, who was curled up at the foot of the bed.

He stroked her soft hair repeatedly, his hand trembling. His heart finally felt calm.

“Huowang, you’re finally back. I’m so glad. I’ve waited so long for you. Why are you crying? Did I do something wrong? I'm sorry, it's my fault. I shouldn't have called the police..."

Li Huowang shook his head. He let go of Yang Na and carefully examined her face for a moment. Then, he hugged her tightly again, laughing through his tears.

"No, you're perfect, Nana. You're amazing. Your death saved us all."

Chapter 941 - Explain

“Shouldn’t you ensure the room is empty before getting intimate?” Wu Qi said, holding onto a bowl of food. She had been trying to feed Yang Na the food when Li Huowang barged in.

Li Huowang had been so focused on Yang Na that he failed to notice Wu Qi’s presence.

“Wu Qi, thank you for taking care of her for the past few days.”

Noticing the changes in Li Huowang’s appearance, Yang Na asked, “Huowang, what happened to your eye? Why are you missing one eye? What happened?”

Li Huowang took a deep breath and carried her out of the room. “Nana, don’t worry. I will explain everything that has happened to you later.”

They bumped into Qing Wanglai as they were exiting the room.

“Oh? You’re out of prison! Congratulations. I was just thinking about how to rescue you.”

Li Huowang glanced at Qing Wang's smile before spitting on him. Without giving him another thought, Li Huowang headed downstairs.

Qing Wanglai could only be counted on outside of critical situations. He always seemed to go missing during important times, and Li Huowang had overestimated him in the past.

Li Huowang sat on the sofa, holding onto Yang Na. He began to recount the events in a quiet whisper.

Yang Na was clearly in disbelief—the story was too ridiculous.

Still, Li Huowang didn’t need her to understand. He simply wanted to hear her voice and confirm that she was truly alive again.

Li Huowang was just about to finish his story when he heard the sound of screeching tires outside. Zhao Shuangdian had arrived.

Zhao Shuangdian greeted Qing Wanglai before sitting in front of Li Huowang. This time, she appeared very serious. “Why did you think I was wrong? And regarding the topology—is it point-set or algebraic topology?”

Li Huowang frowned, completely lost. He didn’t even know what topology was.

Sensing his confusion, Yang Na whispered, “Huowang, topology is the study of space or geometric shapes that retain certain properties even after changing.”

“No,” Li Huowang shook his head before standing up. “That’s her world. There’s no reason for me to learn. She should calculate it herself.”

He turned and faced all of the Simings. “Is everyone here? Good. I have some good news to announce—we’ve just won a significant battle!”

Shocked expressions swept across the room.

Ba Nanxu, munching on something, whispered to Zhao Shuangdian, “I think we should send him back.”

“I know this might not make sense right now,” Li Huowang said, “but I’m certain you’ll understand once I explain what happened.”

He proceeded to recount the events. While many did not believe him, Qing Wanglai and Zhao Shuangdian became serious after Li Huowang said certain keywords. They came to believe in the truthfulness of his account after confirming some details.

“Li Huowang, you mentioned we went to the ocean to find another Siming on a different elephant. Can you describe that Siming’s projection again?”

“That Siming’s projection? Isn’t it simple? It’s... that Siming’s projection is...”

Li Huowang was left in a state of shock. He vividly remembered his fierce struggle against it, yet its appearance had completely vanished from his memories, replaced by fuzzy white spaces.

“Li Huowang, you can’t just make stuff up.”

“No! Something’s wrong! Quiet down and give me time to think!”

Li Huowang scratched his head furiously, pacing around the hall.

He analyzed the differences between the different encounters. Ultimately, he looked at Yang Na.

“I understand now!” he exclaimed. “The Siming has completely disappeared from my memories, which means Yang Na must have killed it for good!

“I think I found the rule for it. To kill them, we must destroy every trace of their existence, not just their flesh. We must completely erase every record and memory of them, even within their allies. Only by bringing Death can we truly kill them!”

Li Huowang quickly recalled what the factory looked like and frowned. “The Siming with the factory projection is not dead—it’s just injured!”

“Why do you say so?”

“It’s because it’s still in my memories! As long as they exist in any form or in any shape, they are not truly dead!”

He returned to Yang Na, gently stroking her hair as he looked at her. His previous experiences had hardened his resolve—he would never again risk her life.

Unfortunately, Yang Na would need to accompany him from now on. He needed to take Death to the enemy Simings to truly kill them.

“Pfft!”

Li Huowang turned around to find Ba Nanxu laughing.

He slammed the table, his voice rising. “I’m telling the truth! Don’t try to twist this around. I don’t mind if you don’t trust me, but don't poison others with your doubts!"

The atmosphere grew thick with unspoken tension. Then, a woman with an elegant black umbrella suddenly walked into the house.

"Sorry, I'm late. Is there any reason you were looking for me so urgently?"

She looked elegant—probably in her twenties, with long black hair and a pretty face. Li Huowang was certain he had never encountered her in any of his previous loops, and yet...

Something about her made him feel like he had met her before.

Wait, umbrella? The umbrella. That was it.

Back when he had first been discharged and was staying at home, this same woman had been monitoring him.

The Simings from the other elephant were no longer just defending—they were launching a counterattack.

Chapter 942 - Cultivating The “Truth”

Li Huowang sat cross-legged on the cushion, slowly cultivating. He used his inner sight to guide his primordial breath toward the final chakra point slowly.

He had much more primordial breath now, having absorbed a substantial amount of primordial from other Strayed Ones. If the initial amount of primordial breath within him could be compared to a cloud, the present amount would be akin to the size of a mountain.

The primordial breath within him felt incredibly heavy. Slowly pushing that much primordial breath through his chakra points required a lot of effort.

He tried pushing it for a long time, but the primordial breath didn't seem to move at all.

A lot of time passed before Li Huowang opened his eyes. He couldn't help but feel frustrated since he was still stuck at the sixth chakra point.

While he had made a lot of progress thanks to the primordial breath of other Strayed Ones, he was now stuck at the final part.

He glanced around, unsure of how much time he had spent cultivating. Still, he didn't want to know. It'd be bad to immediately learn that he had cultivated for a very long time.

Li Huowang waved his arms, and several waiters showed up with many dishes. They carried braised fish, chicken stewed with potato, seaweed soup with ribs, and a large rice bucket.

Li Huowang devoured the food with astonishing speed. He hadn't conjured it himself—Li Sui had arranged it. Knowing Li Huowang's tendency to go hungry, she had prepared it in advance to ensure he wouldn't starve.

Li Huowang didn't dare think about how long he had been cultivating. He was already at the sixth stage, so he knew how deadly his thoughts could be.

These days, he put a lot of effort into avoiding random thoughts. One wrong move, and he could turn them into reality.

Now, the things he conjured would endure perpetually instead of disappearing once he ceased thinking about them.

"Senior Li, have this instead. I put some lard in it."

Li Huowang grabbed the bowl of rice and started eating it.

"Thank you."

He looked to the left listlessly, and the sound of a performance came out of nowhere. "Wind blowing~ Stars shining bleakly~ The people are shouting~ The mountain is rumbling~ The sounds of murder cover the lands~ We travel far until it is dark~"

The Lu family troupe, which was supposed to be long gone, had unexpectedly reappeared, performing exclusively for Li Huowang.

Lu Zhuangyuan showed up on stage, and cheering could be heard everywhere.

There were the voices of Abbess Jing Xin, Ji Lin, Gao Zhijian, Lu Zhuangyuan, Zhuge Yuan, and the various people who had been his illusions in the past.

Li Huowang didn't realize that his surroundings were now filled with people, like a crowded shop.

The voices irritated him. As his irritation grew, his surroundings started to shake and tremble.

Bam! Li Huowang smashed the bowl onto the table angrily. "Enough! Scram!"

Everything around him turned white.

Li Huowang grabbed his head and panted. He had power now, but he could not fully control it.

Just then, a slender white arm extended and gave him a green bamboo slip.

“Senior Li, your heart is in turmoil. Here, read this silently. This is the 'Heart Calming Mantra' from the White Lotus Sect. It should help.”

Li Huowang took it and started chanting, “Snow freezes everything, and all is still. The heart is calm and gazes in serenity. The heart and spirit are one, while the energy follows. Remain undisturbed even during unending changes. Free from delusions, anger, lust, desires, possession, and abandonment. Free from actions and self...”

As he chanted, Li Huowang’s breathing started to calm down. He wasn’t sure if it was a natural effect of the mantra or not.

“Senior Li, your ‘Truth’ cultivation requires unparalleled mental fortitude and spirit. I’ve asked the Surveillance Bureau to look for anything that could help you.”

Li Huowang shook his head while massaging his temples. “No, what I really need at this moment is to become stronger and reach the seventh stage. I have this nagging feeling that I am still too weak to confront Zuoqiu Yong.”

The threat of Zuoqiu Yong invading their world was more pressing than his mental state.

“Miaomiao, are there still any Strayed Ones? I need more primordial breath.”

Even though Li Huowang wasn't sure about how much more he needed, he had confidence that with ten more Strayed Ones or so, he could reach the seventh stage.

Bai Lingmiao shook her head. "There aren't any left. It's unlikely we'll find any others for now. The Surveillance Bureau has sent people overseas to search for hidden Strayed Ones. However, even if they do find one, it will take some time for them to return."

Li Huowang sighed, aware that everyone had done their best.

Strayed Ones weren't vegetables that grew by the road and could be plucked anywhere.

"Alright, you can leave first. I need to start cultivating again."

There wasn't much hope, but Li Huowang still wanted to pursue the small chance of reaching the seventh stage through cultivation.

Li Huowang sat back down as Bai Lingmiao left the place. At that moment, a familiar voice came from beside him.

"Father?"

"Hm?" Li Huowang looked around him.

He witnessed Bai Lingmiao's back being torn apart like a tapestry as Li Sui walked right through her body.

Li Huowang then realized that the Bai Lingmiao he had been talking with was indeed real. However, he had created her with his imagination—she was not the original Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang took out the "Heart Calming Mantra" from his robes and slammed it onto the table. The bamboo slip popped like bubbles and disappeared without a trace. The "fake" Bai Lingmiao disappeared too.

Although he had figured something like this would happen, he never thought it would be so frustrating.

Li Sui refrained from asking about his weird actions and instead delivered crucial news. "Father, they are here. The Tianchen Kingdom is moving."

Li Huowang felt his back going cold. "Are you sure? Zuoqiu Yong is moving?"

Li Sui nodded. "Yes. The Qi Kingdom is getting ready for war. The Natural Disaster in the Tianchen Kingdom is ending, so I think they finally have the time to deal with us."

Chapter 943 - Zuoqiu Yong

Unfortunately, not everything went as he had planned. Li Huowang scratched his head, trying to devise a plan.

“Father, are you not at the seventh stage yet?”

“No, I’m just one stage away, but I don’t have time to cultivate now.”

Li Huowang lowered his hands and said, “Call the Dragon Veins to prepare the Dragon Qi. This is not a request—it’s an order. Also, all of the techniques of the Surveillance Bureau should be used. I know you’re withholding classified ceremonies used only for emergencies. This is an emergency.”

Li Huowang had to use everything to fight against Zuoqiu Yong.

“I understand.”

Li Huowang stood up and steeled himself. “I’ll have to fight, even though I’ve only reached the sixth stage. Let’s go confront Zuoqiu Yong!”

Just as he lifted his leg, the world around him shifted. He teleported to the Qi Kingdom almost instantaneously.

He could now travel between the Liang Kingdom and the Qi Kingdom at will as long as he thought he could.

“Bodhisattva! Bodhisattva Zhuge is back!”

“Bodhisattva Zhuge! You are finally back!”

“Bodhisattva Zhuge has not abandoned the Qi Kingdom!”

As the people from the Qi Kingdom knelt in worship, a lot of False Qi entered his head.

Li Huowang looked around until he found Chan Du, the person responsible for managing the place when Li Huowang himself wasn't there.

Chan Du looked the same as ever. He bowed to Li Huowang.
“Amitabha”

“Tell me about the recent situation.”

Li Huowang waved his arms, and the scenery around him changed like tapestries.

They were now back in the garden of the Righteous Monastery, surrounded by yellow walls, green roofs, and tall green trees.

The three of them sat down on a stone stool to talk.

Chan Du sighed deeply. “Benefactor Li, the Qi Kingdom is very unstable now. There are too many spies from the Tianchen Kingdom. I’ve tried to figure out how to deal with them, but it’s futile. I fear that the Qi Kingdom will fall if the Tianchen Kingdom attacks now. The spies infesting our cities would rebel, forcing us to split our forces...”

“I never intended for the Qi Kingdom to fight to its last breath,” Li Huowang said. “You mentioned that the Tianchen Kingdom is on the move. What are they planning?”

Li Sui answered instead, “They found a Twisted One that will allow them to travel between the Liang Kingdom and the Qi Kingdom.”

“What? They’ve found it?”

“Yes, and they can now travel directly from the Tianchen Kingdom to the Liang Kingdom.”

Though everything seemed calm, Li Huowang understood why Li Sui had woken him up.

The situation was dire. No one knew what the Tianchen Kingdom would send into the Liang Kingdom.

“No, we can’t simply be on the defense. We need to disrupt their plans.”

After a moment’s contemplation, he declared, “Tell your men to get ready. We're taking the initiative."

Li Huowang was confident he would lose to Zuoqiu Yong even though he was already at the sixth stage. Thankfully, he wasn't fighting alone.

"Alright." Li Sui nodded. "Don't worry about it. I've told every sect about the Tianchen Kingdom. They understand that they need to work together in this situation. They have agreed to fight for the sake of the Liang Kingdom."

As he listened to their conversation, Chan Du felt a growing unease. "Benefactor Li, you might be right in acting first, but how do we get to the Tianchen Kingdom?"

Li Huowang clenched his fist decisively. "If I say we can go, then we can go! Gather your strongest men and get ready. Zuoqiu Yong will be our biggest enemy."

They quickly formulated a plan, agreeing that taking down Zuoqiu Yong was their best path to win the war.

Zuoqiu Yong was still unaware of Li Huowang's significant improvement in cultivation. He had become capable of bringing people to the Tianchen Kingdom.

Even though Zuoqiu Yong was the Siming that governed Growth, Li Huowang was confident that he could put up a good fight since he could borrow the power of a Siming too.

Zuoqiu Yong would face not just one but two distinct timelines at the same time.

Li Huowang returned to the Liang Kingdom to make the final preparations.

All the sects had assembled in the Liang Kingdom, presenting Li Huowang with a combination of sects he was both familiar and unfamiliar with.

Li Huowang approached one of the nuns. "Shai Zi, where is Zuoqiu Yong right now?"

"I don't know."

“Stop lying. If you want to help, you better help all the way. You have spies in the Tianchen Kingdom, after all!”

Shai Zi chuckled. “Zuoqiu Yong had the same idea as you. He’s already closing in on the headquarters of the White Lotus Sect. He plans to kill the Twisted One of the Heavenly Mater first.”

“What did you say?!” Li Huowang didn’t have time to be angry with Shai Zi. He swiftly closed the distance between him and the White Lotus Sect headquarters, reaching it in just one step.

He reached the White Lotus Sect headquarters just as its roof exploded skyward. Bai Lingmiao’s dual bodies burst through the roof while the white lotus markings on her forehead blazed with an intense light, desperately trying to hold back the abnormal tumors growing on her.

Li Huowang swept in, positioning himself protectively before Bai Lingmiao. He stared directly into Zuoqiu Yong’s eyes.

However, Zuoqiu Yong completely ignored Li Huowang and instead looked at Li Sui. “Oh~ And here I was wondering who you were. Aren’t you Li Sui? So you are the Chief of the Liang Kingdom’s Surveillance Bureau?”

“Aunt, long time no see,” Li Sui said, her voice calm.

“Li Sui, do you like red a lot? It’s very tacky.”

“My father likes red, so I’m just following his example,” Li Sui replied, moving to stand beside Li Huowang.

Zuoqiu Yong fished out a silk handkerchief to wipe the sweat off her forehead. “So you want to fight me this time? I spared you last time when you were trying to stop me from taking some of the Qi Kingdom’s Dragon Veins. I will kill you for real this time.”

Li Huowang felt a surge of anger due to their conversation. “You damned eunuch, are you ignoring me?”

“Yes.”

Without another word, Zuoqiu Yong launched himself toward Bai Lingmiao. The Twisted One of the Heavenly Mater was his sole objective.

Bai Lingmiao did nothing. She simply chanted and made seals with her hands.

“Wall!” Li Huowang let out a fierce roar as multiple earth walls erupted from the ground, effectively blocking Zuoqiu Yong’s path.

He halted inches from the wall, plucking something from her body and throwing it on the ground with disgust.

“Ho~ Who plastered the Heavenly Dao of Death onto me? So disgusting.”

Chapter 944 - Wait

Zuoqiu Yong turned and looked at Bai Lingmiao playfully. “I see that the Heavenly Mater has the Heavenly Dao of Death again. Unfortunately, it’s useless against me. I am not a mortal, after all.”

He snapped his fingers toward Bai Lingmiao. Trees and bushes burst out from the ground to envelop Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang snarled and swung his arm. The plants magically disappeared as if they had never been there.

Li Huowang’s action finally caught Zuoqiu Yong’s attention.

“Tsk tsk tsk, now who have we here? To think that you would grow so much in just a few days.”

Zuoqiu Yong spoke with arrogance, still dismissing Li Huowang as a threat.

Li Huowang couldn’t tell if Zuoqiu Yong was serious or pretending, but it didn’t matter.

Surveying their surroundings, Li Huowang realized they couldn’t fight in the middle of Shangjing. Millions of people were there, and the collateral damage could be catastrophic.

“Change!” Li Huowang pushed his arms forward, and everything around him changed rapidly. Now, everyone was back in the Tianchen Kingdom.

The prosperous Shangjing had turned into the forests of the Tianchen Kingdom.

“Oh, ho~ Not bad, kid. It looks like you’ve learned quite a lot,” Zuoqiu Yong said.

Li Huowang did not waste his breath and glared at Zuoqiu Yong’s burgeoning form.

Under his gaze, Zuoqiu Yong quickly disintegrated. With his cultivation, he only needed a short amount of time to reduce someone into nothingness.

However, Zuoqiu Yong's body continuously regenerated, mending itself faster than Li Huowang could break it down.

Zuoqiu Yong had the Heavenly Dao of Growth. Any wounds that could be healed by growing back her flesh weren't a threat to her.

He smiled as his body regenerated. "Unfortunately, you're still too weak. You were smart last time and managed to trick me, but tricks cannot last forever. Today, I'll show you the true gulf between our powers."

Zuoqiu Yong raised his arms into the air and appeared to struggle, holding onto an invisible weight.

"Wait!"

A voice interrupted their fight. They looked to the left and saw a familiar sight running out from the forest. It was Shai Zi.

He didn't wear any disguises. He had his distinctive dice-shaped head.

Standing between the two, Shai Zi gestured for Li Huowang to step back.

Then, Shai Zi turned to Zuoqiu Yong. "Stop, they tricked you. We're on the same side here."

His words confused both sides.

Li Huowang saw Zuoqiu Yong's confusion and realized that Shai Zi was up to something.

Who is he talking about? What does Shai Zi know? Wait, since he's from the Sitting Oblivion Dao, he might be lying again!

While Li Huowang was thinking, Zuoqiu Yong replied to Shai Zi, "Who told you that?"

Shai Zi looked at Li Sui and chuckled. "It was the Chief of the Liang Kingdom's Surveillance Bureau. She said you were moving too quickly—the Heavenly Mater had just been reinstated, and yet you were already on the move. It was too strange, so she sent me to check.

“And lo and behold, my spies discovered something interesting. You somehow caught wind of the news when the Heavenly Mater had yet to be reinstated. You were making preparations long before the Heavenly Mater had been reinstated.

“Who would be kind enough to warn you that your enemy is about to be resurrected? Have you considered what their goal might be?”

Zuoqiu Yong stood still with a blank face. No one knew if he was listening to Shai Zi or not.

“Hehehe... “Shai Zi approached Li Huowang and placed his arms on Li Huowang’s shoulder. “Can’t figure it out? Think carefully. The Dharma Sect had invaded both the Liang Kingdom and the Tianchen Kingdom.”

Li Huowang’s pupils shrank from the realization. “Do you mean the people from Fu Shengtian?!”

Seeing that Li Huowang was smoothly working with him, Shai Zi clapped vigorously. “That’s right. It’s them!”

He turned and looked at Zuoqiu Yong. “No matter how dire our current situation, it pales in comparison to the threat from Fu Shengtian. Surely you can see that we’re still on the same side here?”

“Fu Shengtian tried to attack us last time but failed. They are still trying to invade us. After learning about your old history with the Heavenly Mater, they sent some people to secretly sow discord among us.

“Zuoqiu Yong, don’t let them deceive you. They are playing dirty this time. They are disguising their men as ours and trying to make us fight each other.”

Zuoqiu Yong’s expression remained unreadable, while Li Huowang’s mind was overwhelmed with the influx of information.

Could it be true? Did Fu Shengtian plant the seeds of discord between us months ago? Was the previous fight between the Simings just the start, not the end?

Li Huowang tried to calm himself down, knowing better than to take Shai Zi's words at face value. Wait, this could all be another of Shai Zi's schemes. Maybe it's just a ploy to prevent Zuoqiu Yong from making the right decisions.

Shai Zi was presenting everything as if it were the absolute truth, but when had Shai Zi's words ever been that straightforward? They had always appeared to be truthful.

Li Huowang understood the Sitting Oblivion Dao. No matter how truthful their words might seem on the surface, one could never let down their guard.

Regardless, Li Huowang realized the wisest course was to play along, at least for now.

"Shai Zi, are you telling the truth?" Li Huowang asked.

Shai Zi nodded vehemently. Even his expression looked serious. "It's true! You should know that I never lie. Fu Shengtian's fight with us isn't over yet. The Simings at the Baiyu Capital are still fighting hard. The fight began a long time ago!"

Chapter 945 - Fight

“Zuoqiu Yong! While I don’t know much about your past grudges with the Heavenly Mater, we currently face a much bigger threat. Are you still planning to fight with us? Do you not realize what the priority should be?”

“The Heavenly Mater is fighting against the Simings from Fu Shengtian. If we were to disturb the Heavenly Mater today, we would interrupt their fight. If our Simings lose, are you confident in fighting against Fu Shengtian alone?”

“And remember, the Heavenly Mater is risking her life alongside the other Simings. If you kill her now, you’ll be sabotaging their efforts as well. What do you think the Simings will do to you once their fight is over?”

Shai Zi laid out the stakes, attempting to persuade Zuoqiu Yong by mentioning the benefits and risks.

If Li Huowang had been in Zuoqiu Yong’s position, he might have trusted Shai Zi and verified the news before attacking the White Lotus Sect.

Still, Li Huowang knew that his own thoughts didn’t matter—Zuoqiu Yong’s decision was the key.

Zuoqiu Yong stood silently, fiddling with his pink handkerchief as if weighing his options.

While he contemplated, Li Huowang approached Li Sui. “Suisui, is Shai Zi really following your orders? Is he telling the truth?”

Li Huowang wasn’t entirely convinced by Shai Zi. However, he trusted Li Sui.

Xuan Pin said nothing, but words materialized on the surface of Li Huowang’s Shimmer Mirror.

It's the truth. Father, he's on our side. We must trust him. If we can't trust him, we can't trust anyone else.

Li Huowang hesitated but nodded, even as a separate thought lingered in his mind.

A hazy image suddenly flickered before his eyes. He saw himself holding something in his arms, chasing after a yellow blur.

What is that? Li Huowang pressed his head and murmured, "I can't have random thoughts... not now!"

The more he fought to calm down, the more his thoughts spiraled. A lot of things began to pop around him.

"HA!" A heavy metal ball appeared in his hand, and he smashed it against his head repeatedly. Blood ran down his face, and his skull was visibly dented. Li Huowang only stopped when Bai Lingmiao intervened, trying to stop him.

He grabbed her arms and shook his head. His head throbbed from the pain on the side of his skull.

"It's fine. I'm feeling better now," Li Huowang murmured.

To regain clarity, Li Huowang resorted to the most primitive method: Ba-Hui's pain.

He refused Bai Lingmiao's help and stood up alone. He looked at Zuoqiu Yong, observing his every movement. Li Huowang couldn't afford to make any mistakes, not now.

Finally, under Li Huowang's watchful gaze, Zuoqiu Yong made his move. He pouted and sighed before looking at Shai Zi.

"Hmph~ Little Shai Zi, your argument is compelling—I even hesitated. However, why should I trust someone from the Sitting Oblivion Dao? Besides..."

Zuoqiu Yong paused, a white cloud forming beneath his feet as he began to levitate.

"...do you really think you have the standing to talk with me about this? None of you can stand as my equals. I've fought tooth and nail—from the Qi Kingdom to the Tianchen Kingdom—so that no one could speak to me without kneeling!”

Bam! A massive pressure descended upon Li Huowang, causing his legs to sink into the ground.

Zuoqiu Yong smirked at the sight. “Only the Simings are worthy of opposing me. Who are you to try to stand in my way?”

Zuoqiu Yong took out a spine sword from his sleeve and swung it lightly. The scene around them warped, and they were suddenly back in Shangjing.

Shangjing was now in chaos. The army of Unspeakable and the bandits from the Tianchen Kingdom were searching for something within the city, killing anyone from the White Lotus Sect without mercy.

The city became plagued by the sounds of killing and murder, prompting the soldiers and Surveillance Bureau of the Liang Kingdom to take action.

Shangjing had turned into a battlefield.

Zuoqiu Yong floated in midair as he looked down at the fleeing civilians with glee. “You’ve forgotten something. I’ve invested a lot of resources, and not just to kill the Saintess of the White Lotus Sect. I plan to destroy the entire White Lotus Sect!”

A rift opened up in the sky. People from the Tianchen Kingdom rained down from above.

Li Huowang saw the man with the fox face and stilts through the hole. He seemed taller now that he had absorbed the Twisted One who could travel between the Qi Kingdom and the Liang Kingdom.

“It’s a diversion! That bastard is targeting the entire White Lotus Sect!” Li Huowang roared, taking out his spine sword. He stomped hard before launching himself toward Zuoqiu Yong.

Li Huowang persistently murmured to himself, expressing absolute confidence in his ability to kill Zuoqiu Yong.

The blade sliced him in two, but both halves of his body smiled as they regenerated, creating two versions of him.

“Little runt, kneel!” Zuoqiu Yong shouted, pointing at Li Huowang’s body. He began aging rapidly, his face quickly melting.

Just as Li Huowang tore off his oversized eyelid, he caught sight of Li Sui’s massive frame shielding him. She was taking the brunt of Zuoqiu Yong’s attack!

Li Sui’s red robes gradually fell off, revealing her massive frame covered in black tentacles.

Her body was covered in it as her tentacles splayed outwards. The decapitated heads she had been propping up with her tentacles started bubbling out.

The heads were all preserved after being covered by Li Sui’s tentacles. There were the heads of Shanguan Yuting, a dog, a bear, a youth, and many others.

As her tentacles danced wildly, a tower of heads rose from her body, standing between Li Huowang and Zuoqiu Yong.

Chapter 946 - Change

This was the first time Li Sui showed her actual appearance to Li Huowang. In the past, she had relied on illusion techniques to conceal her real face.

Her suspense eased as she met Li Huowang's gaze. What had to happen eventually was finally unfolding.

Immediately after, Li Huowang saw Bun's dog head open its mouth and speak to him.

"Father, I'll hold them off here. You gather help from the other sects and the other Chiefs of the Surveillance Bureaus. You're the only one who can pull this off."

Li Huowang saw the Shimmer Mirror by his side expand rapidly, transforming from a mirror into a door. Various scenes appeared inside the door. There were temples, Daoist monasteries, caves, and yamens with stone lions at the entrance.

"Can you handle this?" Li Huowang shouted to the figures before him.

"I can barely hold them off for a while. The faster you return, the safer I'll be," Li Sui said, her voice coming from all her heads.

"Alright, I'll get reinforcements. Miaomiao! Shai Zi! Help out!" Li Huowang shouted.

He knew that getting more allies would improve their chances. At the very least, they needed more people to block the army of Unspeakable from assisting Zuoqiu Yong.

Once Li Huowang had dived into the Shimmer Mirror, all of Li Sui's eyes turned back to Zuoqiu Yong.

"Well, well, Li Sui. You've possessed so many people, huh?" Zuoqiu Yong said with a smile. It was as though they were just having a simple chat, just like the conversations they had over one

The ground beneath Zuoqiu Yong cracked open, and black tentacles wrapped with various heads shot out, quickly surging toward the two Zuoqiu Yongs.

They wrapped around both of them but didn't tear them apart. Instead, they burrowed into their flesh.

Since simple attacks were ineffective, Li Sui planned to absorb Zuoqiu Yong like she had absorbed the others, making Zuoqiu Yong's flesh part of herself using her power as a Black Taisui.

The next moment, Zuoqiu Yong's gaze focused slightly. Li Sui's tentacles withered and turned into dried skin. This trick was not worth even mentioning to Zuoqiu Yong.

"Li Sui, I'm giving you face here. If you don't accept my respect, then you'll have to endure my punishment," Zuoqiu Yong said, her voice raspy.

Long needles threaded with silk shot toward Li Sui, accelerating the fusion of her flesh and blood.

At that moment, the chanting of the White Lotus Sutra echoed across the battlefield.

"Here lies the dry field, with flowing canals. These small streams are covered with green grass. There are lotus pools full of joy. The sound of mandarin ducks in the air is covered with mandala flowers. White and blue lotus..."

Bai Lingmiao sat cross-legged, a Twelve Merit Jade Lotus gently rotating above her head. Soft white light spread outward, enveloping the battlefield as the devotees chanted.

Zuoqiu Yong remained unmoved at the sight of the white light. However, the surrounding army of Unspeakable retreated in fear as though facing their nemesis.

Bai Lingmiao sat there emotionlessly, just like a divine white jade sculpture. The mercy and kindness that radiated from her affected everyone in the area.

Anyone who heard the White Lotus Sutra felt a surge of compassion and dropped their weapons, refusing to see more bloodshed.

“Heavenly Mater?” Zuoqiu Yong hesitated before smiling. “No, you’re not her. If you were, you should be thanking me. After all, I wiped out all the Tian Huang nobles who held a grudge against her. Now, the Tianchen Kingdom belongs to me.”

Zuoqiu Yong raised a hand, and Bai Lingmiao was instantly pulled toward Zuoqiu Yong. The solemn chanting of the White Lotus Sutra was abruptly cut off.

Just as she was about to collide with Zuoqiu Yong, the heavens suddenly shifted. A beam of light shot down from above towards Zuoqiu Yong.

Zuoqiu Yong looked up and saw two vast seas of yin and yang occupying the skies, one black and one white. Doulao had arrived.

“Hmm?” Zuoqiu Yong glanced to the left and noticed that Li Huowang had returned. He was sitting cross-legged and chanting the Heavenly Treasure of Deception.

“It doesn’t take long to bring a few reinforcements,” Li Huowang said. He stood up and looked at Zuoqiu Yong in the distance.

Behind him, experts from different sects hurried towards the chaotic battlefield, lending their aid to stabilize the crumbling Shangjing city.

The reinforcements included members from various sects as well as Chiefs from other countries. They understood the interdependent nature^[1] of their various countries.

1. The idiom literally means that without the lips, the teeth feel cold. It illustrates the interdependence between the lips and the teeth. 🤔

Chapter 947 - Death

As Li Huowang arrived with reinforcements, the precarious situation began to stabilize. This was atop the manifestation of Doulao, summoned by Li Huowang's vast False Qi and the Heavenly Treasure of Deception technique.

With Doulao's appearance, the ground began to ripple like water, and everything in the world became increasingly abnormal.

Under Li Huowang's efforts, the enemy forces quickly diminished.

"Doulao! I am Ji Zai!" Li Huowang shouted furiously toward the black-and-white ocean above.

"I know what happened up there from Shai Zi! Since you're allied with the Heavenly Mater, and this person here wants to kill her, you should know what to do as an ally!"

It was unclear whether Doulao understood Li Huowang's words or simply reacted to Zuoqiu Yong's hostility. The Taiji diagram that filled the sky began to spin as countless Heavenly Daos of Lies rained down on Zuoqiu Yong.

Zuoqiu Yong chuckled, even though suspicion continued to grow in his heart. He was unbothered despite internally questioning whether his army of Unspeakable would betray him.

"Looks like you still don't understand what you're facing. I knew you'd try this tactic. Attack!"

At Zuoqiu Yong's command, the soldiers of the Tianchen Kingdom in Shangjing City dragged up the White Lotus Sect followers and tied them up like livestock. They did not even show mercy to pregnant women.

Throats were slit, and their bodies were buried at various points within the capital.

There were tens of thousands of victims, and they looked like random piles of graveyards. However, they were actually prepared to assist Zuoqiu Yong.

Bai Lingmiao sensed the death and despair of her devout followers. Her eyes, hidden behind her white veil, shrank in horror. Rage and murderous intent surged within her, but soon turned into despair and grief.

She shouted out in pain to release her emotions. Her family had suffered similarly, and she hated them as much as she hated her inability to forget them.

“It’s an exorcism! Be careful!” The Second Deity loudly warned everyone.

“I’m not sure what he’s doing, but this large-scale exorcism array is definitely related to the Fengshui and luck of the land!”

“We’ll handle it! I’m going to... we’re going to stop them! We’re going to kill them!” Bai Lingmiao wept as she charged toward Zuoqiu Yong’s army of Unspeakable, who were maintaining the array.

As she moved, the White Lotus Sect followers in the city also mobilized. The trees outside rustled ominously. Evil spirits marked with white lotus symbols joined the battle under the dark, chaotic sky.

The White Lotus followers, seemingly spiritually linked with their Saintess, clashed with the forces performing the exorcism, and fierce combat ensued.

However, despite the resistance, the corpses that surrounded Zuoqiu Yong formed a vast exorcism array that covered the entire capital.

The Fengshui immediately shifted in favor of Zuoqiu Yong. The doubts and lies were erased from his mind.

If the heavens were said to belong to Doulao, the earth now belonged to Zuoqiu Yong. Even the powerful Doulao could do nothing against him.

Zuoqiu Yong slowly looked up at the black-and-white Taiji diagram above. “What are you? A Siming defeated by mortals dares to challenge me?!”

In the next moment, two versions of Zuoqiu Yong, one black and one white, stepped on clouds and floated toward Doulao.

Li Huowang didn’t give up and followed closely behind. The three forces clashed fiercely between heaven and earth.

Whenever Li Huowang attempted to restrain Zuoqiu Yong with his “Truth” cultivation, inexplicable obstacles thwarted his efforts.

The White Lotus followers were dismantling the exorcism array, but Zuoqiu Yong’s purpose had already been achieved.

A strange displacement in time and space occurred, and water began to pour from the black-and-white oceans above.

With the chaos, lies across the kingdom of Great Liang turned unstable. Some people grew suspicious of everything, while others believed everyone without question. Some even became compulsive liars. It was a Natural Disaster.

Zuoqiu Yong defeated Doulao’s manifestation, then hovered in midair and laughed maniacally. “Hahahaha! Who still dares call me a eunuch who wets his pants? Who dares call me a barren, childless trash?!”

“If I want someone dead, they must die. Even Simings will bow before me! I will be the king of this world, the ruler of all!”

“You castrated loser!”

“What?!” Zuoqiu Yong’s eyebrows shot up as he glanced down. He immediately spotted Li Huowang’s grinning face.

“You’re dead, you little pest,” Zuoqiu Yong dived toward Li Huowang.

Li Huowang immediately tried to flee, but the entire Shangjing seemed to conspire against him, throwing obstacles in his path.

Wherever he went, something would block him, trip him, or hit his head.

After a few moments, Zuoqiu Yong had caught up with him. He slashed Li Huowang's neck with his hand, which had a dragon phoenix ring on it.

Li Huowang's head flew into the air, flipping several times before transforming into a twelve-sided die and landing back in place.

Shai Zi sniggered at Zuoqiu Yong. "Haha! You've been tricked."

The next moment, a spine sword pierced through Zuoqiu Yong's chest. A look of disdain crossed his face, "This trivial wound from an ordinary mortal won't harm me."

"Is that so? You might want to check who's holding the sword."

Zuoqiu Yong froze and turned to look behind, only to see Li Huowang's face.

The spine sword was pulled out, and Zuoqiu Yong tried to heal the wound with his Growth supernatural ability. For the first time, his abilities failed.

The pain intensified as blood poured out and drained his vitality.

"Impossible! I removed death from my body. He can't kill me!" Before he could finish, Li Huowang's face peeled away to reveal Bai Lingmiao's determined expression. Her forehead was marked with a glowing white lotus.

"You don't have death, but I can return it to you. After all, the Heavenly Mater governs the Heavenly Dao of Death."

Bai Lingmiao gritted her teeth and swung her sword, decapitating Zuoqiu Yong in one clean strike.

His lifeless body collapsed as vitality left him, and he was unable to move ever again.

Everyone around looked up simultaneously and focused on the remaining Zuoqiu Yong.

Chapter 948 - Dragon Vein

Zuoqiu Yong floated mid-air and gazed down at Li Sui, Li Huowang, Bai Lingmiao, and Shai Zi.

Despite having executed their plan to kill his other half, there was still no trace of seriousness on Zuoqiu Yong's face.

“Oh~ I admit I underestimated you earlier. I didn't expect you to cooperate like that. But if you think that little trick is enough to defeat me—this Siming's physical body—you're sorely mistaken,” Zuoqiu Yong said.

Li Huowang looked intently at Zuoqiu Yong. “You may be a Siming, but do you think I'm not?”

Without hesitation, Li Sui moved behind Li Huowang, lifting the skin on his back to squeeze herself inside him. Her writhing mass of tendrils and human heads slithered through.

The black tendrils covered in heads emerged from different parts of Li Huowang's body and writhed in the air.

“Go!” He tugged on Bai Lingmiao's sleeve, and they shot forward at Zuoqiu Yong. They planned to use the same tactic that had worked on the previous Zuoqiu Yong.

However, Zuoqiu Yong was prepared. He raised his hands toward the sky, and a dragon's roar echoed through the air.

Sixteen golden dragons surged from all directions, coiling around both Zuoqiu Yongs. They transformed into intricate golden tattoos that spread across his skin.

Li Huowang's face darkened. The sixteen golden, shimmering tattoos would block any Heavenly Daos, including Bai Lingmiao's Heavenly Dao of Death!

This wouldn't work. If Bai Lingmiao couldn't inject death into Zuoqiu Yong, he would never die.

"We need to strip the Dragon Veins from him first!" Li Huowang said.

The tendrils from his body shot out to entangle Zuoqiu Yong. Li Sui's tendrils flattened like murals, adhering to Zuoqiu Yong and coiling tightly around the Dragon Veins.

However, with a mere wave of his hand, Li Sui's tendrils crumbled into dust and disintegrated bit by bit.

Zuoqiu Yong quickly morphed into a half-dragon, causing everything within a radius of one hundred feet to freeze in place.

Zuoqiu Yong smiled slightly. "It seems you don't understand the origin of these Dragon Veins. These come from the Heavenly Dao of the Siming of Order, Panchi. Do you think you can challenge me when I control sixteen Heavenly Daos of Order?"

"Should I call you brave fools, or pigs too dumb to know better?"

Li Huowang struggled desperately in the air, but he couldn't move an inch. It was as though he had turned to wood, incapable of motion.

His eyes widened right as he was about to be beheaded. A fiery Peng Longteng appeared beside Zuoqiu Yong, riding a massive horse. She rose her blazing halberd up high, ready to strike down.

That wasn't all. Zhuge Yuan, dressed in white and brush in hand, leaped out from behind her, charging toward Zuoqiu Yong.

Li Huowang's mind reeled as more allies materialized—everyone he had ever fought with appeared one by one, rushing toward Zuoqiu Yong.

Yet, under the influence of the Heavenly Dao of Order, they could freeze at any moment, transitioning from a state of life to one of death.

However, every time this happened, the immobilized person gradually turned transparent and vanished. Then, they reappeared again, fresh and whole.

Though their strength varied, none of them could match Zuoqiu Yong. They were simply buying Li Huowang time to break free.

Abbess Jingxin's massive, greasy body came crashing down onto Li Huowang and the others.

She rolled them away like a meatball, propelling them far beyond Zuoqiu Yong's hundred-foot domain.

Regaining control of his body, Li Huowang looked up to see a downpour of flesh and blood. Every ally he had conjured, including Dan Yangzi and Zhuge Yuan, had been torn apart, their remains scattered to the ground.

These people were real. They were blood and flesh.

Zuoqiu Yong's power was beyond anything Li Huowang had ever encountered.

"Father, don't panic. He may have the Dragon Veins, but so do we."

"Senior Li!" A familiar voice called from behind. Li Huowang turned around and saw five Dragon Veins slithering toward him. They were led by none other than Gao Zhijian.

Draped in dragon robes, Gao Zhijian lay on top of the stacked Dragon Veins as they moved toward Li Huowang.

"Senior Li, we've come to help!" Gao Zhijian said.

Gao Zhijian had already sensed the gravity of the situation from the palace. He had mobilized the other Dragon Veins to assist without hesitation, arriving just in time.

Li Huowang could sense the dense Dragon Qi around them. He gave Gao Zhijian a firm nod and pressed his hands to the ground.

The earth quaked, and a massive bronze tree shot up from the soil, lifting the five Dragon Veins. Li Huowang and Li Sui's countless tendrils began to form gestures and cast the Dragon-Slaying Immortal-Killing Array.

Two dragon horns sprouted from Bai Lingmiao's forehead, while scales appeared and shed from Li Huowang's skin. Even the heads on Li Sui's tendrils grew dragon whiskers.

Zuoqiu Yong smirked, stepping closer. "Well, well. I never imagined the Dragon Veins of the Great Liang would be so close to you."

Li Huowang exhaled deeply, and two puffs of white steam escaped from his mouth. He raised his right foot and took a step toward Zuoqiu Yong, followed by another step.

The previous feeling of paralysis had vanished, and even the Heavenly Dao of Growth and exorcism array no longer affected him.

"Now that we both have the Heavenly Dao of Order, I guess it's down to a head-on clash?" Li Huowang gritted his teeth. He raised his fist high, the tendrils mirroring his motion.

"And it seems like I have more people on my side," Li Huowang said. Countless figures materialized around him—his new allies.

He had successfully attained all six chakra points, and in doing so, he had truly accomplished his objective of turning his thoughts into reality.

"Hehe~" Zuoqiu Yong chuckled, casually picking up a broken bone and scraping the flesh from his hand as if he were peeling noodles. "Really? I don't quite see it that way."

Chapter 949 - End

Zuoqiu Yong continued to slice away at his flesh with the broken bone. The pieces that fell to the ground quickly wriggled and grew. In just a few seconds, a few Zuoqiu Yongs appeared on the ground, writhing and regenerating.

Thanks to the power of the Heavenly Dao of Growth, every piece of flesh and bone he cut off grew into another Zuoqiu Yong.

“Turning flesh into soldiers?”

Li Huowang’s face turned grim. While the Heavenly Dao of Growth no longer worked on him, it still worked on Zuoqiu Yong.

Over ten Zuoqiu Yongs had risen from the ground in just a short time. With a stomp of his foot, Li Huowang charged at Zuoqiu Yong to stop his cutting further.

The half-formed Zuoqiu Yongs rushed forward to block him, but Feng Erniu charged up to shield Li Huowang from them with his abacus.

A fierce battle erupted between both sides, each with their unique abilities. Li Huowang paid no attention to the others. His focus remained solely on the Zuoqiu Yong with the Dragon Veins.

The other Zuoqiu Yongs were insignificant. What mattered was the one with the sixteen Dragon Veins!

Li Huowang swiftly projected his image. This time, instead of shifting a short distance, he appeared directly in front of Zuoqiu Yong.

Li Huowang clamped on Zuoqiu Yong’s hand, with the broken bone clenched within it. As he did, he quickly coiled around the Dragon Veins on Zuoqiu Yong with his tentacles.

At that moment, two fully-formed Zuoqiu Yongs jumped out from the side and rushed at Li Huowang.

“Die, Li Huowang!” They lunged at Li Huowang, but their hands twisted and stabbed towards Zuoqiu Yong instead.

“Huh?” Zuoqiu Yong couldn’t believe what was happening. The next instant, their faces quickly melted, and their heads turned into Shai Zi.

The two Shai Zis attacked from both sides, reaching for Zuoqiu Yong’s Dragon Vein tattoos. One of them shoved a fake Dragon Vein inside while the other forcibly pulled a real one out of Zuoqiu Yong.

The sound of dragon roars filled the air, and the surrounding space trembled.

Shai Zi realized that brute force wouldn’t work and quickly switched tactics. They pulled out several more dice and forcefully pressed them into the heads of the Dragon Veins.

The Dragon Veins on Zuoqiu Yong seemed to take on a will of their own, as if they wanted to escape from him.

Zuoqiu Yong wasted no time and started chanting a spell to regain control. However, Li Huowang had already closed in on him, cutting off any chance to complete it.

Li Huowang’s mouth stretched open wide, emitting a retching sound. He spewed out a mixture of blood and Li Sui onto Zuoqiu Yong’s mouth.

The bloated body of Li Huowang shrank rapidly. Zuoqiu Yong, on the other hand, swelled up.

Pop! Two black, slimy tentacles burst from Zuoqiu Yong’s eye sockets and thrashed wildly.

Li Huowang’s expression hardened. Those fighting the other Zuoqiu Yongs vanished and reappeared by his side to restrain the main Zuoqiu Yong.

In the past, his “Truth” cultivation would have dispersed once upon encountering the Dragon Veins, but things were different now. These allies were undeniably real in Li Huowang’s heart.

Li Huowang and the others seized the opportunity while Zuoqiu Yong was restrained by Li Sui. They quickly ripped out all sixteen Dragon Veins.

Finally, Bai Lingmiao injected Death back into Zuoqiu Yong.

The chaos in Shangjing City stopped.

The Twisted One closed the passage from the Tianchen Kingdom to the Great Liang. The weakened Tianchen forces retreated under the onslaught of the Great Liang's soldiers, who had returned to aid in the defense.

The Dragon Veins lay pinned to the ground as Li Huowang gazed at them, exhaling deeply. With these Dragon Veins, the sky of the Great Qi could finally survive.

After all the turmoil, there would be some peace.

"I didn't help for free. I want one of those Dragon Veins. I made a deal with your daughter," Shai Zi said, walking over to Li Huowang.

Li Huowang wiped the blood from his face. He looked at Shai Zi, his gaze filled with a multitude of emotions. "Why did you help? I just can't figure it out."

Zuoqiu Yong was dead, and Shai Zi had not played any tricks, at least in this matter.

Shai Zi laughed and said candidly, "I help whoever wins."

His honesty left Li Huowang speechless.

"You can have a Dragon Vein and consider it your payment. But next time, don't wait until the last moment to share any news."

"Of course, Lord Ji Zai!" Shai Zi grinned and went off to pick a Dragon Vein.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang stared at the remaining fifteen Dragon Veins, troubled by their amount. While there were plenty of Dragon Veins, they wouldn't be enough. The Great Qi had none of its own, after all.

Moreover, they couldn't take all the Dragon Veins from the Tianchen Kingdom, as there were still people living there. If they took everything, the people of the Tianchen Kingdom would face the same disaster the Great Qi had just experienced.

Li Huowang was deep in thought when a shadow suddenly appeared overhead. He looked up and saw a tower of heads wrapped in countless tentacles.

It was Li Sui, his daughter.

Li Huowang smiled at her. “Suisui, we won.”

“Yes, we won,” Li Sui repeated.

At that moment, Bai Lingmiao quietly leaned against Li Huowang. Just then, one of Li Sui’s tentacles reached into Bai Lingmiao’s ear.

Bai Lingmiao paused briefly, nodding slightly before walking toward the White Lotus Hall.

“Why did you send her away? Is there something you want to say to me?”

Li Huowang looked at the heads on Li Sui before looking back at the Dragon Veins. “Look at these Dragon Veins. You’re also a Chief, so help me figure out how to distribute them across the three timelines.

“How many Dragon Veins are left in the Great Liang? Do we have enough divisions? Do we need to restore it to eleven Dragon Veins?”

“And what do you think is the minimum number of Dragon Veins needed to maintain the first timeline?”

Thump! The tower of heads slammed down in front of Li Huowang, interrupting his train of thought.

“Father, seeing me like this, don’t you want to ask anything?”

Li Huowang’s heart trembled. He looked at the heads and opened his mouth, but no words came out. He didn’t know where to begin.

Li Huowang and Li Sui—father and daughter—stared at each other in silence.

Finally, Xuan Pin broke the silence. “I’m sure you’ve already guessed, even if I don’t say it out loud.”

“Let’s talk later. The city is in chaos right now, and there’s no time for idle chat,” Li Huowang said, turning to leave.

However, a single sentence from behind stopped him in his tracks.

“Father, I’m afraid I haven’t been your Li Sui for a long time now.”

Chapter 950 - Xuan Pin

Li Huowang trembled at Li Sui's words. He lifted his head again, looking at the figure of Li Sui before him.

After a moment, his trembling hand reached out, finding Shangguan Yuting's head amidst the tower of heads.

Li Sui had inhabited many different bodies, but this was the one Li Huowang was most familiar with.

He opened his arms and held Shangguan Yuting's head, trembling as he looked at her delicate face, recalling all the moments they had shared when Li Sui was by his side.

As the face in his memories overlapped with the head before him, Li Huowang's breath turned a little erratic. He gently hugged his daughter. "Don't talk nonsense. You're my daughter.

"I know you've changed a lot, but you're still Li Sui. You might be a little different now, but that's called growing up. Look at me—I'm not the same Li Huowang I used to be either. People change."

As Li Huowang finished speaking, all the heads before him began to speak in unison. Their voices overlapped, creating an eerie, resonating echo.

"Li Huowang, stop lying to yourself.

"Li Sui once tried not to possess others. She wanted to remain as Li Sui until you came back.

"But it's been 160 years. She knew nothing. All she had was the possessive instinct of a Black Taisui."

Li Huowang's breathing quickened, his voice rising in desperation. "No, my daughter isn't dead! Your name is Xuan Pin, and my name is Xuan Yang! You wear a red Daoist robe, and I wear a red Daoist robe too! You are my daughter!"

Slowly, the heads of Xuan Pin shook in unison. "Li Huowang,

I'm not Li Sui anymore. I didn't tell you until now because I was afraid you wouldn't be able to handle it.

"160 years is a long time. Li Sui wanted to live long enough to see you again. But to do that, she had to possess others, using their abilities and memories to survive.

"And when she possessed others, they also possessed her. This was the path she chose.

"She remembered that her father was still up in the heavens, needing Dragon Qi to survive. She had to stay alive until that moment, no matter the cost."

Black tentacles drilled into Li Huowang's ears, and images flooded his mind.

It was Li Sui, her back hunched, still bearing Shangguan Yuting's face. Candlelight flickered, casting shadows over the weary and numb side of her face.

"Please, I beg you," Li Sui said, clad in a red Daoist robe. She knelt on a cushion and bowed deeply to two white-bearded old men.

The old men were strange, with deformed limbs and blind eyes. One of them was even on a basket, carried by a fool with a deformed head.

"Are you sure you want this? Our seas of consciousness are vast. If we merge with you, you may cease to exist, becoming nothing more than our vessel."

Li Sui's numb expression flickered slightly. She tore off her robe and revealed her hunched back, covered with a mass of human heads.

"I'm not myself anymore. I don't even know if I'm still Li Sui."

It had been a long time since she had fallen from the sky, and a lot had occurred during that time.

Tears fell from her face. She didn't want this. She had truly hoped to wait 160 years and return to her father's embrace, but it hadn't turned out that way.

"My lord, I'm willing to be your vessel as long as you promise me one thing. When my father ascends to the heavens, you must bring enough Dragon Qi to save him."

As her memories blurred, the past became harder to recall.

Li Huowang's situation was her only lingering concern. She feared that if she continued to possess others, she would forget this as well, leaving no one to help her father.

She had to prepare for that possibility, ensuring that she wouldn't forget her mission.

Li Sui thought of many solutions and eventually found one from the Chiefs. It was a win-win.

"Don't worry, it is our duty as Chiefs. We won't stand by idly."

"Also, Zuoqiu Yong will no longer be a problem once we possess you. If she dares to come to the Great Liang, we'll ensure she never returns."

Li Sui gradually disintegrated, her form breaking apart as countless tentacles enveloped the two Chiefs before her.

"Please, when you see my father, tell him I miss him dearly. I miss him so much... but I can't quite remember what he looks like..."

When the Black Taisui's possession was complete, the red robe was donned, and Li Sui was gone. Now, Xuan Pin stood before Li Huowang.

Li Huowang took a half-step back as the tentacles withdrew from his ears. An overwhelming sense of unfamiliarity washed over him when he looked at the figure before him.

He may have tried to deceive himself before, but the truth was undeniable now. Li Huowang could no longer look away from the reality before him.

The tentacles withdrew from Li Huowang, leaving him standing alone, lost and empty inside.

He wanted to cry, to release all the bitterness within him, but no tears came out. The overwhelming emotion built in his chest, suffocating him.

After a few moments, Li Huowang's eyes turned bloodshot. With a trembling voice, he shouted, "Then why couldn't you just keep pretending? Why?! Why does this always happen to me?!"

Xuan Pin remained calm despite his agitation. "You saw my true form, so it was about time to tell you.

"Besides, I'm not from the Sitting Oblivion Dao. My acting isn't that good. You should have noticed the difference between me and the Li Sui you knew."

"Li Huowang, there are some things that you can't avoid forever. Li Sui is dead.

"Now, there's only Xuan Pin, the Chief of the Great Liang."

Veins bulged on Li Huowang's forehead as he stared at Li Sui. "No... no! You are Li Sui! You must be Li Sui!"

Li Sui's appearance began to change. The multitude of heads gradually faded away, leaving only the heads of Shangguan Yuting and Bun.

However, with a wave of her tentacles, Xuan Pin quickly reverted to her true form.

"Li Huowang, it's useless. I'm a Strayed One too. Your cultivation doesn't work on me."

The broad red Daoist robe drifted slowly over Xuan Pin, enveloping her.

"I once possessed two Chiefs. To be precise, they willingly allowed me to possess them. They wanted to merge with my power, and they succeeded.

"The will of those two Chiefs was incredibly strong, overpowering all other influences, including Li Sui. Now, they are who I was, not Li Sui."

The cold, indifferent Xuan Pin Li Huowang had first encountered stood before him once more. Li Huowang clutched his chest and cried out in anguish.

His daughter was dead. Li Sui was gone.

“Father, can I eat this?”

“Father, I’ll help you!”

“Father, I’m so scared. Can I stay inside you forever?”

Chapter 951 - Siming Of Flesh

After explaining everything to Li Huowang, Xuan Pin felt a wave of relief wash over him. He had been preparing for this moment for a very long time.

Turning around, he saw that the White Lotus Sect members had surrounded them, forming a barrier to prevent anyone from overhearing their conversation.

Bai Lingmiao had given these instructions, but she herself wasn't too far away. She had clearly heard their conversation. She was sobbing, but at least she knew everything now. Xuan Pin wouldn't need to repeat himself.

"That's all. Now, let's talk about how to assign the Dragon Veins."

Once their private matters had been sorted out, Xuan Pin started to talk business.

"The Dharma Sect destroyed a lot of Dragon Veins, so the Liang Kingdom must take some to replenish them. Still, we will naturally consider the other places in need of them. The Liang Kingdom will only take two since Shai Zi already claimed one. Now, the Qi Kingdom and the Tianchen Kingdom can take the remaining twelve.

"We can split them evenly and keep six Dragon Veins for each timeline. Although having only six daily divisions is very little, it's alright. At most, they will have to live their days a little faster.

"Fu Shengtian is closely watching us, so getting more people on our side is critical now."

Xuan Pin's words fell on deaf ears. Li Huowang was still lost in despair over losing his daughter. He didn't hear what Xuan Pin had told him at all.

Li Huowang clutched his chest, overwhelmed with intense pain. Xuan Pin quickly reached behind him to take the spine sword. He didn't want to waste any time.

However, Li Huowang tightly held onto the sword. He looked at Xuan Pin with reddened eyes. "No! There's still a chance. Li Sui isn't dead yet! She just became a part of you! She's still inside your body!"

Li Huowang repeatedly said that Li Sui was still alive, trying to convince himself.

"Since possessing other people is what made her become what you are today, all I need to do is find a way to make her regurgitate the people she possessed over the years! That way, she can revive!

"I know I can do it! I am Ji Zai, the Siming in control of the Heavenly Dao of Bewilderment!"

Xuan Pin sighed. "Li Huowang, stop lying to yourself. Li Sui would remain dead, and you would even harm me. How can you find the first drop of water in a water-filled basin?"

Despite cutting Li Huowang's palm, Xuan Pin unhesitatingly took the sword from his grip. Xuan Pin swung it, revealing the rift that connected the Liang Kingdom with the Qi Kingdom.

However, a strange pulsation came from the other side of the rift.

"Wait—something's wrong!"

Xuan Pin pulled Li Huowang into the rift and arrived at the Qi Kingdom.

Xuan Pin realized that the Heavenly Daos within the Qi Kingdom were completely irregular.

The Qi Kingdom, which was supposed to be stuck in eternal daylight, was currently enveloped in a lush forest. Even the You Capital, which the Mo family had restored, was covered by it.

"Li Huowang, you need to get a hold of yourself. This is not the time to think about familial matters. Something is very wrong.”

Li Huowang took a deep breath and calmed himself down.

“Zuoqiu Yong is dead, and he was the Siming that controlled the Heavenly Dao of Growth. It’s only natural that there’s a Natural Disaster right now.”

He didn’t want to give up so easily. He had to rescue Li Sui once more, no matter what. The problem was that he didn’t have a plan at the moment.

“No... This is not a Natural Disaster...” Xuan Pin muttered, leading Li Huowang to inspect their surroundings.

At a clearing, they encountered a monstrous sight—a colossal flesh Buddha towering as high as the Righteous Monastery and sitting just outside of it.

Li Huowang suppressed his emotions when he saw the massive flesh Buddha. It’s not over yet!

The hair of the flesh Buddha was made up of multiple monks. Chan Du was embedded at its forehead, like a jewel.

The monks who formed the Buddha changed in unison. As they did, a blood-red light ring shimmered behind the Buddha’s head.

There was a rift just in front of the flesh Buddha. Various beings poured out from the rift, spreading outwards.

Li Huowang noticed that the thing coming out from the rift resembled a massive centipede wriggling in the air.

Li Huowang could sense that the sudden appearance of a forest was a result of the Heavenly Dao of Growth emanated by the rift.

As the chanting continued, the verses of the chant became actual flesh. The fleshy words wrapped around the rift like a chain in an attempt to seal it shut.

The Righteous Monastery was trying to seal the rift shut, but the being behind it clearly didn’t want them to do so.

Suddenly, a single large eye appeared behind the rift and glared at Li Huowang.

Its appearance affected the entire Qi Kingdom. Everything, both living and dead, started to grow uncontrollably.

The fleshy mantra burst open, and the rift expanded. It quickly grew, tearing the world in half as it did.

A massive foot the size of a mountain stepped out from the rift. A few more seconds passed before another foot passed through.

Finally, the entire giant figure stepped into the Qi Kingdom. It was none other than Zuoqiu Yong! Li Huowang thought they had killed her just now!

Li Huowang now understood the Siming of Growth's true nature. He also understood why Zuoqiu Yong had quickly retreated when Li Huowang deceived them with a made-up Natural Disaster.

The Zuoqiu Yong he fought against was just a small fraction of his true body! His true body had always been lying in the Tianchen Kingdom!

He was able to control the Heavenly Dao of Growth because he could grow his body to that size.

Zuoqiu Yong stood still, and the entire Qi Kingdom began gravitating towards him. It was as if he was pulling everything towards him.

“Li Huowang!” Zuoqiu Yong shouted, causing strong wind to blow everywhere. “I shall show you the difference in our strength today. I will show you the consequences of opposing me!”

Zuoqiu Yong lowered his head, parting the clouds as he looked down.

Pain erupted from Li Huowang's feet, and suddenly, he felt the intense pain of being torn apart. Bloodied bamboo shoots burst from his throat and ripped through his flesh. The growth pushed him upwards, impaling and pushing him high into the air.

The bamboo kept on growing, tearing apart his flesh.

Chapter 952 - Siming

The bamboo shoots had impaled Li Huowang, leaving him completely motionless. He could feel them continuously growing within his body.

Suddenly, Bai Lingmiao appeared beside him. The Second Deity cut the bamboo poles in half with her black fingernails.

Xuan Pin also intervened, quickly waving his tentacles. He drew a single red line across the middle of Li Huowang's face.

He used four of his arms and pulled Li Huowang apart, splitting him in two without waiting for him to say anything.

Xuan Pin quickly removed the bamboo shoots that were still growing inside Li Huowang. Once he did, he glued him back as if nothing had happened.

With just a single swing of his arm, the blood-red line that bisected Li Huowang was utterly gone.

Xuan Pin pulled Li Huowang away from the front lines to create as much distance as possible from Zuoqiu Yong, minimizing the influence of the Heavenly Dao of Growth.

Everything happened within a few breaths. In that brief span of time, Li Huowang freed himself from the bamboo shoots and recovered from his wounds.

Even though he was safe for now, Li Huowang was far from happy as he looked at the mountain-sized Zuoqiu Yong.

Their enemy was too strong this time. He felt pressured, finding it hard to breathe. He knew his chances of winning were slim.

Despite that, he refused to give up. Zuoqiu Yong wanted to kill Bai Lingmiao, and Li Sui was already gone. Now, Bai Lingmiao was all he had.

After quickly looking at the Siming of Growth in front of him,

Li Huowang realized that he had to rely on the strength of the other Simings to win this.

“Xuan Pin! Xuan Pin! Tell me, is Suisui really dead?”

“Yes. How many times must I tell you that your daughter is dead?”

This time, Li Huowang chose to accept those words wholeheartedly. He tore open his body again and spread coarse salt into his body cavity as he raised both hands upwards to summon Ba-Hui.

When he accepted that Li Sui would never return, his facial features merged as he shouted in despair. He felt as if one million burning needles had pierced his heart.

He pushed both hands into his mouth and tore off his tongue with his bare hands, spraying blood everywhere.

He then slammed his tongue onto the glowing Profound Records.

The moment Li Huowang’s tongue touched the Profound Records, it came alive.

“A tongue to turn the wheel of reincarnation! An eyelash for the boundless universe! Words cannot describe the intricacies of the realm! The sinister Heavens reveal what was hidden! My Master, the highest authority! Who dares disturb it?!”

When the chant was completed, Li Huowang’s five senses superimposed on each other. The pain from his physical flesh and mental anguish turned into something else.

Li Huowang exuded an overwhelming air of despair, one that did not stem from the mortal realms.

Everything around Li Huowang creaked and bent as something spread out with him as the center. It was pain, extremely intense pain.

The Cang-Qiong Ascension allowed Li Huowang to temporarily wield the Heavenly Dao of Pain. The plants growing on Li Huowang's body howled in pain and tried to distance themselves from him.

Any immobile living beings caught by the Cang-Qiong Ascension tried to kill themselves due to the overwhelming pain. Death seemed a better option than enduring their torment.

He looked at Zuoqiu Yong in the distance and raised his head in pain, meeting the gaze that was staring back at him from the heavens.

“Ba-Hui, come down... Come down and help! I was the one who saved Baiyu Capital last time! All of you owe me!”

Just as Li Huowang spoke, the gaze disappeared. Ba-Hui had only temporarily given him the Heavenly Dao of Pain. It did not want to help.

“Shit!”

Li Huowang did not want to give up. He felt the massive amount of False Qi in his body and tried to use it to summon Doulao.

To defeat Zuoqiu Yong, he had to call down a Siming no matter what.

Zuoqiu Yong moved before Li Huowang could finish his chant. As he did, many mini Zuoqiu Yongs sprouted from his body and burrowed into the ground.

The more Zuoqiu Yong's clones burrowed into the ground, the more control he held over the world. He was gradually turning the ground itself into his flesh.

The mountain-like foot stepped down. Li Huowang's chanting voice and an entire mountain range disappeared.

Zuoqiu Yong thought he had won. However, he suddenly felt an intense pain coming from the base of his legs.

It was as if he had stepped on a needle rather than a person. The pain began to creep upward, affecting his calves.

Despite the bone-breaking pain, Zuoqiu Yong remained relaxed. “Hahaha, Li Huowang~ Are you that weak? You’re done now.”

Numerous bone spikes grew on Zuoqiu Yong, traveling downwards before stabbing Li Huowang, who was currently embedded inside his flesh.

However, Li Huowang was still performing the Cang-Qiong Ascension. He could not die. He did his best to push his physical pain into Zuoqiu Yong.

The Cang-Qiong Ascension, which had been extremely strong in the past, had become useless. Zuoqiu Yong’s body was too large, and Li Huowang had too little pain.

Li Huowang used his cultivation to turn everything within several Li into seawater.

Li Huowang quickly grew scales and fins to swim away from Zuoqiu Yong.

Li Huowang escaped and stood atop a mountain, but Zuoqiu Yong did not chase after him. Instead, he looked at him like a cat toying with a mouse.

“Little brat. You are slippery and hard to catch. Don’t worry, I will deal with you later. Just wait.

“I know you don’t fear death, and you will never yield even if I kill you. Unfortunately, I know what you care about the most. I shall show you the consequences of your transgressions!”

Zuoqiu Yong’s massive left palm slammed down and caught Bai Lingmiao. Bone spikes grew inside his fleshy arm, impaling Bai Lingmiao.

Bai Lingmiao and the Second Deity were impaled, their limbs, heads, and organs all pierced through.

Chapter 953 - Truth

“Miaomiao...”

Li Huowang felt at a loss for words when he saw Bai Lingmiao in Zuoqiu Yong's hands.

Zuoqiu Yong didn't stop there. Fleshy tumors grew in Bai Lingmiao's body.

The ball of flesh exploded. Bai Lingmiao exploded along with the bone spikes.

Whether it was intentional or not, a single bone spike impaling Bai Lingmiao's head fell in front of Li Huowang.

“Miaomiao!” Li Huowang shouted in despair.

Zuoqiu Yong laughed. “Hahaha! Savor this well, for this is just the start. You have a lot of people you care about in the Liang Kingdom, don't you? All of them shall die.”

Zuoqiu Yong turned around and grabbed the fox-faced Twisted One in his palm.

As the Twisted One danced, a rift connecting the Qi Kingdom to the Liang Kingdom appeared before Zuoqiu Yong.

Zuoqiu Yong was too big for the rift, but it wasn't an issue. He only needed a path into the Liang Kingdom.

He stuck two fingers into the rift and pulled it apart. The rift slowly widened like the rift that Chan Du had desperately tried to seal shut just now.

However, Li Huowang remained standing in place, his gaze fixed upon Bai Lingmiao's head.

Xuan Pin stood beside him but did not stop Zuoqiu Yong. He knew that he could not stop a Siming's rampage.

He was still thinking about what to do when he heard Li Huowang's voice. “Xuan Pin! Xuan Pin!”

He looked down and noticed that Li Huowang was abnormally calm.

Li Huowang said, "Miaomiao isn't here with us. The one in front of us is fake."

The moment he uttered those words, Bai Lingmiao's head disappeared, as if it had never been there.

"I used the Sitting Oblivion Dao's methods to buy us some time," Li Huowang explained, staring intensely at Zuoqiu Yong's back.

"You've only bought a little time. Is that enough? Can we defeat the Siming with this much time?"

Li Huowang didn't respond to Xuan Pin, as he didn't know either. He'd tried every trick in the book, including the Cang-Qiong Ascension, but nothing worked. He still couldn't defeat Zuoqiu Yong.

Xuan Pin sighed. "I never thought Zuoqiu Yong would be able to take over the Tianchen Kingdom and even control a Heavenly Dao with just his physical body."

"You are the Chief of the Surveillance Bureau! If Zuoqiu Yong reaches the Liang Kingdom, everything will be over. Use everything at the disposal of the Surveillance Bureau!"

Xuan Pin shook his head. "The Surveillance Bureau's method is to use the Dragon Veins to set up a barrier and prevent the Simings from entering our plane in the first place. However, Zuoqiu Yong is already a Siming in our world. The Surveillance Bureau cannot do anything to him."

Li Huowang felt helpless. He didn't want to sit and do nothing. They hadn't lost yet, and they still had a chance.

"Ji Zai! Ji Zai!"

Li Huowang shouted into his shadow to find a solution, but there was no response from his future self. Perhaps he no longer had a future.

Neither Doulao nor Ba-Hui wanted to help, and even Ji Zai proved to be useless.

“No... I haven’t lost! I haven’t lost!” Li Huowang said, glaring at Zuoqiu Yong.

His head started to grow uncontrollably. This was the first time he had used so much strength after reaching the sixth stage of his cultivation.

Li Huowang clenched his teeth and forcefully stomped on the ground. He tore a large hole in Zuoqiu Yong’s chest.

What would typically be a mortal wound was nothing more than a scratch to Zuoqiu Yong, who laughed it off.

“Disappear!” Li Huowang howled.

Zuoqiu Yong’s head exploded, and his fleshy form also disappeared completely.

However, Zuoqiu Yong regenerated slowly, and his blood, flesh, and bones grew layer by layer.

While Li Huowang could make Zuoqiu Yong’s physical body disappear, he could not do anything to his Heavenly Dao. He was the Siming that controlled the Heavenly Dao of Growth and would continue to regenerate as long as he held onto it.

Li Huowang fell to the ground and saw that half of Zuoqiu Yong’s body had already regenerated. He felt helpless, unable to do anything substantial despite using everything he had.

Li Huowang angrily shouted, “Maybe if I was at the seventh stage, I could defeat her! As long as I can reach the seventh stage!”

He abruptly glanced up at Xuan Pin. “Wait, aren’t you a Strayed One too? The Black Taisui assimilates its victims. After eating so much of my flesh, you must be a Strayed One too, right?”

Li Huowang’s plan completely took Xuan Pin by surprise. He had never imagined Li Huowang would think of something like that.

Xuan Pin nodded thoughtfully. “Take it back then. I suppose it’s a form of repaying her parents.”

One of the heads of an Unspeakable popped out from the tower of heads. Xuan Pin reached into his own body and extracted his own primordial breath and inner sight. His tentacles were already trembling from the ordeal.

Looking at Zuoqiu Yong, who was trying to enter the Liang Kingdom, Li Huowang embraced his last hope and absorbed the primordial breath.

He started cultivating immediately.

This was his final chance. If he didn't take it, Bai Lingmiao would truly die. It would no longer be an illusion.

He didn't know how long it took, but when he stood up, he realized he hadn't reached the seventh stage.

Zuoqiu Yong was gone, and Li Huowang found himself back in the Liang Kingdom. Li Huowang dared not think about what was happening because one stray thought could wipe out the Liang Kingdom.

“Why? What's going on? Why isn't it working? I'm already so strong, but I still can't protect my family!” Li Huowang shouted, his mental state crumbling.

Everything around him swiftly changed.

The people and scenery changed randomly.

Zhuge Yuan suddenly appeared in one of the scenes and stopped him. “Junior Li, remember that you are not cultivating the seventh stage. You are cultivating the ‘Truth’!”

The words of Zhuge Yuan hammered into Li Huowang's mind, revealing the reason behind his inability to reach the final stage. He had always believed he was stuck in the sixth stage, which had prevented him from ever progressing to the seventh stage.

“I'm not cultivating the sixth stage. I am already at the seventh stage,” Li Huowang declared firmly in his heart.

As he spoke, several familiar scenes flashed before his eyes.

Chapter 954 - Superimposed

“Li Huowang, what are you doing?”

“Stop! She’s your family!”

“I knew that he was unreliable. Why must we still rescue him from the prison?”

Li Huowang shook his head at the annoying voices, but the voices persisted.

Although Xuan Pin appeared to be saying something, Li Huowang could not hear him. The voices were too loud.

It wasn’t just the voices. The world started to unravel as strange sights flashed by, as if two worlds were getting superimposed onto each other.

The strange changes gradually overlapped, eventually merging into a world that was both strange and bizarre.

The elephant became whole as the world transformed into a higher dimension—a projection of both worlds.

However, Li Huowang had something more important to do. He didn’t have time to deal with them.

“I’ve... succeeded in my cultivation! I must go and rescue the Liang Kingdom... I must... I must stop Zuoqiu Yong and kill her!”

Li Huowang shook his head, and everything around him stabilized. With a single stomp from his right leg, he returned back to the Liang Kingdom.

The world turned dark, and Li Huowang looked up. Zuoqiu Yong’s massive frame was blocking out the sun.

Zuoqiu Yong laughed maniacally as he crushed the hall of the White Lotus Sect. The snapping of bones filled the air as the people inside were crushed to death.

The other places were also in bad condition. Zuoqiu Yong's Heavenly Dao had started to influence the Liang Kingdom.

Leaves sprouted from rafters, and buds popped out from chairs. Everything in the Liang Kingdom was slowly turning into a forest.

It only took minutes for a seed to bud, grow, bloom, bear fruit, and wilt.

The disaster also affected the people of Shangjing, and strange sights filled the city. Shangjing had become a living hell.

Zuoqiu Yong had only just appeared, but the effects were already significant. Everyone aged twenty years, and corpses grew new life.

Li Huowang knew he had to stop Zuoqiu Yong quickly. If he let this continue, everyone would die.

"What do you intend to do?" Xuan Pin asked, uncertain of what to do. He could only place his trust in Li Huowang. "The Surveillance Bureau will cooperate with you."

Li Huowang remained silent, his attention fixed on Zuoqiu Yong, who was trying to catch Bai Lingmiao. There was a single thing in his mind—to kill Zuoqiu Yong.

Li Huowang shouted, grabbing his weapons and stabbing them into Zuoqiu Yong.

The woman hit Li Huowang with her yellow umbrella, but Li Huowang did not stop at all.

Li Huowang even increased his strength to drive his weapon deep into her. However, several arms pulled him back.

"Let me go! She's the spy! She's one of Fu Shengtian's Simings! You don't know anything. We killed them last time. That's why they are attacking us now!"

Zuoqiu Yong took a few steps back, his expression a mix of shock and wariness as he gazed at Li Huowang. His power had grown too rapidly.

Feeling the arms grabbing onto him, Li Huowang struggled and shouted, “Trust me! I’m telling the truth! Trust me! This woman never appeared in the past at all! She was never our ally! She’s Fu Shengtian’s Siming, secretly sent to sow discord!”

Some of the arms let him go. Two pairs of the arms had tattoos, while another pair were pale with long and slender fingers.

With six of the arms letting go of him, Li Huowang seized the opportunity to shake off the remaining ones. He grabbed onto his knife and ran after the wounded woman in the yellow skirt.

Li Huowang relentlessly chased the panicked woman. He kicked the door open with his right leg, and a large field of white brain matter appeared in front of him.

He knew that it was just a tiny trick placed by his opponent. The woman was inside, and he had to find her.

Li Huowang dove into Zuoqiu Yong’s brain and grew fins. He swam inside to find the spy.

At first, he searched blindly, but a bright light soon started shining from behind. He squinted and turned around, only to see the woman attempting to crash into him with her car. She had driven there to begin with.

Still, Li Huowang wasn’t afraid of the speeding car. He jumped and crashed squarely into the car’s windscreen.

Li Huowang's knife scraped loudly across the window, leaving a deep scratch.

Bam!

Li Huowang’s head hit the windscreen and cracked it open. Even then, he was still glaring at the woman without looking away.

“You madman! You crazy bastard!” the woman screamed.

Crying in fear, the woman frantically swerved her car, attempting to shake him off.

As they were locked in their struggle, a sudden honking sound pierced the air from the left.

Glancing to the left, they saw Qing Wanglai trying to crash into them with his own car!

Bam!

A loud explosion filled the air as Qing Wanglai's car collided with the woman's car. The force of the impact sent Li Huowang flying.

Li Huowang sustained injuries, but so did the woman. The force of the impact caused her car's engine hood to open, with smoke billowing out from the engine.

Ignoring his wounds, Li Huowang grabbed his knife and stood up. He approached the car and grabbed the woman's neck before pulling her out of the wreck.

He stopped just as he was about to kill her and shouted towards the mansion, "Miaomiao, come out! We need you to place Death into her before I can kill her!"

The Simings of Fu Shengtian didn't have Death. Only by injecting part of the Heavenly Dao of Death into them could he kill them for good.

"Wait... Wait!" The woman clutched onto Li Huowang's wrist and attempted to negotiate. "Li Huowang, you can't win! We have something you want. Work with us!"

Chapter 955 - Spy

The women's offer did not make Li Huowang hesitate. He knew for a fact that she was a spy.

“The only thing I want from you is your death!”

Li Huowang stabbed his knife into the woman's mouth, twisting it around until he cut off her tongue.

Yang Na was stumbling over at this point. She held Li Huowang's hands, shocked by the bloody scene in front of her. “Li Huowang, what are you doing?”

“Trust me! She's a spy! She's Fu Shengtian's spy! Nana, trust me!”

Li Huowang was howling at them at this point.

Yang Na was stunned by his outburst. She looked at the pitiful woman in a yellow skirt and then at Li Huowang. At that moment, something clicked in her mind.

“Li Huowang, I trust you, no matter what.”

Yang Na took out another knife and then slowly stabbed it into the woman's chest.

Yang Na did not release her grip until the woman had breathed her last. She looked at her trembling, bloodied hands before smiling radiantly.

Yang Na's actions surprised Li Huowang, but he quickly nodded. “Yes, you're right. You are amazing, and we have won!”

“Yay!” Yang Na hugged Li Huowang and jumped happily. “I managed to help you! I'm the Heavenly Mater!”

Li Huowang let go of the corpse and patted Yang Na's head to calm her down. “Let's go. We've stopped Fu Shengtian's attack. We can head back and talk in peace now.”

They walked towards the estate, and Li Huowang opened the door.

“Alright, the spy is dead. We can talk properly now,” Li Huowang said, still covered in blood and brain matter.

Zuoqiu Yong sat on a stone stool with his pink handkerchief in his mouth, deep in thought.

He had been fighting to the death just moments ago, but now it was as if he had changed entirely. They were still in Shangjing, but everything had been reversed. There was no chaos anywhere, and the people of Shangjing carried on with their daily routines.

There was no massive Siming in the city, and no one was affected by the Heavenly Dao of Growth. All traces of the information Fu Shengtian had leaked to Zuoqiu Yong had vanished.

Zuoqiu Yong nodded after some time. “Alright, let’s talk. I will first agree to your proposed truce. I will not trouble the Heavenly Mater before we deal with Fu Shengtian.”

Li Huowang wasn’t surprised by his proposal. Now that the spy was dead, every event that had occurred thanks to her intervention had been reverted, including Zuoqiu Yong's decision.

Li Huowang slowly said, “Another thing is that I’d never met that woman, even in the past few times I went back in time. She was the one who had been monitoring me ages ago when they were trying to kidnap me. She was a Siming from another elephant.

“I’d already expected them to retaliate since we killed some of their Simings, but I never thought they would send someone to create internal strife.

“Thankfully, I managed to stop them before any major problems occurred. If we had fought against each other, we would’ve fallen for the spy’s trap. A fight between Simings is not something simple.”

Zuoqiu Yong understood the situation after Li Huowang explained.

“I see. If there’s nothing else, I will go back. I’ll contact the other Simings to see what I can do. However, I need to make this clear—I cannot go to the Baiyu Capital. I can't help at all if they are fighting up there.”

“I understand. Qing Wanglai was right, but I never thought that you siblings would actually trust my words.”

Li Huowang stood up to send Zuoqiu Yong away, but Shai Zi appeared from far away, slowly approaching them.

“That is...”

“He's an ally and also has a lot of information. Let's see what he has to say.”

Li Huowang's words made Zuoqiu Yong stop.

Shai Zi bowed to Li Huowang before approaching Zuoqiu Yong to whisper something.

Before Shai Zi said a single word, a strange, iridescent black liquid erupted from his head, splashing onto Zuoqiu Yong's chest.

No one had anticipated Shai Zi's betrayal. Neither Zuoqiu Yong nor Li Huowang reacted in time.

It was too late. The tar-like substance grew rapidly on Zuoqiu Yong's body.

“Shai Zi, what are you doing?!” Li Huowang immediately chopped Zuoqiu Yong's head off.

However, Zuoqiu Yong's regenerated body still had the strange tar.

“What am I doing? Hehehe~ Didn't I tell you that I would help the winner?”

Shai Zi quickly retreated as he said, “I was telling the truth—I think that Fu Shengtian will be the winner, hahaha!”

“Hong Zhong, did you believe me? Did you actually believe that I was helping you?” Shai Zi held onto his stomach and laughed. “Hahaha! You actually believed me! Hahaha!”

Shai Zi raised his head, looking at the skies as he laughed.

“Ji Zai, did you really think I would care about that little offer?”

Too bad the other party's offer is much better."

Li Huowang shook with rage. He leaped up and grabbed the dice on the table.

He glared at the dice in his hands. "Shai Zi, I think you've misunderstood. I wasn't trying to turn you into my ally—I was threatening you! If you don't do as I say, I will kill you."

Li Huowang threw the dice into his mouth and bit down forcefully, leaving teeth marks on the dice.

He bit down harder, shattering the die and releasing a silvery liquid.

Chapter 956 - Changes

“Hey! What are you doing? Are you crazy? Why are you biting the dice? That’s a dice used for cheating! There might be mercury in it!”

Chen Hongyu sprinted over and shoved her hand into Li Huowang’s mouth to take out the dice.

“Quick! Spit it out and rinse your mouth! Liquid mercury is deadly! Are you trying to kill yourself?” Wu Qi said, quickly grabbing a carton of milk from the fridge and giving it to Li Huowang.

Although everyone tried to stop Li Huowang, he refused to stop. He bit so hard that even his gums were bleeding. He had to kill Shai Zi today at all costs.

“Huh. There’s something interesting happening again,” Ba Nanxu said, looking at the others frantically trying to save Li Huowang while her brother scrolled on his phone.

While everyone was panicking, Qing Wanglai walked over and gently held Li Huowang’s shoulder before punching his stomach hard.

Bam! The strong impact sent Li Huowang flying. Even the cracked dice flew out from his mouth.

Qing Wanglai hastily picked up the cracked dice, holding it in his palm. “Li Huowang, don’t be irrational. You still have us no matter what you are encountering.”

He took the milk from Wu Qi and gave it to Li Huowang. “Here, drink the milk. The protein in the milk will absorb the liquid mercury. This isn’t a joke—you could die from this.”

Li Huowang smacked the milk away, glaring at the dice in Qing Wanglai’s hands.

Li Huowang tried to grab the dice, but Qing Wanglai didn't let him, fearing that Li Huowang might put it in his mouth again.

"Shai Zi, do you think you can do anything just because you have a new backer? A Siming will always be a Siming. You will only become their pawn!"

Shai Zi was still smiling despite his grievous injuries. "That's rich coming from you. Everyone needs to have a dream, right? Rather than being a dice thrown by others, I want to become the one throwing the dice. To live without dreams is to be as good as dead.

"Also, I would rather collaborate with someone other than you. Don't forget how untrustworthy and crazy you are. Even Zhuge Yuan did not trust you."

"Die!" Li Huowang roared, tearing Shai Zi apart.

However, Shai Zi's head rolled on the ground with no hint of fear. "Hehehe~ Li Huowang, I'm afraid you're out of time. Look, Zuoqiu Yong is dying."

Li Huowang turned around. An iridescent tar-like substance had replaced Zuoqiu Yong's body.

Li Huowang recalled the source of the liquid—Fu Shengtian. In the past, it had enveloped the Qi Kingdom, causing everything to die there.

"Oh no! It's not trying to kill just Zuoqiu Yong's clone. It's trying to kill the massive original body of Zuoqiu Yong too!"

Now that the spy had been dealt with, Zuoqiu Yong was his ally. If anything happened to him, his fighting forces would be reduced significantly.

Li Huowang quickly made a portal connecting to the Tianchen Kingdom.

Before he left, he looked at Shai Zi's head hesitantly. The situation was dire, and Shai Zi could not be left alive. Li Huowang made a quick decision and threw his spine sword onto the ground.

Without waiting for it to touch the ground, Li Huowang used his cultivation and turned the spine sword into another Li Huowang.

“Kill Shai Zi for me!” Li Huowang briefly instructed his clone before running into the Tianchen Kingdom.

Once there, Li Huowang knew something was wrong. There was a massive hole in the sky, and something had clearly fallen there.

“Dammit!” Li Huowang made haste and shortened the distance between him and the ground beneath the hole. Soon, he saw the dark skies and felt the ground shake.

Li Huowang steadied himself and witnessed the immense body of Zuoqiu Yong tumbling down with a resounding crash.

There were millions of holes in Zuoqiu Yong’s body. His face was almost completely gone, covered by dense black holes like a seedless lotus pod.

The sight was astonishing. Despite his massive size, Zuoqiu Yong trembled uncontrollably as if a plague had hit him.

Time and again, Zuoqiu Yong tried to get up, but to no avail.

Zuoqiu Yong had held onto the Heavenly Dao of Growth, so minor wounds shouldn’t have harmed him, but the holes didn’t heal and were instead spreading.

Zuoqiu Yong's body was not the only thing riddled with them. The surrounding leaves, trees, stones, and soil were gradually being covered by the holes, as if they were contagious.

It wasn’t just simple holes. Something was hiding within them.

Fu Shengtian had clearly come prepared, and this was their backup plan. After their spy had been dealt with, they immediately sprung into action.

Li Huowang didn’t bother with the overall situation. He dove into Zuoqiu Yong’s left ear.

He was relieved to find that there weren’t any spies on his brain.

Thankfully, that Siming is really dead. At least Zuoqiu Yong won't help them.

Li Huowang burrowed out from his head and stood on Zuoqiu Yong's face to examine the holes in it. If he was right, the holes fell from the skies.

As it turned out, there were indeed beings residing in those holes. They resembled ovoid organisms, and their bodies were fleshy and repulsive, with numerous folds of meat.

Long hairs were growing from between the folds of flesh. On closer inspection, Li Huowang realized that they weren't hairs. They were dark antennas or maybe even young hair.

The strange iridescent tar-like liquid seeped out as it contracted and expanded, gradually covering Zuoqiu Yong's massive frame.

Chapter 957 - Attack

Zuoqiu Yong's massive body lay beneath the sky of the Tianchen Kingdom.

Li Huowang saw him struggling to get up with his mountain-like body. As the holes in his body squirmed, he lost control and crashed onto the ground again.

Are they Shai Zi's backers? Are the weird things another Siming? What kind of Heavenly Dao is it controlling? How is it that strong?

Li Huowang's shock deepened as he witnessed Zuoqiu Yong's intense struggle. Though he didn't fully grasp what was happening, one thing was clear: the incredibly tough Siming who governed the Heavenly Dao of Growth—Zuoqiu Yong—was being thoroughly suppressed by the enemy!

The beings that fell from the hole in the sky were incomparably stronger than Zuoqiu Yong.

"Qing Wanglai! This isn't a coincidence!" Li Huowang shouted urgently. "Fu Shengtian's Simings already had a backup plan!

"They immediately sprung their backup plan the moment their spy died! Don't think that you are smarter than them! Since we can enter their elephant, they can enter ours too! Prepare yourselves for their counterattack!"

Li Huowang prepared to fight back. He didn't know what those things were, but since he had completed his cultivation of the "Truth," they should be powerless in front of him as long as they had a physical body.

Closing his eyes, he raised his arms to seal the gaping hole in the sky. But before he could act, a raspy, ancient voice interrupted him.

"Who goes there!"

Li Huowang turned to his left and saw an old beggar. The beggar was holding a broken wooden bowl and standing with a cane.

The beggar, with a broken left leg, hobbled toward Li Huowang. His clothes, seemingly never changed before, were so small that they barely covered his body and appeared to be made from various rags.

The beggar's dirty face was covered in wrinkles. He looked just like the beggars in Shangjing, but Li Huowang knew that the man was no regular beggar.

Zuoqiu Yong was the Siming who controlled the Heavenly Dao of Growth. How could a regular beggar be unaffected by the abnormal growths despite standing on the Siming itself?

The beggar's eyes suddenly bulged, revealing several iridescent flesh worms inside. Li Huowang was more than sure that the beggar was another Siming from Fu Shengtian's side.

Aside from the weird things in the holes, the beggar was the second Siming.

Li Huowang looked at the holes in Zuoqiu Yong's body and then at the beggar. "Did Fu Shengtian only send the two of you?"

Li Huowang remained cautious, unsure of the techniques or Heavenly Dao possessed by the old beggar.

To be able to defeat Zuoqiu Yong was no simple feat. Li Huowang knew that the Heavenly Daos from Fu Shengtian's world were unique, so he really didn't know what kind of Heavenly Dao the beggar had.

Even after mastering his cultivation, Li Huowang couldn't help but believe that he wasn't entirely safe.

"Don't worry. We're here."

Li Huowang relaxed a bit after hearing the words of Zhao Shuangdian and the others.

The old beggar took a deep breath. Li Huowang could hear the gurgling of heavy phlegm coming from the beggar. “Two is enough.”

The beggar reached into his clothes, indicating that he would attack.

Li Huowang could not let him move, so he immediately tried to turn the old beggar’s body into mush. The old beggar’s body quickly dissolved into mush and died.

However, that did not stop the old beggar. Despite his head being reduced to mush, his body continued moving, flinging the object hidden in his clothing toward Li Howang.

Li Huowang shielded his face with his right palm and took several steps back.

But there was nothing—no overflowing Heavenly Dao, and no destruction of heaven or earth. The enemy’s attack had been much lighter than he had thought.

The old beggar’s rotten arm finally fell off. The item inside his palm rolled towards Li Huowang.

“This is...”

“Don’t look!” an unknown voice said. However, it was too late. Li Huowang had seen it.

The attack wasn’t deadly, and there was no danger. The item was a simple red button regularly seen on female coats.

“A... button?” Li Huowang murmured, looking at it in disbelief. Something about it tugged at him. It was as if the button had a deadly, mesmerizing effect.

“What’s wrong? Are you alright?”

Xuan Pin arrived, gripping the spine sword, with the others close behind. They all paused at the strange sight before them.

Li Huowang couldn’t hear their voices. His attention remained fixed on the button. The superimposed images around him started to waver.

He bent down and picked up the button. “Wait, I recognize this. This is the button on my mother's blouse. She liked the blouse a lot."

His pupils constricted. Slowly, he raised his head to look at the hole in the sky.

It all came flooding back.

When he was at the Benevolent Nunnery, he had deliberately hidden the button to distinguish the real world from the false one. But when he returned, the button was gone, convincing him the other world was an illusion.

"Wait... If I actually brought this button over, does that mean the other world is real too? Wait, which world? Which world am I talking about?"

Various thoughts exploded in his mind as the stream of information surged into his brain.

He remembered everything. Yi Donglai had hypnotized him to forget everything in the past, but he finally remembered everything!

"I'm not someone from here! I transmigrated from the other world!"

A sharp, unbearable pain erupted in his skull as something snapped. He collapsed to the ground, clutching his head.

When he opened his eyes again, he realized that his cultivation had fallen from the seventh stage to the sixth stage. The changes around him had disappeared.

"No! I cannot regress now! Fu Shengtian's Simings are just beside me! I can't win against them if I'm not at the seventh stage!"

Chapter 958 - Escape

The enemy's attack was too weird. Li Huowang had never thought a single button could regress his cultivation from the seventh stage to the sixth stage.

The enemy was right beside him, and his cultivation had plummeted. If things stayed this way, he could die.

Fighting them at his current stage was impossible, especially since there were two of them.

Li Huowang tried to convince himself that he was at the seventh stage. As long as he believed it, he would naturally be in the seventh stage.

He kept murmuring to himself, and his surroundings gradually changed to their superimposed state.

However, the Simings from Fu Shengtian were not going to let him succeed so easily, especially after going to great lengths to drag him down a stage.

While Li Huowang was trying to bring his cultivation back to the seventh stage again, a finger-sized black hole appeared on Li Huowang's head. Soon, the black hole spread like a plague.

In mere moments, tiny black holes covered his entire head. Each time he tried to think, his thoughts liquefied, dripping out of the holes and pooling at his feet.

No matter how hard he tried to focus, his thoughts leaked out, and his cultivation slipped back to the sixth stage.

Li Huowang tried to dig out the things inside the hole, but it was futile. They were spreading faster than he could dig them out.

In the end, worms suddenly emerged from the holes in his head. Li Huowang's head inflated and looked terrifying.

Boom! A massive, house-sized flesh worm erupted from Zuoqiu

Yong's face, sending viscous slime crashing onto Li Huowang.

Li Huowang's bones snapped. Even the white worms on his face were crushed and squeezed out.

The nightmare continued. As worms filled his body, black humanoid figures began to emerge from the holes in his flesh.

The small humanoids stumbled around. Every time their feet touched the ground, a small black hole would form, and more worms would come out.

Sensing that they were about to attack him, Li Huowang tried to use his cultivation to fight back, but he simply could not focus. Whenever he did, his thoughts would leak out from his head and drip to the ground.

Li Huowang grunted in pain as he reached down to the puddle of his thoughts and tried scooping them back into his head.

The Simings didn't let him. The black humanoids reached out and touched Li Huowang's arms. As they did, they scooped out his flesh using the holes in their hands.

They shaved Li Huowang's body away little by little until Li Huowang lost his chance to fight back.

If Li Huowang's body completely disappeared, he would be dead for real this time.

"Zhao Shuangdian! Qing Wanglai! Wu Qi! Chen Hongyu! Where are you? Help me!"

Li Huowang shouted into the sky for help.

But the people who swore to help him didn't reply.

Li Huowang was really about to die when an angry voice came from afar. "Scram!"

A strong wind blew, causing the black humanoids to distort and fuse into a single amalgamated being.

Using this chance, Xuan Pin appeared and quickly brought Li Huowang to safety.

The flesh worms crawling on Zuoqiu Yong's body launched into the air and rained down to stop Xuan Pin.

The strange wind blew them away, their bodies twisting into different shapes.

After Xuan Pin brought him to safety, Li Huowang finally saw who had helped him. It was his clone, holding onto his spine sword.

Another Li Huowang had saved him, the same one he had asked to kill Shai Zi.

“Why are you here? Is Shai Zi dead?”

Li Huowang pressed onto his head, filled with painful holes.

“Ignore him for now. The situation here is more dire. Xuan Pin saw that you were in trouble, so he brought me here to help you.”

Li Huowang’s clone looked at Zuoqiu Yong’s massive body and saw how she had changed entirely.

The small holes had completely covered his body, and strange worms crawled out from them as they secreted slime.

Zuoqiu Yong had been transformed into a fleshy hive for the worms.

While the two of them were speaking, Zuoqiu Yong’s massive mountain-like body collapsed, and uncountable worms fell off it and charged toward them.

Anything the worms touched was dyed with the strange iridescent liquid. They weren’t just attacking Li Huowang—they were trying to devour the Tianchen Kingdom too.

“Help me remove the worms in my head! I can’t reach the seventh stage with them on my body!”

The clone glared at the worms, but no matter how hard he tried, the worms continued to pour out incessantly. His cultivation was useless here.

“Allow me.”

Xuan Pin waved his right arm and cut off Li Huowang’s head, which was riddled with holes.

Then, he kicked the head away without waiting for it to touch the ground.

“How about now?”

After the worms were gone, Li Huowang could finally focus. The headless Li Huowang sighed deeply. “Much better.”

He then clenched his fist and muttered in his heart. The seventh stage faintly reappeared in his mind, and the strange superimposed state appeared once more.

He turned and scolded both Zhao Shuangdian and Qing Wanglai, saying, “Are you guys just waiting and watching a show? Is this how you help? Are the words of a Siming that fickle?”

Li Huowang’s outrage left them completely clueless.

“What do you want us to help with? You seemed to lose it just now, and we have no idea what you are talking about.”

Chapter 959 - Enemy's Counterattack

Li Huowang deflated. He didn't know what to say.

"Let's put that aside. I don't have time to explain—they're already here! Prepare yourself!"

The moment he finished speaking, a faint clicking sound came from outside the door.

"Shh! It's dangerous outside! That's the sound of someone loading their magazines!"

Qing Wanglai quickly took out his gun and opened up the safe.

"Why did none of us notice that before? How come everything he says ends up happening? What a jinx."

Ba Nanxu stood up, chewing something with visible annoyance.

Zhao Shuangdian said nothing. She looked at Li Huowang with interest.

"Li Huowang, your condition is still unstable. Stay here and don't move. I will bring the others up front," Qing Wanglai said, picking up his weapon and exiting the mansion with the others.

"Now that's more like it," Li Huowang said, chuckling before bringing his clone towards the mountain of worms.

With their help, Li Huowang could fight against the two Simings on his own without worrying about getting intercepted by the other Simings from Fu Shengtian's side.

Fu Shengtian's Siming were gravely mistaken if they thought they could enter this world as they pleased.

After fighting for a while, Li Huowang and his clone realized that the two Simings weren't pushovers. No matter how hard they tried to use their cultivation, the holes continued to spread, and the fleshy worms continued to devour the Tianchen Kingdom.

“Shit!” Li Huowang stopped and called Qing Wanglai using his phone.

“Hey! It’s me. Where’s your insect repellent? Don’t question me about it. Just tell me if you have it or not!”

After getting the answer, Li Huowang threw the phone aside before reaching for the shoe cabinet.

He opened it and saw the yellow insect repellent. Li Huowang shook it vigorously before spraying it.

“Nana! Come and give it Death! We will kill Fu Shengtian’s Simings here right now!”

With a hiss, the massive worm mountain slowly disintegrated, revealing Zuoqiu Yong’s massive body covered in holes.

Li Huowang looked at the holes and didn’t know what to do.

The other Simings had suppressed Zuoqiu Yong. Dealing with the worms was easy, but not with the holes. The worms would persistently grow out if he didn’t remove the holes.

Li Huowang looked at the disgusting holes in Zuoqiu Yong’s body before figuring something out. He quickly grabbed his phone again and called Qing Wanglai, “Ask Chen Hongyu to come here! I need her special abilities!”

Soon, the fleshy worms hidden inside the holes were expelled from Zuoqiu Yong’s body, like pimples were popped. They were washed out by the pus, just like the ones on Chen Hongyu’s face.

Now that the worms were gone, Zuoqiu Yong’s body started to rot. Her melting flesh fused together, and her body soon became a rotting mountain.

The rotting flesh was gone soon after, and Zuoqiu Yong regenerated herself. As long as the holes were gone, an injury on this level wouldn’t be able to harm her.

Li Huowang sighed in relief. Then, he heard the window shattering, and a black object rolled before him.

Li Huowang hissed in surprise. "Grenade! Run!"

Li Huowang grabbed Yang Na and ran into the washroom.

They couldn't get very far before it exploded. The explosion blasted Li Huowang off his feet.

The hall was now filled with dust. Yang Na winced in pain, holding her bleeding head. Her eyes widened when she saw Li Huowang lying in front of her, his back a bloody mess.

He had used his own body to shield her.

Tears welled in her eyes. She couldn't bear to see him like this. She frantically tried to pull him up, but she didn't know what to do.

Yang Na kept patting his face, attempting to wake him up.

Li Huowang was still unconscious, and Yang Na was afraid. She was terrified that he was dead this time.

"Li Huowang, you can't die! You don't have permission to die!"

"Cough cough!" Li Huowang coughed and reached for his waist to pull out a shard of glass embedded into his body.

Li Huowang weakly fell into her embrace. "It's ok... It's ok... I can't die for now."

"Why did you shield me? I control the Heavenly Dao of Death. I can't die."

Yang Na was very worried and felt guilty because of it.

Li Huowang smiled bitterly and tried to steady his breath. "Go find the first aid kit in Wu Qi's room."

Since the enemies decided to attack them face-on, the battle would surely take a long time. Li Huowang dared not rest even though he was hurt.

"Alright, sit here and don't move!" Yang Na said before quickly running into Wu Qi's room.

"Damn, there's so many people outside, and yet they threw the grenade into the house. They are trying to kill me!"

Li Huowang continued to pull off the glass shards embedded in his body.

Qing Wanglai's home was pretty, but the glass shards were deadly.

"Thankfully, the wounds are not fatal."

Li Huowang forced himself to reach the wine cabinet and took a bottle of strong alcohol. He drank a large gulp for himself before pouring the rest onto his back.

The intense pain made his body shiver. Li Huowang almost broke his teeth by biting too hard, but it worked. His head was no longer buzzing, and he felt much better.

Li Huowang called Qing Wanglai again, but no one picked up this time.

He tried calling the others, but none of them picked up either.

"They must be in the middle of a fight. Just... why aren't there any gunshots outside?"

Li Huowang dragged himself towards the door. However, before he even got close, another black object rolled towards his feet.

His mind went blank. It was too late to run, so Li Huowang instinctively picked it up before throwing it out of the window.

Chapter 960 - Wounded

Boom!

The explosion shattered the window and rocked the entire room.

Though Li Huowang had managed to hurl the grenade away, it had detonated far too close. The force of the blast slammed into him, sending him flying backward until he crashed into the wall. His back, which had barely scabbed over, tore open again from the impact. He started bleeding profusely.

“Shit! What the fuck are they doing!”

A ringing filled Li Huowang's ears as he pushed himself up with his right arm.

His right arm didn't touch the ground. He stumbled and fell onto the ground again, realizing his body was different now.

When he glanced at his right hand, he discovered that all of his fingers had been completely blown off. Yet strangely, there was no pain, even as he stared at the bloody, mangled remains.

Li Huowang acted quickly. With his left hand, he loosened one shoelace and tightly tied it around his wrist to stem the bleeding, about three inches above the injury. Then, he untied his second shoelace and secured his knife to his left hand.

He was severely injured, but he was also very worried about the situation outside.

The battle outside was too bizarre. Although the Simings of Baiyu Capital had intercepted them, the Simings from Fu Shengtian had somehow managed to lob grenades into the house.

The situation was far worse than Li Huowang had anticipated. It wasn't just a skirmish—Fu Shengtian could be trying to wipe them out completely.

The best-case scenario was that Qing Wanglai and the others hadn't been quick enough to block the grenades. The worst-case scenario? That everyone outside was already dead.

Li Huowang assumed the latter. He'd lived long enough to always expect the worst.

Still, this reassured Li Huowang that their previous actions were steps in the right direction. Zhao Shuangdian's plans to destroy the drug factory and the forgotten Siming on the sea had indeed threatened them.

Li Huowang ran into Wu Qi's room and saw Yang Na. She was about to run out with a first-aid kit.

"Huowang, your hand—"

"Ignore it. Listen to me. I will rush outside in a moment. When you hear explosions, I want you to escape through the back window. Got it?"

Li Huowang recalled Yang Na's figure in the sea and shuddered. He didn't want it to happen again.

Li Huowang planted a kiss on her lips before mustering the strength to drag his battered body and sprint into the messy hall.

His hearing slowly came back, and he was soon able to hear the sounds of fighting up ahead.

He sighed in relief—his side hadn't been completely wiped out yet.

Fu Shengtian's Simings had attacked them in their own home. There was no point in overthinking the situation, so Li Huowang ran outside and hid in a bush.

He soon located the source of the sounds. Li Huowang noticed that most of the enemies were hidden in the bamboo forest, so he stealthily approached them from behind.

As he was about to attack one of them, his scalp tingled. He bent down and narrowly dodged a bullet.

There are hidden sentries!

Li Huowang rapidly located the shooter and ran toward him.

Before the shooter could fully reload, Li Huowang chopped off three of his fingers.

He stabbed mercilessly at the shooter's stomach, but the enemies had anticipated his attacks and prepared stab-proof vests. Li Huowang's knife didn't manage to wound the shooter.

Li Huowang and the shooter fought viciously in the bamboo forest. Li Huowang had lost an arm, while the shooter had lost three fingers.

The shooter tried to disarm Li Huowang, but Li Huowang had already tied the knife to his hand. Neither was able to harm the other.

Seeing an opening, Li Huowang swung at the shooter's exposed neck. But the Siming grabbed the blade with gloved hands, stopping it inches from their throat.

They grappled viciously until, suddenly, a knife pierced through the shooter's neck from behind.

The shooter looked down with shock before slumping and dying.

As the shooter fell to the ground, Li Huowang looked up and saw Yang Na covered in blood in front of him.

She was panting, her knife still dripping with blood. She had stabbed the Siming from the back and saved Li Huowang.

Yang Na steadied herself before smiling. "I am the Heavenly Mater. I cannot run. Without me, you cannot kill them."

She then looked at Li Huowang and said naturally, "Ji Zai, stop getting distracted. They are fighting so hard outside. You need to help them."

Li Huowang was indeed distracted. Yang Na's figure seemed to shift, blurring into a different entity.

Bam! The sound of a gunshot snapped him back to reality. He pulled Yang Na down onto the ground. "Follow me!"

“Alright!” Yang Na replied without a hint of fear. In fact, she was excited due to Li Huowang's apparent encouragement.

Li Huowang took note of everyone's location.

It was clear that their enemies came prepared. They were all in places that were easy to defend, and they coordinated well.

Fu Shengtian's retaliation was fierce. To destroy the Baiyu Capital, they used fifteen Simings in total.

However, the biggest problem was the two Simings situated on the roof of the mansion opposite Li Huowang.

They could just lie down on the roof and shoot continuously, so Qing Wanglai and Zhao Shuangdian struggled to return fire. Their predicament forced them to remain passive.

Li Huowang called Qing Wanglai again.

“It's me! Yang Na came out to help. This place isn't safe. I need you to create a diversion at ten o'clock. I'll try to deal with the snipers on the roof across us.

“Stop bullshitting me! Three Ancient Ones, let them destroy your home if you dare!”

Li Huowang hung up.

Chapter 961 - Exchange

Li Huowang lay low in the bamboo forest, using the stalks as cover while waiting for Qing Wanglai to make his move.

Time crept by, and the pain in Li Huowang's injured hand grew sharper and harder to ignore.

Yang Na, gripping the enemy's gun, noticed something was wrong with him. "What's wrong? Are you alright? I can bring you out of here for now."

Li Huowang shook his head and slammed his broken arm onto the ground. The intense pain shook him up.

"No, I can't trust them. If we lose now, the Baiyu Capital is finished. Where could we even escape to if it's destroyed?"

Li Huowang got closer to Yang Na to shield her a little. "Don't worry, it just hurts a little. I won't die as long as you're here."

Seeing her concern, he forced himself to reassure her, as if his wounds weren't serious. "Besides, my hand will return as long as we kill Fu Shengtian's Simings."

However, he wasn't truly confident. He wasn't sure which of Fu Shengtian's Simings had been responsible for the events leading to his broken arm.

Yang Na's face brightened. "And what about your eye? Will it grow back if we win?"

Li Huowang froze momentarily before touching his empty eye socket. "I don't know. Maybe."

Yang Na nodded happily. "Yes. It will return for sure!"

She clenched her fist, convincing herself to do whatever it took to restore his lost eye—an eye that represented Chaos.

Suddenly, they heard loud noises in the air. Three drones with blinking green lights flew past them, attracting everyone's attention.

Li Huowang felt a surge of joy. The Three Ancient Ones have made their move.

He quickly rolled on the ground while dialing them on his phone. He also directed Yang Na to run to the mansion's first-floor window.

"I'm moving now! Cover me. The Heavenly Dao of Death is with me! The people you kill won't die unless we are the ones who kill them!"

Gunshots whizzed past the sky and shot down the drones, but it was too late. Li Huowang and Yang Na already reached the mansion.

Li Huowang gripped his knife tightly before breaking the glass window and jumping into the darkness.

It was both dark and dirty. It appeared that renovation works had stopped halfway.

Li Huowang heard the sound of gunshots coming from above. He gripped his knife even more tightly as he slowly approached the stairs.

As adrenaline coursed through his veins, the pain in his body faded, and his senses sharpened.

They were about to reach the upper floors, but the sound of approaching police sirens suddenly cut through the air.

"We need to move faster! The Rules are here!"

He refused to accept that things would end right then and there.

Li Huowang made haste and found the attic. He climbed up and saw an open window. The two shooters had climbed through the window to reach the roof.

He steeled himself and slowly approached the window to launch a surprise attack on the two Simings.

He had just raised his head when he touched a strand of almost invisible line. It broke on contact, and he immediately shouted, "There's a trap!"

Just then, the sound of a gunshot rang out. The bullet shattered a part of Li Huowang's skull, and he flew backward from the impact.

Thankfully, Yang Na was there to grab him, stopping his fall.

"I'm... fine!" he said, his blood streaming from his forehead and obscuring his vision in a crimson haze.

"Damn it! They know we're here. We need to act now!"

Li Huowang took off his shirt and threw it out of the window.

Bullets rained down and tore his clothes to pieces. When the gunshot stopped momentarily, Li Huowang jumped out of the window.

Through his bloodied vision, he saw a blurry figure. Without hesitation, he drove his knife into their neck. Warm blood soaked the shoelace on his arm, and the shooter collapsed. He had finally killed one of them.

Li Huowang swiveled around to find the second person, but no one else was on the roof.

Just then, a wire suddenly looped around Li Huowang's neck. The other shooter was trying to choke him.

Struggling desperately, he heard a gunshot, and suddenly, the wire slackened. Yang Na had taken the shot.

Li Huowang sighed in relief now that the two shooters were dead. He pulled the wire off that had been partially embedded into his neck and started coughing.

The two shooters are dead now. Qing Wanglai and the others should be able to fight more easily now that the pressure is gone.

Li Huowang walked toward the edge of the roof. As he thought, Qing Wanglai and the others were having an easier time now that the shooters on the roof were gone.

The sirens were getting closer, but at the very least, the Simings from Fu Shengtian hadn't achieved any notable results.

Their ambush had failed.

Li Huowang looked down, wiping the blood from his eyes. He was getting ready to help them below.

Suddenly, someone pushed him off the roof!

Li Huowang waved his arms around until he caught onto the drain pipe on the roof. If not, he would've fallen onto the ground.

"Nana, be careful! There's one more person!"

Just as Li Huowang shouted, he caught sight of the person above him. It was an old beggar with a rod.

Bam! The old beggar hit Li Huowang's hand, cutting it up with the sharp edges of the drain pipe.

Li Huowang refused to let go. The old beggar reached into his pockets to bring something out.

Li Huowang tried to climb up, but his other arm was broken. He didn't have the strength to pull himself up.

In the final moments, his blood once again obscured his eyes, casting his vision in a crimson hue.

Li Huowang saw Li Sui, dressed in red Daoist robes, standing between him and the old beggar.

Li Huowang shouted urgently, "Suisui, what are you doing? Go away! Run away!"

"The Chief of the Surveillance Bureau heeded the orders of Zhuanxu, commanding Nan Zhengzhong to oversee the Heavens and manage the Simings!"

Xuan Pin's red robes flew high in the air, revealing his true form. "The Surveillance Bureau was established for the sake of this very day!"

All of Xuan Pin's heads chanted in unison, "The standards of generals and ministers cannot be questioned when it is difficult to attain righteousness! It may be found among the Immortals and Simings, in the suffering of the mortal realm, or in the uprightness of those ascending to Immortality and Divinity!"

Xuan Pin raised two tentacles with tiger skulls high up into the air. An extreme amount of murderous aura poured down from the Heavens, enveloping Li Huowang.

The sound of thunderous war drums could be heard while soldiers came from all different directions. They were chanting and howling in unison with Xuan Pin.

“Grant me the sword of the Superior Divine Beings to guard the four corners of the Heavenly Jade Gate!”

Without anyone noticing, millions of soldiers equipped with armor and swords stepped into the Tianchen Kingdom, bringing an incredibly intense murderous aura.

Chapter 962 - Jiang Xiangshou

There were so many soldiers that they covered every inch of land around them. In addition to the soldiers of the Liang Kingdom, there were soldiers from Qing Qiu, Hou Shu, Si Qi, An Xi, and even the Qi Kingdom.

Each soldier raised a blade behind their head and severed their hair ties in unison, their long black hair cascading down like flowing capes.

The soldiers' eyes were cold and resolute as they faced the Simings. Although they were mortals, they had no fear.

Even the heads of Xuan Pin had their hair flowing in the wind.

“With the body standing tall and with black hair flowing in the wind, all the generals and ministers will come and greet me. The heavenly constellations and Taiyi shall follow around me! The twin souls of Jia and Gang shall follow me!

“I care not if they are Door Gods and the Gate Guardians. I care not if they are the various wicked evil entities and wicked gods. I care not if they are the mountain gods and the misfortunated souls. I care not if they are evil demons or evil deities!”

With the rhythm of the war drums, the soldiers' swords inched closer to their necks.

“Place your praise onto the altar! Sever the heads and turn the bodies to dust! I serve the people, not the master! The broken Heavenly Dao...”

The soldiers paused. Then, they shouted their final verse with all their strength, saying, “THE BROKEN HEAVENLY DAO SHALL BE MENDED BY US!”

Splatter! The millions of soldiers beheaded themselves, including Xuan Pin. Xuan Pin beheaded all of his heads at the same time.

A dense cloud of burning murderous aura and blood rose into the air. The huge plume rapidly condensed into a gigantic, roaring, chaotic head.

Li Huowang finally realized what the Siming was, as his own anger and bloodlust were affected. It was the Siming of the soldiers, Jiang Xiangshou!

Fu Shengtian's Simings and Jiang Xiangshou crashed into each other viciously. As they did, heaven and earth started to unravel along with the divisions. The rampaging Heavenly Daos were destroying the Tianchen Kingdom.

Although Jiang Xiangshou was injured in the clash with Fu Shengtian's Simings, its power did not diminish. As the Siming that controlled Massacre and War, its existence vastly differed from that of the other Simings.

It appeared anywhere strife and hatred existed.

The more intense the battle was, the stronger it was. Fights between Simings were one of the most intense clashes the universe had to offer.

Li Huowang's sanity couldn't contain his bloodlust. He swung his broken arm at the beggar's leg and managed to knock him down.

Li Huowang's veins bulged as he hoisted himself up with one hand, harnessing the power of his newfound strength.

"DIE!"

Li Huowang ignored the beggar shooting at him. He was shot in the abdomen many times, but that didn't stop him from carving the beggar into pieces.

Li Huowang only stopped when his knife broke on the beggar's bones. By then, he was already completely drenched in blood. He wasn't sure if it was his own blood.

The gunshots and sirens had entirely stopped, as if they had disappeared.

Snapping out of his frenzy, Li Huowang ignored his injuries and frantically began searching the piles of headless corpses.

There were too many headless soldiers. Their bodies became mountains, and their blood became rivers.

"Suisui! Suisui!" Li Huowang shouted while panicking. He dug around the mountain of corpses and the rivers of blood, holding onto the faint hope that he would be able to find his daughter.

"Suisui, where are you?!"

At last, his fingers brushed a limp tentacle. He followed its trail, digging through the carnage until he unearthed a pile of tentacles with a pair of eyes nestled within.

Li Huowang jumped and hugged the pile of tentacles tightly.

"Suisui, don't be afraid. Your father is here! Don't be scared!"

"Father?"

Joy washed over him, but Xuan Pin's calm voice shattered it.

"Li Huowang, Li Sui is dead. How many times must I tell you?"

Li Huowang shook his head in denial. "It's alright! It's alright! As long as you're alive! I will find a way to turn you back. I just need to remove the things devouring you from the inside!"

"Li Huowang, there's no chance of saving me. I will die soon."

Xuan Pin's voice was very calm, without any hint of sadness or anxiety.

"Summoning Jiang Xiaoshou to help comes at a price—human lives. What kind of war doesn't have casualties? That would just be putting on a show."

Xuan Pin's tentacles started to shrivel, with fluid seeping out.

"No... No! Miaomiao, come quick! Suisui is dying! Take Death out of his body!"

Bai Lingmiao rushed over and placed her hands on Xuan Pin's body.

“No... It’s no use... He doesn’t have the Heavenly Dao of Death anymore...” Bai Lingmiao’s voice trembled as she spoke.

“It’s useless. I now belong to Jiang Xiangshou and not the Heavenly Mater.”

Xuan Pin’s body gradually grew weaker, and his voice became quieter. “It’s time to talk about official matters, Li Huowang.

“You might be Ji Zai’s Twisted One, but I know you are different from the other Simings. Ji Zai is different from the other Simings because he doesn’t even know what he is.

“Maybe he’s different, just like Jiang Xiangshou. Perhaps he can help us navigate through these difficult times, but I fear that it’s not enough. Fu Shengtian would never stop. I fear that the suffering our ancestors went through will occur again.

“If you don’t want the people here to return to how they once were—incoherent, not knowing right from wrong, not knowing truth from lies—we must fight back hard.

“Do not trust the other Simings. They are not tied down to us. We alone can control our own lives. We let the people prosper and breed so that we can use their lives for ceremonies like these. Do not be afraid of sacrificing people. As long as some people survive and as long as the Heavenly Dao of Lust is still here, people will continue to give birth and multiply again.”

But Li Huowang wasn’t listening. He was holding onto Xuan Pin while mumbling something fervently.

“I don’t have much time left. Once I die, go and find the Imperial Preceptor of the Liang Kingdom. He will tell you everything you don’t know. Also, my advice is still... the same... We can... use Simings... but we cannot... we cannot...”

“Enough! Stop talking, Li Sui! You won’t die! You won’t die!”

Li Huowang shouted, persistently using his cultivation at the seventh stage to try to revive Li Sui. It wasn’t working. Only his surroundings were being affected.

“I really... am not... Li Sui. Li Huowang... You cannot... fool yourself... The bonds between the child and the parent... are insignificant... You must... let go...”

Xuan Pin’s body slowly crumbled. The pile of tentacles slowly withered and went limp. As it did, something appeared from the deepest part of the pile of tentacles.

They were the three clay figurines.

The clay figurines looked ancient. The color had faded and there were cracks on it, but Li Huowang could still make out the faces of the figurines.

They were the three clay figurines of Li Huowang, Bai Lingmiao, and Li Sui.

“I am not Li Sui... I am not... I am... not her...”

A single black tentacle hugged Li Huowang’s clay figurine, struggling to pass it to Li Huowang with its final strength.

Li Huowang was about to accept it, but the tentacle went limp.

The cracked clay figurine fell onto the ground and shattered into pieces.

Chapter 963 - Escape

Rain poured from the sky, drenching the ground. Leaves bent under the downpour as the forest swayed violently in the wind.

The path was muddy from the rain, making it very difficult to traverse.

Even so, someone was running on the path.

The small figure was covered in a coat and a veiled hat. The person looked back occasionally, as though afraid that someone was chasing after them.

A wind blew past and parted the veil a little, revealing Shangguan Yuting's face. Her face was dripping with rainwater by this point.

Several black tentacles extended out from her clothes to wipe off the rain.

"Hahaha..."

Hearing the laughter behind her, Li Sui felt a surge of panic.

"Shit! Hahaha! After all these years of trying to be a scholar, luck finally smiles on me! To think I've stumbled upon a Strayed One!"

The person's laughter was rough and dissonant, as if it could be seen through wood.

The sound of bell chimes could be heard as a strong wind blew past. A massive tree fell in front of Li Sui, blocking her path.

Li Sui turned around and saw the man chasing after her, his form covered with excess flesh. He chuckled. "It's useless. You've taken my drug—you can't use your techniques as a Strayed One."

The scars on his scalp betrayed his past as a monk, but the tufts of hair now sprouting from his head revealed he was no longer one.

More importantly, if he were a monk, he wouldn't be holding onto a butcher's blade right now.

"Damn, you have a good face! I never played with a Strayed One before."

"Go away! Don't come here!"

Li Sui's cries of panic only fueled the man's excitement.

With a flash of steel, he cut both of Li Sui's arms off. Blood flowed out as she cried in pain.

"Hahaha! Shout louder! The louder, the better!"

The man chuckled, grabbing Li Sui's legs and pulling them apart.

However, just as Li Sui's skirt parted ways, a dense layer of tentacles surged out and enveloped the man's face.

The man roared angrily as he tore off the tentacles, but Li Sui had a good hold on his face. All the man did in the end was tear his own flesh away.

After traveling alone for so long, Li Sui wasn't the same helpless girl she once was.

Although the man was grievously injured, he refused to fall. Murderous intent radiated from him as he raised his butcher's blade and swung it at Li Sui.

Li Sui swung a dark golden-colored rod to block the blade. As she did, she used another tentacle to paste a silver talisman onto the man's forehead.

The man's skull cracked open, and the silver talisman slipped into his skull. The man's bones became bloated, and his joints locked.

The man froze due to the talisman. He couldn't move a single joint in his body.

Li Sui quickly swung a dagger and cut down the man's ears.

She wasn't done. She revealed ten more tentacles, each holding onto a bladed object. She shaved the man down little by little.

She worked until nothing remained but a bloody skeleton.

Finally, she drove a dagger into his heart, ending his life.

Li Sui nodded with satisfaction at her handiwork. She took a piece of the man's heart and ate it.

As she was savoring the taste, she saw her bloody surroundings and suddenly panicked. "No... This isn't me! This isn't me."

Li Sui spat out the heart and ran.

She ran for four divisions straight. By the end, the rain had stopped, and the blood on her coat had been washed clean.

Li Sui calmed down and continued to travel.

The more people she assimilated, the more she felt she was changing. Ever since she'd assimilated the first person, a lingering question haunted her: Would she lose herself completely?

Would she cease to be Li Sui?

Would her father still recognize her?

However, her safety was more important. She had to protect herself and had no choice but to assimilate people. The Surveillance Bureau of the Qi Kingdom had sent out warrants, and everyone was looking for her.

Zuoqiu Yong publicized the information that she was a Strayed One, enticing people to kill her.

This made it difficult for Li Sui to work with anyone. Now, anyone she encountered could be hunting her down. It wasn't just the Surveillance Bureau she had to be wary of anymore.

To stay alive, she had to grow stronger. Assimilation was her only path. By taking their memories, she could glean information about the Bureau's movements.

I wanted to head back to the Liang Kingdom, but it seems that's impossible for now. I need to find a way to hide my identity as a Strayed One, just like my father did. It's too annoying. But how? I don't have the bronze coin veil or the black spindle.

Li Sui was still trying to figure out how to proceed.

Her mind churned with ideas as she trudged forward.

Eventually, she spotted a village through the morning fog.

She was tired. She used her techniques to scan the village and found nothing unusual. She braced herself and walked into the village carefully.

At the entrance, a boy was playing with a ball.

Li Sui changed her face from Shangguan Yuting's to a kind-looking middle-aged woman.

"Who are you? What are you doing here?" the boy asked, clutching his ball. "Are you a performer? Or... a kidnapper?"

"I'm neither. I'm just a facial hair trimmer[1]. I've been walking in the rain, and I'm cold. I'd like to rest in your village if I may."

Li Sui revealed a kind and welcoming expression with her new face.

This was one of her identities. She'd changed her identity multiple times and assimilated multiple abilities to evade her pursuers.

1. An ancient occupation. Someone who threads on a bride-to-be so that her facial hair is well groomed. 📖

Chapter 964 - Make-Up

The child's eyes lit up with excitement upon hearing that Li Sui was a facial hair trimmer.

“Really? Can you do that? My sister's about to get married, and my mother has been searching for someone to help her. Can you do it? With that, my sister will finally get married, and I'll get to have some wedding candies!”

“Sure, but my price is expensive. I need at least half a Dou^[1] for fresh rice.”

Li Sui pretended to be very careful when it came to money.

“I have rice at home, and my future brother-in-law is a landowner! He has a lot of rice in his house! Come with me.”

Still holding his ball, the child brought Li Sui to his house.

Li Sui tried to get some information from the child and learned more about the village. The child was called Chen Junyu, and the village was Chen's Family Village. The closest county was roughly a hundred Li away, so it was quite remote.

Based on what Li Sui had learned, she deduced that the Surveillance Bureau's spies hadn't reached this area yet. Knowing she was safe, she relaxed a bit.

“Little lady, sit on the stool. I need you to take a seat so I can help you clean your face.”

Li Sui grumbled at the young lady in front of her.

A tanned lady pinched her daughter's arm. “She's calling you to sit over there. Are you deaf?”

Once the girl took her seat, Li Sui took out a small bundle from her robes, pulling out a wad of cotton and some fine powder. She dabbed the cotton lightly in the powder and tapped it against the girl's face.

Then, Li Sui took out a thin thread and crossed it, holding the ends with her thumb and index finger. She held one end with her left hand while biting the other end with her mouth.

As her right thumb moved, the threads glided lightly across the girl's face, neatly removing the fine hairs along with the powder. Soon, the girl's face looked bright and clean.

The mother's eyes sparkled with joy as she saw her daughter's transformation. "Wow! Your handiwork is amazing. Half a Dou of new rice isn't expensive at all!"

"Dear lady, could you give me an empty room to rest in? I'm tired from traveling and would like to stay here for a night. You can keep my rice payment as the young lady's bridal gift. "

"Alright!"

Overjoyed at not needing to pay, the mother cleaned one of the empty rooms. Letting a stranger stay for one night was far cheaper than forking out money to buy half a Dou of rice. It was a deal even an idiot wouldn't refuse.

After the woman left, Li Sui tried to gather some information from the young girl. Unfortunately, she was younger than her brother, so she didn't know much either.

Li Sui licked the threads and started to trim the young girl's eyebrows. "Little lady, what kind of brows would you like? Crescent brows or a consort's brows?"

"Anything is fine..." the girl murmured, her voice barely louder than a mosquito.

"Since you're going to get married, I will give you a consort's brow."

As she worked, Li Sui continued her gentle questioning. Although the girl didn't like talking and sometimes ignored Li Sui, the scraps of information she shared further reassured her that the Surveillance Bureau hadn't reached this remote village.

It was safe here, and she could finally rest before she started traveling again. Nearly two weeks had passed since she'd last had a good night's sleep. Fearing the Surveillance Bureau would track her down, she'd opted for several short naps rather than one long sleep.

After trimming the hair on the little girl's face, Li Sui did her hair too.

Like that, Li Sui finally earned a night of good rest in one of the empty rooms.

Li Sui opened the bedsheets and dug out the straws. She placed them in a pile before taking off her skin.

Li Sui slept in the middle of the straw pile while holding onto Li Huowang's clay figurine.

She didn't like beds. She preferred the feeling of being buried in warmth.

"Father, I am doing fine. I've lived here for three years. Another 177 years more before I can meet you again."

Li Sui stared at Li Huowang's clay figurine from inside the stack of straw.

She then took out a clay figurine of her mother and murmured her frustrations, "Mother, I've assimilated too many people. I can barely keep them under my skirt. What should I do if I can't hide them anymore?"

The figurines couldn't respond, but talking to them brought her some comfort.

She could only remind herself that she was Li Sui by talking with the clay figurines.

She was about to hug the clay figurines and go to sleep when the wooden door was slowly pushed open.

Li Sui quickly threw her clothes and skin into the straw pile and patiently waited to see what was happening.

She was already clutching her weapons in case of an ambush.

A young girl cried in the dark room, saying, "Madam, please take me with you! I will learn how to trim facial hair from you! I don't need money. I just want some food when we travel together, that's all!"

Li Sui peeked out from her pile of straw. She saw that it was the young girl whose facial hair she had just trimmed off. Thankfully, it wasn't the Chief of the Surveillance Bureau.

The young girl was groveling on the ground with several bronze and silver pieces in her hands. She was offering them to Li Sui.

"Madam, please help me! I can't get married right now. If I do, I will die!"

Li Sui appeared out from the pile of straw after listening to the young girl. "Little lady, what are you doing? Tell me everything."

Li Sui consoled the young girl as she explained everything.

Her name was Chen Zhaodi. Her mother was trying to marry her off to an older man. However, it was more of a transaction than a marriage. The man had previously married five wives, but all of them died.

No one knew how they died, but the young girl was sure that if she married the man, she would also die soon.

Li Sui didn't know what to do after hearing the story. She couldn't even protect herself right now. It would slow her from escaping next time.

Just then, the girl's mother yelled from outside, "Where are you, stupid daughter of mine? The pigs in the sty are already calling. Can't you hear them? Quickly go and feed them!"

Li Sui didn't move, and the young girl's eyes died down as if her soul had been lost. She turned to leave the room.

"I'm sorry, Madam. I will hang myself soon."

Staring at her back, Li Sui couldn't bear to see someone so young die. "Wait, let me think about how I could help you."

In the end, Li Sui chose to help. While her situation wasn't ideal, she was sure her father would have helped the young girl.

“How about this...” Li Sui looked at Chen Zhaodi's eyes, filled with renewed hope. “Go and feed the pigs. Come find me again late at night.”

Chapter 965 - Father

Chen Zhaodi's face lit up with joy when she realized that Li Sui was willing to help her.

"Auntie! You are my savior!"

Dropping to her knees, Chen Zhaodi kowtowed to Li Sui several times before darting out.

"Sigh..."

Li Sui dove back into the straw pile before looking at the clay figurines in her tentacles. "Father, I will help her find a good family once we reach a county. I can do that much, I suppose."

Li Sui was confident in her ability to quickly do a simple background check on a family. No matter who she chose, they would be better than the old man with the five dead wives. At the very least, marrying someone from a county would increase her chances of surviving.

As Li Sui inhaled the scent of the straw, she slowly closed her eyes and drifted off to sleep. It had been a long time since she had slept so peacefully.

Li Sui had only slept for a few hours when Chen Zhaodi quietly entered her room in the dark, carrying a sack filled with her personal belongings.

"Auntie, I'm here."

Li Sui said nothing. She gently held Chen Zhaodi's hands and walked out of the house at night.

Chen Zhaodi's heart raced—this was her first time disobeying her parents. If she were caught, she'd be punished.

A dog's sudden barking startled them. "Woof! Woof woof!"

Li Sui silenced the dog with a single glare. The dog whimpered and sulked.

Under the cloak of night, they left the village and headed south along a dirt path. They continued until dawn, finally resting by a river.

Chen Zhaodi splashed her face with cold water, a smile breaking across her lips. "Auntie, thank you so much for saving my life! I will take care of you when you are older!"

After being granted a second chance at life, Chen Zhaodi hugged Li Sui tightly and held onto her arms.

Li Sui felt uneasy. She hasn't felt genuine gratitude ever since she had been separated from her father. The people who approached her had always tried to kill her.

"Eat something first. Then we can head to the county." Li Sui took out some jerky and shared it with Chen Zhaodi.

Chen Zhaodi spoke a lot during their journey. She kept talking about her hopes for her future too.

Soon, Li Sui let her guard down and even laughed while talking with Chen Zhaodi. The feeling was strange, almost reminiscent of the first time she had met Bun.

They soon reached the county, but Li Sui was hesitant to let Chen Zhaodi go. Maybe she wouldn't be so lonely with Chen Zhaodi beside her during her journey.

However, Li Sui ultimately chose to leave Chen Zhaodi in the county. She had to make certain choices, no matter what.

Once there, Li Sui started finding a new husband for Chen Zhaodi as soon as possible. The county was crowded. Every second here increased the risk of her being discovered by the Surveillance Bureau.

Soon, Li Sui found an older merchant selling glutinous rice cakes on the street. The merchant was an honest man with a house inherited from his ancestors.

After finding a suitable candidate, Li Sui told Chen Zhaodi about the person. But Chen Zhaodi's reaction wasn't something she had expected.

“Auntie, I’m not getting married. I want to learn your craft from you.”

Chen Zhaodi was adamant about following Li Sui around.

“You can live a good life here. Why do you want to travel and suffer with me?

“I can’t trust anyone. I can only trust you.”

Chen Zhaodi hugged Li Sui tightly.

On that day, Li Sui experienced new emotions and understood the truth behind certain past events. She attempted to push Chen Zhaodi away but found herself unable to do so.

“You wish to follow me? Do you know what I am?”

Li Sui let her go and revealed the tentacles in her own body. Chen Zhaodi screamed extremely loudly.

But even though her face was pale, she still braced herself and chose to hug Li Sui in the end.

“I’m... I’m not scared! Even if you are a monster, I won’t be scared! You are a good monster!”

Li Sui sighed. “Very well. You can follow me, then. You should be able to help me find information...”

Before she could finish her sentence, a chakram ripped through the paper window.

“Careful!”

Li Sui pushed Chen Zhaodi to the side, but the chakram still cut off Chen Zhaodi’s left ear.

Rage surged through Li Sui as she ran out with Chen Zhaodi, only to find themselves surrounded.

Tens of people in black spun their chakrams as they surrounded the building. They stood on the roof while waiting for Li Sui.

Li Sui had overstayed and attracted the attention of Zuoqiu Yong’s informants.

“You evil entity! You are a Strayed One that killed thousands of people! The Chief of the Surveillance Bureau has orders to kill you on sight!”

Without waiting for her response, they lunged.

Li Sui used her tentacles to hold onto Chen Zhaodi as she retreated. However, the people had come prepared and did not give her time to escape.

A Daoist in yellow robes stepped forward. He held onto two yellow flags and made seals with his hands before pointing at the sun above.

“Veiled in mist and haze lies the hue of blue and green. The yellow road and the purple palace shall stand apart! The crimson dawn and pure soul shall follow their doom!”

Li Sui’s body started to melt, revealing the tentacles beneath her. Chen Zhaodi was also melting.

Li Sui unleashed all her techniques upon the people surrounding her, but they had a counter to her every move.

Just as Li Sui slowly adapted to this world, the Surveillance Bureau of the Qi Kingdom also slowly adapted to her.

In the end, the first friend she made, the first person who showed her kindness, slowly melted into a puddle before Li Sui.

“No! No!” Li Sui wrapped her tentacles around the wriggling blood puddle.

It was still moving. Chen Zhaodi had melted, but she was still alive.

Ultimately, Li Sui had to assimilate Chen Zhaodi and turn her into a part of herself.

Li Sui felt her body change, but it was in a good way this time.

Even though she saved Chen Zhaodi, the situation was still dire. It wasn’t long before Li Sui melted too.

As her melted tentacles fell limply and her consciousness slowly faded, she murmured, “Am I dying...? I don’t want to... Father... I can’t die... When I am in danger, my father will come and save me... Father will definitely come and save me..."

Her consciousness threatened to fade forever.

"What the fuck are you doing?!" A thunderous shout rang out, stopping Li Sui from melting.

"Father?" Li Sui picked up an eyeball in the puddle and saw a streak of red circling around her. Everywhere it went, blood and viscera followed.

"Father!"

Chapter 966 - Ji Zai

“Father?”

Li Sui, already half-dissolved, raised her head to see Li Huowang standing amidst the bloodbath.

Through the haze of pain, she recognized the familiar bronze coin veil and blood-red Daoist robes. Tears streamed down her face. Her father was here. She was safe.

It was really him! Her father had come to save her! The pain coursing through her body confirmed it wasn't a dream—this was real!

Li Sui cried and shouted to Li Huowang, “Father! I missed you!”

Li Huowang consoled her while killing the people from the Surveillance Bureau, saying, “Don't worry! Suisui, I am here! No one can bully my daughter when I'm here!”

The enemies retreated. None of them could fight against Li Huowang.

Li Sui was on the brink of safety when one of the enemies suddenly detected something amiss. It dawned on him that Li Sui was employing her abilities as a Strayed One, so he attempted to interfere.

“You damned monster! That's not your father! He's fake! You conjured him! If he was your father, why didn't he help you years ago? Why is he appearing only today?”

Strayed Ones were strong and weak at the same time. It all depended on what they believed.

Li Sui froze up as she carefully thought about it.

It was a fatal mistake. Li Huowang slowly changed, and Li Sui's unease increased as she entertained the thought that the Li Huowang in front of her was fake.

Li Huowang slowly turned transparent.

She panicked and tried to convince herself. “No! He’s my father! He’s really here to save me! My father is real! He’s not something I’ve conjured myself!”

It took Li Sui too long to realize what they were trying to do. She tried to convince herself repeatedly to ensure the Li Huowang in front of her was real. Even if her father were fake, it would be sufficient if he could help her this time.

However, all she could do in the end was lie to herself. A fake was a fake. No matter how hard she tried to convince herself, the Li Huowang in front of her ultimately disappeared.

The people from the Surveillance Bureau closed in, and they were angry. They had suffered losses, and now their vengeance was personal.

Li Sui was in danger again.

One of them spat on Li Sui. “I hate Strayed Ones! Don’t you have a good imagination? Don’t you think you can escape? Go ahead! Try again.”

A sharp blade flew past, severing several tentacles. “Aren’t you able to conjure your saviors? Go on, then! Show us again!”

Pain wracked her body as they attacked relentlessly. Yet, this time, Li Sui didn’t cry. She had realized that she had been ignoring one of her powers.

Her father was a Strayed One, and she was a Strayed One as well. He had used the powers of a Strayed One to save himself many times in the past. Now, she had the opportunity to do the same. This was her last chance to save herself.

She only needed to think about what she could do to rescue herself.

Still, self-deception was no easy task. The powers of a Strayed One relied on genuine belief, so she had to convince herself completely.

As her injuries worsened, her consciousness faded again. On the brink of collapsing, she suddenly recalled the reflection in the water she had once seen! It was a Siming, Ji Zai. It was the Siming that her father had constantly talked about.

“My father is Ji Zai! A Siming has no past nor future! As long as I believe that Ji Zai is real, my father will come and rescue me!”

It was both a lie and the truth. She didn’t know which was which.

All she needed to do was believe. She needed to survive.

Li Sui murmured over and over. Her consciousness slowly turned blurry, but she didn’t stop. The situation only changed when her life was on the brink of being snuffed out.

Nothing happened, but for some reason, everyone looked confused and dazed. It was as if everyone had forgotten what they were doing.

“Ji Zai! Ji Zai was real even one hundred and eighty years ago!”

Li Sui shot up in excitement. She was saved! She would survive until her father appeared again!

This was a perfect opportunity for her to escape, as everyone around her was still confused. Taking advantage of their distraction, Li Sui managed to drag her injured body away and flee.

She didn’t know how long Ji Zai’s powers would last, so she escaped desperately. After half a day, she finally stopped running and confirmed she was safe.

This time, she tried her best to avoid inhabited places.

She took over the cave of a bear as a temporary resting spot. The bear ended up becoming her dinner.

After feasting, Li Sui slept in the cave peacefully. She could finally rest here.

Once she had rested enough, Li Sui started to plan for the future again.

She suddenly recalled Ji Zai and ran out to pick up a log. She shaved it into a praying tablet using a small knife and carved several words on it.

“Ji Zai, the Siming of Bewilderment.”

Li Sui placed the tablet inside the cave and lit up three pine needles before praying. She stuck the three lighted pine needles in front of the tablet.

Then she kowtowed and prayed.

“Since the others could pray and obtain the powers from their respective Simings, I shall pray to you from today onwards. I will be your disciple, Ji Zai.

“If I’m your disciple, will you impart some knowledge and techniques to me? I don’t need anything strong for now. Just something to protect myself. I just need a technique to hide my identity as a Strayed One!”

Li Sui had just finished her prayer when she noticed the tablet softly flashing. It was then that she realized a technique had been bestowed upon her, its knowledge now embedded within her mind.

After checking it, she realized it was an illusory technique that could conceal her identity.

She felt warmth in her heart. Her father had not forgotten her. He was still helping her even though he had become a Siming. As long as her identity as a Strayed One wasn’t discovered, she would no longer be hunted down on sight.

That meant she didn’t have to assimilate the others constantly. She could finally wait for the day to reunite with her father again. She wouldn’t have to turn into someone else.

Li Sui smiled happily. Her future finally seemed a little brighter.

Chapter 967 - Funeral

It felt weird to worship her father as a god.

Still, Li Sui didn't mind. She preferred it this way—it meant that her father was constantly watching over her.

“Father, wait for me! I will come back and meet you again as Li Sui! I swear!”

Li Sui's intelligence was growing from the people she had assimilated. She started planning for when things went wrong, and she was no longer overly optimistic.

But Li Sui hated it. She preferred to remain as she once was, where everything was simple.

Looking down at the clay figurine, she murmured sadly, “If only... If I weren't me... If I stop being myself in the future, I'll hide it from you, Father. That way, you won't have to be sad too.”

“Li Sui! Come back! May your soul return!” Li Huowang shouted, dressed in mourning robes.

Li Huowang tossed white paper money [\[1\]](#) high into the air.

The paper money floated before falling onto the massive black coffin behind him.

Bai Lingmiao continued to cry. She held a red thread and followed the black coffin.

On the other end of the red thread was a piece of meat. It was the flesh of Li Huowang, Li Sui's favorite meal when she was still alive.

This was a custom of the Liang Kingdom. When people died, their loved ones tied a red thread to their favorite food or item while they were alive, carrying it until it was buried in the coffin.

Though the instruments played loudly behind the procession, Li

Huowang remained unfazed. He was just walking in a daze, revealing no emotions. He continued scattering the paper money as they approached the mountain behind Cowheart City.

The grave had been dug prematurely, and the best Feng Shui master of the Liang Kingdom had decided on the burial site.

Everyone from Cowheart Village looked on solemnly as the coffin reached the grave. According to their customs, it would then be lowered down.

Bai Lingmiao, who had long regarded Suisui as her child after deciding not to have her own, collapsed in grief. Tears streaked her face as she cried. “Suisui!”

Bai Lingmiao tried to jump into the coffin, but Li Huowang held her back. He wanted her to stop from making a mess out of everything.

The Second Deity sprouted from Bai Lingmiao’s back and scratched Li Huowang, leaving deep wounds on him.

Despite his wounds, he remained silent, his gaze fixed on the coffin as it was lowered.

“Are you mute? Speak!”

In the end, Bai Lingmiao stopped the Second Deity. She sat down on the ground and wept silently beside Li Sui’s grave.

There was someone else crying aside from Bai Lingmiao. It was Qiu Chibao. She held onto her rotten baby as she repeatedly tried to drag Li Sui out of the coffin, but it was destined to fail.

The burial was completed—the coffin was lowered, the grave was filled, and the tombstone was set.

Li Sui could finally rest in peace.

Everyone returned to Cowheart Village. With the funeral over, the atmosphere relaxed a little.

Yang Xiaohai and the other chefs worked hard to serve a large banquet.

However, Li Huowang ate nothing. He sat at the main seat and continued to drink wine, cup after cup.

He used to have a low tolerance for alcohol, but now, regardless of how much he drank, he couldn't feel anything. He couldn't get drunk.

He drank a lot, but the wine in his pot never diminished. He could drink as much as he wanted. The more he drank, the more Qiu Chibao cried.

He drank from evening until late at night. Even after the banquet, Li Huowang was still drinking.

As he was about to drink more, Bai Lingmiao took Li Huowang's cup and smashed it on the ground.

"Stop drinking!"

Li Huowang nodded. "You're right. We shouldn't drink anymore. It's time to deal with the official matters."

Li Huowang stood up and took one step forward. He shortened the distance and instantly appeared in Shangjing.

He stepped into the palace and saw the Liang Kingdom's Imperial Preceptor, Huangfu Tiangang, playing chess with Gao Zhijian. Huangfu Tiangang was still blind.

Li Huowang sat between the two of them.

"Xuan Pin is dead."

Huangfu Tiangang nodded. He picked up a black piece with two of his fingernails and placed it on the chessboard. "I know. The funeral is very grand."

"She told me that you know something and requested me to ask you about it."

Gao Zhijian noticed Li Huowang seemed different, placing a white piece down.

"Senior Li, are you alright?"

Li Huowang ignored Gao Zhijian and stared at the blind Huangfu Tiangang.

"It's nothing major," Huangfu Tiangang said. "Xuan Pin wanted to remind you that as long as there's a Chief for the Surveillance Bureau, we can hold our ground. If Fu Shengtian's Simings invade again, we'll repel them, just as we did the day before yesterday."

"Almost every soldier is dead," Li Huowang said.

"No." Huangfu Tiangang shook his head. "What do you think a soldier is?"

Huangfu Tiangang stroked his beard. "As things stand right now, we must sacrifice a lot to survive whenever the world is thrown into chaos due to the Simings.

"No matter how strong the soldiers are, they are still humans. All humans can be turned into soldiers. All we'd need to do is expose them to murderous aura. Then, everyone in the world could become a soldier."

Li Huowang's breathing changed when he heard that. He never thought that was one of their plans. "Then everyone would die."

"Yes." Gao Zhijian nodded before placing his white chess piece onto the board. "Senior LI, I know you are kind, but some people have to die. Even the royal family dies."

A bulky young child laughed and ran over to them. Gao Zhijian grabbed the boy easily.

"This is my son. I chose him to be my successor. I have many sons, but only one can live. The rest must die."

Gao Zhijian's tone was so cold that it was as if he wasn't talking about his son.

"Fu Shengtian's Simings... The Baiyu Capital Simings... We cannot trust any of them. To survive, we can only trust ourselves. This is how the world works. Human lives are worthless. Everyone can die, and we can give birth to more people as long as we don't go extinct."

"Human lives... are worthless...? Do you know what this means to them?"

Li Huowang recalled many faces: Abbess Jing Xin, the Lu family, Zhuge Yuan, Suisui... Their faces flashed past his mind.

Li Huowang's face twisted as his teeth cracked under the force of his bite.

“Enough! I’ve had enough! Why?! Tell me why!”

Li Huowang punched the chess board and shattered it.

1. Fake money used for ceremonies 🤔

Chapter 968 - Conversation

The black and white chess pieces within the palace scattered across the ground. The only sound that remained was Li Huowang's laborious breathing.

Li Huowang's anger slowly intensified, causing everything around him to change. The scenery shifted, and the people changed.

Li Huowang suddenly raised his head and looked at the empty skies. He shouted at the sky, "Da Nuo! What do you want me to do? I've requested nothing but for them to continue living! I just want them alive! Why must everybody die? What do you want me to do?"

As Li Huowang shouted, a faint thunderclap could be heard from the faraway clouds.

Li Huowang continued to shout at the sky, but soon, his angry shouts turned into sadness and despair.

The weight of reality pressed down on him. He was caught in a daze while Li Sui's funeral was ongoing, but it wasn't until now that he truly understood that Li Sui was gone. His daughter was gone forever.

"Was it not enough? What did I fail to do? Tell me! Why do they die no matter what I try? I can't save them... I can't stop them from dying... What did I do wrong?"

Li Huowang reached into his robes and took out a palmful of dust. Under his gaze, the dust quickly gathered into a clay figurine. It was the one Li Sui had given him before her death.

Li Huowang cried, and his tears dropped to the ground. A tentacle reached over and wiped the tears off his face.

Li Huowang trembled and looked up to find Li Sui smiling at him, carefully holding three clay figurines. She pointed at them one by one. "Father, look. This is you. This is Mother. And this small one is me."

Li Huowang knew that the Li Sui before him was fake, yet he couldn't suppress his emotions and hugged her tightly.

When he let go, he saw nothing in his embrace.

When he saw what was happening, Gao Zhijian sighed and stood up. He steadied Li Huowang and carefully plopped him down onto a chair before consoling him.

"Senior Li, you did nothing wrong. This isn't your fault. It's how the world works. Think about our master, Dan Yangzi. Was he born evil? No, he was driven to evil to survive. The world is much more evil."

Gao Zhijian sighed. "What can we do? Crying is the first thing we do when we are born. Humans are destined to suffer in this world. Everyone is suffering. Even an emperor like me cannot escape this fate."

Li Huowang shook his head. "I hate Dan Yangzi, but I hate this world even more."

He crushed the clay figurine in his palm. "Disgusting! This world is disgusting."

"Still, what can you do? This is how the world works."

"No! This is wrong. The world isn't supposed to be like this! The world is wrong!"

Li Huowang looked up. This time, rather than sadness, he only had a strong sense of unwillingness.

"You want me to give up, but it will never be that easy! Nothing will stop me until I'm dead! I will turn this world into what I wish for it to be!

"Not only will I become a Siming, I will become a Grand Siming, one without a past or future. I will save everyone!"

It sounded ridiculous, but Li Huowang was resolute. He would believe it forever.

Qiu Chibao cried, tightly embracing her child when she heard Li Huowang's words.

She cried and shouted and jumped and danced until she smiled. She laughed, then slowly turned transparent before disappearing.

Li Huowang was finally alone. He no longer had any illusions beside him.

As his emotions settled, he looked around. Qiu Chibao and the Shimmer Mirror were gone. Ever since Li Sui's death, everything strange in his life had faded away.

Gao Zhijian frowned at his words. "Senior Li, I don't care what you think, but we must first deal with Fu Shengtian's Simings."

He knew that Li Huowang's condition wasn't the best today, but some things couldn't wait, especially if they involved the lives of everyone in the world.

"I know! I know!" Li Huowang snapped, his eyes blazing with hatred. Even without Gao Zhijian's reminder, he had already vowed to destroy Fu Shengtian and its Simings. They were responsible for Suisui's death.

"They tried to ambush us and even used spies. They even tried an all-out attack to kill all of us, but there's nothing to be afraid of! They should be the ones to be afraid! They've suffered even more than us this time. We've hit them hard!"

Both Gao Zhijian and Huangfu Tiangang were confused by Li Huowang's words. They had no idea what he was talking about.

"Senior Li? I thought... I thought your illness was cured. Why is it..."

"I'm not ill!"

Li Huowang shouted, "I'm Ji Zai! Ji Zai is me! I am at the sixth stage just because it's convenient! I can connect to Ji Zai whenever I believe I'm at the seventh stage, and I can know what's happening in the Baiyu Capital!

“Wait! That’s incorrect! That’s not the Baiyu Capital! That’s a projection of the Baiyu Capital! Through the projection, I can know what’s happening there!”

Li Huowang then shared what he had learned with Gao Zhijian and Huangfu Tiangang. They didn’t have to understand—simply being exposed to the information would suffice.

“Are you sure?”

Gao Zhijian was surprised. Knowing what the Simings of Baiyu Capital were doing would greatly benefit them.

However, Gao Zhijian still doubted him. “Senior Li, are you certain about this? Is that the truth? Or is that something you’ve learned because you are ill?”

Chapter 969 - Murderous Aura Command

At this point, Li Huowang's anger flared from Gao Zhijian's continued skepticism. "How many times must I say that I'm not ill!"

Li Huowang stood abruptly, his voice ringing through the room. "Do you trust me or not? If you don't, I'll handle it myself!"

"I trust you," Gao Zhijian said, trying to calm Li Huowang down. "Still, this is an important matter that must be shared with the others. The Saintess of the White Lotus, the other Dragon Veins, and the other Chiefs of the Surveillance Bureau must learn about it too."

Li Huowang couldn't argue with that. This was valuable information that could benefit everyone. It was important for the others to know as well.

If he could rally their support, their combined strength would be more reliable than what Zhao Shuangdian or Qing Wanglai could offer.

They were scattered across the world, and gathering them in Shangjing would ordinarily take ages. However, Li Huowang could solve that.

The necessary people were gathered at Shangjing at a moment's notice.

Bai Lingmiao wasn't the only one who came. There were also the other Dragon Veins, the Righteous Monastery, the Mo family, the Minglun Hall, the Ao Jing Sect, and the Luo Sect.

Everyone had gathered. The only exceptions were those who were caught in exceptional trouble.

The main hall where Gao Zhijian usually held his morning meetings was filled to the brim.

Jiang Xiangshou's appearance wasn't exactly low profile, so almost everyone knew what had happened.

Before Gao Zhijian could say anything, murmurs filled the air, with many casting glances at Li Huowang.

Li Huowang did nothing to hide his status as a Strayed One. He revealed it to everyone.

Still, no one dared to do anything. His standing was now higher than theirs.

Gao Zhijian lifted his arm, and an old eunuch waved a golden horse-tail whisk in the air. "Silence."

The hall became quiet. Everyone looked at Gao Zhijian and the other emperors on the thrones. The atmosphere was solemn.

"I have summoned everyone here for one reason," Gao Zhijian said. "I trust you understand this concerns our survival."

Everyone in the hall quietly listened to Gao Zhijian.

Gao Zhijian stopped his speech momentarily. He waited for the eunuchs to hand him a golden decree and started writing on it. "Nearly all our soldiers have given their lives to shield us, yet the enemy is still on the offensive.

"To protect our world, I, Gao Zhijian, Emperor of the Liang Kingdom, hereby use my authority to declare the activation of the Murderous Aura Command."

With those words, he stamped the decree with the Liang Kingdom's jade stamp.

The other Dragon Veins didn't object. They stood up simultaneously and stamped the golden decree with their respective kingdoms' jade stamps.

But it wasn't over. The emperors even dripped their own blood onto the decrees.

Most of the people in the hall didn't fully comprehend the severity of the ceremony, but some of the oldest knew about the Murderous Aura Command.

An old crone walked forward with a cane shaped like a phoenix's head. Her body was covered in tattoos depicting cracks seen on a porcelain vase. Her voice trembled. "Your Majesty, is the situation that dire? We didn't even use it when the Dharma Sect almost invaded us."

"The Dharma Sect? They didn't even get past Qing Qiu. The situation today is not the same. The peace we enjoyed last time was earned from the sacrifices of Senior Li and the Chief of the Surveillance Bureau.

"Since the situation is so dire now, I will not hide it further. The Dharma Sect was nothing but a scout from our enemies!"

Everyone felt the crushing weight of Gao Zhijian's words. They still recalled how fierce their battle had been with the Dharma Sect.

If the Dharma Sect was only the scout, just how strong was the main force of their enemies?

Unrest spread amongst the people. Li Huowang stood forward to calm them down.

"Do not panic. We can win! They are not as strong as you think. If we unite and give it our all, we will prevail!"

"Daoist Li, who are you to speak to us like this?" The Ao Jing Sect's grand elder, Yan Jianxi, spoke up.

"Me? Who am I?" Li Huowang showed him the identity plate on his waist. "I am the Chief of the Liang Kingdom's Surveillance Bureau! What about it? Do I not have the right to talk here?"

Gao Zhijian didn't know about this. He and the others looked at the identity plate in Li Huowang's hand with shock.

The plate had been Xuan Pin's. Li Huowang took it from his corpse.

Li Huowang's voice rang with conviction. "There is no need to fear them! Their elephant is roughly the same size as ours! Use every technique, every hidden weapon, every treasure! Together, we will annihilate them!”

His words didn't resonate with the others, but with the emperors' guarantee, they had no choice but to admit that Li Huowang was the Chief of the Liang Kingdom's Surveillance Bureau.

It was clear to everyone what those words meant, as all the emperors had summoned them here.

It was do or die now.

Once the royal decree had been passed, the ministers and officials started working hard for the sake of the Murderous Aura Command.

While some evil sects chose not to help, they were sensible enough not to cause any trouble for the time being.

Li Huowang turned to Gao Zhijian. “Do you intend to expose everyone in this world to the murderous aura?”

“Everyone.” Gao Zhijian's voice allowed no room for doubt as he sat on his throne.

Li Huowang's voice trembled. “Including our juniors at Cowheart Village?”

The faces of Puppy, Yang Xiaohai, Zhao Wu, Sun Baolu, Lu Xiucui, and Chun Xiaoman flashed in Gao Zhijian's mind. However, as a good emperor, he still chose the most logical path. “Everyone.”

Bai Lingmiao and Lu Xiucui had both been exposed to murderous aura before, so Gao Zhijian knew what would happen.

If everyone in the world were exposed to the murderous aura, it would become a man-made disaster.

Li Huowang's didn't want that to happen, but he could not say anything. The world was in danger right now, so he had to use every method at his disposal. He could argue about it later.

Li Huowang whispered, “Don't use it right away. Use it only at the last possible moment to summon Jiang Xiangshou.”

He had finally acquired some helpers, which should have been good news for him. However, the price to be paid was too high.

“Of course. They are all my people. They are my mountains and my fields. I love them more than you.”

Li Huowang wanted to rebuke Gao Zhijian, but a woman's voice interjected, saying, “We won't be relying only on the people!”

Chapter 970 - Help

Li Huowang turned and saw Bai Lingmiao approaching them. She bowed to Gao Zhijian.

She now looked significantly better, as though nothing had happened.

“Your Majesty, please acknowledge the White Lotus Sect as the nation’s religion. The White Lotus Sect doesn’t just accept humans but also evil entities. They can all follow your command!”

Gao Zhijian looked at her solemnly before speaking slowly, saying, “Approved.”

“Thank you, your Majesty.”

Bai Lingmiao walked past Li Huowang and pulled him out of the hall.

“Evil entities worship the Heavenly Mater too? Since when? Can they withstand the murderous aura and help summon Jiang Xiangshou?”

Li Huowang hoped it was true. If so, his chances of victory would increase.

Bai Lingmiao did not answer him. Instead, she said something strange: “Li Sui can be saved.”

Li Huowang’s heart started to beat irregularly. “What?”

“I said Li Sui can be saved. Our Simings cannot do it, but that’s because we don’t have the Heavenly Dao of Revival. Fu Shengtian’s Simings might have it.”

Bai Lingmiao’s voice trembled with excitement as she revealed her plan. “As long as we rob their Heavenly Dao, we can bring Li Sui back! Not only that, we can bring back anyone we like!”

“Miaomiao, are you alright?” Instead of feeling joy, Li Huowang was worried.

“Me? I’m fine.”

“But you...” Li Huowang didn’t know how to explain it. Bai Lingmiao wanted the Heavenly Dao of Revival, but Li Huowang’s method of killing them outright was the safer plan.

Bai Lingmiao shook her head, tugging his robes with her small hands. “I’ve cried enough. It’s time to act. Don’t forget—I’m her mother, and I only have one daughter. I will take their Heavenly Dao to save Suisui, and I will kill anyone who dares harm her!”

Bai Lingmiao and the Second Deity growled simultaneously when they spat those words. The twin beasts had been angered.

“Suisui...” Li Huowang took out the clay figurine from his robes to inspect it before tucking it back again.

“You’re right. Crying won’t revive Suisui! We will kill them! We will bring Suisui back!”

Li Huowang hugged Bai Lingmiao and patted her back several times before releasing her. Their hearts were linked as one now.

The Murderous Aura Command was in motion. Weapons from fallen soldiers were collected and distributed to the commoners.

As more and more commoners were exposed to the murderous aura, the number of fighting incidents increased in Shangjing. Even the sky above Shangjing gradually became thick with a murderous aura.

This was just the start. Soon, the entirety of Shangjing, the Liang Kingdom, Qing Qiu, Hou Shu, and the others would be covered with murderous aura.

This was a suicide method. To defeat Fu Shengtian, they had to rely on Jiang Xiangshou.

Li Huowang stood in the fourth vault, reading the most classified documents of the Surveillance Bureau. He now had the authority to read everything here.

He wanted to know why Jiang Xiangshou was so strong.

Li Huowang was reading a book called The Leader’s Opera, which recorded information about Jiang Xiangshou.

According to the book, Jiang Xiangshou was different from the other Simings. It had no form, no thoughts, no sentience, and no desires. It existed wherever conflict arose, serving as a tool for others to wield.

Special Simings like it were rare, but not non-existent. The Immortal Heaven was one of them.

According to the records within the Surveillance Bureau, special Simings were either rarely ever worshiped or worshiped by almost everyone. However, most of them only worshipped the superficial part of the Siming.

Through the book, Li Huowang realized that Qing Wanglai's words weren't lies. It was real.

Qing Wanglai had once claimed to have sought out everyone he could, leaving only the unreachable or untraceable behind. He now realized what that meant—Qing Wanglai couldn't contact the special Simings at all.

"We can request for their help, but we have to fulfill their conditions..."

Li Huowang recalled when Jiang Xiangshou appeared. Even the bloodlust and anger in him spilled over and was out of his control.

"If I could use Jiang Xiangshou, that means I could also use the other special Simings by fulfilling their conditions too.

"Doesn't that mean our chances of winning would be greatly increased if we could bring them into our fold?"

Although the other side was merely a projection of the Simings, there were very few clues he could find. This meant that he had to find the clues on this side.

Li Huowang felt his heartbeat quicken. If they could secure their help, their chances of winning would be nearly guaranteed!

Just as Li Huowang asked the eunuchs who worshiped the God of Wealth to search for the necessary documents, he heard many footsteps behind him. Gao Zhijian entered with his entourage of consorts and eunuchs.

“Great timing. Help me contact the other Dragon Veins. They are very knowledgeable, and I wish to learn more about the other Simings!” Li Huowang said.

“Senior Li, we can delay that for a bit. I’m here because I found you a great helper.”

Li Huowang turned around and continued looking for the documents. “No need. I’m already at the sixth stage. I’m just one step away from becoming a Siming. Your helper might not be able to help me much.”

“That might not be the case.”

Numerous voices, each superimposed onto another, came from the back.

Li Huowang looked back with puzzlement and saw a massive wall of faces before him. They were white and covered with white tassels.

“The Lion Dance Palace?”

Li Huowang recognized them. They lived beneath Qing Qiu and cultivated the Dao of Fusion.

“The world is in danger. We can help you.” Just as the enormous, round faces of the Lion Dance Palace spoke, numerous organs covered in white tassels urged towards Li Huowang.

“Stop. I know of your methods. No need to try that.”

The Lion Dance Palace stepped back, but somehow, several eunuchs and consorts had already disappeared.

“Senior Li, how about it? With their help, your cultivation can grow stronger.”

“Is that so?” Li Huowang wasn’t interested. “Thank you, but what I need are ‘Lies.’ Find Shai Zi, and let me swallow him. You’d be able to help me that way.”

“Shai Zi...”

Gao Zhijian frowned before nodding. "I understand. I will send my people to locate Shai Zi."

Li Huowang didn't have much faith in Gao Zhijian's words. He knew that Shai Zi was not an easy opponent. If he were, they wouldn't have had such a hard time trying to kill him.

Shai Zi was still alive and was now helping Fu Shengtian's Simings. This was troublesome.

"We can set it aside for now. The world is in danger, and I need your help, Senior Li. Only you can do it."

Chapter 971 - Black

“What is it? I’m busy. If it’s nothing important, find someone else.” Li Huowang waved Gao Zhijian off without looking up and turned the page.

Since he couldn’t find anything useful about the Simings, he decided to focus on the books again. The more he understood about the Simings, the better his chances of winning.

“Senior Li, this is something you must do. We cannot go to the Tianchen Kingdom.”

Li Huowang slowly turned around and looked at Gao Zhijian. “Is this related to Zuoqiu Yong?”

Gao Zhijian nodded. “Yes. The Tianchen Kingdom cannot sit this out. Since he is the lord of the Tianchen Kingdom, he must also use the Murderous Aura Command when the world is in danger. The Tianchen Kingdom must work with us.”

Gao Zhijian spoke naturally, as if the people were his.

“Do you really think it would work? Do you really think the Tianchen Kingdom would activate the Murderous Aura Command? They are roughly the same size as the Qi Kingdom, although they do have more people. Do you think Zuoqiu Yong would believe you?”

Gao Zhijian shook his head.

“I don’t think my words will sway her, but you could convince her. Senior Li, the number of people in the Tianchen Kingdom is comparable to the past Qi Kingdom. We’ll have a better chance of winning if we also use the Murderous Aura Command on them.

“We want to win. Do you not? If we lose, the people in Tianchen Kingdom will all die too.”

Li Huowang closed his book and walked out of the vault silently. Arguing with Gao Zhijian now was pointless. Against the threat of Fu Shengtian's Simings, everyone either lived or died.

"I will talk to Zuoqiu Yong. They should still have some soldiers there."

Gao Zhijian bowed to Li Huowang. "Senior Li, thank you. I'm counting on you."

Li Huowang rolled his eyes before punching Gao Zhijian. "Stop trying to use me! You're starting to get on my nerves!"

Gao Zhijian raised his arm and stopped his guards and the eunuchs.

"Senior Li, it's as you've said. A good emperor has never been someone popular."

"You really want to be a good emperor, don't you? Fine, I'll take you to the Tianchen Kingdom! Go and talk to Zuoqiu Yong yourself! I won't do anything if she kills or maims you!"

Grabbing Gao Zhijian by the shoulder, Li Huowang teleported them from Shangjing in the Liang Kingdom to a forest in the Tianchen Kingdom.

Before them stretched a horizon dominated by a black mountain range.

"Senior Li," Gao Zhijian said, calm despite being thrown into a foreign land, "she won't harm me. Zuoqiu Yong knows that even as a Siming, she isn't safe from Fu Shengtian's forces. She'll ultimately agree.."

"Shh! Be quiet! Something's wrong!"

Li Huowang looked around and scanned his surroundings carefully.

The Tianchen Kingdom looked normal, but something felt weird to him. Something had changed.

"What's wrong? Did Fu Shengtian's Simings take over this place? Is there an ambush?"

Gao Zhijian immediately thought about the worst-case scenario.

“No...” Li Huowang suddenly focused on the mountains. He had a feeling that they weren’t mountains but a human. As far as he knew, the area around here should’ve been covered by trees and only trees. There wasn’t supposed to be a mountain range here.

“Let’s go!”

Li Huowang grabbed Gao Zhijian and shortened the distance between them and the mountain.

Li Huowang’s frown deepened as he drew nearer.

The black mountain was moving.

They reached the base of the mountain, and Li Huowang almost vomited from the ridiculous stench.

In front of him was an entire mountain of buzzing flies.

Black flies covered the massive body of Zuoqiu Yong. That was why she looked black from afar.

“What’s going on?!” Li Huowang shouted, startling the flies.

The swarm lifted into the air, revealing a sickening sight: a mountain of maggots burrowed into her decaying flesh.

Li Huowang didn’t want to believe it, but the truth was in front of him. Zuoqiu Yong, the Siming that controlled the Heavenly Dao of Growth, was now enveloped in the Heavenly Dao of Rot.

She died, just like an unfunny joke. Her massive mountain-like corpse was rotting.

“Impossible!” Li Huowang took several steps back, his eye fixed on Zuoqiu Yong’s corpse. “We won! How could Zuoqiu Yong die?”

Li Huowang would never learn how she died. He had defeated Fu Shengtian’s Simings and even killed some of them.

“What’s going on?”

Li Huowang looked at Gao Zhijian, but he knew as much as Li Huowang. Gao Zhijian had no idea what had happened.

Li Huowang glanced at Gao Zhijian, but Gao Zhijian was equally clueless. He had no idea what had happened.

Xuan Pin, the one person who might have had an idea of what happened, was already dead. Li Huowang was next in line, and he was privy to the secrets of the Surveillance Bureau. If even he didn't know what happened, no one did.

Li Huowang plunged into Zuoqiu Yong's corpse to search for clues. He started with her brain and then moved through her body, scrutinizing every detail.

It was a long time before Li Huowang exited the corpse. Gao Zhijian rushed to meet him. "Senior Li, what happened here?"

"The Heavenly Dao of Growth..." Li Huowang said, shaking his head. "It's gone. I looked for it, but it's gone!"

Did Fu Shengtian ambush Zuoqiu Yong and take away the Heavenly Dao of Growth?

Li Huowang shook his head. No, that can't be right. If he forcefully took it, it wouldn't have been so discreet. This is a Heavenly Dao we are talking about.

Taking away the Heavenly Dao of Growth would have caused a natural disaster. The Heavenly Dao of Growth would have disappeared entirely from the five worlds.

However, both the Qi Kingdom and the Tianchen Kingdom are still experiencing growth. That means the Heavenly Dao is still in the Baiyu Capital.

Chapter 972 - Change

Gao Zhijian looked on anxiously, observing the confusion etched on Li Huowang's face. Zuoqiu Yong had been one of their most valuable allies.

Zuoqiu Yong was a powerful Siming, yet he was now dead without any warning. This was a perilous situation.

"Senior Li, send me back quickly!"

"Wait! Just give me a moment! I know who to ask! I need answers."

He sat down, gripping his head as if he was trying to crush it. He began to chant, "I am at the seventh stage. I am at the seventh stage. I am at the seventh stage!"

Reaching the seventh stage this time proved to be much more difficult than before.

He didn't know how long had passed, but when he opened his eyes, he saw Qing Wanglai and the others staring at him.

"Three Ancient Ones! You control the Heavenly Dao of Secrets. Tell me how Zuoqiu Yong died. Where did the Heavenly Dao of Growth go?"

Qing Wanglai did not answer him. Instead, Qing Wanglai whispered to Zhao Shuangdian.

Li Huowang realized something was wrong when he saw Qing Wanglai's reaction and the look on the others' faces.

He looked down and froze in shock.

"Why are you tying me up? Let me go! What the hell are you doing?"

It felt like he had returned to the time when he was ill. Bound so tightly that he couldn't even move a finger, Li Huowang's panic shifted from Zuoqiu Yong's death to his own predicament.

“Just sit still!” Ba Nanxu said, slapping the back of Li Huowang’s head. “We had to tie you up! You kept spouting crazy stuff and even ran out to steal a child’s book to read it. We finally got you out, and now you want to go back to the prison again?”

“What?”

Li Huowang was in disbelief, and a terrifying thought popped into his mind. “Did my illness relapse? Am I not able to tell the real side from the fake one?”

Strapped to the bed, he had no choice but to accept the possibility. It was as if he had returned to the past, with everything he did on the other side being mirrored on the other. All because of that one button.

“Is it because I separated myself too clearly this time?”

Li Huowang remembered how he had once accepted Yi Donglai’s treatment. He remembered the two different sets of memories in his brain. The more he pondered, the worse his headache became.

“No! I can’t merge them! I need to separate them!”

He hadn’t expected Fu Shengtian’s methods to be so weird. To think that the button was like a poison that could slow him down like this.

Li Huowang was Ji Zai, the Siming controlling the Heavenly Dao of Bewilderment. He had to maintain it at all times, but Fu Shengtian’s way of undoing it was surprising.

With war on the horizon, Li Huowang knew he had to regain control. If he couldn’t, confronting Fu Shengtian would be nothing short of suicide.

“What’s wrong? What happened on the other side?”

Zhao Shuangdian asked. Her serious expression clearly indicated that she didn’t think Li Huowang’s illness was regular.

“It’s Fu Shengtian’s attack! That old beggar’s button... Even though it’s dead, its attack is still affecting me. I never thought it would affect me for so long.”

Li Huowang told Zhao Shuangdian about his current situation and Zuoqiu Yong’s death.

After grasping his situation, Zhao Shuangdian began calculating something on her laptop.

The others helped untie Li Huowang, realizing he was coherent again.

Li Huowang’s heart remained heavy. He could feel himself slipping further into his past self “Zhijian, find something to tie me up, just like how we did last time.”

He could see Gao Zhijian, but his figure was blurry, and it continued to dissipate.

Gao Zhijian found some vines and bound Li Huowang tightly. Only then did Li Huowang breathe a sigh of relief and turn to Zhao Shuangdian. “How about it? Did you calculate anything?”

Zhao Shuangdian stopped tapping her keyboard, showing no sign of agreement or disagreement. “I’ve calculated something about the Zuoqiu Yong you’ve mentioned. I will handle it.”

However, Li Huowang had already set aside the issue of Zuoqiu Yong’s death. He was more worried about his predicament.

Zuoqiu Yong was dead, but he was still alive. He didn’t know what kind of Siming Zhao Shuangdian was, but since she said she would take care of it, then he would just leave it to her.

“Alright, you will deal with Zuoqiu Yong. But what about me? Could you solve it?”

Zhao Shuangdian answered him with a question instead. “What did you do to solve it last time?”

“Last time? I accepted Yi Donglai’s treatment.”

“Then you would have to do it again. Since he could treat you last time, he can treat you this time too. Go and find him.”

Li Huowang frowned. “I know he can treat me, but would he help me this time?”

He showed her his broken arm.

Despite the bandage on his arm, the loss of his hand was still very clear.

Li Huowang could already envision Yi Donglai's reaction to his injuries—he'd probably be dismissed as a madman again. He would likely believe that Li Huowang was beyond any hope of recovery.

“It's not a big deal to ask someone for help. We can help you form a plan,” Wu Qi said.

Before she could continue, Ba Nanxu said, “Does he have a family member? Can we kidnap someone and threaten him?”

“What are you talking about? Are we kidnappers? Do you want to attract the attention of the Laws?”

Li Huowang huffed. Yi Donglai was helping him out of kindness. How could they treat Yi Donglai like an enemy?

Li Huowang pondered before explaining his plan. “I can try to lure him here to meet everyone. Maybe he would understand us and know what's happening. I trust him, and I know he will find us.”

Yi Donglai had always thought that Li Huowang's other world was a hallucination. If he could show Yi Donglai proof, Li Huowang might be able to convince Yi Donglai.

Chapter 973 - Yi Donglai

Li Huowang was reluctant to implicate Yi Donglai, remembering his past help.

Still, there was no choice now. If he failed, everything would be destroyed.

He was certain Yi Donglai would assist them once he understood their predicament.

Having made up his mind, Li Huowang stood up and turned to Zhao Shuangdian. "Let me know the moment you find out anything about Zuoqiu Yong."

Li Huowang then departed for the underground garage.

Yang Na followed until Qing Wanglai called out, "Where are you going?"

"Where else? I'm going to the White Tower Prison to find Yi Donglai. I will bring him here so you guys can explain everything to him," Li Huowang replied.

"How will you go there?"

"With the motorbike."

"You want to ride a bike with just a single arm?" Qing Wanglai pointed at Li Huowang's broken arm. "Never mind that. Let me help you."

Qing Wanglai took out his phone and started dialing.

As Qing Wanglai started talking, Li Huowang reassured Yang Na, trying to get her to relax.

"Hello? Boss? Hi, how are you? Who am I? Ah, have you forgotten me? I'm Cui Feng. Yes, that same Cui Feng..."

Li Huowang frowned. Qing Wanglai was leveraging his connections again, though whether it would work remained uncertain.

After speaking to the person on the other side of the phone, Qing Wanglai hung up and reassured Li Huowang, saying, “Done. I just obtained Yi Donglai’s address.”

“Why do we need to go to his house? I want him to meet everyone here so you can explain to him!”

“Then we can follow you, but he cannot come here.”

“Why?”

Qing Wanglai reclined further on the sofa. “Since Yi Donglai can treat you... what projection do you think he is? Don’t trust others too much. He might not be aligned with us.”

“Yi Donglai? Projection?”

Li Huowang shook his head. “He’s not involved with us. Maybe he’s not a projection.”

“No. Everything on earth is a projection of something. It’s just that most people don’t realize it. Do you know what I’m afraid of? I’m afraid that he’s the projection of the Laws.”

Li Huowang realized what was going on. Qing Wanglai’s worldview contradicted itself, but now wasn’t the time to argue. He could set it aside as long as he received treatment from Yi Donglai.

“Fine, you’re right. Still, even if he’s the projection of the Laws, we have to find him. He’s the only one who can treat me, and Fu Shengtian’s attack could come at any moment. We need to move now.”

They set off immediately. Wu Qi’s RV, Qing Wanglai’s luxury car, and Zhao Shuangdian’s car all departed simultaneously towards Yi Donglai’s house.

During the drive, Li Huowang contemplated what to say and which evidence to present to convince Yi Donglai.

While he was thinking, the three cars stopped in front of a residential area. It was called Dragon Lake Residential Area.

“Block 16, second tower, 18th floor, unit 1803. He’s off duty today, so he should be at home.”

Qing Wanglai stated Yi Donglai's address with a scary accuracy.

Putting on caps and face masks, they avoided security cameras as they entered the building.

The elevator was cramped since everyone entered at the same time. Li Huowang stood in the corner, protecting Yang Na with his broken arm.

Breaking the silence, Zhao Shuangdian remarked, "Their tactics were tricky this time, but it proves your claims were true. They're targeting you now. However, you don't need to worry. We know how special you are, and we'll protect you. You're not alone."

Despite her words, Li Huowang wasn't reassured. He looked at her carefully before averting his gaze. Zhao Shuangdian's actions on the boat had revealed her true nature. No matter how kind her words sounded, he couldn't forget what he'd seen.

Compared to Zhao Shuangdian, Qing Wanglai was much more straightforward.

"Relax. You're a vital tool for fighting other projections. We won't let you break so easily. We'll fix you up as best as we can."

Li Huowang looked at Qing Wanglai and sneered. "Aren't you free from the burden of being compassionate?"

Li Huowang still couldn't figure out why Zhuge Yuan, a compassionate person, was Qing Wanglai's Twisted One. Qing Wanglai was the exact opposite.

Ding. The elevator opened, interrupting his train of thought. He walked out with the others before finding Yi Donglai's apartment.

He rang the doorbell.

Yi Donglai opened the door as expected.

Li Huowang found it strange to see Yi Donglai in casual clothes, as it was only the second time he had encountered him outside the White Tower Prison. In the prison, Yi Donglai had always donned a white doctor's coat.

The apartment was minimalist, dominated by gray and blue tones. The shoe rack by the door suggested he lived alone.

“Li... Li Huowang?”

Yi Donglai could not believe his eyes. He never imagined that Li Huowang, a missing hospital patient, would appear at his doorstep.

“Doctor Yi, I need your help. I’ve relapsed and need your treatment again,” Li Huowang said earnestly.

Yi Donglai laughed. “So now you realize you’re ill? That you need treatment? I never thought I’d hear those words from you!”

He grabbed Li Huowang and took out his phone. “Hey, it’s me! Call Mr. Yang to bring an ambulance...”

Qing Wanglai snatched Yi Donglai’s phone before he could finish his sentence. The others entered Yi Donglai’s house and started inspecting everything. They turned off every single electrical appliance that could potentially send out messages.

They checked every nook and cranny to ensure they didn't miss anything.

Zhao Shuangdian even took out her laptop and started calculating something.

Forced onto the sofa, Yi Donglai watched them anxiously.

Li Huowang poured a cup of water and gave it to Yi Donglai. He then pointed at Qing Wanglai. “Doctor Yi, that person is Qing Wanglai. He’s the postdoc student that I told you about.”

Chapter 974 - Convince

Inside Yi Donglai's house, Li Huowang recounted everything that had happened to him, insisting it wasn't just in his head.

"See, they aren't hallucinations. They are real. You can touch them!"

With a cup in hand, Yi Donglai surveyed the room. "Where did you meet them?"

"Doctor Yi, I've told you before. They're the Simings from Baiyu Capital! Have you forgotten? I told you they existed! There really is another world."

Yi Donglai looked around. "Who's the leader here?"

"I am," Zhao Shuangdian replied.

Yi Donglai narrowed his eyes. "Do you think it's amusing to manipulate a mentally ill man? Do you believe that if someone with his condition kills, they won't face any consequences? Is that why you're using him to kill people?"

"Let me make this clear. According to the law, each one of you would be held responsible. Any crime committed by Li Huowang would fall on you!"

"Wait! They're not deceiving me!" Li Huowang protested, but Yi Donglai remained unconvinced.

"Li Huowang, my thesis is public. Anyone could use it to impersonate your hallucinations and deceive you. They're using you!"

"You think he's Qing Wanglai? He's not! He's just some fraud calling himself that! Qing Wanglai is just a name—anyone could claim to be him!"

"No! That's not true! He's the real Qing Wanglai!" Li Huowang pressed his hands to his temples. He didn't know how to explain it.

“Why are you having trouble with it? Why do you need to convince him? Just threaten him so he can start treating you.”

Ba Nanxu unsheathed a dagger, driving it into the table before Yi Donglai. Her tattooed finger jabbed toward Li Huowang. “Treat him, or we’ll skin you alive.”

Yi Donglai adjusted his glasses, shaking his head in disbelief.

Ba Nanxu wasn’t bluffing. She picked up the dagger and slammed its hilt into Yi Donglai’s little finger.

“What are you doing?!” Li Huowang stood up, shoving her away.

He examined Yi Donglai’s hand. His nail was nearly detached, and his bruised finger was bleeding heavily.

Undeterred, Ba Nanxu stepped forward again. “Treat him, or I’ll break every finger and toe you’ve got.”

Yi Donglai hissed and spoke in disbelief, saying, “Treat him? You want to use him while asking me to treat him? Isn’t that contradictory?”

“No,” Zhao Shuangdian replied calmly. “We don’t need you to cure him entirely. Just treat him enough to get results, like you did before. We’ll pay whatever it takes.”

Yi Donglai’s phone dinged. He picked it up and saw a bunch of zeros on the message. He was utterly stunned.

He looked at the ragtag group before him, their mismatched appearances undermining any sense of organization.

“Doctor Yi, please, I’m begging you,” Li Huowang said. “This is serious. Everything I’ve told you is true!”

Li Huowang tried to explain, but Yi Donglai couldn’t believe it. “Li Huowang, you’re my patient. I know your history better than anyone. You don’t have to explain it to me.”

“No, it’s not the same. I wasn’t a Siming last time! Fu Shengtian didn’t attack us last time either! Everything has changed now!”

“Oh? Fine, I can trust you, but on one condition. Repeat everything you've just said to your parents. If you can do that, I'll trust you."

"Why are you dragging them in? They are not involved in this!"

Li Huowang recalled something and pulled Yang Na beside him. "Ask her! She knows that I'm telling the truth!"

Yi Donglai sighed when he saw Yang Na nodding. "You two are too young. There are a lot of bad people outside. Don't get tricked by them."

Zhao Shuangdian spoke up after seeing that Yi Donglai still didn't trust them. "Doctor Yi, let's be rational. If you think we are using Li Huowang's identity as a mental patient to do our deeds, why do we want you to treat him? Isn't it better for us the crazier he is?"

"Also, what kind of crime organization would give you so much money without any conditions?"

Yi Donglan couldn't answer. Regardless, he still had reservations and couldn't believe them.

Zhao Shuangdian took two steps back and touched her earlobes.

Ba Nanxu broke the silence, her forked tongue flicking at a photo frame. "Doctor Yi, this little girl must mean a lot to you, right?"

Everyone turned and saw Ba Nanxu licking a photo frame. In the photo, they could see Yi Donglai smiling with a young girl holding a balloon. The girl was about eight years old.

"What are you doing?!" Yi Donglai's voice cracked with panic.

Ba Shengqing took Yi Donglai's phone and handed it to his sister.

"She's important to you, isn't she?" Ba Nanxu smirked. "I doubt it'd take long to find information on her through your phone."

"Fine! You win!" Yi Donglai's composure shattered, his face pale. He didn't know who they were, but he didn't dare to take any chances. "What do you want me to do?"

Ba Nanxu threw the photo frame to the ground, causing it to shatter into countless pieces. "Treat that damned crazy bastard."

"Fine! I'll do it. I'll do it."

Ba Nanxu scoffed and looked at everyone else. "Are you guys so free that you could slowly talk it out? You should just be as straightforward as me."

Li Huowang felt guilty because they were threatening Yi Donglai, but the situation was dire. There was no time to waste. He needed to get treatment now.

"Sorry, Doctor Yi. Once everything is over, I will come and apologize to you formally."

Li Huowang approached Yi Donglai to receive his treatment.

Chapter 975 - Treatment

Li Huowang took a deep breath and looked at Yi Donglai with anticipation. He needed the treatment immediately.

Li Huowang couldn't see the blurry Gao Zhijian anymore. His situation was critical.

Yi Donglai glanced around at everyone and then sat before Li Huowang. "Little Li, tell me everything you've experienced, and don't leave out any details. To cure you, I need to know everything."

Li Huowang nodded. "Once I received your treatment, I became Ji Zai, but it wasn't as easy as that. The me from the other world was real too.

"I was split in two. Over there, I am my past self, while here, I am my future self."

Yi Donglai raised a hand to stop Li Huowang. "Wait, I need you to elaborate. I'm not sure I understand what you're talking about."

"To put it plainly, I'm the Siming in charge of Bewilderment. I'm supposed to always remain bewildered, but Fu Shengtian's Siming stopped me from doing so. I'm the only one who can reset time without forgetting what happened before. That's why they are targeting me."

Yi Donglai frowned as he listened to Li Huowang's explanation. He tried his best to piece the information together.

At first, he struggled to make sense of it, but slowly, the threads of Li Huowang's experiences began to weave into a coherent picture.

Instead of diving straight into treatment, Yi Donglai stood and rummaged through his home, gathering an assortment of objects: an apple, a bowl, a fork, and a succulent from his balcony.

“What kind of treatment is this? Don’t think you can fool us. If you try anything, we’ll make sure you regret it,” Ba Nanxu said, waving her dagger across Yi Donglai’s face.

“You’re free to doubt me, but these items are essential for the treatment. Feel free to find another doctor if you like. However, I’m certain I’m the only one who can treat Li Huowang.”

Yi Donglai was abnormally adamant when it came to his specialty.

“You have guts. I think I like you a little.” Ba Nanxu stepped back and stood beside Zhao Shuangdian, who was busy typing on her laptop.

Li Huowang was also curious about the purpose of the items Yi Donglai had gathered.

Yi Donglai, on the other hand, stared at Li Huowang while he placed the items down.

Yi Donglai held onto Li Huowang’s hand, which was missing a couple of fingernails. He looked at Li Huowang with disappointment when he saw his missing arm and eye. ”Li Huowang, did you find them to play the bad cop while you play the good cop? Would you threaten me with the same method if they weren’t here?

“I’m already regretting taking your case. Locking you away forever might’ve been the smarter option.”

Li Huowang was clearly displeased with Yi Donglai’s words. However, as he remembered the countless soldiers who had lost their lives and Xuan Pin’s sacrifice, he clenched his teeth. “Yes, you’re right! I cannot lose. If I lose, everything’s over!”

“Very well.” Yi Donglai nodded. He seemed unsurprised by Li Huowang’s reaction. “Li Huowang, look at me. Look into my eyes.”

Li Huowang complied.

“Ji Zai,” Yi Donglai spoke slowly, “do you know who I am? Do you know why I helped you and turned you into a Siming?”

Li Huowang shook his head, uncertainty clouding his expression.

Suddenly, Yi Donglai stood, holding the apple and succulent up. "That's because I am Da Nuo! I am the five worlds themselves!"

"Pfft!" A loud snicker broke the tension.

Both of them turned to see Ba Nanxu. "Sorry, please continue."

Ba Nanxu laughed when she saw their faces. She turned around, but her shoulders were still shaking from her snickering.

Yi Donglai resumed his treatment plan. "Ji Zai, look closely. I am the world itself—I am the Grand Siming!"

Li Huowang hesitated, his expression doubtful. "Are you sure? Are you really Da Nuo? But Da Nuo has been crazy since the beginning!"

"Hahahaha!" Ba Nanxu's shrill laughter interrupted them again. She rested her head on her brother's shoulder and laughed so hard that she almost fainted.

Yi Donglai put down the items in his hands, visibly upset. "I can't continue my treatment like this. I need a quiet environment to do this."

Zhao Shuangdian kicked Ba Nanxu as a reminder. "Continue. This is just an accident."

Yi Donglai looked around and sighed. "It's too spacious here. Let's move to my study."

Yi Donglai picked up the apple and succulent, while Li Huowang picked up the fork and bowl. Then, they both walked towards the study.

Yi Donglai suddenly placed the apple and succulent in Li Huowang's arms. "Go ahead to the study. I need to use the restroom."

Just as Yi Donglai had entered, Ba Shengqing followed him inside to monitor him.

Li Huowang curiously held onto the four items. Is Yi Donglai really Da Nuo? If so, what do the four items I'm holding represent? What did he give me? Wait, what if he's not Da Nuo and is just trying to treat me? And if he's not Da Nuo, whose projection is he? How is he going to treat me?

Yi Donglai's study was approximately twenty square feet in size. The left wall was adorned with a collection of medical books, while a khaki-colored couch could be spotted on the right. The room had a minimalist aesthetic, with no other furniture or decorations.

Li Huowang was still troubled by the question he had. He's treating me now. If I want it to work like last time, does that mean I have to trust his words?

Despite waiting a considerable time, no one else entered the study. He looked up to find that they were still outside. "What's going on?"

Li Huowang placed all four items on the sofa and reached for the entrance.

Just as he got up, he saw them entering the study.

A faint voice could be heard the moment Yi Donglai and Li Huowang brushed shoulders.

"Li... quick... wake..."

Chapter 976 - Switch

“Li... wake... up...”

Li Huowang's trembled all over. He stumbled backward, his eyes wide with disbelief as though confronted by a monstrous beast. His gaze darted to Yi Donglai, panic written across his face. “What did you just say?!”

“What?” Yi Donglai frowned, confused by Li Huowang's outburst.

“It wasn't you? Didn't you just speak?”

“No,” Yi Donglai replied firmly.

“If it wasn't you, then there's only one explanation. That voice... it was Gao Zhijian's! This is bad. He's in danger!” Li Huowang exclaimed, his voice rising sharply.

“Dr. Yi! Think of something! Hurry, find a way to send me back! Gao Zhijian is the Dragon Vein, and he's my junior! He can't be in danger!” Desperation gripped Li Huowang as he lunged forward, grabbing Yi Donglai by the collar.

“I haven't even started treating you yet! How can I make you experience delusions again?!” Yi Donglai staggered back with a trace of fear in his eyes.

Li Huowang stood anxiously, his mind racing for a solution.

Suddenly, he stopped and shouted, “I don't care who you are! If you dare touch the Dragon Vein of Great Liang. Try it if you have the guts!”

“Hahaha~” A piercing laugh echoed, causing Li Huowang's ears to throb painfully.

However, Li Huowang ignored the pain entirely. He looked up at Zhao Shuangdian. “Check your computer! See if it's someone from Fu Shengtian attacking!”

Zhao Shuangdian slowly shook her head. “Senior Li, I’m fine. No one is threatening me.”

Li Huowang froze and stared blankly at Zhao Shuangdian.

“No threats? There’s no one from the Tianchen Kingdom threatening Gao Zhijian right now. Then whose voice was that just now?”

Li Huowang looked back hesitantly at Yi Donglai. Was it his voice? Why would he want to wake me up? Could it be that I’m not actually awake right now?

Or... could it be that the world I’m perceiving now is fake?

“Wake...” The harsh voice returned, causing Li Huowang to wince in pain as he clutched his ears.

Ba Nanxu laughed again, sounding extremely unpleasant. Li Huowang had never seen her laugh so much before.

“No... Something’s wrong! Why is she laughing? Ba-Hui, you who controls pain, why are you laughing?! What are you laughing at?!” Li Huowang lunged forward, pinning her down.

“What are you doing? You’re going mad.”

“Let her go!”

“So troublesome.”

The others rushed to restrain him, struggling to pull him away. But as he stared into Ba Nanxu’s face, a realization struck him like lightning. “I understand now! I finally know why you’re laughing! Somewhere, something extremely painful is bringing you joy! Ba-Hui, I understand you! Because I used to do the same thing!”

The kind of agony that could make Ba-Hui laugh like this was no ordinary pain—it was something unimaginable.

Ba Nanxu didn’t seem angry at being pinned down. She merely smirked, her laughter taunting him. “Hahaha, trying to entertain me? You’re just a high school student, so that’s a tall order.”

“Cut the crap! What are you doing? Answer me! What happened, and where? Where is this pain coming from?!”

Li Huowang was about to look around. However, the entire study and everyone in it turned into piles of sand, scattering across the floor.

Gao Zhijian stood nearby, staring at the frantic Li Huowang with wide eyes. “Senior Li... are you okay?”

He was back. Somehow, the scene had switched again.

“Shh... wait a second... Let me think! Li Huowang's expression showed torment. He raised both hands and repeatedly hit his own head, trying to use the pain to clear his mind.

As his head began to bleed, his figure flickered and disappeared, only to reappear before Gao Zhijian once again.

“Where are the fifteen Dragon Veins now? They haven’t been sent away yet, right?!”

“Not yet. Senior Li, only you can deliver them. They’re still coiled at the imperial temple. Why are you asking about the Dragon Veins?”

“I’m going to the Baiyu Capital! I need to figure out what’s going on here!” Li Huowang shouted hysterically. He grabbed Gao Zhijian by the shoulders and, with one swift step, returned to the imperial city of the Great Liang.

They were now before the imperial temple. Li Huowang slammed his hands against the ground and roared.

A deafening crash followed, and an enormous bronze tree erupted from the earth, shattering the temple as it rose. The writhing Dragon Veins were hung around it.

Six arms grew from Li Huowang.

He chanted and began to activate the Dragon-Slaying Immortal-Killing Array.

The invisible Dragon Qi swirled around him, gradually being absorbed into his body. The Dragon Qi had once transformed everything it touched into dragons. Now, it had no effect on Li Huowang, who was very proficient in his “Truth” cultivation.

With a powerful stomp, Li Huowang shot toward the heavens while surrounded by Dragon Qi. He pierced through the clouds and the stars beyond, breaking into the outer world.

Strange, indescribable, and grotesque creatures emerged from the vastness of space as he journeyed among the stars.

When Li Huowang arrived, these chaotic beings all turned to look at him.

However, they seemed to sense something and quickly vanished. A colorless jade tablet was suspended in the void, drawing in the chaotic beings.

The tablet seemed to be tethered to something deep in the extreme darkness. The tablet rose and fell as those formless beings writhed and flowed.

Through its doorway, Li Huowang saw something moving inside the Baiyu Capital. Many things were moving. The Simings of Baiyu Capital were all there!

Wrapped in Dragon Qi, Li Huowang gritted his teeth and charged inside.

However, to his shock, as he passed through the hole in the jade tablet, he came out the other side. What?! How can this be?!

Suspended in mid-air, Li Huowang looked at the massive, mountain-like Ox Tail Gate before him. He could not believe that there was now a day when he couldn't enter.

He had been able to enter when he had followed Dan Yangzi, but he was now barred from entering.

"Let me in! I'm Ji Zai!" Li Huowang roared, then charged toward the Ox Tail Gate again.

This time, just as he was about to enter again, everything around him became transparent. A strange sense of stasis enveloped his entire self.

Li Huowang once more found himself ejected from the other side of the Ox Tail Gate.

Chapter 977 - Qing

Li Huowang turned around after going back and forth several times. The massive Ox Tail Gate floated in the air, unchanged.

Li Huowang didn't try again. He finally understood. It wasn't that he couldn't enter, but rather that someone was deliberately preventing him from going in. Something was happening inside the Baiyu Capital.

Who is it? Is it the Siming from Fu Shengtian who came over to ambush me? Li Huowang shook his head, quickly dismissing the idea. If a Siming from Fu Shengtian were inside the Baiyu Capital, the Simings there wouldn't have time to sit idly by and watch him.

Could it be one of the Simings inside the Baiyu Capital? But who could it be, and what exactly are they trying to do?

After pondering for a moment, he suddenly came up with an idea. He looked at the massive jade gate and shouted, "Zhao Shuangdian! Qing Wanglai! Can you hear me? I'm talking to you now!

"Don't reply! I don't know what you're saying right now! What I need is for you to watch each other closely. Pay attention to any unusual behavior! I need to figure out who's stopping me from entering the Baiyu Capital!"

To avoid misunderstandings, he quickly added, "Don't get me wrong. I'm not suspecting you. I'm just using the process of elimination. If you're not the problem, then one of the other Simings in the Baiyu Capital has to be blocking me!

"Help me this time if you want me to help you in the future!"

Li Huowang took a deep breath and waited silently for a few seconds. Then, he dashed toward the Baiyu Capital again.

This time, just as he was about to make it inside, that strange sensation of stasis reappeared.

Feeling himself slipping through again, he shouted, “Keep an eye on everyone else! Find out who’s messing with me!”

The feeling of being held back vanished, and he finally broke into the Baiyu Capital.

The area around him instantly transformed into a kaleidoscope of marvelous and shifting scenes.

There were more than a dozen enormous figures, each as massive as a mountain. They were melting, twisting and writhing in agony as their haunting wails filled the air.

Even as their flesh and forms continually liquefied, they somehow managed to heal themselves, enduring unimaginable pain.

“Zuoqiu Yong?! Wasn’t he dead?” Li Huowang quickly realized that it was Zuoqiu Yong’s ten emotions and eight sufferings.

Zuoqiu Yong’s physical shell lay rotting on the ground. The real Zuoqiu Yong had long been dragged into the Baiyu Capital.

Zuoqiu Yong’s form had already been massive, but now there were eighteen of him. They tangled together, twisting and melting into a monstrous mass that resembled a molten, flesh-covered planet.

Zuoqiu Yong wailed as his ten emotions and eight sufferings slowly melted away. Li Huowang finally understood. Ba-Hui was reveling in Zuoqiu Yong’s suffering. Only the torment of a Siming could make her laugh uncontrollably.

Zuoqiu Yong’s figure continued melting as wisps of white substance filtered out of him and gradually dissipated into the air.

That substance was unique. However, Li Huowang recognized it immediately since he was a Siming himself—it was the Heavenly Dao of Growth.

Although the space around him seemed empty, it was clear that something had ambushed Zuoqiu Yong.

Now, It was trying to seize the Heavenly Dao of Growth.

No! I must help Zuoqiu Yong! Li Huowang rushed toward him without further thought.

As he ran, he shouted to the others, “Can’t you see the enemy? What are you doing?! Fight back!”

As Li Huowang neared Zuoqiu Yong, he felt something brush against him in the empty space around him. Reaching out instinctively, he grasped at the sensation—a fleeting, hair-like feeling slipping through his fingers.

At that moment, a shadowy figure shot out from the side with an afterimage. It crashed into Li Huowang, sending him flying out of the Baiyu Capital and back into the star-filled sky.

Before he could react, the world around Li Huowang shifted again. He was back in Yi Donglai’s study, with everyone staring at him.

Ba-Hui’s piercing laughter continued, but Li Huowang fixed his gaze on Qing Wanglai.

He raised his right hand, the sensation of touching something still lingering. “You may have stopped me, but I touched you. Three Pure Ones! It was you! You did it!”

“Li Huowang, what’s wrong with you? You can’t be like this right now,” Qing Wanglai said with concern.

“Don’t play dumb! I saw it clearly—it was you! You killed Zuoqiu Yong, and you’re trying to steal his Heavenly Dao of Growth! I couldn’t see you, but I felt you!”

“Qing Wanglai! What are you trying to do?! You already control the Heavenly Dao of Secrets, so why are you after Zuoqiu Yong’s Heavenly Dao of Growth?!”

“Aren’t you supposed to be smart?! Fu Shengtian is watching us, yet you’re stirring up internal strife at a time like this!”

Qing Wanglai pushed up his glasses and looked at Yi Donglai with dissatisfaction. “Dr. Yi, what did you do to him? Did you feel threatened by us? Are you trying to sow discord with some psychological trick?”

Pulling out a handgun from his pocket, he continued, “I’m telling you, it won’t work. And if Li Huowang doesn’t get better today, I’m afraid things won’t end well.”

Li Huowang’s face twisted with anger. He stepped forward, shielding Yi Donglai. “Stop trying to change the subject! Qing Wanglai, you owe me an explanation!”

Li Huowang had already suspected Qing Wanglai was up to something. Qing Wanglai had hardly done anything during their fights with Fu Shengtian.

Li Huowang previously believed that Qing Wanglai was incompetent. Now, he was more worried that he had secretly joined forces with Fu Shengtian long ago.

“Li Huowang’s completely lost it. Let’s tie him up. Zhao Lei, Sister Chen, give me a hand.”

As Qing Wanglai moved forward with the others, Yang Na stepped in front of Li Huowang, knife in hand.

Zhao Shuangdian, holding a laptop, joined her as the second line of defense. “Qing Wanglai, I’m also curious about Li Huowang’s questions.”

Qing Wanglai smiled helplessly. “Seriously, Zhao Shuangdian? Don’t tell me you actually believe him.”

Zhao Shuangdian looked at Li Huowang and nodded. “Yes, I believe him. At the very least, the information he provided adds up. On the other hand, I can’t see through you.”

Chapter 978 - Questioning

Zhao Shuangdian and Qing Wanglai faced each other, their respective followers standing firm behind them. The atmosphere in the study grew tense.

As an outsider, Yi Donglai hesitated as he watched the situation unfold. He seemed to be contemplating the implications of what was happening before him.

Qing Wanglai suddenly chuckled and turned to Zhao Shuangdian. "I have my secrets, and I am within my rights not to share them. I suggest we set this matter aside for now. After all, no matter who dies, it will only weaken us in future battles.

"Zhao Shuangdian, don't forget about our previous collaboration. Let's not jeopardize the bigger picture over a minor, unsubstantiated issue, shall we?"

Zhao Shuangdian remained silent, as if weighing something in her mind.

Since she didn't speak, Li Huowang stepped forward. "You didn't just kill Zuoqiu Yong, did you? Wasn't the death of Qian Fu, the Siming of Death, also related to you?"

Li Huowang approached Qing Wanglai and locked gazes with him. "You're also after the Heavenly Dao of Death, aren't you? Qian Fu was on your side, but you didn't hesitate to take action just for the Heavenly Dao.

"Qing Wanglai, you're truly cold-blooded.

"Unfortunately for you, Qian Fu wasn't as foolish as you thought. When Zhao Shuangdian came to help, he passed the Heavenly Dao of Death to the Heavenly Mater!" Li Huowang said, gripping Yang Na's hand tightly.

"Three Pure Ones, how greedy can you be? Why do you want everything? What are you planning to do with all these Heavenly Daos? Whose side are you really on?"

Qing Wanglai slightly lowered his head, his glasses reflecting the dim light and obscuring his eyes. "I'm naturally on our side, no doubt about that. However, I have plans that I can't share with you."

"Why? I just want to know why! Do you always talk in riddles because you control the Heavenly Dao of Secrets? The enemy is at the gates, and you're still hiding things!"

"Because I don't trust you," Qing Wanglai replied. "Why should I? You're a madman."

The words struck Li Huowang, leaving him frozen.

"Haha... you don't trust me..." Li Huowang shook his head, slowly backing away. "You don't trust me... I should have known..."

"That's right, I don't trust you. Satisfied now?" Qing Wanglai asked with a smile.

"I have my own plans. Besides, the only reason we're even working together is because of the circumstances, isn't it? It makes sense that I wouldn't share my plans with you.

"Besides, now that you've joined Zhao Shuangdian's side, do I still need to get your approval for everything?"

Noticing that Li Huowang's expression was growing increasingly twisted, Chen Hongyu stepped in to mediate. "Alright, alright, let's stop this. We haven't even fought yet, and you two are already at each other's throats. How is that going to work?

"We're here to treat Li Huowang, aren't we? Why are we getting more and more off track? Let's focus on the main issue."

With that, everyone turned to look at Yi Donglai. He was sitting while holding a notebook, seemingly jotting down notes on everyone.

"What are you writing? Stop it. Let's get this treatment over with so we can leave."

As the conversation shifted to Li Huowang's condition, a voice suddenly called out, "Wait!"

It was from Li Huowang. The same Li Huowang who had just been shaking his head now wore a look of intense hatred and disgust as he stared at Qing Wanglai.

"It wasn't just Zuoqiu Yong or Qian Fu! What you've done goes far beyond that! You've been preparing for this for a long time! I finally understand!"

Qing Wanglai smiled faintly. "Whatever I'm planning is none of your business, Li Huowang."

"Not my business? Really? Then why did you change my name? Why did you steal the 'Wang' from my name?"

"You didn't just target Zuoqiu Yong and Qian Fu. You've been plotting against me for a long time!" Li Huowang's expression became increasingly ferocious. "And you did it by using your Twisted One Zhuge Yuan! Tell me! What did you take from me?!"

Li Huowang was sure that having a Siming's name altered wasn't as simple as losing part of it. The Three Pure Ones had greater ambitions, and the removal of the "Wang" from his name surely represented something important.

"Hey, calm down. We're all on the same side. Let's sit down and talk," Wu Qi intervened to calm the situation.

"Sister Wu, are you really helping him? Are you overwhelmed with managing five worlds as a Siming? The Three Pure Ones even placed Zhuge Yuan's statue in the Righteous Monastery! And you're still helping him! Don't you realize that he's also secretly tampered with your Heavenly Dao?"

The thought of the statue of Zhuge Yuan with the cinnabar mark on its forehead made Li Huowang seethe with rage.

Zhuge Yuan was his brother, but the Three Pure Ones had manipulated him like a puppet. The Three Pure Ones exploited Zhuge Yuan's reputation for saving the Great Qi even after his death, all to seize the Heavenly Dao of the Five Dhyani Buddhas.

He had insulted Zhuge Yuan and toyed with Li Huowang like a fool!

“I don’t know what you’re talking about, Li Huowang. Your condition is worsening. You should get treated soon.”

Li Huowang shook his head. “No, your schemes are far more important than my illness! If we don’t deal with you, the entire Baiyu Capital could be destroyed!”

“Growth, death, bewilderment, flesh... Do you think I haven’t noticed? You’ve been systematically stealing all our Heavenly Daos! You’re willing to kill us all if necessary! You’ve wanted everything from the start!”

Zhao Shuangdian began calculating rapidly, and the sound of tapping filled the room.

Everyone turned their eyes to Qing Wanglai, waiting for his explanation.

“I truly don’t know what you’re talking about. Everyone, do you really believe him over me?” Qing Wanglai adjusted his glasses. “Do you really think I would sacrifice all of you for the sake of some Heavenly Dao?”

Ba Nanxu approached Li Huowang with her brother, laughing softly. “He may be mad, but he couldn’t make up something this elaborate. He’s not smart enough.”

Wu Qi hesitated and looked at Qing Wanglai. “Qing Wanglai, could you explain your plan? Is it really related to the Heavenly Daos, like Li Huowang said? If there’s a misunderstanding, clear it up.”

Under everyone’s gaze, Qing Wanglai took out two dice and began swiftly spinning them between his long, pale fingers.

Chapter 979 - Shai Zi

Shai Zi?

Li Huowang stared at the constantly spinning dice in Qing Wanglai's hand, recalling what Shai Zi had said before. I'll help whoever's winning.

Shai Zi had indeed spoken the truth. The one he had believed would win wasn't Li Huowang—it was Qing Wanglai!

There were two Shai Zis, which meant that the Imperial Preceptor of the Great Liang was also one of Qing Wanglai's people!

No, it's worse than that! Qing Wanglai stole Doulao's Heavenly Dao long ago!

Li Huowang abruptly looked at Zhao Lei, who appeared to be fading into the background more and more.

Qing Wanglai gently pushed his glasses up on his nose, his gaze sweeping over the room. A slight smile appeared on his face.

"It seems I can't leave without an explanation, can I?"

He turned to Li Huowang. "You're right. It was me. In fact, I've done much more, but it seems you haven't figured that out yet.

"From the very beginning, you were just one of many pawns under my control. Everything was in my grasp.

"But you've always been restless, repeatedly slipping out of my control. It's been quite the headache.

"My original plan was to create a competent assistant, nothing more. Yet here you are, managing to get this far. Sometimes, I can't understand what goes on in your head. You consistently bypass the optimal choice, leaving me at a loss on how to guide you.

"Of course, your stubborn progress isn't entirely your doing. Certain people have interfered at every turn." His gaze moved to the siblings, Ba Shengqing and Ba Nanxu.

Qing Wanglai's gaze shifted again and finally settled on Zhao Shuangdian. "I painstakingly set up my pawn, only for it to become someone else's gift. Zhao Shuangdian, I underestimated you."

Li Huowang stared in disbelief at the Three Pure Ones.

Ba-Hui belonged to Zhao Shuangdian, and Doulao was under Qing Wanglai! Under Ba-Hui was the Ao Jing Sect, and under Doulao was the Sitting Oblivion Dao.

From the very start, he had been entangled with these two sects after leaving the Zephyr Temple.

Pain and Lies had always surrounded and constantly tormented him. This made him feel as though he had died and come back to life several times. And now, he realized that all this was just a power struggle between two Simings.

Li Huowang had always thought that a battle between Simings must be earth-shattering.

However, Qing Wanglai's words made Li Huowang realize that battles between Simings were imperceptible to mortals. The results of their struggles were nothing more than ordinary events in a mortal's life.

Zhao Shuangdian replied, "I don't understand what you're saying. Could you elaborate?"

Qing Wanglai suddenly gripped the two dice between his fingers and pointed directly at Zhao Shuangdian. "Of course you don't understand. You're just a projection. I'm speaking to the true entity beneath the projection!"

Li Huowang stepped forward, his breath quickening. "So you know about the Da Nuo world? You can even control the things happening there? You've known all along what was happening there!"

The schemes of the Three Pure Ones and his attempts to seize other Simings' Heavenly Daos made one thing clear—he could do it all along and had kept it hidden from everyone.

“No, I don’t see it the way you do. After all, we are in different positions, and we’ve received different levels of education.”

Qing Wanglai remained calm, with a faint, kind smile. “Still, you are correct. I can indeed do that. So can all of you, actually. The difference is that you do it subconsciously, whereas I do it consciously.”

“Three Pure Ones!” Memories from the Da Nuo world surged in Li Huowang’s mind: the three clay statues in the Zephyr Temple, the reason the Abbess’s son went mad, the eerie familiarity of Hong Zhong’s memories, Shangji Guankou, the Sitting Oblivion Dao’s ambush against the Great Liang’s Surveillance Bureau, and the death of Zhuge Yuan.

All of it was real. But now he realized that in a higher dimension, everything had a cause.

Suddenly, an image of a button popped up in Li Huowang’s mind, and the fury in his eyes turned into a fierce killing intent.

“Three Pure Ones! What do you want? You manipulate everything for your own goals! You helped the Siming of Fu Shengtian against me! If not for you, Li Sui wouldn’t have died!”

Back then, only the Abbess had known about the button. After her death, the secret should have disappeared entirely. It shouldn’t have been possible for the Siming of Fu Shengtian to use it.

The button reappearing again could only mean one thing—the Siming of the Baiyu Capital who managed the Heavenly Dao of Secrets had betrayed them! Qing Wanglai had given the secret of the button to Fu Shengtian’s Siming!

Qing Wanglai didn’t deny it. “Li Huowang, do you really think you’re well-informed? Do you truly believe your theories about Simings and Heavenly Daos capture the full picture?

“You’re wrong, Li Huowang. Do you really think Fu Shengtian is our enemy? You’re wrong again.”

Qing Wanglai’s expression hardened, his tone turning icy.

“You’re blinded, caught up in the minor issues in front of you, unable to see the source of the real conflict. Only I know this hidden secret.

“Have you ever considered the possibility that the terrifying Fu Shengtian you perceive may not actually be a massive elephant, but merely a projection of a wrinkle on the elephant’s skin?

“Have you ever considered that their so-called ‘invasion’ might not even be a deliberate act, but rather the unintentional manifestation of a higher being passing by?

“Do you know what true despair is? True despair is realizing that the enemy you’ve fought so hard against is merely a passing breeze caused by someone idly waving their hand!”

Qing Wanglai finally dropped his usual friendly smile, revealing a cold and menacing expression. This was, perhaps, his true self.

“You have no idea what reality is! Reality is far more terrifying than any of you could ever imagine!”

Fear flickered in his eyes, growing deeper with each passing moment.

“Our projections have developed some contradiction, and not just once. Just their unconscious proximity is already interfering. When the contradictions become big enough, the entire world will collapse! Everything will turn into a lie!”

Zhao Shuangdian interjected, “Qing Wanglai, what’s the difference? Whether our enemy exists in one form or another, wouldn’t working together be better than fighting alone?”

“Rely on you?” Qing Wanglai laughed. “Rely on you? A bunch of infighting lunatics? I never relied on you. Communicating with you is inefficient. I only trust myself.”

With a flick of his hand, he tossed the dice. The door burst open, and a young man in reflective sunglasses stepped in, snatching the dice midair.

“Hehe~ Here I am~” The newcomer grinned, fixing his gaze on Li Huowang.

Chapter 980 - Pursuit

Li Huowang locked eyes with the young man wearing reflective sunglasses.

He had slicked-back hair. A leather jacket clung to his frame, and slightly worn jeans completed his look. His otherwise unremarkable face had a few irregular black moles.

Li Huowang was certain they'd never met before, yet there was something familiar about him.

That feeling made Li Huowang instinctively open his mouth. "Shai Zi?"

The man with the sunglasses didn't answer. Instead, he reached into his coat with one hand, pulling out three grenades.

Without hesitation, he bit down on the pin of one and hurled all three directly at Li Huowang and his group. "Kaboom!"

Everything happened so fast that no one had time to react.

As the grenades flew toward him, Li Huowang gritted his teeth and charged forward. He swung his severed arm at the explosives with all his strength.

To his surprise, the grenades didn't explode on contact. Instead, the grenades expanded, and a loud sound filled the air. They released thick black smoke that instantly engulfed the entire room, blinding everyone inside.

Li Huowang had been tricked. They weren't explosives—they were smoke bombs designed to deceive and intimidate.

"Hahaha!" The man's arrogant laughter faded into the distance.

Li Huowang's heart sank. Damn it! He's just here to buy time for the Three Pure Ones to escape!

He opened his mouth, but the sharp, pungent smoke filled his lungs and choked him. The blinding, stinging sensation made it impossible to see or breathe properly.

“Three Pure Ones! Don’t think of running!” Li Huowang covered his mouth and nose, rushing toward the sound of a car engine starting up.

He burst out of the smoke with tears streaming down his face. Once he did, he saw a roofless Jeep with its headlights on speeding straight at him. The sunglasses-wearing man was at the wheel, and in the backseat sat Qing Wanglai.

Li Huowang gritted his teeth and leaped to the side as the Jeep swerved away. It sped down a narrow path through a bamboo grove, quickly leaving the villa behind.

Wiping his face, Li Huowang turned and sprinted to the underground garage. Moments later, the roar of a motorcycle engine filled the air. Li Huowang shot out of the garage, hot on the Jeep’s trail.

On his way out, he spotted Yang Na by the roadside, choking on the tears caused by the smoke. She clutched a military knife in one hand, raising the other to give him a thumbs-up.

As they passed each other, Li Huowang reached out with his severed arm.

Yang Na grabbed on, using the momentum to leap onto the back of the bike. She steadied herself, wrapping her arms tightly around his waist.

Vroom! The motorcycle roared as Li Huowang pushed it to its limits, quickly closing the gap between them and the fleeing Jeep.

Qing Wanglai’s Jeep sped ahead on the suburban roads while Li Huowang pursued closely behind.

Though his bike was fast, the Jeep gained an edge on every curve, maintaining a stalemate.

Yang Na grew anxious. She quickly assessed the distance between them, sheathed her military knife, and pulled a handgun from her waist. Then, she took aim.

Bang! A miss.

Bang! Another miss.

“Huowang, stop moving! I can’t aim properly!”

“This is a motorcycle! How do you expect it not to move? Don’t aim for the people. Shoot the tires!”

After several more shots, the Jeep suddenly shook violently, its speed dropping sharply.

“We got them! ”Li Huowang said, twisting the throttle even harder. They quickly pulled up alongside the Jeep.

Qing Wanglai leveled a gun directly at Li Huowang’s bandaged head.

Bang! Qing Wanglai’s hand exploded, his blood spraying everywhere. Yang Na had fired a perfect shot.

“Nana! Take over!” Li Huowang grabbed her hands and placed them on the handlebars before vaulting off the motorcycle and onto the Jeep.

He crashed into the vehicle and lunged at Qing Wanglai, seizing him by the throat. Within moments, Qing Wanglai’s face turned purple as he gasped for air.

“I don’t care what you’re up to! I don’t even want to know! I only care about one thing—you killed Suisui! My daughter is dead because of you!”

Li Huowang remained unyielding, his grip tightening. The man in sunglasses struck him several times on the back, but Li Huowang didn’t loosen his hold.

Just as Qing Wanglai’s head was about to be crushed by Li Huowang’s grip, Qing Wanglai reached out and grabbed Li Huowang’s arm. A faint, confident smile formed on his purple face.

With the last of his air, Qing Wanglai rasped, “Brother Li... help me.”

In an instant, the surrounding environment shifted. Li Huowang found himself back in the devastated world of Da Nuo, holding the severed head of Zhuge Yuan in his hands.

Zhuge Yuan and Qing Wanglai's faces merged into one. The events that had occurred in the past now overlapped with the present.

Qing Wanglai took advantage of Li Huowang's momentary distraction. He bent his knee and drove his foot into Li Huowang's stomach.

The force sent Li Huowang flying and knocked him off the Jeep. As he hit the ground, he saw Qing Wanglai leaning against the window, looking at him with his signature smile.

Thump! Li Huowang's back slammed against the ground. The feeling of bones breaking and organs shifting left him paralyzed on the ground.

Li Huowang lay still, covered in dirt and dust. He raised his head, his lone eye capturing the sight of the Jeep shrinking into the distance.

Yang Na had initially planned to pursue on the motorcycle, but when she noticed Li Huowang lying on the ground, she decided that attending to him was more important.

She twisted the brakes sharply, and the motorcycle's tires screeched to a halt, drawing a black arc in front of Li Huowang.

She jumped off the bike and quickly helped Li Huowang to his feet. "Huowang, are you okay? Where does it hurt?"

Li Huowang's eyes blazed with hatred as he looked in the direction where the Jeep had vanished. "Qing Wanglai!"

Thirty minutes later, Li Huowang limped back into Qing Wanglai's villa with Yang Na's help, battered and bruised.

Everyone else was there. They were acting as if nothing had happened. Some were watching TV, others were eating, and some were discussing various matters.

Li Huowang walked past them and approached Zhao Shuangdian. With his severed arm, he slammed her laptop against the wall and shattered it.

“Why didn’t you help? Why?! Qing Wanglai would not have gotten away so easily if your people had acted!”

Chapter 981 - Untitled

Zhao Shuangdian looked at Li Huowang and said calmly, “What should we have done? Go down and fight him to the death?”

“And then what? If we destroy each other, other elephants will come after us. We’d just be waiting to die together.”

Zhao Shuangdian glanced at Wu Qi, who was on the phone. “Relay a message to Qing Wanglai for me. Regardless of his past actions, we can still sit down and talk. The previous cooperation agreement between us is still valid.

“My only condition is that he tells me everything he knows. I need more parameters for my calculations.”

Wu Qi felt rather annoyed at the moment. She turned away and casually waved her hand in Zhao Shuangdian’s direction.

Noticing Li Huowang’s incredulous expression, Zhao Shuangdian stood and patted his shoulder. “I dislike Qing Wanglai too. I understand how you feel, but I hope you understand that the overall situation is more important.”

“No! You don’t understand! You haven’t lost a daughter because of him! How could you possibly understand my feelings?” Li Huowang’s voice rose, his veins bulging on his forehead.

“And what will killing Qing Wanglai accomplish? Will your daughter come back? Qing Wanglai’s death will not bring your daughter back. In fact, not having his help could lead to us being wiped out when the other elephants attack.”

“No, Qing Wanglai isn’t the real focus,” Yang Na said. “We should be focusing on the Heavenly Daos he controls. We don’t need him—just his power. If we kill him, we can absorb his Heavenly Daos, just like he did with the other Simings.”

Despite their peculiar explanations, Zhao Shuangdian kept a serious expression. “You don’t get it. Do you think I value Qing Wanglai for his power? No, it’s his intelligence I value!

“He knows things we don’t, and he can even manipulate the aspects of other elephants. These are vital parameters, ones that might rebuild the whole model. This is crucial!”

“I can’t even build a logical mathematical model of our enemy because we know too little about these other elephants.”

Yang Na’s face showed a hint of conflict. She didn’t know what to do next. She turned to Li Huowang. “What do you think, Huowang?”

Li Huowang was lost in thought and remained silent.. After a long pause, he buried his face in his hands and let out a bitter, silent laugh.

“Li Huowang, I’m telling you, this is the optimal solution. It’s the only way we can maximize our chances of winning.”

Li Huowang heard Zhao Shuangdian’s words and lowered his hands. “I’m fine, Zhijian, don’t worry. Have the others fall back.

“Hmm, I was just dealing with some things. For now, divide one of the Dragon Veins between the Tianchen Kingdom and the Great Qi. Keep the rest for later, as I might need them.

“I have other matters to handle. I’ll be going,” Li Huowang said.

He brushed off Yang Na, who was holding onto him. Then, he started pacing aimlessly around the hall.

After a few laps, he stopped before a potted money tree. He stared blankly at it. “There’s no one around now. Zhao Shuangdian, I’m speaking to you.

“Qing Wanglai’s matter is not done. It’s not just about the fact that he stole a part of my name. He killed my daughter. If not for that button forcing me back from the seventh stage to the sixth, I would have killed him already. My daughter didn’t have to sacrifice herself to summon Jiang Xiangshou!”

Li Huowang paused, then spoke to the money tree before him again, saying, "We don't need to worry about what happens after the Three Pure Ones die. When he's gone, his Heavenly Daos will become ours. Our strength will actually increase. At most, there might be a brief period of Natural Disasters."

His words echoed Yang Na's earlier sentiment.

"At the end of the day, I can take over his duties. Besides, with all that's happened, he hasn't contributed much."

"No, that's not the point. What I mean is—" Zhao Shuangdian started to respond but stopped herself, realizing Li Huowang wouldn't listen to her in his current state. She felt rather troubled.

Li Huowang said, "Negotiating with you like this is inconvenient. Next time I come back, I'll go to Yi Donglai for treatment to get rid of this bothersome situation."

"During this time, keep a close eye on Yi Donglai. Don't let him run away. He's the only one who can treat me. Thanks."

Ba Nanxu grabbed a cold beer from the fridge as she observed from the sidelines. She took a sip and scoffed. "Idiot."

In Cowheart Village, the day's work was done, and a few villagers began to gather under the big tree at the village entrance. Some had their dinner bowls in hand.

This was Cowheart Village's social spot for chatting and cooling off. People boasted and gossiped here.

Those with hearty meals proudly displayed them, while others with simpler meals tried to hide theirs.

Close friends would even taste each other's food and comment on the cooking skills of one another's wives.

Puppy rolled up his sleeves, holding a bowl piled high with braised pork over rice. He squatted between the tree roots and asked, "Why isn't Xiaohai here?"

"He doesn't even cook now. He's too busy with his pregnant wife. It's probably a boy, judging by the pointed belly. He's been treating her really well lately."

Since his wife was about to give birth, he didn't have time to cook for the village anymore. Cowheart Village had returned to a system where each person cooked for themselves.

"What's the big deal? I'm telling you, boys aren't as good as girls! When they grow up, boys are not as sensible as girls." Puppy didn't even touch his pork. Instead, he smeared his lips with oil as he spoke.

"Things have been peaceful these past few years. No wars, no Natural Disasters," added a teacher, sipping his cornmeal porridge with preserved meat.

"That's true," others chimed in. Life had been easier since the fall of the Dharma Sect.

"Well, naturally! That's all thanks to my Senior! You know who he is?" Puppy grinned, waiting for a response.

"Here we go again."

"Exactly, who asked him?"

"We know, we know! He's the Emperor of the Great Liang! Will you be miserable if you don't say it every day?"

"Are you going to brag about this your whole life?"

Puppy kissed a piece of braised pork before setting it down and scooping up a spoonful of rice. "What? Can't I speak the truth? Since he's my senior, I'm practically royalty!

"Back then, he insisted I become the prime minister because of our bond, but I refused."

Chapter 982 - Cowheart Village

The teacher heard Puppy's bold claim and gasped in shock, scalding his tongue. He glared at Puppy with indignation.

"You! How absurd! How dare you insult the wise ones like this! Do you even know the importance of a prime minister's role? How dare you think you're fit for it?"

"Do you realize how much knowledge is required for such a position? You, who can't even recite the basics of the Three Character Classic, dare to say such things?"

Puppy sneered. "What's the big deal? If simpletons can be emperors, I can be a prime minister."

While Puppy argued with the teacher, a frail-looking woman walked past the village entrance, looking exhausted.

She carried a basket from which a piece of lotus root peeked out from the covers. She spotted the gathering of villagers, then quickened her pace toward the village, almost colliding with three monkey children coming her way.

The monkey children, who had been brought by Yang Xiaohai, looked much better now. Although they still had some monkey-like mannerisms, they appeared more human and bowed respectfully to the woman.

Zhao Wu observed the scene and whispered to the others, "Did you hear? These new arrivals supposedly had the same illness as Senior Li. They're better now, so they were sent here."

This comment sparked a discussion about the newcomers in Cowheart Village. These odd folks kept to themselves and rarely interacted with the villagers. They even occasionally burst into laughter while walking alone.

Puppy used his chopsticks to stop a monkey child from snatching a piece of braised pork from his bowl. He asked in disbelief, "Is Senior Li's illness actually curable? That's nonsense. I've never seen him get better."

"Aren't you just an accountant? How do you know anything? Did Chun Xiaoman from the White Lotus Sect write to tell you?"

At the mention of Chun Xiaoman, Zhao Wu's face darkened. "Mind your own business. Why are you so nosy?"

Puppy smirked smugly, holding his bowl close to himself.

An old, lone carriage appeared on the road into the village. It was pulled by an old horse. When they looked closer, they realized it was Lu Xiucui's family carriage.

"Where's Xiucui heading?"

"He's probably off to take the imperial exams."

Puppy defended his friend. "Stop talking nonsense. He's been holed up at home since returning, without studying, farming, or practicing martial arts. Who knows what's wrong with him? I asked him about his hands and feet growing back, and he wouldn't answer."

"Maybe he's possessed? Should we get someone to check?"

As Lu Xiucui approached the villagers, Puppy said, "Xiucui, where are you headed?"

Puppy noticed the Lu Family Troupe's theater trunk in the carriage. Juan'er and Lu Xiucui's eccentric father, Lu Zhuangyuan, were also in the carriage.

"Wow, bringing everyone? Are you moving out?"

Puppy joked, but a realization dawned on him, and his face grew serious. "You're not actually moving away from Cowheart Village, are you?"

Lu Xiucui smiled silently and shook his head. "I'm just taking Juan'er and my father out for a bit. We're also looking for my missing nephew, Lu Tongsheng.”

“You’ll never find him by yourself. You should ask Sister Bai. She’s the head of the White Lotus Sect now, overseeing the entire sect.”

Lu Xiucui’s face darkened as he remembered the gruesome practices of the White Lotus followers and the sometimes frenzied Bai Lingmiao.

“No need. She’s changed, and so has the White Lotus Sect. I don’t understand it, and I don’t want to. I’ve written to my master, so it’s out of my hands now.”

Lu Xiucui disregarded the others and continued down the path. Soon, the village disappeared from view.

His deranged father lay against the theater trunk, muttering disjointed theater lines.

“Father, you were right. We’re just traveling performers—simple commoners. The great affairs of the world don’t concern us.

“Now that the Dharma Sect is gone and we’ve avenged my brother and sister-in-law, we only need to mind our own business.

“Let the Emperor be, let the White Lotus Sect be. None of it matters to us. Let’s live our lives in peace.

“Father, rest assured. If Tongsheng wasn’t found, then he’s still out there. He is not dead. We’ll find him.

“When we do, I’ll teach him all about theater. We’ll revive the Lu Family Troupe and save up bit by bit to buy our own theater, without any handouts. Won’t that be nice?”

He glanced back, but Lu Zhuangyuan remained slumped and unresponsive. Juan’er stood up and carefully wiped his mouth with a cloth.

“Alright. Now it’s my turn to take charge,” Lu Xiucui said, leading the carriage forward.

Suddenly, familiar footsteps sounded behind them, overlapping with the horse’s trot.

A resentful female voice called out softly, "Xiucan, did you forget that you have a wife? Are you planning to leave me behind?"

Lu Xiucan didn't turn around. "The Lu Family Troupe is no longer around. The fields we split are all yours. You have everything you need. Live well here in Cowheart Village.

"I'm not much of a husband, and I was rarely around. I bought you long ago. The contract's burned, and you're free now.

"Xiucan! But I'm your wife!"

"I am a White Donkey. I swore to the Heavenly Mother never to marry, or she'll never forgive me."

Lu Xiucan shut his eyes tightly, his expression conflicted. "Go back. You're young, so find someone else. The theater troupe isn't a place for women. I won't let you suffer like my sister-in-law did."

Chapter 983 - Murderous Aura

As Lu Xiucan retreated without turning back, the woman's voice trembled, her emotions overwhelming her.

"Fine, you said it! You think I don't have other options? I'll feed another man with the crops I grow from your land! By the time you come crawling back, you'll regret it!"

Her sobs and footsteps faded away. Lu Xiucan sighed deeply and continued on.

As he walked through the green woods, he began singing a verse his father had taught him. "On my journey under autumn skies~ I come to pay respects in Zhuanzhu Alley!"

An old voice from behind joined him, singing, "A true man will create a world-shaking enterprise~"

Tears glistened in Lu Xiucan's eyes. He turned to see his father, Lu Zhuangyuan, singing the familiar lines. Though he was still mad, he continued the verses by instinct.

Lu Xiucan continued, "Turn the world around~ Wash the sun in the Milky Way!"

The voices of the old and young overlapped, echoing down the road. "Heroes gather, and stars in the sky exchange words!"

"Dragons and snakes of the great marsh rise~ March joyfully down the road!"

The night grew deep, and Lu Xiucan reached a small town before midnight.

He walked through the silent streets, searching for an open inn. He glanced back and saw his elderly father and young niece asleep on the cart. Then, he continued onward.

Suddenly, he heard the crash of ceramics breaking, followed by an angry woman's voice from a nearby house. "Chen! I've had it! I can't live like this!"

"Crazy woman! You think I'm afraid? I'll write you a divorce letter right now!"

Recognizing it as a domestic quarrel, Lu Xiucan relaxed and kept walking. However, only a few steps later, another argument reached his ears.

"Are you trying to kill me? Have you ever done a day's work after coming into this family?"

"Blind old hag! Can't you see what I've done? My hands are chapped from washing clothes in the river all winter! All you care about is that I haven't given you a grandson! My body, my choice. Try having one with your son!"

Before the two women had finished arguing, another gruff male voice cut in, saying, "Damn! Can't you people stop bickering? Some of us are trying to sleep!"

The noise of quarrels surrounded him, and the air grew heavy with hostility. Lu Xiucan frowned. Why are the people here so temperamental? No one would want to listen to theater here. We'll rush off after staying the night.

He continued forward but felt that something was off. There were too many people with hot tempers here.

It would be one thing if it were just people arguing late into the night. However, even those asleep seemed to be cursing in their dreams.

When he reached the small town's main road, a dense murderous aura pricked at his senses. He immediately became vigilant, drawing the bronze coin sword strapped to his back. He prepared to lead the carriage out of this strange town.

Soon, the night's calm vanished as shouts of rage and cursing filled the air. Shadows of people fighting appeared under the candlelight, and faint traces of blood began to appear. It seemed the whole town had gone mad.

A surge of murderous aura slammed into him as he turned a corner. Lu Xiucan looked up and saw the murderous aura almost become something material, spewing out from a small cart.

There was a small black coffin on the cart, its lid open. The murderous aura spread out from there, infecting the people around it.

Lu Xiucan was about to cover the coffin, but a dark figure stepped into his path.

Lu Xiucan brandished his bronze coin sword to fend off his foe. With a clattering sound, a red thread with bronze coins lashed out towards the figure.

The figure suddenly flipped his robe around, wearing it backward and revealing rows of rusty knives hanging from it. The makeshift armor deflected Lu Xiucan's attack.

Before he could retract his sword, a woman with bronze coins tied around her eyes leaped down from a rooftop. With a flick of her sleeve, she snatched the bronze coin sword away from him.

"Take this!" she shouted, throwing a rusty cleaver at him. Lu Xiucan narrowly caught it and flung it aside.

He pulled out the Profound Records and laid it on the ground.

Before he could do anything, the opponent spoke with a haughty and rather impatient tone, saying, "Ao Jing Sect? Your elders approved the Murderous Aura Command. Do you dare defy your sect's elders? The Surveillance Bureau is operating here. Leave!"

"Surveillance Bureau?" Lu Xiucan stared at her in disbelief.

He would have never imagined that the people sneaking around in the middle of the night and harming the people here were the Great Liang's Surveillance Bureau!

The Great Liang's Surveillance Bureau, meant to help the empire protect the realm, orchestrated this chaos.

Glancing at their waist badges, Lu Xiucan asked in disbelief, "Why are you doing this? Do you understand the consequences of infecting this town with this murderous aura?"

The group exchanged glances, then looked at him with puzzled expressions. "Of course. The murderous aura will lessen their fear, driving them into a rage and making them seek revenge for their past grievances. The town will descend into chaos, and a few hundred will die.

"Leave now, or you'll find yourself in trouble. This is an imperial order. Every place in the Great Liang is to be infected with the murderous aura. No exceptions!"

"An imperial decree? By Gao Zhijian?"

Even after recalling the evil acts of the White Lotus Sect's spirits, Lu Xiucan struggled to understand why.

He wondered why his previous acquaintances became so cold-blooded and distant. Do they not view people as living beings anymore? Don't they know how many people are going to die here?

"Hold on, did you say the entire Great Liang will be infected with the murderous aura?

"Even Cowheart Village?"

A lump caught in his throat.

"Cowheart Village? The one at the back? Of course, my Senior has already taken his bloodthirsty blade there."

Chapter 984 - White Yang

“Infection of murderous aura?!” Lu Xiucan looked around at the chaos caused by the murderous aura. It had caused drastic changes to the personalities of those affected.

He broke out in cold sweat when he imagined his wife and friends suffering the same fate.

Lu Xiucan was overcome with anxiety. Ignoring everything else, he quickly hopped onto his carriage, made a sharp turn, and sped back towards Cowheart Village.

Although the journey out had been swift, the return felt agonizingly slow. He didn’t know if he’d make it in time, but he could only press onward. He tossed out all his theater tools and belongings to make his return faster, keeping only Lu Zhuangyuan and Juan’er with him.

As the carriage raced down the dusty road, Lu Xiucan spotted a figure standing by the roadside. It was a man who looked like an ordinary farmer, yet somehow exuded an air of peculiarity.

The man clutched a kitchen knife, his body and mouth smeared with blood. It was impossible to tell if the blood was his own.

He stood motionless, glaring at Lu Xiucan with seething hatred. The murderous aura had consumed him, giving him the courage to commit acts he wouldn’t have done before.

The cart sped past, but the man’s gaze burned deeply into Lu Xiucan’s memory.

He realized this wasn’t an isolated incident. The same madness was erupting throughout the Great Liang. The entire Great Liang had gone mad.

“Gao Zhijian, what are you trying to achieve? Open your eyes and see what you’ve caused! You tyrant!”

“Faster! Go faster!” Lu Xiucan whipped the horse continuously until it foamed at the mouth.

He couldn’t control the events happening elsewhere, but he was determined to help Cowheart Village, home to everyone dear to him.

After rushing the entire way, Lu Xiucan finally arrived just before dawn. The exhausted horse collapsed to the ground in exhaustion.

Lu Xiucan stood on the edge of the village, still shrouded in morning mist. He hesitated, fearing a repeat of the horrors he’d seen in the small town.

His face paled as he finally forced himself to walk into the mist.

As he ventured further, he sensed wisps of murderous aura seeping out of the fog. His heart sank lower and lower. “No... no, no!”

He rushed into the fog desperately and headed straight into Cowheart Village.

Finally, he broke through the mist and froze. He saw a towering red blade radiating murderous aura, spreading in every direction.

The blade was not inside the village itself. It was embedded in the ground near Bai Lingmiao.

Bai Lingmiao sat quietly on a stone opposite the blade, dressed in white. She silently watched Cowheart Village awaken to a rooster’s crow.

She gently said, “Don’t worry, I knew they’d come today. I stopped them.”

Her expression grew conflicted. “Logically, I shouldn’t have done it. All followers of the White Lotus Sect were summoned to be infected by the murderous aura. However, I used my authority to shield my fellow disciples...

“I know I should be impartial, but the thought of everyone becoming a soldier and being sacrificed was unbearable. Even if we lose, I want them to live a little longer...”

Lu Xiucan stepped forward and said, “Mistress, I don’t know what others might say, but I know you did the right thing.”

He continued, “There’s no point in worrying so much about right or wrong. Someone strong will always rise to hold up the falling sky. Our priority should be protecting our own people. We can figure out the rest later.”

Bai Lingmiao turned toward Lu Xiucan. “But what if you’re the one meant to hold up the sky?”

Lu Xiucan had no answer. He stood there in silence.

Bai Lingmiao rose as the Second Deity emerged from her back, pulling out the massive red blade from the ground and wrapping it tightly with white silk.

Lu Xiucan noticed she was planning to leave and moved to follow her. But before long, his wife stopped him. “I knew you couldn’t bear to leave me! I knew it!”

Ignoring the commotion, Bai Lingmiao strolled through the village where she’d grown up. It was filled with people again, almost as if it had returned to its former glory.

She walked to the Bai Family’s ancestral hall and looked at the ancestral tablets on the wall. She took three incense sticks from the offering table, lit them carefully, and kowtowed nine times toward the tablets.

She knelt on the mat, deep in thought as she gazed at the ancestral tablets. After a long time, she took a deep breath and picked up the blade wrapped in white silk.

I may have spared my kin this time, but I won’t send others to do what I’m unwilling to do myself. That would be shameless.

As she slowly unwrapped the blade from the silk, the murderous aura filled the air, causing the tablets on the wall to vibrate.

I cannot be soft-hearted if I want revenge for Suisui.

The confusion on her face faded as she gripped the blade, replaced by a look of fierce determination.

Simultaneously, the expression of the Second Deity softened. Their four hands firmly grasped the blade, while a palpable hostility manifested on their faces.

The two of them simultaneously curled their lips, revealing cruel smiles.

With great force, they swung the enormous blade, firmly gripping it with their right hands. The sharp blade severed the candle's wick, spilling the melted wax onto the incense.

The incense was lit, and the flames began to ignite the offering table. The flames from the table set the entire wall of ancestral tablets on fire. When Bai Lingmiao walked out of the ancestral hall, thick smoke had already begun to billow inside.

"Get water! Quickly put out the fire! There's a ton of grain stored below! Enough to feed us for decades!" Puppy shouted in panic, leading the others from Cowheart Village to extinguish the fire.

After Bai Lingmiao walked out of Cowheart Village, the followers of the White Lotus Sect, marked with White Donkey tattoos, gradually gathered behind her. This group included various people and elderly Lamas. Their numbers swelled into a massive force.

Bai Lingmiao held the red blade in both right hands, picked up a drum from her waist with her left hand, and grasped a spine sword with her last hand.

This was Li Huowang's spine sword, though he no longer had any use for it.

Bai Lingmiao sensed a connection between the Great Qi and the Great Liang through the spine sword she held. Both mouths opened simultaneously, saying, "Prepare the sect. We must quickly spread the murderous aura across the entire Tianchen Kingdom!

“Today, the Tianchen Kingdom has no ruler. We must help the Heavenly Mater reclaim her Void Home!”

“Yes, Saintess! As the Red Yang’s calamity ends, the White Yang shall rise!” the White Donkey followers replied in unison.

Chapter 985 - Counterattack

A gentle breeze tousled Li Huowang's hair as he stood motionless, gripping Shai Zi's bloodied head in his right hand. The lifeless, headless body of the Imperial Preceptor of Great Liang lay crumpled on the ground beside him.

Although the Imperial Preceptor had concealed himself well, once Li Huowang learned that the Three Pure Ones had planted Huangfu Tiangang, he had no choice but to kill him.

His attention was not on the corpse. He was standing on the city walls of Shangjing, staring at the chaos unfolding below.

Even from this height, he could feel the thick murderous aura spreading across the city.

The city had descended into utter chaos. People turned on each other over the slightest provocations. It was as if the entire social order was on the brink of collapse, with everyone consumed by wrath.

Li Huowang's keen eyesight allowed him to witness the countless conflicts below. Constant fights and deaths were occurring at every turn. The city was nearly a battlefield.

The Murderous Aura Command was not a mere term. It bore heavily on every citizen, weighing on them like a mountain.

However, it was clear that Gao Zhijian's aim wasn't to curse the people and leave them to fend for themselves. The rhythmic clang of gongs filled the air.

A soldier bearing two triangular flags galloped down the main road, shouting, "Come for the emperor's food! Eat from the emperor's stores!"

“Men and women aged eight to seventy! Two guans[1] of coins every month, three dous of[2] rice and meat with every meal!”

The offer was irresistible to most of them. The offer was essentially a lifeline for the masses. While enlistment was dangerous, it was nothing to those infected by the murderous aura.

The gong echoed through the city while the people of Shangjing surged towards the military headquarters, driven by the promise of food and money.

This wasn't limited to Shangjing alone. Similar events unfolded across the entire Great Liang, Qing Qiu, and Hou Shu.

Gao Zhijian was right. The common folk had indeed become soldiers, and soldiers were but commoners. Whether the people were citizens or soldiers was entirely his choice. A new and vast army would soon rise, larger and more formidable than before.

How many people are there in the world? How many times can we summon Jiang Xiangshou?

Jiang Xiangshou seemed less like a Siming and more like a manifestation of the Heavenly Dao itself, its power accessible to those willing to pay the price.

Li Huowang looked up towards the heavens, his thoughts drifting to the other Simings whose ways of existence remained shrouded in mystery.

Footsteps echoed behind him. Gao Zhijian, flanked by eunuchs, approached him on the city wall. “Senior Li, it won't be long now. The new army will be ready soon.”

“Good,” Li Huowang said, his gaze dropping from the turmoil below. “While we're free, let me tell you something. You see, I can communicate with other Simings beyond the Baiyu Capital. I've been opposing Fu Shengtian with them all this time.”

Gao Zhijian hesitated, looking at Li Huowang. “But Brother Li, haven't you been here this whole time? You haven't been to Baiyu Capital.”

"I didn't say it's the current me. That's because it's the other me, which is also me. Whatever he does, I do as well."

Gao Zhijian remained silent. He looked confused, clearly having trouble understanding.

"I know it's hard to believe, but it's the truth. Since I hold the Heavenly Dao of Bewilderment, even I don't fully understand how it works."

Li Huowang chuckled wryly when Gao Zhijian remained quiet. "You don't believe me? Maybe you think I'm going crazy again? I won't blame you."

"No, Senior Li, I believe you. Go on."

"There isn't much more to say. Soon, mortals and the Simings of the Baiyu Capital will unite and fight Fu Shengtian together.

"The Dragon Veins in the mortal world prevent the Simings from intervening directly. Any attempt through other channels is distorted. I'm the exception—I alone can perceive what truly unfolds in the Baiyu Capital.

"When it's time to face Fu Shengtian, the Simings of the Baiyu Capital will decide on the course of action, and the mortals will follow their lead."

Mortals could not approach Simings. Even approaching them would incur the influence of the Heavenly Dao.

"In short, I'll decide how the world supports them and when Jiang Xiangshou is summoned from now on. Do you understand?

"It's not that I want to take over your authority, but the battle above shifts rapidly and requires swift action. We can't afford to wait for you emperors to deliberate slowly."

Gao Zhijian shook his head. "That's fine. With you bearing the responsibility, my load feels much lighter. I'll talk to them, and we'll follow your lead."

"That's good."

With Gao Zhijian's reassurance, Li Huowang knew he could call upon Jiang Xiangshou's aid the next time they faced Fu Shengtian, which would give him a powerful advantage.

This was why the Murderous Aura Command was necessary despite its cruelty.

"Senior Li, do you know what Junior Bai's people are up to?"

Li Huowang nodded slowly. "Yes, she told me. I even gave her the spine sword."

Gao Zhijian nodded and turned to leave the city wall.

As he took his first step, Li Huowang's expression changed. "It's a Natural Disaster."

This time, the Natural Disaster was silent. No one noticed it because it was the disappearance of Growth itself.

Li Huowang realized immediately what this signified. The Heavenly Dao of Growth had likely been lost. Zuoqiu Yong seemed to be gone from the Baiyu Capital, and the Three Pure Ones must have seized the Heavenly Dao of Growth.

This wasn't good news. The Three Pure Ones became stronger, and his next move was uncertain. Including Doulao's Heavenly Dao of Lies, the Three Pure Ones now controlled at least the Heavenly Daos of Secrets, Lies, and Growth.

He didn't know if Qing Wanglai had any other hidden Heavenly Daos. At the very least, Qing Wanglai must have taken something from Li Huowang and the Five Dhyani Buddhas.

A sudden idea struck Li Huowang. He stepped out with his right foot, instantly transporting himself from the city wall to the Righteous Monastery.

The monastery was now eerily quiet, with only a handful of visitors. When the murderous aura had infected everyone, they stopped fearing death and lost all reverence, so no one came to worship.

Li Huowang ignored the monks, who greeted him with folded hands. He quickly moved through the various halls and finally reached a specific shrine.

He had been here once before. Today was his second visit. A statue of Zhuge Yuan stood atop a grand lotus pedestal, clad in yellow with cinnabar marked on his forehead.

The shrine was once well-cared for, with an overflowing incense burner and Zhuge Yuan's figure coated in gold.

This statue of Zhuge Yuan was the first one, which served as a model for replicas in other temples.

Qing Wanglai had used this to do something to the Five Dhyani Buddhas.

No matter what the Three Pure Ones intended, Li Huowang would try his best to stop him since they were now enemies.

Li Huowang lifted his hand. The massive beam above the shrine snapped, making tiles and rubble crash down on Zhuge Yuan's statue.

As the statue of Zhuge Yuan was about to shatter under the weight, Li Huowang suddenly raised his right hand. The falling beam and rubble froze in mid-air.

Li Huowang shakily withdrew his hand and looked up at the stone statue of Zhuge Yuan. "Heh... Three Pure Ones, did you foresee this? Did you think of this too?"

The Three Pure Ones' counterattacks were always so silent. To Li Huowang, each one made him feel an unbearable discomfort.

Li Huowang gritted his teeth, with his breath trembling. After a moment's hesitation, he forcefully pulled his clenched fist downward.

The suspended beam came crashing down with a heavy thud, causing the stone statue of Zhuge Yuan, sculpted in the image of Buddha, to shatter into countless pieces. Amongst the swirling dust, Zhuge Yuan's broken head wobbled and rolled right in front of Li Huowang.

Chapter 986 - Treatment

Li Huowang opened his eyes. The sunlight coming from the window made him wince.

He waited several days before returning, but he didn't slack off. He had been clearing out the influences of the Three Ancient Ones.

Li Huowang vowed to stop any schemes hatched by the Three Ancient Ones in the Baiyu Capital as long as he drew breath.

As his eyes adjusted to the sunlight, Li Huowang noticed his surroundings had changed.

Qing Wanglai's beautiful mansion has been replaced with a dingy old house. The scenery outside of the window indicated that he was in the countryside.

Looking down, Li Huowang noticed someone had tightly bound him with some cloth.

He turned his head to the side, finding a disheveled Yang Na asleep beside him. She had been tending to him.

"Yang Na," he murmured.

She woke up at the sound of her name. She untied his bindings, kissed him gently, and promptly drifted back to sleep.

Li Huowang carefully draped the blanket over her body before putting on his shoes and stepping out of the room.

The scent of breakfast greeted him as he found Yi Donglai and the others eating together.

"You're up? Here, have some food."

A bowl of porridge, a salted egg, and two fried dough sticks were all they had for breakfast.

As he ate, Li Huowang asked, "Why are we here?"

"The elephant on the other side used the Laws to ambush us, so we moved base preemptively," Zhao Shuangdian replied, typing on her laptop while everyone else was enjoying their meal.

Li Huowang's heart sank. Their enemies were still trying to kill them.

This time, they'd evaded the danger. Next time, he was sure their luck would run out.

"You predicted their movements on the other elephant? What else can you predict?" Li Huowang asked, glancing at her laptop.

If Zhao Shuangdian could predict the movements of Fu Shengtian's Simings, they'd have a chance to plan accordingly.

"I'm still observing them. I'm not sure if my model is correct or if there are errors. Qing Wanglai's dissertation has only made things more complicated," Zhao Shuangdian said, frowning as she spoke.

Li Huowang snarled when he heard Qing Wanglai's name. He tried to suppress his anger. "Don't worry. We'll be fine, even without Qing Wanglai. I've found a lot of helpers this time."

Zhao Shuangdian propped her chin on her hand. "Strength isn't the issue—information is. What worries me is what he said before leaving."

Li Huowang's voice rose sharply. "Don't trust him! Shai Zi works for him. The Heavenly Dao of Lies is on his side. Everything he says is a lie!"

"Is there proof?"

"What?"

"If he's lying, what's his motive? I've thought about it, but I can't find a reason for him to deceive us. It doesn't make sense for him to lie about our common enemy unless he's from the other elephant.

"However, if that were the case, it'd be more logical for him to tell the truth. By sharing accurate information, he can use us to divert the attention of his enemies."

Li Huowang replied, "So you agree with him that there are existences stronger than the Simings? A Grand Siming? And that all these attacks we're enduring are just breezes from their movements? Is there nothing we can do but wait for our deaths?"

Zhao Shuangdian thought for a long time before shaking her head. "I don't know."

"I don't care if you trust him, but I will say this: I don't trust him at all." Li Huowang said. "I don't trust Qing Wanglai, and I don't trust Shai Zi!"

"If we truly stand no chance, what is making the Three Ancient Ones work so hard? Why go to such elaborate lengths over so many years? Is he bored?" Zhao Shuangdian said.

"He's mixing truth with lies! Trust me. I have more experience in dealing with the Sitting Oblivion Dao!"

Li Huowang poured another bowl of porridge and grabbed some buns before returning to his room. He swore that he wouldn't trust the Three Ancient Ones until he witnessed the truth with his own eyes—he'd treat everything else as an illusion.

After placing a meal in his room for Yang Na, he walked out and turned to Yi Donglai. "Doctor Yi, are you done with your meal? Could you treat me after this? I'm so sorry about the past few days."

No matter what he had to face in the future, he needed to treat his illness first. He needed to become his strongest self to claim victory in future battles.

As for feeling sorry for Yi Donglai... He was no longer so hesitant after seeing the Murderous Aura Command being activated and how swathes of citizens perished.

Everyone had to pay a price to win, including himself and Yi Donglai. Li Huowang had to win—if he failed, every sacrifice made would be meaningless.

Yi Donglai wiped his mouth with a napkin and nodded. "Come, let's go to the warehouse. It's quiet there."

Yi Donglai picked up his notebook and stood up.

Li Huowang followed, puzzled by his calm demeanor. Once inside, Yi Donglai gestured for him to sit.

“Li Huowang, I must admit that I judged you too harshly last time. I think I understand what you’re going through now that I got to know these people.”

Li Huowang frowned. “Are you getting Stockholm Syndrome and agreeing with their viewpoint?”

Yi Donglai opened his notebook and started scribbling. “Isn’t that good? If I do, that means you get another ally. To be honest, I think you can bring more people into the fold if you can get them to sympathize with you. The more allies you have, the higher the chances of winning.”

Li Huowang knew that Yi Donglai was using him as research material. To begin with, Yi Donglai was never in the fold.

“Impossible. There are not that many projections of Simings in the Baiyu Capital. Doctor Yi, let’s ignore that for now. After I’m treated and we handle Fu Shengtian, we can talk as much as we want.”

Yi Donglai sighed and nodded. “Fine. Here, look at this pen.”

He held up a pen. “Listen closely. You need to follow my instructions carefully. This is important. Do you understand?”

“I understand.”

“Good. Now listen to me. Look at this pen and close your eyes.”

Li Huowang listened as Yi Donglai continued, “You will feel your body becoming relaxed and naturally lie down. You will sense your body gradually sinking downwards, without any perception of its end.”

As Yi Donglai’s voice grew fainter, Li Huowang’s body slowly went numb. He felt lighter, and his surroundings turned darker.

Just then, he heard Yi Donglai’s voice next to him. “Li... Huo... Wake... Wake up.”

Chapter 987 - Tower

In the unkempt warehouse, Li Huowang leaned against the wall, his eyes snapping open in shock as he stared at Yi Donglai.

The voice still echoed in his ears, and cold sweat drenched his body. “What did you just say? What did you try to do?”

Li Huowang dared not think about the voice just now. Every time he did, a strange, intense fear emerged from his heart.

His agitation drew the attention of the others, who turned toward the commotion with confused expressions.

With everyone present in the warehouse, Yi Donglai snapped his notebook shut.

“Li Huowang, there’s no need for such a dramatic reaction. I’m treating you. Isn’t this exactly what you asked me to do?”

“Is waking me up part of the treatment?”

“What do you mean waking you up? I didn’t say anything. Li Huowang, what are you talking about?”

“No, something’s not right! Something isn’t right! This isn’t the first time!” Li Huowang ran to the window and looked outside.

He scanned the warehouse, looking at the roof and then the floor. He even touched the ground with his hands.

A deep, irrational fear gripped him, spreading like wildfire through his mind.

Why did he ask me to wake up? I am awake. Am I dreaming?

“Huowang, are you alright? What’s wrong? Is something happening in the Baiyu Capital?”

Yang Na stepped forward, her concern evident, but Yi Donglai held her back.

“Don’t approach him. It’s fine. Let me do it.”

Yi Donglai lifted his glasses before approaching Li Huowang.

“You may have heard something, but don’t forget about your condition. You have a severe mental illness. Auditory hallucinations are normal for someone like you. What you heard might not be real.”

“Is it really? I had the same hallucination twice! Can you even believe what you’re saying? Also, I’m not ill! I’m just temporarily trapped in the cracks between the two worlds!”

Yi Donglai sighed helplessly. “We’ve been over this. Even if what you’re saying is true, you’re still a mentally ill Siming, Li Huowang. Remember when you hallucinated three companions in the White Tower Hospital? You’re genuinely ill—that’s just the truth.

“If you’re ill, you need treatment. Isn’t that the entire reason you went through the trouble of bringing me here?”

Li Huowang was stunned. He had believed himself without doubt, but now he started to waver.

Li Huowang froze. His unwavering belief wavered, and cracks began to show. After glancing at the others, he slowly made his way to a stool and sat down.

There were two possibilities in front of him. Either his mind was playing tricks on him and none of it was real, or that voice he’d heard was real—and if it was, it meant trouble.

Thankfully, Li Huowang had a way to uncover the truth.

“Alright, Dr. Yi. Let’s put this argument aside for now. I’ll cooperate with your treatment. But if I’m cured and that voice remains, we’ll know it’s real. And if it’s real, something’s very wrong.”

Li Huowang turned to Zhao Shuangdian. “Help me check the outside. I’m not afraid of anything, but I suspect that this could be an attack from Fu Shengtian.”

Their common enemy was Fu Shengtian and its Simings. The Heavenly Daos they controlled were very bizarre.

Li Huowang could sense that their ambushes would be very bizarre too. They would always find unconventional angles to strike from, effectively driving their opponents to the brink of madness.

Doubt gnawed at Li Huowang. Was the voice real?

If everything I've fought so far is fake, what's the point of risking my life?

Despair washed over Li Huowang, but he quickly shook his head. No! I can't think like this! This is not the time to be thinking about this. Whatever happens, I must rid myself of Fu Shengtian's influence first. I won't give up, no matter what.

Li Huowang inhaled deeply, steadying himself. "Everyone, step outside. I need to focus on the treatment."

As everyone started to leave, Li Huowang caught Yang Na's arm. "Nana, stay here."

There was also another possibility that Yi Donglai was the one who had actually whispered. Maybe Yi Donglai bore resentment for being kidnapped. While the chance was minuscule, the possibility still existed.

Li Huowang pulled Yang Na to the corner of the room. "Nana, help me watch Yi Donglai. If anything's wrong with him, wake me up immediately."

"Alright."

Yang Na nodded and gently touched the handgun behind her back.

Yi Donglai restarted his treatment once the three of them were alone in the warehouse.

"Li Huowang, close your eyes once more and calm your heart. Now tell me what you are feeling."

Li Huowang complied, closing his eyes and steadying his breath before describing what he felt.

Yi Donglai proceeded, "Picture yourself standing atop a tower, prepared to descend the stairs and reach a grassy plain below. This tower consists of ten levels, and I will guide you step by step as we go down floor by floor. With every floor you descend, you will find yourself entering a deeper state of your dream. Slowly, you will feel your body relaxing and your heart growing calmer.”

Li Huowang stood at the top of the tower and slowly made his way down to the grassy plains. He stood on the plain and felt his mood turning better immediately.

The grassy plain was like a paradise. Li Huowang wanted to stay there longer, but he had to keep moving forward.

He walked for an unknown length of time until he came across two paths before him.

One path was larger than the other. The smaller path was shrouded in darkness and had a quiet appearance. The larger path was covered in thorns, yet it appeared much brighter.

Li Huowang hesitated before ultimately choosing the larger path.

After walking for an unknown length of time, he suddenly encountered a dog. As the dog approached Li Huowang, it shifted into a mask.

The mask was engraved with an expression of pain. It tried to tell Li Huowang something, but no voice came from the hole depicting its mouth.

It grew larger, filling Li Huowang’s vision until nothing else remained.

The grooves of the mask shifted, forming a large dirt road ahead. Li Huowang stepped onto it and continued forward.

Chapter 988 - Bell

As Li Huowang continued walking, darkness began to fall. The ground flattened, revealing a broken grave ahead. The graves were overgrown with grass, yet puzzlingly, three lit incense sticks stood in front of one.

The white smoke didn't dissipate, instead enveloping the grave like an illusion.

He approached the grave and tried to read the inscription carved into the headstone, but he couldn't recognize the characters of the words. He strangely felt he'd known this before, yet now he didn't. As he looked at the inscription, the words shifted form, constantly rearranging themselves.

Under his gaze, the words slowly merged and consolidated into two words. One formed into the character “穰” while the second formed “鬱” instead.

The two words began to move and attack each other. Each word ripped lines from the opposing character and incorporated them into their own.

Unfortunately, it was clear that “穰” was losing. Most of its lines were ripped away, and its form started thinning.

In a desperate gambit, “穰” severed part of itself and hurled it toward “鬱.” While “鬱” paused to seize the fragments, “穰” fled.

Li Huowang bent down, following “穰” as it scurried to the lower half of the gravestone. It traversed past mountains, rivers, ravines, and even strange white lights. Ultimately, it reached the ground and slipped by Li Huowang.

He gave chase, noticing “鬱” in pursuit as well. As the gap between the two characters narrowed, both of them began to resonate. Their forms expanded, their lines transforming into something different.

Li Huowang moved backward and allowed space for the two characters to grow.

Startled by their growth, Li Huowang stepped back to give them space, but the speed of their growth exceeded his expectations. In just an instant, the characters stretched beyond the sky, enveloping Li Huowang completely before vanishing.

Li Huowang looked up and saw the sky filled with Chaos.

He extended his arms and wiped the sky, causing the sky to slowly grow brighter.

Li Huowang looked down. The grave had become larger than a mountain, but the two words had disappeared.

He shifted his gaze forward and saw a path on the mountain. He followed it and climbed up. After an unknown length of time, he finally reached the top. By then, the sky was already bright. He looked around at the increasingly bright forest.

Ding~ A bell chimed. A cold wind blew past Li Huowang, carrying a fallen leaf and sending a chill through him. He hugged himself to keep warm while trudging forward, sneezing as the temperature dropped. Gradually, he began to shiver uncontrollably.

The bell chimed again, drawing his gaze to several camels sitting beside a makeshift stall. Their owner sat inside while eating. Drawn by the warmth and aroma, Li Huowang entered the stall.

Inside, several patrons sat at rough-hewn tables. They turned toward him in eerie unison at the sound of his footsteps. Their faces were featureless, their chopsticks were fused to their hands, and where their bodies met their clothes, the boundaries blurred.

Li Huowang found an empty table and sat. The others resumed their meals, and soon, the owner brought him a bowl of food. However, the border between the bowl and its contents was blurry. He ignored it and began eating, immediately feeling a warm sensation spread through him.

He wiped his mouth and prepared to leave.

At that moment, the owner tugged Li Huowang, leaving him confused. Li Huowang tried to touch the owner's hand, but the owner crumbled and scattered like sand.

In an instant, the stall, the camels, and the other patrons disintegrated, scattering into the wind. Li Huowang stood alone in a vast emptiness.

Ding~

The bell chimed once again. Li Huowang followed the sound of the bell, and a green forest slowly replaced the white surroundings.

Li Huowang's unease mounted with every step he took toward the sound of the bell. His surroundings were eerily familiar to him.

"I think I've been here before."

The moment he spoke, the forest turned into a dark green color. The path became muddy, making it difficult to walk.

He felt cold and sticky. He wanted to leave badly. He quickened his pace toward the sound of the bell.

The more he walked, the more familiar the scenery became. He started to recognize the trees and the stones.

His surroundings became more real too. Even the chime of the bell seemed painfully familiar.

"Who am I? Why am I here? Am I heading back?"

The ringing of the bell became clearer and faster. The source of the ringing shifted from the front to the back.

Li Huowang turned around and saw nothing.

However, everything had changed. Li Huowang was no longer the one chasing after the sound of the bell. He was being chased.

There was nothing behind him, but Li Huowang felt an irrational fear. He started running aimlessly. Soon, the sound of the bell was replaced by footsteps.

Suddenly, Li Huowang felt something kicking him from the back, causing him to stumble and begin falling down.

In the nick of time, a wrinkled hand caught Li Huowang's shirt and pulled him up. He looked up and finally saw the person that had been chasing after him.

"Hahaha. I can't believe I randomly found one in the forest. I'm so lucky!"

The man was none other than Dan Yangzi. He had been ringing the bell that summoned the Wandering Gods.

"AH!"

Li Huowang woke up in shock and looked at the empty warehouse. He stared at Yang Na and Yi Donglai but didn't recognize them.

Chapter 989 - Change

Li Huowang sat at the bottom of a dried-up well. He gazed up at the circle of white light above before looking down to find himself surrounded by talismans and red threads. A smile broke across his face. “I did it. I finally returned.”

However, his smile quickly faded. “Wait, I did what? What exactly did I do? Why was I so happy?”

Li Huowang’s attempt at recalling was met with a disconcerting emptiness in his mind. He recalled once being superimposed with... something. He tried and tried, but to no avail—he couldn’t remember anything.

All he could recall was Dan Yangzi catching him.

But that wasn’t the pressing matter. The lingering question that really gnawed at him was the reason for his happiness moments ago.

Fu Shengtian was at their doorstep, and the Murderous Aura Command had tainted almost everyone in the world. Just what reason did he have to feel joy?

Climbing out of the well with some effort, Li Huowang emerged to a strange sight. A group of people wearing oversized masks dancing with a Lion Dance. They made a large bamboo net with bamboo poles and danced on them, jumping and twirling in the air before landing on the bamboo net.

There were several burning bonfires beneath the bamboo net. The fires burned bright and smoke rolled upwards, making the people dance and twirl even faster.

Li Huowang recognized what was going on. This was the Nuo Opera of Hou Shu.

“Stop dancing. Someone tell me what’s going on!”

With a wave of his arm, Li Huowang sent the fire and the bamboo net flying upwards. The surroundings became much clearer.

As Li Huowang huffed, one of the performers walked forward. "The Liang Kingdom's Emperor ordered us to rescue you. What you've done is very rude."

"You? Rescue me?" Li Huowang couldn't help but feel it was ridiculous. There was no way they could have saved him by performing.

"How could the Nuo Opera save me? Who are you trying to call to save me? Da Nuo? Da Nuo has gone crazy! It's a Grand Siming! If it has the time to respond to you, why isn't it destroying Fu Shengtian? Save me? It should save itself first!"

Li Huowang pushed the performer and jumped up to the highest point of the palace before shouting as loud as he could, "Where are you? Tell me what is going on!"

Li Huowang's voice spread throughout Shangjing, and someone soon answered him. It was none other than the Liang Kingdom's Emperor, Gao Zhijian.

Gao Zhijian was shocked to learn that Li Huowang had forgotten everything. "Senior Li, have you really forgotten everything? Weren't you the one who talked with the Simings of the Baiyu Capital? You were the one who said that you joined up with them to fight against the Simings of Fu Shengtian."

"Is that so?" Li Huowang stammered, puzzled. "Then why can't I remember anything? How did I contact them? How did I ally myself with the Simings to fight against Fu Shengtian?"

"Li Huowang, are you okay?" A gentle voice jolted him from his thoughts.

Li Huowang turned to see Yang Na looking at him with deep concern. He looked at her face in a daze before recognizing her as his girlfriend.

He extended his arms and hugged her tightly.

“Li Huowang, what’s wrong? What happened?” Yang Na worriedly asked question after question.

Li Huowang remembered everything leading up to his encounter with Dan Yangzi. He felt troubled and lost, unsure of what was happening. “I don’t know. I just felt that I was connected to something.”

Yang Na gently touched the back of Li Huowang’s head before letting him go. “Are you alright now? Is the trouble with Fu Shengtian over? Can you go back to who you were previously?”

Li Huowang thought carefully before turning to look at Yi Donglai. Doctor Yi, am I cured?”

Yi Donglai pushed his glasses and closed his notebook. “This is your illness. You should know if it’s been resolved.”

Li Huowang shook his head and raised his hands. “I don’t know. I don’t know what’s happening on the other side. However, if I don’t go back there soon, it would mean the issue with Fu Shengtian has been resolved.”

“Then we can just wait,” Yi Donglai said. “If it doesn’t work, we can start your treatment again. One day, your illness will be gone for good.”

However, Yi Donglai’s words only worsened Li Huowang’s anxiety. “Doctor Yi, this isn’t the first time this has happened! I need to return to who I was. Otherwise, I’ll lose if I switch back at a critical moment.”

If he was genuinely unable to switch back and get in touch with Gao Zhijian and the rest, it meant that he wouldn’t be able to summon the army of the Liang Kingdom to help him.

Yi Donglai looked at the door behind him before whispering, “I’m being monitored, so I can’t say much. But as your doctor, I have to give you some advice. To get better, you must have a clear goal in your heart.

“The treatment won’t help you if you don’t follow it, no matter how long it goes on or how skilled I am. You need to understand one thing—whatever happens on the other side is a hallucination. It’s not real. Accepting this is the first step to recovery.”

Li Huowang felt his heart go cold, but he refused to acknowledge it. “Doctor Yi, I didn’t have that kind of understanding in the past. How did you treat me last time?”

“That’s because I had the time to slowly get to know you and your symptoms. We don’t have that luxury right now.

“Li Huowang, trust me. You won’t end up well if you stay with them. They tricked you by reading my thesis and obtaining information about you. Everything on the other side is a hallucination.”

“Everything is fake?”

Li Huowang let out a bitter laugh as Yang Na looked on in confusion.

“Doctor Yi, I want to believe it’s all fake. But I can’t! That world is real! This isn’t just about me—it’s about the entire world!”

Yi Donglai sighed. “I can’t treat you if you refuse to cooperate.”

Li Huowang hesitated before deciding to gamble. “Do you trust me?”

“How do you want me to trust you? I only trust science. You’d need to somehow prove that the bizarre world is real using science.”

Li Huowang bit his lips before taking something out from within his clothes.

They were pills roughly the size of a small glutinous rice ball. Golden words spelling out “lifespan” swam inside them.

“What are those?”

“Lifespan pills. I grabbed them from the Surveillance Bureau’s vault.”

Chapter 990 - Nuo

“Lifespan Pills?”

Yi Donglai studied the pills carefully. They looked oddly familiar, as if he’d seen them somewhere before.

“Li Huowang, are you serious? Are you out of your mind?”

Li Huowang’s breathing quickened, his pupils shifting erratically. “You don’t believe me? Fine, I’ll show you. I’ll prove that the other world is real and not just a hallucination!”

Without another word, he bolted out of the warehouse and dragged Chen Hongyu inside. She was still munching on potato chips.

“Look closely!”

Li Huowang gave Chen Hongyu a lifespan pill. She swallowed it without any hesitation.

Chen Hongyu casually cleaned her teeth with her fingernails.

“What did you just feed me?”

“A lifespan pill. It can restore your youth!”

The moment he said it, something miraculous happened. Chen Hongyu began to transform. She lost weight at an incredible speed, and her features reverted to her younger self.

In mere moments, the aunt-like Chen Hongyu became a young lady, still snacking on potato chips.

Chen Hongyu was visibly shocked by her body’s transformation. “Hey! What is this? Li Huowang, I thought your ability was to conjure gold. Since when did your ability change?”

Her astonishment, however, was nothing compared to Yi Donglai’s. His eyes were wide with shock.

His unshakable heart began to crumble as he witnessed the impossible unfolding before him.

Li Huowang approached him eagerly. "Doctor Yi, do you see it now? Do you finally believe me? Can you empathize with the torment I've been enduring all these years? Can you finally understand what I've been going through?"

"Impossible. Impossible! How could this be? This is illogical! Yes, this must be magic!"

Desperate for answers, he grabbed Chen Hongyu and started inspecting her closely, even pulling at her clothes in disbelief.

Yi Donglai stood his ground, refusing to back down even after Chen Hongyu slapped him. He looked down and began inspecting the ground for any signs of a hidden trapdoor.

No matter how thoroughly he searched, reality gave him no escape—there were no tricks.

"Stay calm! I have to stay calm!" Yi Donglai said, trying to stabilize his mind with psychological reasoning. "This world... is the only world..."

Li Huowang held up the remaining seven pills in his hand. "Doctor Yi, I know you still don't believe me. You think it's a trick, right? Then try them yourself."

Fear and excitement warred on Yi Donglai's face. Eventually, he took all seven pills and swallowed them.

Moments later, a miraculous sensation surged through his body. His skin tightened, and his body rejuvenated. He was young again.

He ran out of the warehouse and started lifting heavy objects found around the house.

"Impossible! This cannot be!"

Seeing how frantic Yi Donglai was, Li Huowang retrieved a make-up mirror from Yang Na's bag, handing it over to Yi Donglai.

Yi Donglai saw a familiar-looking youth in the mirror and finally broke down.

"No! Impossible! This cannot be!"

Li Huowang took the mirror and returned it to Yang Na. “Doctor Yi, do you understand me now? Everything I’ve gone through is real. The things you documented in your thesis are real. These aren’t illusions—they’re living, human beings.”

Li Huowang pointed at the others behind him. “They are not liars either. They are the Simings of the Baiyu Capital.”

Yi Donglai froze, staring around him. His psyche broke down completely.

Li Huowang helped him stand up slowly. He turned to Yi Donglai and said, “I didn’t want to involve you, but I had no choice. You must realize the severity of the situation.

“This impacts the lives of everyone across three different historical timelines. I don’t know their exact population, but every single one is doing their best to survive. They just want to live.

“I know you’re a good person, and I’m certain that you don’t want to see them die. You wouldn’t want to see so many families torn apart, would you?

“Help me. Treat me. We need you for the battle ahead.”

Yi Donglai shook off Li Huowang and grabbed the mirror in Yang Na’s hands before stumbling into the warehouse.

Ba Shengqing, who had been loading his gun, chuckled and elbowed his sister. “Heh. We have one more lunatic on board.”

Ba Nanxu turned to Zhao Shuangdian. “Hey, it looks like we have one more ally. Let’s eat something nicer today.”

“Stop talking nonsense. I don’t think it’s that simple. Go bring my computer for me.”

Zhao Shuangdian followed Li Huowang into the warehouse. They pushed the door open and were greeted by the sight of Yi Donglai, holding onto a pocket watch and swinging it in front of his own reflection in the mirror.

“Look at the watch and follow it. Concentrate. While doing so, feel your body as it relaxes. Anytime you feel sleepy, you can close

Chapter 991 - Baiyu Capital

The Nuo Opera droned on without pause. The bamboo stage creaked as the fire below roared.

Li Huowang sighed and shook his head. Facing Fu Shengtian's power, the locals clung to every method they could think of, no matter how futile.

There were still people who believed in Da Nuo, and there were many of them in Hou Shu, but it was not wise to rely on the help of a Siming that had gone crazy.

"Do you think it will work just because they think it will? They are not Strayed Ones. It's all just superstition. Let's go."

Li Huowang gestured for Gao Zhijian to follow him to the temple of the Liang Kingdom's palace.

Gao Zhijian followed Li Huowang and tried to make him reconsider his plan. "Senior Li. Is this really what you're planning to do? The Baiyu Capital is very dangerous. You might not be safe even with the Dragon Qi protecting you."

"Do you have another plan? Should we wait for them to attack us while we sit and do nothing?" Li Huowang replied.

Li Huowang looked up and stared at the skies above him. "Even if this were a simple war, we would still need to send spies, wouldn't we? Don't worry. The Simings of the Baiyu Capital are on our side. They still owe me a favor."

Although Li Huowang had lost some of his memories, he still remembered that Fu Shengtian was targeting them.

He couldn't just strategize below here. He needed to go up and check to see if the Baiyu Capital was fine.

He had to see if the crack was still there or not. He couldn't fight without information. Li Huowang firmly believed that information on his enemy was vital and that fighting blind was not an option.

The Baiyu Capital didn't follow the rules of linear time. If he could glean anything about the future, it might prove invaluable.

Gao Zhijian nodded. "Then I wish you a safe journey. I will protect our world with Senior Bai down here."

"Zhijian, I know you want to save the Dragon Veins, but that's not something we can focus on right now. Fu Shengtian also has Dragon Veins, so we can secure as many as we want when we win.

"I also think the Dragon Veins are part of the Heavenly Dao of Order. Since there is a Heavenly Dao of Order, then there must be a Siming in charge of it.

"If we can't use Fu Shengtian's Dragon Vein, we can at least take the Heavenly Dao of Order from that Siming and create new Dragon Veins. We can return some of them to the Qi Kingdom, the Liang Kingdom, and even the Tianchen Kingdom to have seasons again."

"Senior Li, I trust you. Also..." Gao Zhijian hesitated while thinking about how to discuss with Li Huowang.

Li Huowang frowned. "What? Speak your mind."

"It's nothing. It's just a minor issue. Our survival comes first."

Li Huowang looked at him curiously before making haste for the temple. "Just tell me what you are thinking!"

"Senior Li, let me ask you this. Am I considered a good emperor now?"

Li Huowang looked at him seriously before answering, "Yes."

Gao Zhijian was a good emperor. He dedicated his life to his nation, even though he had been naive. Still, even under the best leadership, some citizens would always lead bad lives.

Gao Zhijian laughed heartily. "That's good to hear. At least I'm not a burden anymore.”

But his laughter quickly faded into worry. “Senior Li, everything depends on you now. You cannot die.”

“What kind of nonsense are you talking about? Hurry up!”

Li Huowang grabbed Gao Zhijian’s robes and pulled, causing the scenery to shift. They arrived at the temple almost immediately.

The large bronze tree stood unchanged, its branches pinning down the fourteen Dragon Veins while they wailed in torment. They had not been released since his last visit.

Li Huowang cracked his fists, and two more arms sprouted beneath his armpits. He then made a seal and chanted. Li Huowang was using the Dragon-Slaying Immortal-Killing Array to ascend to Baiyu Capital.

Li Huowang cracked his fists, and two more arms sprouted beneath his armpits. He then made a seal and began to chant. The Dragon-Slaying Immortal-Killing Array activated, drawing Dragon Qi from the Dragon Veins and making them shrink.

Sensing the Dragon Qi enveloping his body, Li Huowang looked up, and Peng Longteng appeared beside him.

Peng Longteng used her halberd to launch Li Huowang high up into the air.

Li Huowang flew past the clouds, the skies, and the weird beings living in the sky. Soon, he reached the massive Ox-Tail Gate.

Li Huowang took a deep breath and looked at the chaos of the large gate before stepping through.

He could not discern whether it was dark or bright, but he could perceive it as peaceful and spacious.

He didn’t know which side was up or down. The vast, timeless space was silent, eerily so.

The silence took Li Huowang aback. “What’s happening? Where are the other Simings?”

Li Huowang used his fingernails and cut a small wound on his arm. Small droplets of blood sipped out from his wound.

He felt no pain despite the wounds. He didn't know if the others were here, but he was now certain that Ba-Hui and the Sacrificial God weren't here.

Li Huowang clasped his hand on the wound and zipped it up. He was healed again.

He waved his arm around to move into the Baiyu Capital. He needed to figure out what was wrong.

Li Huowang's body started flashing as he used his "Truth" cultivation to propel himself forward.

However, he had to halt his progress after a few minutes since he lacked any landmarks to guide him. He wasn't even sure if he was going forward or backward.

"What's going on? What's happening?" The strange scene made Li Huowang nervous.

"Ji Zai! Ji Zai!" Li Huowang shouted into the void.

Something reacted to him. Something was coming for him.

He couldn't see, but he somehow managed to feel it.

"Who's there?"

The question had barely left his lips when hair-like strands brushed against his scalp.

Looking up, he saw nothing, but an icy chill crept up his spine, from his tailbone to his skull.

"Three Ancient Ones!"

Chapter 992 - Three Ancient Ones

Li Huowang sat outside the house, covering the wound on his forehead with his bangs. He stared aimlessly at the forest ahead, letting his gaze rest while thinking about his problems.

“Here.” A can of cola appeared in front of Li Huowang. He took it and realized that it was still cold.

“Where did you buy it?” Li Huowang drank a sip before passing it back to Yang Na.

She smiled proudly. “A small convenience store. I didn’t expect to find one out here in the countryside. It’s simple, but it has the basics.”

She then looked at how grumpy Li Huowang was and consoled him, saying, “Don’t worry. We can win this. We’re Simings who govern the Heavenly Daos. Fu Shengtian threw so many of his Simings at us and still lost. They’re no match for us—we’re stronger than we think. We’ve taken down many of their Simings, and only a few of us have fallen. This time, we’ll win.”

Yang Na had become more relaxed and cheerful since embracing Li Huowang’s worldview, and she had overcome her depression.

He knew she was trying to cheer him up, but her words couldn’t lift his spirits. His mind kept circling back to what Qing Wanglai had told him.

Li Huowang couldn’t fully believe or dismiss the words of the Sitting Oblivion Dao. Their truths were always mixed with lies, making it hard to discern truth from deception.

And then there was the matter of the Three Ancient Ones’ plan.

His intentions remained a mystery, even when the enemy was practically at their doorstep.

Qing Wanglai was his enemy now. A regular enemy wasn't a threat, but Qing Wanglai was someone who understood their strengths and weaknesses. He was a major threat.

"Stop thinking and come inside for a meal. We need to be full if we want to deal with our problems. The chicken in the countryside is amazing. I snuck a few pieces while they were cooking."

Yang Na pulled Li Huowang into the house and seated him on the table. Various dishes were being served, and one of the dishes was mushroom braised chicken.

The delicious scent made Chen Hongyu salivate uncontrollably.

Yang Na was correct. The chicken was delicious, tender, and juicy. It was well marinated, and even its bone was fragrant. It was completely different from the chicken they bought in the supermarket.

Li Huowang washed down a bite with a sip of cola, relishing the cold fizz. Looking around, he noticed someone was missing. "Where's Doctor Yi?"

"He's still in the warehouse, trying to hypnotize himself," Ba Nanxu mumbled, her mouth full of chicken. "But hey, thanks to him, we've got this amazing meal."

Li Huowang sighed when he heard how Yi Donglai was still losing his mind. He didn't want to do it, but there was no time. He needed to ensure everything was going right to fight against Fu Shengtian.

"Save him some chicken," Li Huowang said, taking a piece of bamboo shoot. "I'll bring it to him and check on him later."

Although Yi Donglai had treated him to a point where he no longer uncontrollably traveled to the other world, neither he nor Yi Donglai could be sure that he was fully cured

"He's just a prisoner. Why bother? We should just leave him some vegetables. We barely have enough chicken for ourselves,” Chen Hongyu grumbled, pouring the chicken’s sauce over her rice. It was the most fragrant way to eat her meal.

The others continued eating until barely any chicken remained.

Yang Na stood up and grabbed the last chicken wing before placing it into Li Huowang’s bowl.

She had just sat down and ate a few mouthfuls when she saw Li Huowang frozen in place. He didn’t touch his chicken at all.

“Huowang, why aren’t you eating it? I thought you loved chicken wings?” Yang Na bit her chopsticks while asking Li Huowang.

“Give me if you don’t want it.” Chen Hongyu happily tried to take the chicken wing from Li Huowang’s bowl.

Just then, Yang Na saw Li Huowang’s face lighting up in surprise before giving in to fear.

“Three Ancient Ones!” Li Huowang shot up and shouted.

While Chen Hongyu was distracted by Li Huowang’s shout, Zhao Lei quickly took the chicken wing away.

“Qing Wanglai, what are you doing here!”

Li Huowang’s angry shout reverberated throughout the entire house.

Chen Hongyu clicked her tongue and continued eating her rice. “Sheesh, why so noisy? Go outside if you’re going to shout.”

Li Huowang grabbed his sword and snarled. “Why are you back in the Baiyu Capital? We’re all here, and yet you dare to come back?”

Li Huowang swung his blade furiously in front of him.

“Li Huowang, what are you talking about? There’s nothing in front of you,” Wu Qi said in confusion.

“Of course, you can’t see it! What is seen but not perceived is called ‘invisible’; what is heard but not heard is called ‘rare’; what is grasped but not obtained is called ‘subtle.’ I’ve said this before—we cannot see the body of the Three Ancient Ones!”

Li Huowang had just said that when he rolled backward.

His frustration mounted as the others continued eating, oblivious to the danger. They couldn't sense what was happening in the other world.

Only Li Huowang and Qing Wanglai could influence both worlds.

Li Huowang never thought Qing Wanglai would attack them from the other world.

Although this confirmed that Yi Donglai's treatment was working, there was no time to celebrate. If the Three Ancient Ones succeeded in snatching him away, part of Ji Zai would be stolen as well. They would be in deep trouble later on.

Li Huowang glared at the empty void in the Baiyu Capital. He was on the verge of risking his life. Suddenly, Yang Na grabbed her gun and fired at the empty space in front of him.

Chapter 993 - Secret

Amid the chaos of Baiyu Capital, Li Huowang felt the space around him growing unstable. This disturbance didn't stem from his cultivation of the "Truth." It came from the influence of the Three Ancient Ones.

Li Huowang felt that the Three Ancient Ones were very close to him right now.

A snarl crossed his face as he remembered what the Three Ancient Ones did last time. He gripped his blade and swung forward, but his blade did nothing, even though he could feel the strands in front of him.

A gunshot rang out as Li Huowang prepared to use a different attack against the Three Ancient Ones. Something in front of Li Huowang trembled and flashed briefly.

What appeared was a massive being with no end. It looked like an amoeba with faint flashing lights.

In that fleeting moment, Li Huowang realized that this being was entirely composed of interwoven secrets.

Li Huowang read the secrets, and they unraveled in his mind without conscious effort. Having grasped all the secrets, He started to learn what the Tree Ancient Ones had tried to take from his body. However, before he could fully comprehend, a scorching heat grazed his head.

Bang! Another gunshot rang out. Li Huowang felt his sweat dripping down his chin but didn't have time to register what was happening—the Three Ancient Ones was trying to run away!

"Nana, chase after him! Your attack is working!" Li Huowang shouted, running to chase after the Three Ancient Ones.

As he ran, Li Huowang scanned his surroundings to ensure the Three Ancient Ones did not lay any traps for them. Qing Wanglai must've come prepared, as he wouldn't have appeared in front of Li Huowang without a reason.

Yang Na drove past Li Huowang with her motorbike. She stopped a few meters in front of Li Huowang and started shooting the space before her.

“Attack now! I blocked him!”

“Good!” Li Huowang lunged for the Three Ancient Ones while Yang Na continued shooting.

Splat!

The blade, which was stained with Li Huowang's blood, had successfully wounded the Three Ancient Ones. Secrets continuously leaked out.

The Three Ancient Ones reacted instantly, fragmenting into countless pieces that scattered in every direction. Li Huowang refused to let him escape after finally landing a blow. He chased after one fragment, shouting, “Nana!”

Yang Na looped back on her motorbike, and Li Huowang hauled himself onto the seat behind her. As they closed the distance, Li Huowang finally sensed the leaking secrets. One small secret, no larger than a ping-pong ball, struck Li Huowang's blind eye.

A chill swept through him as a scene flashed in his mind: an old, blind Daoist sat cross-legged before a statue of the Three Ancient Ones, kowtowing reverently.

The Daoist was whispering, but his trembling voice echoed clearly in Li Huowang's ears. “Supreme One, I've overheard a secret. I don't know if it's true, but I beseech you to reveal the answer.

“Why is everyone suffering? Why do Natural Disasters plague us? Why are there so many sects?

“I found a jade tablet, which revealed the answer to me.”

The old Daoist's eyes dilated with fear, his voice trembling as if he could not believe what he would say next. "It's... it's because this is our karma! We're not in the world of the living, but rather the world of the dead! We're not humans—we're ghosts repaying karmic debts!

"The process of reincarnation has stopped because Da Nuo has gone mad. That's why everything is so twisted right now. Humans aren't humans, and ghosts aren't ghosts."

The old Daoist chuckled weakly, as if he had used up all his strength. "Supreme One. If we're all ghosts, how can we cultivate and ascend to immortality?"

The scene faded. When Li Huowang snapped back, he realized he was back in the Baiyu Capital.

"What's going on? Is that why the world is so crazy? Is it because the Liang Kingdom used to be the underworld?!"

He recalled the Flesh Buddha of the Righteous Monastery, the Bodhisattva composed of flies in the Benevolent Nunnery, and the charred Sacrificial God of the Ao Jing Sect. He realized that it made sense.

The strange revelation stunned him and gave the Three Ancient Ones more time to escape.

Li Huowang shook his head and cursed. It was a secret, but it could be fake. It might not be the truth.

This was Qing Wanglai's attempt to shake him off. It was something that only the Three Ancient Ones could do.

Li Huowang saw him escaping and knew that there was no time. Who knew where the Three Ancient Ones would lead him?

He stood up and launched himself from the back of the motorbike.

Just a short distance away from the Three Ancient Ones, he materialized Peng Longteng and used her halberd to throw him even farther.

It was more than enough. Li Huowang raised his blade and stabbed the Three Ancient Ones ruthlessly.

He stabbed numerous times until the Three Ancient Ones almost dissipated. Suddenly, the Three Ancient Ones lashed out with threads, using them to grab Li Huowang's head and force it upwards.

Li Huowang froze when he saw what was on top of him. The Baiyu Capital was supposed to be chaotic, without any darkness or light.

Now, there was something different above him. The very same iridescent black liquid that had submerged the Qi Kingdom had appeared.

The strange, oily, iridescent color now stained the skies of the Baiyu Capital.

Li Huowang hadn't forgotten where he was. He was still within the Baiyu Capital, and Fu Shengtian somehow turned a portion of it into itself.

This time, there was a noticeable difference. In the past, it had only tried to squeeze through a crack. Now, it had fully incorporated a chunk of it into itself. In fact, half of the Baiyu Capital's sky—if it could even be called that—had been assimilated.

In the strange, iridescent darkness, the color pumped like a heartbeat, as if it was nurturing a terrifying lifeform.

Chapter 994 - Creep

In the turbulent Baiyu Capital, Li Huowang observed the skies consumed by Fu Shengtian.

The iridescent darkness contracted and expanded. Every time it did, it grew stronger.

Fu Shengtian was attacking Baiyu Capital. A chill ran down Li Huowang's spine as a heavy pressure settled over his chest.

Fu Shengtian had never stopped attacking. Whether striking head-on or launching ambushes, the assault was relentless.

"We need to act now!"

Li Huowang looked down to find nothing beneath him. The secret that had leaked out had disappeared.

The Three Ancient Ones had escaped by distracting Li Huowang with Fu Shengtian. That was why he had lured Li Huowang here.

"Three Ancient Ones, I will find you one day!"

LI Huowang roared and ran towards the sky with his bloody blade.

"Nana, help me!"

Yang Na nodded and raised her gun to shoot the skies.

Gunshots rang out, but the sound of thunder soon replaced it as heavy rain fell down from the skies, drenching everyone.

The rain battered Li Huowang, blurring his vision and making him uncomfortable.

The rain pummeled everyone's umbrellas. They ran outside and saw two couples going crazy.

Zhao Shuangdian was busy typing on her laptop and calculating something. Her typing noise resonated with the sound of the rain.

Yang Na approached them anxiously and asked, “Who still has more bullets? Give me some! I ran out of them!”

She asked again and again, but no one replied. “Hurry up! Huowang is fighting against Fu Shengtian alone! I need to go help him!”

Yang Na used her hand to shield her eyes as she glared at the dark clouds above her with animosity.

The sound of typing suddenly stopped. Zhao Shuangdian grabbed two loaded magazines from the back of Ba Shengqing and gave them to Yang Na without hesitation.

Zhao Shuangdian’s actions surprised everyone. Ba Nanxu stared in disbelief. “Did their insanity rub off on you?”

Zhao Shuangdian nodded. “Why not? His model fits mine. I trust him.”

Ba Nanxu gaped in shock but said nothing. When she realized Zhao Shuangdian wasn’t joking, she chuckled, taking out her own gun and firing it at the skies.

“Fine. If you want to die, I’ll bury you. Now what? Should I return as the Siming of Pain and use the Heavenly Dao of Pain to strike down Fu Shengtian’s Simings? To make them die from pain?”

Zhao Shuangdian stared at the equations on her laptop before shaking her head. “We cannot follow their plans. They have theirs, and we will follow ours.

“For now, we cannot influence the Baiyu Capital. Just leave it to Li Huowang here. Go and start our cars. Since they are here, that means that they have a gathering point. We just need to find it and infiltrate it.”

Three off-road vehicles emerged from the muddy path, and everyone entered them. With a cigarette still in hand, Ba Nanxu rolled down the windows and shouted, “Hang in there, Huowang! We’re going to the Baiyu Capital to help you!”

Li Huowang wiped his face with his sleeves. “Hurry up!

They've already absorbed a large portion of Baiyu Capital! I don't know if they still have any hidden aces!"

Ba Nanxu nodded and stepped on the gas pedal. The vehicle roared to life and drove on the muddy path.

However, nobody noticed the arrival of Yi Donglai. He stood in the rain without moving, his lips tightly pursed. He still had the pocket watch in his hands.

Li Huowang sighed when he heard the engines disappearing. This time, he wasn't alone.

"Three Ancient Ones! Show them the path, or you won't have a Baiyu Capital to live in!"

Li Huowang didn't care if Qing Wanglai heard him or not. All he could do right now was to stab his blade numerous times into the dark skies. As he did, the black liquid poured out, engulfing Li Huowang.

The black liquid was capable of causing growth on most surfaces. Thankfully, the Dragon Qi on Li Huowang's body protected him, making the black liquid simply slick off his face.

Li Huowang continued to attack without worrying about his own safety.

After some time, he realized that it wasn't working. It was too slow. In the face of the black liquid, he was powerless.

Li Huowang wiped the water off his face. "No, this isn't working. I need to find another way to stop it!"

Li Huowang swiftly made a decision and sprinted towards the left. He increased his speed with his cultivation.

In just a few minutes, he reached the border between the Baiyu Capital and the black liquid. Li Huowang saw that Fu Shengtian was still growing and assimilating more of the Baiyu Capital.

In just a few minutes, he reached the border where the black liquid continued its relentless assimilation of the Baiyu Capital.

Li Huowang knew he was out of time. Without hesitation, he used his blade to sever a section of the Baiyu Capital, isolating it from the encroaching menace.

Since he couldn't do anything to the liquid, he would rather cut off a part of the Baiyu Capital.

He saw that the black liquid did not continue to spread beyond the place he had separated. Relief surged through him—his method had worked.

But then, an ominous hissing arose from the depths of the black liquid. An overwhelming wave of uneasiness washed over Li Huowang.

The hissing sound was far from simple, with multiple overlapping noises. It gradually became louder, reaching a point where Li Huowang could hear nothing but a deafening roar.

Yi Donglai's voice suddenly broke past the loud noise. "Li Huowang, there's thunder and lightning! Throw the knife away, or you will get electrocuted!"

Chapter 995 - Battle

Suddenly, the entire black, iridescent sky split open. A flash of platinum emerged from the darkness, carrying a nearly tangible gaze.

He felt an odd, almost inexplicable sensation emanating from the platinum gaze. It transcended his ordinary senses.

It was just a ray of light, but it tainted his eyes and turned them black and iridescent. As his eyes transformed, the black, iridescent liquid started to seep out from his eye socket.

That attack had visibly hurt his eyeball. Realizing something was wrong, Li Huowang snarled and clawed at his eye, attempting to dig it out.

“Li Huowang, stop! You can’t gouge it out—this is your last eye! If you do, you’ll be completely blind!” Yi Donglai shouted, grabbing his arm at the last moment.

“Scram! Don’t try to stop me! If I don’t do this, it will affect me!” Li Huowang shouted, throwing Yi Donglai away.

Just as he raised his hand to tear at his eye again, a sudden gaze from afar appeared. Li Huowang felt his body opening up like a flower blossoming. The pain overwhelmed him, halting both his movements and the black liquid’s flow.

Li Huowang’s senses melded together. He recognized the presence approaching: Ba-Hui, the Siming who governed the Heavenly Dao of Pain. And Ba-Hui wasn’t alone—he felt the others reaching around him.

“You’re all here! Attack now!”

Li Huowang raised his arm and pointed at the dark cloud to his left.

The Simings, which had fused together, floated like a large mountain towards the black sky.

The black sky began to bubble like hot metal plunged into oil.

An explosion sent a powerful heatwave blasting out from the impact. This intense heatwave burned off a layer of Li Huowang's skin.

Gazing up at the cracked sky, Li Huowang caught sight of the darkness that lay beyond. Without a moment's hesitation, he joined the other Simings and followed them toward the crack.

They were all fighting against Fu Shengtian and its Simings. He couldn't remain behind.

As he was about to enter the dark hole, an inverted tree fell through the hole. Its twisted, rotting form gleamed with an iridescent sheen.

The sharp crown of the tree pierced through his chest, pinning him down. It grew endlessly and pushed Li Huowang down.

Li Huowang struggled but couldn't move at all.

Suddenly, Li Huowang felt a glow behind him. When he looked back, he saw the floating Ox-Tail Gate.

The tree burst through the Ox-Tail Gate and stabbed down through the clouds.

It grew so fast that the Ox-Tail Gate was far above it. However, Li Huowang's melded senses let him perceive that the Ox-Tail Jade had shattered.

The large tree crashed into the ground and raised a large plume of dust.

The tree's branches spread outwards, as though it intended to take over the entire world.

It wasn't over yet. Its sprawling form stretched across the place, forming a strange connection between Heaven and Earth. It resembled a massive mushroom.

With a roar, the bottom part of the tree exploded. Li Huowang emerged from the wreckage, his body ablaze.

He floated upward and glared at the tree angrily. The tree had broken the Ox-Tail Gate.

Li Huowang could sense the Heavenly Daos going out of control without the Ox-Tail Gate. The world was now undergoing a lot of Natural Disasters, and even Li Huowang couldn't discern which Heavenly Dao caused which calamity.

"It's all because of you!" Li Huowang exclaimed in anger. Simultaneously, a colossal piece of jade descended from the heavens, narrowly missing him.

He grabbed it and fashioned the jade into a massive ax. He couldn't move it, but he had a plan.

He reached out his left arm and grabbed something.

Li Huowang caught it and fashioned it into a massive axe. It was too heavy to wield, but he had a plan. He extended his left arm to grab something, phasing past the Liang Kingdom, Qing Qiu, and the ground. Finally, he grasped the Lion Dance Palace hidden far below.

"It's time for you to help me!"

The white tassels complied, entering his body. His organs began to grow outward while new organs sprouted in every direction.

Li Huowang's body swelled beyond recognition. It became impossible to distinguish the front, side, back, up, and bottom of his body. He became one with the Lion Dance Palace.

Through his bulging large body, he let out an incoherent roar as he grabbed the large ax and tried to cut down the tree.

With an incoherent roar, Li Huowang lifted the colossal axe and struck the tree. The impact sent tremors across the battlefield, leaving a deep gash in the trunk. He swung again and again, each strike more furious than the last.

Finally, he cut down the tree. However, it quickly fell and reconnected the part he had chopped off. The wound healed swiftly, and the tree was whole once more.

Li Huowang chopped the tree repeatedly, but it would fall down and heal each time. He couldn't do anything to it.

Then, the world seemed to ignite. A titanic head, vast enough to eclipse both sky and earth, roared and lunged at the tree. Gao Zhijian had summoned Jiang Xiangshou.

Li Huowang pounced toward Jiang Xiangshou and grabbed it. The white tassels behind his body worked hard to fuse them together.

The Dragon Qi within him fused with Jiang Xiangshou's murderous aura. Li Huowang channeled their combined power into the axe. Together, they charged at the tree with a deafening roar.

In the pouring rain, Yi Donglai stood frozen in stunned silence, watching Li Huowang's distorted form. His crimson body was twisted, his mouth was crooked, and his veins were bulging. He repeatedly swung at the empty space around him with his bloodied blade.

The sight was both eerie and bizarre. Li Huowang appeared to be performing the strange dance of the Nuo Opera in the rain.

Chapter 996 - Come In

Within the territory of the Great Liang, a colossal pillar stretched between heaven and earth, its surface sprouting and writhing with twisting branches. These warped extensions reached into every available space, as though seeking to consume all in their path.

An immense, distorted figure floated amidst the clouds. It was none other than the powerful Li Huowang.

“Hah!” Li Huowang shouted, his four mouths opening in unison. He swung a giant jade axe and hacked the pillar.

Shrouded in murderous aura, Li Huowang rushed to the fracture point of the pillar before it could fall. He roared as he chopped repeatedly at the falling pillar.

The massive pillar that extended from the Baiyu Capital kept descending, but every section was promptly severed by Li Huowang, who was now imbued with the power of Jiang Xiangshou.

He had now reached the seventh stage of “Truth” cultivation. In addition, he had used the Lion Dance Palace to merge with Jiang Xiangshou. This giant pillar from Fu Shengtian was not a match for him.

Li Huowang relentlessly cleaved the pillar from the Great Liang upward into the heavens. Finally, he hurled it toward the stars.

A tear in the heavens at the Baiyu Capital made chaos and disorder spill out, spreading down toward the mortal realm.

Li Huowang roared, driving his jade axe into the opening and sealing off the pillar’s influence in the mortal world.

However, he knew that this wasn’t enough. The breach remained, and if left unchecked, it would only widen.

He stared intently at the axe lodged in the gap with bloodshot eyes. It quickly morphed and finally formed into a shape that blocked off more of the breach.

He was not done. As he focused, shards of the Ox Tail Gate that had previously fallen began to reassemble.

Each fragment flew up from the ground and returned to its place. One jade shard, about the size of a table, flashed past him. It bore a faint red seal on it.

Li Huowang caught a brief glimpse of the characters “Zhuan Xu” before the shard vanished and returned to its original position.

With Li Huowang’s cultivation, the shattered Ox Tail Gate reassembled itself, sealing its gaps and once again taking the form of an enormous jade pendant. It was suspended between the Baiyu Capital and the mortal realm.

However, the situation did not improve much despite the repairs. Li Huowang remembered precisely what was unfolding at the Baiyu Tower.

He saw the chaos surge again within the gate and cried loudly with his six mouths. He reached over his shoulder to rip out his spine before charging straight into the gate.

The Baiyu Capital, which was previously in chaos, had transformed into a turbulent sea of Heavenly Daos that blended and collided with one another.

The Siming closest to him was a faceless Bodhisattva. Her graceful, flowing motions, accompanied by her robes that seemed to flutter randomly in the air, gave the impression that she was drifting underwater.

A pale, strange circle halo enveloped the back of her head, which made it hard to distinguish her appearance. At a closer distance, he saw that it was composed of countless white eyes.

The light behind the Bodhisattva continued to radiate outward, illuminating everything around.

With his heightened perceptions, he could faintly sense that this Siming seemed to have another side. However, he couldn't discern exactly what it was because he lacked the sensory organs to perceive it fully.

Li Huowang didn't know who this figure was, but he was sure it was a Siming of Baiyu Capital. He had once encountered this entity during his desperate fight with Dan Yangzi.

"Get your ass here and help! Don't just stand there!" Li Huowang shouted at the Siming as he charged toward the black, cracked sky.

Li Huowang stumbled and tripped over the high edge of the doorway, falling forward.

"Careful!" Yang Na caught up behind him and supported Li Huowang. They peered into the dilapidated temple together.

A torrential downpour raged outside. It leaked heavily inside the neglected rural temple, with water dripping everywhere.

The temple was littered with broken statues of Arhats and Buddhas, covered in dust and scattered without order. Every now and then, flashes of lightning would illuminate the scene, adding an eerie and sinister touch.

Yang Na noticed cigarette butts on the ground and deduced that someone had been there before. However, it was evident they hadn't been there for any proper business.

The Arhat statues had been defaced and smeared with filth, and some of the broken ones had been randomly reassembled.

She helped the panting Li Huowang toward the altar. But as they passed a statue with a broken finger, he froze, staring at it before bursting into maniacal laughter.

"Hahaha! A finger? All my effort, all my suffering, all I went through—and it was just a finger?

"You think that's enough to scare me? You think I'm afraid? Dream on!"

Li Huowang abruptly stood up. He stomped hard on the ground and lunged at the Arhat statue with a broken finger.

The clay statue was massive and heavy. Li Huowang crashed into it like an egg smashing against a rock. A dull thud resonated, and he immediately started bleeding from his head.

Ignoring his injuries, he raised his military knife and furiously hacked at the Arhat statue.

Yi Donglai stood outside the temple, completely drenched in the pouring rain. He stared dumbfoundedly at the scene unfolding before his eyes.

Yang Na, alarmed by his actions, shouted, "Step back! Let me handle this!"

She raised her pistol and fired two shots directly at the statue's head.

The combined efforts of the two began to show results. The large clay statue started to shed its outer shell and paint. Its structure became unstable, and some broken parts even revealed the bamboo framework beneath.

Finally, with a thunderous crash, the Arhat statue collapsed, burying Li Huowang beneath the rubble.

Li Huowang could be heard violently coughing amidst the dust. Yi Donglai gritted his teeth and prepared to rush into the temple to help.

"Stop! Don't move!" Li Huowang's roar froze him in place.

Li Huowang's eyes burned with a mix of terror and shock. He stared at Yi Donglai from inside the rubble, and his voice trembled as he shouted, "We can, but you can't! Don't come in! Whatever you do, don't come in!"

Chapter 997 - Change

“Don’t come any closer! Stay back!”

He stood beneath the torrential rain, his gaze fixed on the scene unfolding inside. His thoughts were in complete disarray.

Yang Na looked at the seemingly possessed Li Huowang with a pained expression. She turned toward Dr. Yi outside the door and shouted, “Dr. Yi! Since you’re fully conscious, help us! Huowang can’t hold off all these Simings from Fu Shengtian alone!”

“I... I...” Yi Donglai’s breathing quickened and turned more erratic. He clenched his teeth and slapped his forehead uncontrollably.

He even wanted to grab a mirror to check if he looked younger. He wanted to see if his previous experiences were real or just hallucinations.

For the first time, he understood why his patients acted the way they did.

Suddenly, Li Huowang burst from the debris with his military knife in hand, still streaked in dust and blood. He lunged forward, viciously kicking another clay statue to his left.

The impact toppled the statue, making it crash against a nearby column along with Li Huowang.

Creak! The wood splintered as the half-rotten column began to bend and distort.

Crack! Another sound quickly followed as the column snapped. The moss-covered tiles began to fall from above, increasing in number.

“Get out! The temple is collapsing! You’ll both be buried inside if you don’t get out!” Yi Donglai warned urgently. Noticing the temple shake, he momentarily put aside his confusion.

Yang Na's heart skipped a beat. She grabbed Li Huowang's arm and tried to pull him outside.

Li Huowang had no desire to remain in such a predicament, but he was stuck. His left foot was trapped within the chest of a clay statue, and he couldn't pull it free no matter how hard he tried.

As the tiles continued to fall and the temple tilted further, he shoved Yang Na toward the exit without hesitation.

The next moment, a disturbing gulp from above chilled him to the very bone.

His body trembled uncontrollably, though he wasn't the one shaking. The white tassels from the Lion Dance Palace were vibrating. They vibrated harder and harder until they dissolved into streams of blood that dripped down his frame. With the tassels gone, Jiang Xiangshou also started to separate from his body.

Unable to escape, he sensed something and looked up sharply. There was an oppressive, hollowed, and inverted black mountain. It filled his entire field of vision.

Something was roaring and thrashing within while the exuded Heavenly Dao caused Li Huowang's figure to erode.

The inverted black mountain pressed down with unyielding pressure. He suddenly understood that this wasn't a mountain at all. It was a tooth. Something was trying to devour him.

If just a tooth was so large, how enormous must the Siming of Fu Shengtian be? And what power did it hold?

Li Huowang figured it out, but it was already too late. The tooth descended, and he could only watch as the abyss behind it pulled him into the darkness.

He didn't die. He began seeing fragmented memories in a state between dream and reality. Some were snippets from his childhood, or maybe just memories.

In his dimly lit home, his mother, Sun Xiaoqin, was cheerfully carrying a cake toward him. He remembered this scene from his tenth birthday. He'd spent the entire day playing games, and it had been one of the happiest days of his life.

Out of nowhere, the darkness crept in from the left. The scene lit up once more for a fleeting moment. The cake frosting had splattered onto the floor, and the ribbon that had once adorned the cake box now dangled from the ceiling fan.

The ribbon was wrapped around Sun Xiaoqin's elongated tongue, dragging her body along. The image stopped here, just before Li Huowang.

The image froze in Li Huowang's mind as well. From that point on, his mother was absent from his memories.

His health deteriorated, becoming sickly and frail as though deprived of his mother's presence. His complexion worsened, and he even seemed shorter.

This was only the beginning. All his cherished memories gradually gave way to scenes of despair.

He saw his father spiral into alcoholism, picking him up and beating him mercilessly. Eventually, his father drank himself to death on the sofa.

Li Huowang felt his heart darken. His personality changed, and resentment consumed him.

No! This isn't right! It shouldn't be like this! Horrified, Li Huowang struggled desperately in the darkness. He didn't know what was going on, but he could feel that something was seriously wrong.

He saw himself pulling out one of Yang Na's fingernails and biting off her fingers one by one. He screamed in fury.

No! These aren't my memories! They're not mine! Li Huowang opened his skull in the darkness, reaching in and yanking something out.

Those depressing memories disappeared, but his old memories didn't return. Only a blank, empty space remained.

I need to get out of here! I will get out of here!

Li Huowang gathered the last of his Dragon Qi into his hand and plunged it into the darkness. The rain outside mixed with flashes of lightning, which burst inside.

A rough hand and a delicate hand reached inside, grabbing his clothes and yanking him out of the temple ruins.

The cold rain continued to pour and splashed on his face.

Li Huowang was in pain, but he ignored his injuries and grabbed Yang Na's hands to inspect them closely.

His pupils constricted sharply when he saw her right index finger was indeed severed at the root.

Yang Na shook her head. "It's okay. I don't blame you. I know you couldn't control yourself back then. Let's leave this place quickly. It's too dangerous."

Chapter 998 - Draw

Li Huowang stared at Yang Na's severed finger, the rain pouring down as he held her hand.

The finger had already healed, but this wasn't just a matter of Yang Na losing a finger. If her finger had indeed been severed, everything else he saw must have also been real.

The realization that his grim visions had manifested in reality struck Li Huowang with bone-deep dread. A profound horror filled his eyes as the truth dawned on him: this Siming of Fu Shengtian had altered his past, rewriting the events of his life.

No... this can't be! I have to kill it! I need to go back and change everything back to the way it was before! Li Huowang struggled to his feet, with his head bleeding and his body still wounded. He dragged himself toward the ruins of the dilapidated temple.

"Little Li! You're badly injured! Lie down, don't move!" Yi Donglai blocked his path and shouted at him to stop. He was completely soaked by the rain.

"Get out of my way! You don't understand what I've been through!" Li Huowang roared, his veins bulging as he raised a hand to shove Yi Donglai aside.

Yi Donglai moved first, shoving Li Huowang back into Yang Na's arms. "No! I do understand!"

Yi Donglai's eyes were bloodshot, perhaps due to the rain or some other reason. He continued, "I was your attending physician! I know everything you've been through! I even know exactly what you're thinking now!"

"Don't forget I studied medicine! I know way more than you do! Now, sit tight! Leave this to me!"

Without waiting for a response, Yi Donglai turned and walked toward the temple ruins. He bent down, picked up a broken tile, and moved purposefully through the debris.

The temple's rubble was in a mess. There were all sorts of shattered bricks, broken tiles, and splintered wood piled haphazardly, making it easy to get injured while walking through.

However, Yi Donglai didn't care. He used his hands to push aside the debris, clearing a large area of uneven bricks.

Shards of broken tiles scraped his arms as he did, but he ignored the pain. He held up a shard and began to furiously scratch lines onto the rough surface of the stone bricks.

The shard scraped against the stone with a grating sound as the lines began to take shape.

Yang Na supported the battered Li Huowang over to Yi Donglai's side. At that moment, lightning lit up the sky and illuminated everything for an instant.

In that fleeting, silvery light, Li Huowang finally saw what Yi Donglai was drawing. It was a roughly sketched figure with certain distinguishing features. Li Huowang immediately recognized the person Yi Donglai was depicting.

It was a slim woman with tattoos on her left side, a forked tongue, and a lip piercing.

Yi Donglai was drawing Ba Nanxu, Ba-Hui's projection.

The figure of Ba Nanxu was strange and distorted in an almost inhuman way. Perhaps Yi Donglai's lack of skill had made her body unnaturally elongated and twisted.

Ba Nanxu seemed to be emerging from a vague, contorted shape. Her mouth was wide open like a serpent, as if ready to devour the surrounding rubble.

Yi Donglai didn't stop there. His hand moved feverishly, sketching the other Simings who had departed with Zhao Shuangdian. Each figure was crudely drawn and sketched in a strange form, yet imbued with an eerie, lifelike quality.

“What are you doing?” Li Huowang shouted amidst the rain.

Yi Donglai didn’t stop drawing. “They couldn’t come here because they couldn’t find the path! They need a medium! Do you get it, Li Huowang? Qing Wanglai was right! They’re all projections! They’re all projections, and projections need a background!”

For a moment, doubt flickered in Yi Donglai’s eyes, but when he caught sight of his own reflection in a nearby puddle, he steeled himself. He tightened his grip on the shard and drew with renewed vigor.

“It’s okay! We won’t lose! I finally get it—I am the projection of Da Nuo! That’s the truth! The difference is that it’s insane, while I’m not!”

Yi Donglai’s newfound resolve didn’t shock Li Huowang as much as the next figure he drew. It was a bloated young man with something seemingly stuffed beneath him.

Although the face was unfamiliar, his smile was disturbingly recognizable. Li Huowang instantly knew who it was—Qing Wanglai, the projection of the Three Pure Ones.

The Three Pure Ones hadn’t left at all. He was just hiding nearby.

A fire blazed in Li Huowang’s heart when he saw that disgusting face. Memories of Qing Wanglai’s past despicable deeds flashed through his mind.

Without hesitation, Li Huowang picked up a piece of broken brick and smashed it down onto Qing Wanglai’s face in the drawing. There was a crisp, cracking sound.

As Li Huowang approached Yi Donglai’s artwork, he couldn’t help but notice something peculiar. Qing Wanglai was disturbingly close to Zhao Shuangdian’s figure, almost overlapping with her.

“What is he doing? What’s he planning? At a time like this, how dare he!”

Li Huowang had broken into a cold sweat. He pushed Yang Na aside, leaped high, and plunged headfirst into Yi Donglai's drawing.

Splash! He was instantly submerged in freezing liquid. He was in.

Without even bothering to survey his surroundings, he hastily shouted, "Zhao Shuangdian, watch out! Qing Wanglai is stealing your Heavenly Dao!"

The icy liquid rushed into his mouth, and he felt like his organs were coming alive. He realized the kind of liquid that had surrounded him, as it had the same dark, iridescent hues he'd seen before. It was the same liquid that had engulfed the Great Qi in the past.

He had entered Fu Shengtian.

A chill swept over him as he realized a horrifying truth hidden in all this chaos.

Fu Shengtian was disturbingly close to Baiyu Capital, much like Qing Wanglai's drawing was to Zhao Shuangdian's.

Chapter 999 - Fu Shengtian

Within Fu Shengtian, Li Huowang's consciousness distorted, his senses blending into a tangled, chaotic mass. His vision was impaired, yet he could still perceive the Three Pure Ones and the Siming it was stealing from. It was Zhao Shuangdian!

The two figures began to merge, their forms intertwining with each other.

Li Huowang didn't know what the Three Pure Ones was plotting, nor did he fully grasp the events unfolding before him. However, one thing was clear: he could not let the Three Pure Ones succeed.

He immediately ran forward, swinging his arms at the Three Pure Ones.

He felt a string-like touch. Prompting him to quickly raise his spine sword and slash forward.

This time, things were different. In the past, he could sense things without touching them. Now, with the Three Pure Ones being physically present, Li Huowang had the power to wound him.

“Qing Wanglai! Die!”

A sharp sound pierced the air as he severed the secret karmic chains binding Zhao Shuangdian. They dissolved into the murky, iridescent black water surrounding them.

The Three Pure Ones' figure flickered wildly upon seeing Li Huowang ruining his plans.

As he writhed, a karmic chain of secrets emerged from within Li Huowang, eventually linking into the Three Pure Ones' network of secrets.

The tension in this chain of secrets suddenly snapped, and a flood of memories surged into Li Huowang's mind.

He remembered the Elder Shen Benyou of the Ao Jing Sect, sitting in the dim Cross Temple under the Sacrificial God's statue. He was discussing with the five other elders.

"I've ensured that Li Huowang owes us a favor. Now, we only need to wait for the right moment and use it to atone for the past massacre."

"I bought information from Moongate indicating that he still believes the Sitting Oblivion Dao caused the incident. He absolved himself of any involvement, and we can use this to lure him into using the Inch Dissection Ritual."

"No, this child is not an ordinary Strayed One. The Inch Dissection Ritual alone is not sufficient. We must plan carefully since he's no ordinary person. We must ensure he becomes the next Sacrificial God to complete our pact with Ba-Hui."

This sudden memory appeared in Li Huowang's mind. He remembered the deserted, lifeless town and Jiang Yingzi's revenge.

Was it all true? Did I actually kill all those people?

Before he could process the revelation, another realization struck him.

Ba-Hui was colluding with the Ao Jing Sect, intending for me to become the next Sacrificial God. Was she deceiving me from the start? Had she been plotting against me all along?

Cracks appeared on Li Huowang's body as the thoughts surged through his mind. Unbearable pain radiated throughout his entire being.

It was both physical and mental agony. The pain was intense, relentless, and overwhelming, making him tremble uncontrollably.

Li Huowang shook his head, trying to clear his mind.

He cursed through gritted teeth. "What's the rush? I'm not the Three Pure Ones. I know how to prioritize! I'll deal with you later!"

Li Huowang focused back on the Three Pure Ones. He yelled fiercely, "Did you think you could sway me? Do you think I'll believe anything you say?"

"I've doubted everything you've shown me ever since I learned about your alliance with Shai Zi. Even if some of it is true, who's to say it's not a trick? Shai Zi excels at this! You'll never deceive me!"

Li Huowang's eyes shone with a murderous gleam. He grabbed a karmic chain of secrets and plunged his bloodied military knife into the Three Pure Ones. "This is for Suisui!"

As he pulled out the knife, more secrets gushed from the Three Pure Ones' form, dissolving into the dark seawater.

He summoned all his strength and drove the blade into the Three Pure Ones again. "This one is for Zhuge Yuan!"

Just as he prepared for a third strike, Li Huowang noticed some strange objects emerging from the Three Pure Ones, which did not seem to be influenced by the surroundings.

There was a particular symbol with the character "Wang," which was oddly familiar to him. He recognized it as something the Three Pure Ones had stolen from him.

Li Huowang reached out, passing through the dense network of karmic chains, trying to touch the "Wang" character.

As he drew near, the Three Pure Ones tore off a writhing mass of secrets from himself and stuffed it into Ji Zai.

Each secret brought a new perspective, transforming Li Huowang's perception of the world. The once-dim fluid around him cleared, revealing a previously invisible realm. He could now perceive things that he would've missed entirely before.

More importantly, everything around him was layered and multi-dimensional. Each layer was merely a projection.

After fully absorbing the secret of the Three Pure Ones, he finally saw the things beneath the surface. They appeared as incomprehensible images and text, both in his mind and before his eyes.

The rainbow decides the face. The primordial mud lies within the dark origin, flowing with foam beyond the depths. It bends at the dark armpit. The person has semicircular, firm wings that cover three sounds. When viewed, it has an unusual perception, like the brilliance of the stars. Yet there is no visible structure; only the ear perceives the emptiness.

This great secret of the Three Pure Ones was the same as the elephant Zhao Shuangdian had mentioned. It was also the Fu Shengtian in Li Huowang's own understanding.

It had always existed, but he hadn't been able to see it due to his insufficient perception.

Li Huowang tried to act, but he couldn't move. Even his thoughts grew sluggish.

Fu Shengtian was incredibly vast, and its unimaginable form completely covered the sky and the earth.

It was approaching the Baiyu Capital at a peculiar speed. It seemed slow, yet unbelievably fast.

As it moved, it continuously shed certain substances, much like unwanted dandruff.

Li Huowang focused on one of the dandruff-like fragments. It was a massive piece with a mouth of black, jagged teeth, resembling inverted, hollow mountains.

Chapter 1000 - Helper

The entity that once devoured him—the Siming that rewrote his past—turned out to be nothing more than a mere fragment fallen from Fu Shengtian.

A deep despair surged within Li Huowang as he grasped this harsh reality. Against such an incomprehensibly powerful force, what could his efforts as a Siming ever hope to achieve?

Li Huowang recalled the words and expressions of Qing Wanglai, who had once shared similar thoughts. Only now did he truly understand the hopelessness that had consumed Qing Wanglai. They had never stood a chance against Fu Shengtian.

What should I do? Li Huowang's sluggish mind grappled with this question.

His despair turned into an intense urge for self-destruction, starting to surface in his mind. His expression twisted as though his very flesh was compelling him to surrender to the feeling. Even as a Strayed One, he found himself powerless to resist.

Just then, in the corner of his vision, he noticed the Heavenly Mater standing before him, her countless interlocking eyes revealing an unreadable emotion.

She was unaffected by the secrets of the Three Pure Ones and remained oblivious to Fu Shengtian's presence behind her, so she could still move.

The Heavenly Mater stirred. Her form twisted, and she extended her feathered sleeves toward Ji Zai's mind.

Drawing out her sleeves also removed Li Huowang's desire for death. His muddled thoughts cleared a little.

However, he still couldn't move. His attempts to act were in vain, as the aura emitted by the Fu Shengtian still held him in place.

No! I must move! I can't just sit here! He gritted his teeth, opened his mouth, and bit down hard.

The agony of biting his tongue into a pulp temporarily freed him.

He realized that escape was futile in this situation, so he resolved to face the threat head-on.

He reached into his chest with one hand, grabbing a secret from the Three Pure Ones. His other hand plunged into his skull, extracting a cluster of memories.

As he held these two items in his hands, the surrounding liquid withdrew rapidly and turned back into its dull, dark, iridescent hue.

Li Huowang immediately sought out Qing Wanglai when he regained his freedom, but he was gone again.

Qing Wawnglai was clearly plotting something. Everything had been premeditated.

He was exploiting the threat from Fu Shengtian to achieve his own goals.

A wave of fear flashed through Li Huowang's mind as he thought of Fu Shengtian. He glanced into the dark liquid around him, feeling a surge of terror.

He couldn't recall the exact reason for his fear, but his trembling body instinctively urged him to flee from this place.

Ripples in the dark fluid suggested that the other Simings were in battle with the Simings of Fu Shengtian nearby. They were seemingly unaware of the actual danger.

Li Huowang knew he had to escape now to figure out the Three Pure Ones' intentions.

"Go! Run! Don't worry about them, just run!"

Li Huowang's voice echoed in the liquid as he thrashed, desperately swimming towards the Baiyu Capital's exit.

The two objects he held made swimming difficult. He nearly tossed them aside but paused, deciding to stuff them in his clothes instead.

When he reached the entrance, he looked at the enlarged opening and felt his anxiety rising. His current Dragon Qi was insufficient to mend it. He would need more from below.

Suddenly, he had an idea. He bent down, picked up a broken mirror, and shouted with all his might at his exhausted reflection, "Hurry, Li Huowang! The Baiyu Capital needs Dragon Qi. The more, the better! If we don't seal this, the entire sky will leak!"

A few dragon roars echoed from below.

Looking down, he noticed Gao Zhijian leading four Dragon Veins and two golden dragons from the Tianchen Kingdom upwards. "Senior Li, where are you? Senior Li, where are you? The Dragon Qi is here!"

Li Huowang breathed a sigh of relief. He was Ji Zai now and could call for reinforcements through the future Li Huowang.

He grabbed the two Dragon Veins and started stitching them into the rift's edge.

The Dragon Veins resembled needles, with Dragon Qi flowing from them like threads.

He was forced to stop before he mended for long, as the other Simings were still fighting inside.

If he sealed the rift before they returned, the Baiyu Capital would be doomed. Despite this, the widening rift prevented him from leaving it open.

Li Huowang clenched his teeth. He grabbed the Dragon Veins and prepared to dive back into the dark waters to rescue the others.

He knew that attempting to go in alone would be pointless, as he would only end up trapped like them. He paused, grappling with the difficulty of making a choice. His left hand weighed down on him, as if it were burdened with a thousand pounds.

Seeing the fierce waves within the dark waters, he gritted his teeth and held up the mirror shard again.

He spoke to his reflection with reddened eyes. "We need reinforcements! Call everyone who can help to the Baiyu Capital!"

The mirror shattered, and red streaks suddenly appeared below the Baiyu Capital, surging upwards. A familiar roar echoed from a distance.

It was two Jiang Xiangshous.

He examined them closely and realized these figures were not advancing of their own will. Something was pulling them up.

Bai Lingmiao had both her bodies half-transformed into dragons. She sat cross-legged on a white lotus sky lantern while holding onto the Twelve Merit Jade Lotus. Six White Donkeys accompanied her, and they all rose towards him.

Li Huowang grabbed the Dragon Veins with one hand and dove down. He collided head-on with one of the Jiang Xiangshous. In that instant, all fear vanished, replaced by an intense killing intent.

As he reached out for the other Jiang Xiangshou, a misty figure erupted from the water-filled deep pit. It was the Heavenly Mater.

She was upside down, and with incredible speed, she zipped toward Bai Lingmiao, the sky lantern, and her six White Donkeys.

The white lotus marks on the foreheads of Bai Lingmiao and the White Donkeys began shining intensely. A mysterious force seemed to beckon them.

The six White Donkeys on the sky lantern were elated. They spoke in unison with Bai Lingmiao amidst their center, saying, "Heaven and Earth darken, sun and moon lose light. Red Yang declines; White Yang rises. The great tribulation is upon us. The White Lotus shall be reborn."

Chapter 1001 - Scatter

There were six White Donkeys beside Bai Lingmiao: two Lamas, two devotees of the White Lotus Sect, and two evil entities.

Li Huowang realized the scene unfolding before him was very familiar. Bai Lingmiao was seated atop a lantern, clutching the Twelve Merit Jade Lotus with the six White Donkeys surrounding her.

It took a moment for him to piece it together. This was the same scenery depicted on the murals beneath the Ancestral Hall of Cowheart Village.

He didn't entirely understand it, but he knew it was bad news.

As the Heavenly Mater reached out, almost brushing against the half-dragon Bai Lingmiao, Li Huowang stepped between them, waving his blade. "Don't touch her!"

The Heavenly Mater's body turned translucent before Li Huowang, revealing a single figure—Yang Na, running toward him.

Yang Na's tear-streaked face stopped Li Huowang. He couldn't bear to raise his weapon.

Yang Na was from the real world and Bai Lingmiao was from the Liang Kingdom, but they were the ones he loved the most. Seeing them both together at once was too much for him to handle.

Li Huowang's body broke apart. His organs and blood sprayed everywhere as his body split in half to form two Li Huowangs.

A white hand missing a finger easily brushed past Li Huowang's split body and lightly touched Bai Lingmiao's forehead.

The moment it did, Li Huowang's four pairs of eyes saw both Yang Na and Bai Lingmiao turning translucent, as though they were nothing but projections.

Something began to coalesce within them. Their forms superimposed on each other, becoming the true Heavenly Mater.

A familiar voice came from beside Li Huowang but soon vanished. "I was right, wasn't I? This is what it means to truly exist. No matter which side we stay on, we are mere projections, similar to shadows of different sizes and shapes caused by the direction of the sun's rays."

Several threads of starlight passed through the Ox-Tail Gate and gathered on the six White Donkeys. They were quickly enveloped by the white light and formed into six orbs. The orbs floated behind the Heavenly Mater, forming the shape of a fan.

Soft white light burst forth and blew away the chaos of Baiyu Capital. The Heavenly Mater's Heavenly Dao of Mercy and Heavenly Dao of Death intertwined, influencing the surroundings.

As Li Huowang observed what was happening, he heard three voices shouting simultaneously, "Huowang, do it now!"

Li Huowang's separated selves superimposed on each other again when he heard the superimposed voices. He looked at the Heavenly Mater and wasn't sure which identity he should use to face her.

Qing Wanglai's voice rang out again, saying, "Do you know the Threefold Body of a Buddha? The Dharma Body, the Retribution Body, and the Response and Transformation Body. I am one beyond the Threefold Body."

"Quiet!"

Li Huowang's roar caused the murderous aura to spread around him. He ran up and looked at the Heavenly Mater with anxiety.

"Who are you? Are you Yang Na, Bai Lingmiao, or something else? Which one of you is real? Which one of me is real?"

Li Huowang's body started to become unstable when he questioned himself.

The imagery of the two worlds continued to appear around Li Huowang, sometimes appearing simultaneously.

Heavenly Mater shook her head and gestured for Li Huowang to look up.

The hole in the sky had widened. There was even the blood of the other Simings mixed into the strange black water.

With a sweep of her white-feathered sleeves, the Heavenly Mater covered the roaring Jiang Xiangshou before placing it in front of Li Huowang.

Li Huowang grabbed Jiang Xiangshou without hesitation. He pulled open his chest and stuffed it into his beating heart.

“I don’t care who you are. If you don’t send Bai Lingmiao back once you’re done, I will kill you!”

Dun dun dun~ Li Huowang heard his heart start beating rapidly, its sound resonating in his ears. An endless murderous aura surged out from his body and solidified as it cloaked him.

“Kill them!” With his spine sword raised, Li Huowang fled the ruins and took cover in the forest to his left.

The rain continued to fall as bullets flew everywhere. Several corpses lay on the ground as blood and rain pooled together.

As Ba Nanxu shot through an enemy’s neck, she caught sight of Li Huowang, unleashing his fury with his blade. His single eye was bloodshot, his veins bulging with anger. He charged toward the enemy without any hesitation.

A single swing with his blade was more than enough to behead one of the enemies. Li Huowang jumped high and used his mouth to tear another enemy’s face to shreds.

Someone tried to shoot Li Huowang from the left, but Yang Na acted more quickly, severing the attacker’s fingers and gun.

Li Huowang stormed into the battlefield with a raging fury. None of the black-shirted men stood a chance against Li Huowang’s rampage.

The corpses piled up as the battle dragged on. Despite the ceaseless rain, the lingering stench of blood remained in the air.

Li Huowang suddenly noticed a shadow above him. He looked up and saw several upside-down black mountains about to crush him.

The mountains trembled, nearly crushing him before vanishing like a dream.

Li Huowang wiped the blood off his face and shouted, “Zhao Shuangdian, stop fighting! Bring everyone back to the Baiyu Capital, quick!”

“Don’t worry. We might not lose here today.”

Although the situation was dire, Zhao Shuangdian was still calmly loading her gun.

Li Huowang tried to explain but found himself unsure of what to say. Panic set in—he had forgotten something important. He knew he was afraid of something, but he couldn’t remember it.

Zhao Lei ran past him. At this point, he had already lost an ear. He was also holding onto a dismembered arm. He bit into it before running back to the front.

Nearby, Wu Qi plunged a syringe into an enemy, injecting a fluid that made their tongue swell until they suffocated.

Li Huowang observed the fight and decided he’d had enough. He cupped his mouth and shouted what he remembered. The rainwater around him turned transparent.

“Everyone, their elephant is crashing into ours!”

Li Huowang saw Fu Shengtian once more, and the dreaded Fu Shengtian made everyone despair. Fear bloomed in Li Huowang’s heart, but the murderous aura of Jiang Xiangshou was continuously pushing it back.

After reminding Zhao Shuangdian, he prepared to reach into his brain to dig out the memories of his fight against Fu Shengtian.

However, something unexpected happened—Fu Shengtian looked at Li Huowang. In an instant, Li Huowang’s body shattered, breaking into pieces.

Chapter 1002 - Kill

Li Huowang's body shattered. His limbs, organs, and brain scattered like leaves on a pond's surface.

All of this happened just because Fu Shengtian looked at him.

Am I dying? The thought flickered through Li Huowang's mind as his consciousness began to fade.

Li Huowang did not fear death. He refused to die because he refused to give up.

"No, I can't die! If I die, who will revive Suisui? I cannot die!"

Li Huowang roared, and his dead body stirred. Under the strange effect of the black water, Li Huowang returned to life as various odd organs grew and hung from his body.

Just then, a feathery sleeve brushed past Li Huowang's body and took away his Death. Li Huowang could no longer die now.

Though unkillable, he was still helpless. He needed to free himself. A plan quickly formed in his mind.

Recalling the powers and techniques of his allies, he devised a solution.

Li Huowang now resembled an eyeball with three limbs resembling fractured baby limbs. He dragged himself and swiftly reached the Five Dhyani Buddhas.

They were fighting against Fu Shengtian right now. Those noticed by Fu Shengtian would have their bodies scattered. However, not all Simings were affected by it—those who didn't have a physical body remained unscathed.

The burning Sacrificial God bought Li Huowang some time. Li Huowang shouted at the Five Dhyani Buddhas, "Five Dhyani Buddhas! Use your powers to help me!"

Li Huowang had barely shouted when the Five Dhyani Buddhas simultaneously began to chant. An eerie, overlapping voice resonated through the black waters.

“Jie Di Jie Di Ban Luo... Di... Ban Luo Sheng Jie Di, Pu Ti Sheng Sha He, Yi Ban Nuo Po Luo Mi Duo Gu...”

Li Huowang heard the voices and somehow caught the scent of incense in the temple. The fragments of his body knitted together, with flesh sprouting and stitching into place.

He had a new body once the process was complete, but it was hideous, like the Flesh Buddha of the Righteous Monastery.

There was no time to fix it. There was no time to dwell on appearances. Shoving his hands into his own brain, Li Huowang tore out the memory of Fu Shengtian.

The invisible water returned to the iridescent black water, and Li Huowang could no longer see the things in the distance. He sighed in relief.

The biggest issue had been temporarily fixed, but the situation wasn't over yet.

The Simings were still fighting viciously. Li Huowang dragged his grotesque body and charged into the fray.

Bullets flew around him as he swung his blade. With a clear, dinging sound, he managed to deflect the bullets with his blade.

He stabbed his blade into one of the men, and blood sprayed onto his face. His bloodlust intensified as the battle continued. Each kill seemed to invigorate him, his stamina unyielding.

He stabbed another person in the face before dragging the blade downwards and spilling the guts of his enemy.

He was ready to kill another person when he accidentally tripped on someone. He regained his footing and looked down to find Zhao Lei!

As he prepared himself to kill another person, he unexpectedly stumbled over someone. He regained his footing and glanced down to see Zhao Lei.

Zhao Lei's injuries were severe, leaving him on the brink of death. Despite this, he managed to cling onto Li Huowang with his right hand, which had two severed fingers.

"Li Huowang... I tricked you... You did not steal my magnet... It's still with me... I was scared that they coveted it..."

"Don't die here! Die in the Baiyu Capital, or your Heavenly Dao will fall in their hands!" Li Huowang said, doing his best to drag Zhao Lei away from the combat zone.

Looking around, he saw Yang Na in the distance. "Heavenly Mater, come here! Bring the Death away from his body!"

"I have... my own plans... But... no one listens to me... You are all... using me..."

Zhao Lei's eyes began rolling upward, his pupils dilating.

"Hehe... Do you think... that I lost? That might... not be the case... I just... don't want to listen to you..."

Zhao Lei's gaze was fixed on the sky as he uttered his final words. In his last moments, he vomited a lot of blood onto Li Huowang's chest. Then, he went stiff.

Li Huowang threw Zhao Lei's corpse to the side before charging back to the battlefield.

He looked at the unending number of enemies and understood they could not fight like this anymore. The longer the battle dragged on, the more people would die. They had to retreat.

He turned to Zhao Shuangdian and shouted, "Retreat! Go back to the Baiyu Capital! I will stop them!"

Just as the words had left Li Huowang's lips, a bat slammed into his skull. The crack reverberated in his ears.

In a daze, he saw someone winding up to swing the bat again. If they hit him again, Li Huowang was sure that his head would break open.

The enemy swung the bat, but Li Huowang quickly ducked it and avoided it. Before they could swing again, Li Huowang stabbed his blade into their chest.

Just then, Li Huowang felt a burning pain in his abdomen. He looked down and saw blood seeping out from his left side. He had been shot.

He held his wound and turned around to find three muzzles aimed at him.

Li Huowang's rational thinking snapped as he charged at the guns.

Gunshots erupted. Li Hoowang reached behind himself and swung his bronze coin sword, turning it into a red whip that cut down the bullets, guns, and enemies in one go.

Chapter 1003 - Body

Tak tak tak The sound of hurried footsteps could be heard as the rain slowly subsided.

Yang Na knew who it was based on the footsteps. She cried and hugged her wounded abdomen as she tried to run out from the house.

Chen Hongyu grabbed Yang Na and held her down.

Yang Na tried to scratch Chen Hongyu to make her let go when three people ran in from outside.

One of them was Li Huowang. His injuries were severe with his body covered with wounds from gunshots, cuts, and bruises. He left bloody footprints on the ground as rain washed the blood off his body.

Ba Nanxu and her brother were holding onto Li Huowang. Both of them were injured too, though Ba Nanxu was chuckling from time to time like a psychopath, “Not bad, little runt. I’ve underestimated you in the past. Come hit me up when you have time one day to fuck.”

Li Huowang’s consciousness was already hazy. He used the last of his strength to close the door and lock it.

He slowly lost consciousness as his tired body slowly slid down.

Wu Qi, who was busy treating Zhao Shuangdian, hurriedly ran over with her first aid kit.

She administered some medicine to Li Huowang before trying to stop his bleeding.

But there were so many wounds on his body that she didn’t know where she should start.

“Why... Why...” Li Huowang’s pale lips trembled as he mumbled again and again.

He looked at everyone's faces.

He noticed that Zhao Lei wasn't the only one missing. Ling'er, the girl working with Zhao Shuangdian, who twitched from time to time was missing too. More and more Simings from Baiyu Capital were being killed. He wasn't certain if they could come back this time.

"Why did the timeline not reset even after killing so many of the Simings? Why? Is it because we are not fighting in Baiyu Capital?"

But Wu Qi had no time to entertain his thoughts, "He's losing too much blood. He's going into shock! Does anyone here have blood type O?"

"I am!"

Someone unexpectedly answered her.

Qing Wanglai smiled as he walked past the crowd and extended his right arm to Wu Qi.

Li Huowang glared at him angrily, but Qing Wanglai did not mind as he pushed his frameless glasses higher.

"Don't get excited. You can't increase your blood pressure anymore or all of your remaining blood would be pumped out of your body."

Li Huowang stood up rapidly and was about to swing his bronze coin sword at Qing Wanglai when the others quickly pinned him down.

Click. Two guns were aimed at Qing Wanglai's back as they loaded their magazines. One belonged to Ba Nanxu while the other belonged to Yang Na.

Ba Nanxu was smoking a cigarette when she placed her gun on the back of Qing Wanglai's head. Her voice was tinged with dissatisfaction, "Qing Wanglai, you did something really bad this time."

But Qing Wanglai was calm even though death was so close to him. He smiled and turned towards Zhao Shuangdian, “Miss Zhao, won’t you give me a chance to explain? Also, I didn’t do anything bad at all.”

“Then explain everything.” Zhao Shuangdian grabbed her laptop and started typing on it.

But Qing Wanglai wasn’t in a rush. He stood there and slowly took out a glass cloth to wipe his glasses. He exhaled on his lens and wiped it thoroughly before wearing it back on his face.

“Li Huowang, did you see it? You must’ve seen it,” He looked down and stared at Li Huowang, “Or everything I’ve done so far would be wasted.”

“I don’t know what you are saying! I just want to tear you to pieces!”

Qing Wanglai sighed in the face of Li Huowang’s threats and shook his head, “You forgot again. If it isn’t because of the situation I would really hate to associate myself with someone like you.”

Wu Qi scoffed, “Stop spouting bullshit and lift your arm high!”

As Qing Wanglai followed her instructions, the red blood flowed from the tube into Li Huowang’s body.

“Do you remember now?”

Li Huowang grabbed the tube and yanked it out from his arm before he stood up.

Wu Qi almost had a heart attack when she saw what Li Huowang did, “Aiya! What are you doing! Lie back down quickly!”

Qing Wanglai looked at Li Huowang puzzlingly, “You saw its existence. Are you still questioning my methods?”

Li Huowang stopped when he heard what Qing Wanglai was talking about.

“Maybe you think that I’m heartless, but you should understand now how strong Fu Shengtian really is. My plan is the best plan for our current situation. We can have a small hope of surviving this if we follow my plan.”

Qing Wanglai stepped forward and spoke softly, “Or do you have another plan when faced with an enemy like this? As long as you can figure out another plan to save us, I swear that I will let go of my plans and follow yours wholeheartedly.”

Li Huowang spat, “You kept saying that you are helping us, but look at what you’ve done! How are you different from Fu Shengtian? In the end, everything will be the same!”

“Of course not! We are but projections right now. Even if we are gone, as long as the curtains still exist, we can reappear once more. But if our real body is gone for good, then we are dead forever.”

Qing Wanglai’s explanation irritated Zhao Shuangdian, “That’s too vague. Be specific.”

Qing Wanglai turned around and explained, “Your theory on the elephants is incorrect. In reality, we are projections, but we are not the only projections. There are two projections, just like how we have two shadows when we have two light sources. Through comparison of the two shadows, we can understand the truth of what others couldn’t perceive.

“To speak in Buddhist terms, it’s the Dharma Body, the Retribution Body, and the Response and Transformation Body.”

Qing Wanglai pointed at himself, “This is the first body, the Response and Transformation Body.”

He then pointed at Li Huowang’s chest, “This is the second body, the Retribution Body.”

Qing Wanglai became serious as he explained, “Junior Li, I am still the same me as before. I did everything to save the masses.”

Li Huowang’s pupil shrank when he heard those words. He bit Qing Wanglai’s left ear out of anger and tore it down.

Qing Wanglai took several steps back. He was bloody but he didn’t mind. He was still smiling as if his body wasn’t his own.

“This is just a projection and it’s not important. My plan is simple. I want to sacrifice the Retribution Body and the Response and Transformation Body to save the Dharma Body. Only then can we be rescued.”

He extended both arms and held Li Huowang’s hand before pleading earnestly, “Junior Li, help me one last time, and die.”

Chapter 1004 - Mental Illness

“Please die.”

Everyone froze at Qing Wanglai’s words.

He caught everyone off guard. No one, not even Li Huowang, had anticipated him to say something like that. They didn’t think he was capable of it.

“Fuck!” Ba Nanxu cursed.

With a deep drag of her cigarette, she prepared to blow Qing Wanglai’s head off.

However, Zhao Shuangdian stopped her. “Don’t be rash. Let him finish.”

Unlike the others, Zhao Shuangdian remained eerily composed.

Qing Wanglai turned to Li Huowang. “I need you to die. The projections on both sides must shrink simultaneously. You don’t see what I see, Li Huowang. You can barely contact the other projection, but I have a way to contact my true self and figure out what to do. This is the only way.”

Li Huowang’s eyes narrowed. “Every projection? Every projection? Are you saying everyone here—including the Simings—is just a projection to you? You want to destroy everything? This is your plan?”

Qing Wanglai nodded confidently and without hesitation. “Li Huowang, you have to see the bigger picture. Some things must be sacrificed for the greater good.”

Li Huowang stared at Qing Wanglai as though seeing him for the first time.

Qing Wanglai smiled faintly and patted Li Huowang’s shoulder.

“Don’t worry. I know what you’re afraid of. But our death this time is not the end—it’s the beginning. We’re just projections, less important than you think. Once the crisis is over, we can be projected again and live in peace.”

Li Huowang’s mouth parted slowly. “You crazy bastard!”

Li Huowang finally understood what kind of person Qing Wanglai was. He wasn’t just misguided. He was deranged—a madman, a lunatic!

Disappointment flickered briefly in Qing Wanglai’s eyes. “Li Huowang, you’ve let me down. I thought you’d understand. I thought you would become my ally.”

Li Huowang opened his mouth to argue, but no words came out. He lowered and shook his head.

There was no point in reasoning with a madman. Trying to change a madman’s mind was futile, which he had learned the hard way.

“Qing Wanglai, I know Da Nuo has gone mad, but I didn’t expect the Three Ancient Ones, the holder of the Heavenly Dao of Truth, to be just as deranged. Your craziness is one thing, but dragging me into it is something else. If the heavens fall, someone must hold them up.”

Li Huowang reached behind his back to secretly unsheath his knife.

“Are you always this quick to dismiss those who don’t think like you?” Qing Wanglai asked. “Are you really gonna label me as insane or mentally ill just because I don’t share the same perception? If that makes me insane, then what about the rest of you? Are you all not crazy too?”

Qing Wanglai turned and pointed at everyone.

“If I’m crazy by your standards, then to me, all of you are crazy too! All of you are mentally ill too!”

Ba Nanxu frowned and glanced at Zhao Shuangdian, who was still typing away on her laptop. “Hey, I think I’ve heard enough. Let’s just kill him.”

The next instant, Li Huowang lunged. His injuries reopened from the movement, but he refused to stop. He drove his knife toward Qing Wanglai’s waist, determined to kill him.

The Three Ancient Ones had descended into madness and wanted to kill everyone. Li Huowang had to kill Qing Wanglai and seize the Heavenly Dao Of Secrets. Only then could they have a better chance.

The blade struck, but no blood flowed. Instead, a loud clang echoed across the hall.

Li Huowang’s eyes widened in surprise—Qing Wanglai was wearing a vest beneath his shirt.

Without hesitation, Li Huowang shifted his grip and slashed upward, aiming for Qing Wanglai’s throat.

“Nana, shoot him! Blast his head apart!”

Yang Na didn’t hesitate. She raised her gun and fired.

But Qing Wanglai was faster. He twisted his neck and dodged the bullet. As he did, he grabbed Li Huowang’s wrist and wrenched it aside to make him stumble. Then, he quickly took out his own gun and pressed it against Li Huowang’s temple.

“Don’t move!” Qing Wanglai yelled.

Now, no one dared to shoot. They were afraid that the other party would shoot first.

Qing Wanglai looked down at the severely injured Li Huowang and smiled. “Stay still. You’ve already lost too much blood. I chose the moment to show myself carefully. If you were at your peak, I might have actually died.”

Bam!

Behind Qing Wanglai, someone kicked the door open.

A man entered the room, bombs strapped to his chest and a detonator clutched in his hand. Reflective sunglasses obscured his eyes, and he seemed oddly nonchalant, idly playing a game on his phone with his other hand.

“Don’t move!” he barked. “One wrong step and we all die!”

The presence of the explosives created a tense atmosphere.

Even Zhao Shuangdian stopped typing, glaring at Qing Wanglai. “Qing Wanglai, do you really think it’s appropriate to weaken our forces before the final battle?”

Qing Wanglai shrugged. “Appropriate? Do you think unity will help us win? Don’t be foolish. You don’t even understand what we’re facing. Isn’t that right, Li Huowang?”

He turned to Li Huowang, his usual smile missing. “If you calculate with the flow of time in this projection, you should know that that thing will reach the real world in eight days. Eight days! That’s all we have.

“We have no time to waste. If my plan fails within that time, not only will our projections on both sides be destroyed—our real bodies will vanish too.

“The outcome is set no matter what we do in those eight days, so why not destroy our projections on both sides now? That way, our true selves have a chance of survival.”

Chapter 1005 - Food

Tension filled the hall. Part of it stemmed from Qing Wanglai pressing his gun against Li Huowang's temple, but the greater weight came from his words.

Eight days? Li Huowang's mind raced as he processed Qing Wanglai's words.

Fu Shengtian will superimpose with the Baiyu Capital in eight days, and we'll have to fight in eight days? Li Huowang's heart started beating rapidly from that frightening thought.

Eight days wasn't long enough. Their fate was sealed against the might of Fu Shengtian—they could only wait for death.

"No, it's much more frightening than you think. The Fu Shengtian you saw is just one side of its projection. Do you know what it would look like in this world?"

Surprisingly, Li Huowang felt calm. He had endured and experienced so much that he was just numb.

More importantly, he still couldn't trust Qing Wanglai's one-sided information. "I don't believe you. Maybe it's not as terrifying as you claim—assuming you're even telling the truth."

"What?" Qing Wanglai tilted his head, his glasses glinting and obscuring his eyes. "You still think I'm just some lunatic?"

"Heh. Trust you? Why should I? I stopped trusting you when you took away the Heavenly Dao of Lies," Li Huowang said. His tone was growing harsher, but he was actually very calm.

His course of action became simpler now that he realized there was nothing to discuss with Qing Wanglai.

What he needed to do was to kill Qing Wanglai and take away his Heavenly Daos. Only then could he confirm whether Fu Shengtian's arrival in eight days was real.

However, Li Huowang was sure that Qing Wanglai would shoot him based on the cold metal pressing into his temple. Li Huowang was too injured. He needed to find a way to get out of the predicament.

Qing Wanglai was a madman to Li Huowang. Qing Wanglai could do irreparable damage if he wasn't careful.

Zhao Shuangdian broke the silence. "Qing Wanglai, don't be rash. It might not be as serious as you think. First, tell us how you calculated the eight-day timeframe. What method did you use?"

Qing Wanglai didn't answer immediately. Instead, he gave her a playful look, his gaze flicking to her laptop.

"Calculate it? Do you really think typing into your laptop will prove anything? Stop lying to yourself. Your so-called calculations are nothing but a joke. You've been deluding yourself from the start—pretending you can understand this.

"If you managed to get results, why don't you enlighten us? After all these years, have you managed to calculate anything besides shapes? Do you even realize how insane you sound? Have you ever seen madmen in mental wards claiming they can explain everything and anything? You're no better than them."

Li Huowang searched for an opening while Qing Wanglai was distracted, but the gun remained pressed against his head. He couldn't move.

Just then, Li Huowang and Yang Na locked eyes.

He saw the tension in her eyes and knew what she intended to do. He subtly signaled her to stop.

Li Huowang gestured for her to move back and away from the range of Shai Zi's explosives.

Meanwhile, Zhao Shuangdian continued her conversation with Qing Wanglai, her expression turning into a frown as she crossed her arms with indignation.

"Qing Wanglai, you can't be so certain. Do you think you can explain everything I've calculated? Don't you think there's a chance I've succeeded? You might know some things I don't, but there are also secrets that only I am privy to. Let's exchange information instead of acting rashly."

Qing Wanglai shook his head. What might've once been a handsome gesture now looked feral, his bloodied, severed ear creating a savage impression.

"Stop lying. You're not going to coax any information out of me. You wouldn't know a thing about the ambush if I hadn't leaked it myself."

As their argument escalated, Li Huowang's focus shifted to the bombs strapped to Shai Zi's body. As if sensing Li Huowang's gaze, Shai Zi glanced up from his game and looked back at Li Huowang.

Li Huowang glared at Shai Zi, who not only survived but also became a new Siming.

Li Huowang raised a single eyebrow, a deliberate signal. Shai Zi lowered his sunglasses, his sharp eyes glinting with slyness.

Two seconds later, Shai Zi smirked and raised an eyebrow in return.

Li Huowang suddenly shouted, "Shai Zi, do it now!"

Shai Zi froze in surprise. Do what?

But Qing Wanglai didn't hesitate—he turned his gun on Shai Zi.

Li Huowang's gamble paid off. He put himself in Qing Wanglai's shoes and believed he would also be wary of Shai Zi. Shai Zi's oath of allegiance couldn't automatically earn Qing Wanglai's trust.

Just as Qing Wanglai moved his gun away, Li Huowang jumped up and headbutted Qing Wanglai in the nose.

The moment Qing Wanglai stumbled back, Li Huowang grabbed his knife and stabbed Qing Wanglai's neck.

Warm blood splattered over him as Ba Nanxu rushed in, kicking the gun away from Qing Wanglai's grasp. The tide had turned.

Shai Zi stared in disbelief. “Aren’t you afraid that I’ll detonate the explosives and kill everyone here?”

Li Huowang idly raised his knife. “I would’ve believed the threat if it came from Jiang Xiangshou. But you? I don’t trust you. Qing Wanglai never should’ve made you an ally. I know too much about the Sitting Oblivion Dao—you wouldn’t dare to fight physically.”

Li Huowang ignored Shai Zi afterward, tearing off Qing Wanglai’s shirt before taking off the protective vest beneath it.

“What are you doing? He’s already dying,” Wu Qi said. She couldn’t help but feel a sense of pity, as Qing Wanglai had been one of her long-time allies.

Blood splattered Li Huowang as he plunged his knife into Qing Wanglai’s chest and dragged it down.

“What else? He has several Heavenly Daos in him! We must consume him!”

Chapter 1006 - Suppress

In the timeless chaos of Baiyu Capital, the other Simings stood fused in a ring. At the center were Ji Zai and the dying Three Ancient Ones.

Ji Zai's gaze lingered on the Three Ancient Ones' form. It was woven from interconnected secrets, concealing its nature so well that Ji Zai couldn't distinguish the Heavenly Dao of Secrets from the Heavenly Dao of Growth. For the Siming in control of secrets, concealment was second nature.

But this posed no obstacle for Li Huowang. He didn't need to identify the correct Heavenly Dao—he simply had to consume everything.

As Li Huowang devoured the body of the Three Ancient Ones, he turned to the other Simings with a puzzled expression. "What's wrong? Don't you want the Heavenly Daos of the Three Ancient Ones?"

However, none of the Simings answered him. They just stood there motionlessly.

Li Huowang shrugged and returned to his task. Better that than leaving it to unreliable hands. It was far safer for him to hold the power.

It'd be troublesome if someone else acquired the power but decided not to help. Li Huowang preferred to rely on himself.

Just then, the Heavenly Mater approached and sat beside him. She extended her "arm" covered in white feathers and carefully caressed his own twisted six arms.

Li Huowang felt a warmth in his heart. It felt nice to have someone that would trust him no matter what.

Perhaps that trust was what kept him going through every ordeal.

Ji Zai and the Heavenly Mater shared a fleeting smile before continuing to absorb the Heavenly Dao.

To Li Huowang's surprise, Qing Wanglai was still alive despite his severe injuries.

Still, Qing Wanglai was on the brink of death. He coughed up blood and chuckled. His gaze shifted to the skies, and he felt a tugging sensation on his body.

Soon, a tattooed woman with a cigarette in her mouth blocked his vision. "It must hurt, doesn't it? Want me to release you?"

A smoke ring drifted downward, enveloping his face.

Even so, Qing Wanglai flashed his signature smile. "Li... do you really... think that... I don't have a backup plan...? You think... I would... so easily?"

Li Huowang paused momentarily, then continued to munch on Qing Wanglai's body. "What are you talking about? In your state, what could you possibly do? Don't tell me you poisoned your own flesh."

"Why... not? I have... caught up... with your perception of the world... I have... anticipated that... you would... do this..."

Shock rippled through Li Huowang as he retched. "You actually poisoned yourself?!"

As Qing Wanglai laughed, Li Huowang felt his abdomen cramping in pain. It was just as intense as the pain he had experienced when he first took the pills at Zephyr Temple, the ones that Dan Yangzi had refined to become immortal.

Li Huowang stuck his finger down his throat to induce vomiting.

He emptied his stomach, but the pain continued to intensify in his abdomen.

"Li Huowang... since you... don't want to die... I will... send you... to your death. My plan... must be completed..."

The others rushed to aid him. Wu Qi was frantic, trying to help him flush out the poison from his system.

Li Huowang's condition deteriorated. His complexion turned pale, and beads of sweat streamed down his face.

Even Yang Na had the same symptoms.

Li Huowang snarled and forced himself up after pushing everyone away. He grabbed Qing Wanglai and pulled the latter upwards forcefully, asking, "What did you do?!"

However, Qing Wanglai could no longer reply. His lifeless body sagged, his lips frozen in a smile.

Despite everything, Li Huowang saw a white object tucked into Qing Wanglai's collar. He took it out and discovered it was a note.

As he read the note, he quickly realized that it was explicitly addressed to him. These were Qing Wanglai's final words.

Li Huowang, if you're reading this, you chose not to help me. You were too shallow to care about the survival of the projections. Since you wouldn't listen, I had no choice but to force you. After consuming me, you'll have no more than two days to live. Of course, I didn't give you two days out of generosity. It's just that a higher dose would've killed me instantly.

Do you think I didn't fight you directly because I couldn't win? No, it was because of hope. The futile hope that maybe, just maybe, you might see reason.

Unfortunately, I was wrong. Up until the very end, I remained the sole voice of reason. Don't worry, though—you won't die alone. The key to saving our true selves is beneath my corpse. Destroy the projections here, and you might save our real bodies.

Li Huowang's eyes darted to the blood-soaked ground beneath Qing Wanglai and spotted several shattered test tubes, their glass shards glinting among the pools of blood.

While the others were panicking, Qing Wanglai had silently smashed three test tubes onto the bloodstained ground.

The three fluids in the test tubes had mixed together, releasing an invisible, odorless gas. Li Huowang didn't know what the fluids were, but he was certain they wouldn't be as simple as anesthetic or paralyzing agents.

Qing Wanglai had been deceiving everyone. It was all a ruse—even without consuming the other Heavenly Daos, he intended to poison everyone else. His goal was to kill every Siming in the Baiyu Capital.

When Li Huowang rechecked Qing Wanglai's corpse, the grin seemed even wider.

Fury ignited within him. He grabbed Yang Na's gun and shot Qing Wanglai's head open with a deafening bang.

Amid the splatter of blood and brain matter, another piece of paper fluttered free.

Chapter 1007 - Death

A jolt of shock ran through Li Huowang when he found the paper note hidden inside Qing Wanglai's head. It meant Qing Wanglai had somehow foreseen that his head would be blown apart.

Qing Wanglai had calculated that there was a chance that a gun would blow away his head.

Clutching his cramping abdomen, Li Huowang watched Qing Wanglai's broken corpse collapse into the spreading pool of blood. Snarling through gritted teeth, he snatched the blood-red paper.

If you're reading this, I've successfully predicted the outcome again. How is it? Do you now see how I am telling the truth? Still, that doesn't matter right now. An arrow released from a bow will continue flying forward. My plan will not stop.

One more thing: the poison inside me is slow-acting, but the ones in the test tubes are not. I'm not giving you two days to work out the antidote—there's no time for that. Heh, how does it feel to suddenly realize all hope is gone? You thought you had two days, and now you have none. Are you afraid yet? Soon, everyone will die.

Oh, forgive me, I misspoke. You're all just projections, after all. I suppose it's more accurate to say you'll simply be snuffed out.

Li Huowang's fists clenched so tightly that his knuckles went white. Yang Na's moans of pain echoed in his ears.

As these projections are snuffed out, the entire projected world will collapse, retracting into the real one. Eight days should suffice for the real world to retract this projection entirely.

This is just the beginning, so don't worry. Without your interference, the other side of the projection will retract just as quickly, and my plan will succeed.

Li Huowang knelt on the ground as he held his stomach in pain. His vision blurred, and the words on the note seemed to twist and writhe. Qing Wanglai's other poison, the one that acted quickly, was killing him.

Li Huowang rubbed his single eye and continued to read the note.

Li Huowang, your thinking is too shallow, just like Zhuge Yuan's. He was a fool who couldn't see the bigger picture. What a waste of education. Fortunately, I'm here. Thanks to me, your childish games will not destroy the real world. I will save the world. I am the savior.

When this crisis ends, the real world will project itself anew. And I, Qing Wanglai, will be reborn. I will no longer be a mere projection. I will be something greater—an existence closer to my real self.

"Fuck you, Qing Wanglai!" Li Huowang roared, his vision darkening as he staggered. Fresh blood seeped out from his reopened wounds.

He tried to hold on but realized that the others weren't in better shape. They were all limping or collapsing onto the ground.

He tried to steady himself, but the others were faring no better. They were all limping or collapsing into the ground, their faces etched with pain.

Wu Qi drained herself of as much blood as possible while trying to figure out how to fend off the poison.

"Nana! Nana!" Li Huowang stumbled toward Yang Na and cradled her frail body. She clutched her abdomen, and her face contorted in agony as tears streamed down her face.

She buried herself in Li Huowang's embrace and weakly whispered, "Huowang... My stomach hurts... Are we dying?"

Li Huowang's breath grew erratic at the sight of her injuries. He pressed his palm against her stomach, rubbing it gently. "Don't be scared, Nana. There's a way out of this. I'll find it. I promise you—you won't die. Just hold on."

“Hahaha!” A shrill, mocking laugh rang out. “A plan? You think you have a plan? You’re already as good as dead!”

Li Huowang raised his head to look at Shai Zi, who pointed weakly at him while making fun of him.

Li Huowang was filled with rage, nearly attacking Shai Zi with his bloodied blade.

However, he suppressed his anger and shouted back, “What are you laughing at? You got deceived by the Three Ancient Ones too! You wanted to become a Siming, but he was actually after your life! You’re the leader of the Sitting Oblivion Dao, and yet you were thoroughly deceived. Pathetic!”

Li Huowang changed the subject promptly after scolding Shai Zi. “Shai Zi, no matter what, we’re in the same boat now. Use your backup plan now, or we will all die!”

Shai Zi pushed his sunglasses lazily and shook his head. “I don’t have a backup plan. I admit defeat. He used his life to seal this. He wins.”

“No! This is impossible!” Li Huowang rushed over and grabbed Shai Zi by the collar. “You must have a backup plan. I know you, Shai Zi—you never trust anyone completely, especially not Qing Wanglai!”

Shai Zi wasn’t afraid of Li Huowang. He lazily scratched his left arm and yawned. “I thought it would be very fun up here, but it’s boring. All of it.”

With an air of indifference, he took out a pistol seemingly out of nowhere.

Li Huowang tensed, but Shai Zi turned the gun on himself, pressing the barrel to his temple. “It’s no fun at all. It was more fun down there.”

Shai Zi shot himself without any hesitation.

“Shit!” Li Huowang kicked Shai Zi’s corpse aside and frantically scanned the room for any hint of salvation.

However, Qing Wanglai would never let anyone stop his plan. Qing Wanglai's poison had already seeped into their veins, and it was killing them quickly. There was no escape.

Bam! Chen Hongyu fell face down while eating a sausage. She was dead.

Li Huowang knew this was just the beginning. As Qing Wanglai's poison spread, every Siming in the Baiyu Capital would die.

Yet even as pain wracked his body, Li Huowang clung to one thought: I won't die. I won't let them die.

He turned to look at Zhao Shuangdian. Her hands were frozen over her laptop.

However, she wasn't typing. The laptop displayed a waterfall of data, as if it was automatically calculating something.

"Zhao Shuangdian!" He held her up, only to realize that she was dead as well.

"Damn it! Can any of you be more useless?" he shouted, his voice raw with desperation.

"Huowang..." Yang Na's faint voice drew him back. He dropped Zhao Shuangdian and approached Yang Na carefully.

"I'm sorry..." she wept, her bloodstained tears streaking her face. "I think... I'm dying... You have to... survive..."

Yang Na cried until her breath stopped. Her pale hands slipped from his grasp.

Chapter 1008 - Consuming The Heavenly Daos

“Nana!” Li Huowang’s shout of despair echoed throughout the entire place. Yang Na had died in his arms.

Her peaceful face was a cruel contrast to the torment inside him, as though a dull, rusty blade twisted endlessly in his chest.

“Don’t panic. Stay calm. We haven’t lost yet! There has to be a way!”

His breaths came in rapid bursts as he struck his head with the hilt of his knife, desperate to calm himself down.

But it was useless. Despite repeatedly smacking his head, he felt no pain. The Siming of Pain was dead too.

Li Huowang’s vision began to blur as he caught the faint sound of music.

He swept around the corpse-filled place and noticed Zhao Shuangdian’s laptop. It was a notification.

Li Huowang stumbled over and noticed the screen was no longer filled with data. The screen displayed a single infinity symbol.

He realized the symbol was the final clue left by Zhao Shuangdian. There was still a chance.

“What... What is this? Infinity? A loop?”

Li Huowang stared at the screen and tried to figure it out, but he had no idea.

He struck his head again with his broken hand, though the gesture was meaningless—the world no longer had any Pain.

“Why... why can’t any of you... Why can’t any of you just give me a straight answer? Why do you always make me guess?!” Li Huowang exclaimed, kicking Zhao Shuangdian’s corpse away.

When he saw Zhao Shuangdian’s corpse roll over, inspiration struck. “No wonder I can’t understand—I hold the Siming of Bewilderment. I don’t know Zhao Shuangdian’s Heavenly Dao, but it must hold the key. If I absorb it, I’ll understand her message!”

Li Huowang prepared to absorb Zhao Shuangdian’s Heavenly Dao.

But his consciousness once again became hazy, and a wave of drowsiness enveloped him. Pain had long since ceased to exist, but his body was still growing weak and unresponsive.

Li Huowang instantly recognized this familiar sensation—the feeling of impending death. His time was running out.

“No... I can’t die! Not now! If I do, everything ends! I need to figure out a way! There has to be a way!”

He stabbed his own leg, trying to jolt himself awake. However, the drowsiness persisted, becoming heavier and more insidious.

When he next opened his eyes, Yang Na’s peaceful corpse was before him. She looked as if she was sleeping peacefully.

Li Huowang stumbled backward. “No! Nana! I cannot do that! I cannot take away your Heavenly Dao of Death! I cannot!”

Even as he stumbled, the drowsiness hit him again. He snarled and shouted angrily, “Qing Wanglai! Just you wait!”

He didn’t want to do it, but the only way to survive was to absorb the Heavenly Mater’s Heavenly Dao of Death.

He couldn’t die. If he did, Yang Na would never return.

Li Huowang cried tears of blood and crawled to Yang Na’s side with the last of his strength. Shaky and frail, he gently cradled her head and kissed her deeply.

After devouring the Heavenly Dao of Death, Li Huowang felt the sensation of death in his body freeze.

Even though he had temporary immortality, the pain in his heart was so intense that he could hardly breathe.

Even so, he didn't have time to mourn. If he stopped now, everything would be over.

"Don't worry, Nana. I won't leave you here alone. Let's go together!" Li Huowang fashioned her hair into a makeshift rope, tying her head securely around his neck.

Ji Zai glanced downwards and noticed the Heavenly Mater's constantly shifting Chaos fragment hanging on his chest, keeping him company.

"Nana, let's go. We still have a chance," he murmured, stumbling toward Zhao Shuangdian's corpse.

Absorbing Zhao Shuangdian's Heavenly Dao filled him with clarity. As he gazed at the laptop screen, the infinity symbol took on meaning.

"The factory... It's the key. It's still alive. If I destroy it, the timeline resets. We can start over!"

Li Huowang stood up without hesitation and prepared to attack the hidden factory.

As he was walking past Shai Zi, Li Huowang noticed the sunglasses. He quickly squatted down and picked them up. He put them on and absorbed Shai Zi's Heavenly Dao, feeling his body getting slightly better.

He wiped his mouth and grabbed his weapons before approaching the main doors.

He held onto the handle and took a deep breath before opening it. The familiar-looking dunes appeared in front of him again.

He snarled and walked past the dinghy wooden doors to explore the place.

Sweat mingled with blood as he trudged forward, but he wasn't thirsty.

The dunes were massive, and every direction appeared identical. Li Huowang believed he had gotten lost until a distant black dot caught his eye.

He quickened his pace and approached the black dot.

Minutes later, he reached the black speck. It was Chen Hongyu's corpse, shrouded in a writhing mass of flies.

Chapter 1009 - Reset

The flies on Chen Hongyu's corpse buzzed into the air in unison as Li Huowang approached. Some of them landed on him, greedily drinking his blood.

Li Huowang followed the flies' trajectory, nodded slightly, and then stepped past Chen Hongyu's lifeless body. He pressed on.

After two days of travel, he arrived at the familiar culvert. He walked in confidently, the path ingrained in his memory.

He reached the factory again. There were still fires burning inside, though their light was dimmer than before. The people inside moved about frantically, seemingly searching for something.

The bandits fixed their gazes on Li Huowang and aimed their guns directly at him. Interestingly, some of them were wrapped in bandages.

Li Huowang stares at them peacefully. He reached behind his back and slowly unsheathed his bronze coin sword.

They fired as Li Huowang swung. The bullets hit Li Huowang squarely, but he wasn't afraid—he had the Heavenly Dao of Death.

They had been no match for him before. Now, after absorbing so many Heavenly Daos, they were mere distractions.

With a swift swing of his sword, three heads tumbled to the ground, with blood spraying upward in chaotic arcs.

"Nana, look at this! We're so close to resetting the timeline again!" Li Huowang shouted at the head hanging from his neck as he continued cutting down the bandits. "Wait for me! It'll all be over soon!"

Li Huowang jumped and landed heavily, bisecting someone in half.

A deafening engine roar cut through the chaos. Blinding headlights swept over him as a massive, spike-covered jeep barreled toward him. Four men inside took aim, their guns trained on him. The vehicle was huge and resembled the head of a beast.

The engine roared, and the jeep charged towards Li Huowang.

Li Huowang pounced, his blade raised high. With a cold flash, he cleaved the jeep in half. Diesel sprayed from the ruptured fuel tank.

He snapped his fingers before touching the ground. "Fire!"

Boom! The jeep exploded, and viscera rained down around Li Huowang.

The viscera slowly pooled together and condensed, forming a coffee and chocolate-flavored mooncake.

Various voices surrounded Li Huowang.

"The Mid-Autumn Festival program is becoming worse over the years."

"Yeah. Even the prison band is better than this."

"Hey, did you know that our mooncakes are popular outside? A lot of people wanted to have a taste of them."

"Ward twenty-six! It's time to eat your medicine."

Li Huowang looked around the familiar place and saw his left arm was complete again. He was back.

"HAHAHA!"

His laughter shocked everyone, but they weren't surprised by this. They just skirted around Li Huowang and went on their way.

Li Huowang happily chewed on the mooncake. He felt the paper note inside and chewed even harder. He was grinning from ear to ear right now.

While the other prisoners were performing, Li Huowang kept his calm and walked towards the toilet.

There, an unexpected figure blocked his path. Yi Donglai stared at him, wide-eyed. "What happened just now? What was that? Why did I come back?"

“You... remember?” Li Huowang hadn’t expected anyone else to retain their memories after a timeline reset. Yi Donglai had always forgotten everything before.

His words shattered Yi Donglai’s fragile hope that it had all been an illusion. Yi Donglai said, “Was everything real? Everything? What is real? What is fake?”

The other patients turned to look at Yi Donglai, so Li Huowang tried to calm him down. “Don’t move! Do you want the others to think that you are crazy too?”

Li Huowang pulled Yi Donglai into the bathroom and whispered, “Don’t panic and listen to me. Don’t forget what happened at the Baiyu Capital! Listen to me.”

Yi Donglai wanted to say something, but in the end, he merely nodded.

Soon, he walked out with Li Huowang, heading for the main gate.

With a swipe of his card, the large metal gates opened.

As they walked, Li Huowang spoke in a low voice, saying, “You already know everything, so I won’t explain again. Trust me no matter what, and talk to me through your phone.”

The two Ba siblings were surprised to find the two walking towards them.

Ba Nanxu leaned against the car window and chuckled. “Not bad, Li Huowang. To think you could kidnap a doctor at the same time.”

Li Huowang ignored her and got in the car. “Give me Zhao Shuangdian’s number.”

After dialing the number, the car slowly headed towards Qing Wanglai’s mansion.

Li Huowang looked at the scenery outside and shook his phone at Yi Donglai to exchange contact information. They texted each other as the car approached its destination. After a long time, Li Huowang saw the familiar mansion again.

He entered the hall and darted past Chen Hongyu on the couch, racing straight up to the third floor.

He threw open the door to find Yang Na curled up in a corner. Tears streamed down his face as he embraced her tightly, refusing to let go.

“Li Huowang? How did you know she was here?” Qing Wanglai smiled as he brought the others with him into the room.

Li Huowang shook his head. “Get out. I want to be alone with Nana.”

“Of course. Let’s give the couple some space.”

While Li Huowang wanted them gone, he didn’t want Qing Wanglai to leave yet. “Qing Wanglai, wait.”

Chapter 1010 - Past

Li Huowang stood at the top of Shangjing's east gate and looked down.

Even though the murderous aura had tainted the people, they needed to continue their lives. However, there were more criminals now, and the people were rowdier.

Though the murderous aura had tainted the people, life continued. Still, crime surged, and the people became rowdier.

"Are you selling it at fifty coins or not? I will stab you if you're not!"

"You bastard! Look at my neck—go ahead and stab if you've got the guts! Think I'm scared of you?"

"How dare you trick me?! It's one catty lighter than you promised! I will shave the weight off your flesh!"

Li Huowang's eyes scanned their faces, but his mind wandered elsewhere.

Suddenly, something caught his eye, and his pupils shrank. He leaped and dashed across the algae-covered roof tiles.

He brushed past the white banners and saw Bai Lingmiao sitting on a lotus seat. She was okay.

Overcome with emotion, Li Huowang lunged forward, pulling her tightly into his embrace.

Bai Lingmiao blushed when she sensed the gazes from the others. "What are you doing? Look at where we are!"

She waved all four of her arms, and the two of them disappeared.

When Li Huowang regained his senses, he realized they were back in Bai Lingmiao's room.

He let her go and noticed that all four of her eyes were emitting a murderous aura.

“You... were tainted by the murderous aura too?” Li Huowang was stunned momentarily. “That’s fine. As long as you are alive.”

He was worried that Bai Lingmiao would never return when he saw Yang Na and Bai Lingmiao superimposing on one another.

Bai Lingmiao was still alive. That was all he cared about. Her changed personality was nothing serious.

Li Huowang hugged her once more, holding her incredibly tightly.

Bai Lingmiao pushed him away slightly before unbuttoning her clothes. “Hurry up. There are still issues for me to handle in the Tianchen Kingdom.”

“Wait, Miaomiao. This isn’t what I intended to do.” Li Huowang laughed, quickly stopping her. Bai Lingmiao had become more brazen after being tainted by the murderous aura.

“Miaomiao, that’s not quite what I wanted. I just wanted to hug you, even though it’s been so long since we’ve had time for ourselves.”

Li Huowang carefully hugged her again.

He sniffed her fragrant hair and recalled what they had all been through. After a long while, Li Huowang broke the silence.

“Miaomiao, you can’t leave. You’re the only one I have left...”

The murderous aura in Bai Lingmiao’s eyes softened as she felt the change in his emotions.

She gently patted his back with all four hands and sighed.

“Don’t worry. I won’t go anywhere. We still need to find a way to revive Suisui.”

“Yes.”

Li Huowang nodded and closed his eyes. Too many things had happened in a short period of time. He was exhausted and could feel himself going unconscious.

For the first time in a long while, he felt safe. He could finally relax a little.

“Senior Li, what’ll we do once we save Suisui?” Bai Lingmiao asked, her voice laced with longing, as if she had just escaped the Zephyr Temple.

“Once we find Suisiu, we can return to Cowheart Village. We don’t have to do anything. I just want to live peacefully. I’m too tired...”

“Is that so? What do you think a peaceful day should be?”

“As long as no one dies, that’s enough. To me, that’s a normal day,” Li Huowang replied, his voice barely audible as though speaking in a dream.

Their conversation drifted to other topics, unhurried and aimless. They held each other close, and their injured hearts seemed to mend a little.

One division later, Bai Lingmiao rested on Li Huowang’s chest, draped in his red Daoist robe while listening to his heartbeat. “I have to go soon. I can’t stay away from the Tianchen Kingdom for long. Most of the people and evil entities now worship the Heavenly MaterWhite Lotus Sect, but there are still stubborn bandits who resist.”

“Sure. I need to find Gao Zhijian to discuss some matters too.”

Li Huowang took off Bai Lingmiao’s golden anklet and gave her some white clothes.

“Senior Li,” Bai Lingmiao said, putting her silk eye covers back on, “we should talk like this more often. It makes me feel at ease.”

Li Huowang nodded as he put on his boots and robes. He froze as he turned to the bronze basin to wash his face.

He saw Ji Zai in the water instead of his own reflection. Ji Zai was panicking.

“Li Huowang! Quick! The Baiyu Capital needs Dragon Qi! The sky will tear open if we don’t patch it up!”

Li Huowang’s thoughts spiraled. Baiyu Capital existed outside the flow of time. The nightmare wasn't over—it was only beginning!

“What’s wrong? Are you alright?”

Li Huowang shook his head as if he was hiding from something. He stumbled towards the front door. “I... I need to go and find Gao Zhijian. The Baiyu Capital requires Dragon Qi.”

Li Huowang ran out, using his cultivation to travel quickly. He phased past the walls of the palace and finally found Gao Zhijian. He was eating while holding onto his imperial son.

Gao Zhijian stuffed a scallion pancake into his own mouth and asked, “Senior Li, what’s wrong?”

“Dragon Veins!” Li Huowang shouted. “The Baiyu Capital is in danger. I need two Dragon Veins and the support of all five emperors to send them up!”

Hearing the urgency in Li Huowang’s tone, Gao Zhijian turned serious and stood up, abandoning his meal. “Understood.”

Soon, five emperors stood before a bronze tree Li Huowang had conjured. The Dragon Veins were also there, each dragging the past emperors behind them. Their chains had long been undone.

“Daoist Li,” the Khan of Qing Qiu said, “for the sake of our nations, I am more than happy to ascend. I don’t doubt you, but this is an important matter—why will you not come with us?”

“You can just ascend to find me up there. My past self is up there waiting for you!”

Li Huowang started to snarl uncontrollably, as if afraid of something up there.

The Khan wanted to say more, but Gao Zhijian interjected, “Senior Li’s word is law. Without him, the Dharma Sect would’ve destroyed us. We cannot doubt him.”

The dragons roared, and the five Dragon Veins brought two other Dragon Veins to the Baiyu Capital. The people of Shangjing kneeled in worship.

Li Huowang pounded his head in pain as the dragons' roars grew weaker. He murmured to himself, "Don't worry... There's still hope. There must be."

As he muttered, his reflection spoke again, its voice mirroring his panic. "We still need more help! We need allies! Call everyone you can!"

Suddenly, Li Huowang heard quiet footsteps behind him. A gentle hand patted Li Huowang's shoulder. "Senior Li, is it my turn?"

Chapter 1011 - Death

“Senior Li, is it my turn?”

Li Huowang shuddered at the sound of that familiar voice.

He looked up and saw Bai Lingmiao standing before him.

Memories flooded his mind—from when she gave him a bun back in the Zephyr Temple to all the moments they’d shared together. His expression twisted in pain.

“Why... why?! Why is this happening?” Li Huowang exclaimed, tightly clutching his head.

Bai Lingmiao gently pried his hands away from his head.

“Senior Li, is it my turn?”

“No! It’s not your turn yet! Not yet! We need to run and escape!”

Li Huowang didn’t know where they could go. He just wanted to flee.

He gripped her hand and channeled his cultivation, dragging her along. The world around them blurred as they sped through the Qi Kingdom, then the Tianchen Kingdom, and finally Hou Shu.

However, no matter how far he ran, what he sought to escape loomed ever closer.

Li Huowang ran past the places where he had once trodden upon, but the more he ran, the slower he became.

He had nowhere left to run when he arrived back at the destroyed Zephyr Temple.

Staring at the three charred statues on the altar, Li Huowang howled. He clutched his head and trembled, knowing there was no way to hide. He couldn’t alter the path ahead. If he didn’t send Bai Lingmiao up with the two Jiang Xiangshous, history itself would change.

And if it did, everything would be over.

On one side lay the lives of everyone in the world. On the other, Bai Lingmiao's life. He had to choose.

The pain torturing his heart would've been more than enough for him to use the Cang-Qiang Ascension. He wanted to do something to remove his heartache.

He drove a sharp pike into his palm, ripping at his flesh. Pain seared through him, but it did nothing to ease the mental torment. Blood and tears fell to the ground.

Li Huowang reached for another torture tool, but Bai Lingmiao stopped him. "Senior Li, you can tell me what's troubling you. You don't have to bear this alone."

"I... I can't..." His voice faltered as he met her gaze.

While he longed to change everything, there was no way out. Everything up to this point was a consequence of his actions, and the only way forward was to follow the path he'd forged.

Bai Lingmiao, as if understanding her fate, remained calm. She carefully placed her slender fingers on Li Huowang's mouth. "Senior Li, you don't have to worry about me. The Heavenly Mater told me."

Li Huowang pulled her into an embrace, his heart breaking. He couldn't bear the thought of Bai Lingmiao dying.

Bai Lingmiao whispered, "Senior Li, will I die once I go up there?"

Li Huowang shook his head in pain. "I don't know. I really don't know."

Bai Lingmiao patted his back lightly. "Senior Li, don't worry. The Heavenly Mater promised to send me back once everything is over."

Li Huowang wanted to trust her, but he knew it was impossible. Bai Lingmiao was just lying to make him feel better.

Bai Lingmiao was the Saintess of the White Lotus Sect. From the mural in the underground chamber of Cowheart Village, Li Huowang knew the truth. The Heavenly Mater wanted Bai Lingmiao to ascend and be reborn as the Heavenly Mater of the past—the same one who once ruled the Tianchen Kingdom.

There was an impassable gap between Simings and mortals, except for the Siming in control of the Heavenly Dao of Bewilderment.

He didn't know what fate awaited Bai Lingmiao when she was up there. He wasn't even sure if he would be able to see her again.

"No! I won't accept this!" Li Huowang bit his lips and looked at Bai Lingmiao, determination flashing in his eyes.

"Miaomiao, don't worry. I'll save you! I must save you!"

"I won't let this end here. We promised to return to Cowheart Village together. I won't accept this outcome."

"The Heavenly Mater may be untouchable now, but I swear, once we've dealt with Fu Shengtian, I'll tear her apart!"

"I will save you, and I will even save Suisui! In this crazy world, anything is possible!"

The Second Deity chuckled and kissed Li Huowang's forehead. "Now that's the undefeatable Li Huowang that I know and love. We'll just be assisting them up there, so don't worry. We are not marching to our deaths. We will kill Fu Shengtian!"

Li Huowang wiped his tears and rose to his feet. There was still hope, and he couldn't give up. How could he save Suisui if he faltered now?

He turned to look at the three charred statues and howled. "Three Ancient Ones! Just you wait! I will kill you!"

With a single blow, he smashed the statues to pieces.

"Senior Li, send me back. There's no time."

But he shook his head. "Not yet. We need to go somewhere else first. You weren't alone with the six White Donkeys... There was someone else too."

Gao Zhijian soon returned from the Baiyu Capital. The mission was so smooth that he doubted himself. Why does Senior Li require all five of us emperors just to send two Dragon Veins up there?

Just as he passed the Ox Tail Gate and returned to Shangjing, he couldn't help but notice Li Huowang frowning and Bai Lingmiao smiling. They had been waiting for him at the altar.

"Gao Zhijian, something else needs to be sent to the Baiyu Capital."

"Hm? What do you need to send up there?"

"Two Jiang Xiangshous."

Li Huowang's words were like a cold wind, chilling everyone to the bone. The meaning behind them was unmistakable.

Gao Zhijian froze for a moment, then quickly composed himself. After a brief exchange with the other Emperors, he let out a strained smile. "Understood. I'll give the orders right away."

Turning to Bai Lingmiao, he added, "Senior Bai, I need the White Lotus Sect's help for this. Can you do it?"

Bai Lingmiao was no longer as calm as she had been. Two streams of tears stained her cheeks. Li Huowang reached out to wipe them away, but the tears didn't stop.

The Second Deity answered in her stead. "Yes."

The White Lotus Sect and the palace soon issued the command to assemble. Soon, both the soldiers and White Lotus devotees gathered in the open fields to the west of Shangjing. The murderous aura influenced everyone present.

The purpose of their assembly became clear when the orders were relayed.

The millions of soldiers were anxious. Almost half of them were devotees of the White Lotus Sect, and they were pretty much the same as the soldiers after being influenced by the murderous aura.

The devotees of the White Lotus Sect surrounded Bai Lingmiao and knelt sincerely. The sight was awe-inspiring, a testament to their devotion.

The White Donkeys at the front spoke on behalf of the other devotees. “Saintess, is this the will of the Heavenly Mater?”

Bai Lingmiao had almost cried herself dry. She used her remaining strength to utter a single word. “Yes.”

The devotees all stood up when they heard her.

“Heavenly Mater! The Void Home! Brothers and sisters! It’s time for us to finally return to the Void Home!”

The voices spread out like ripples in a lake.

Everyone from the White Lotus Sect cheered with a thunderous boom, their murderous aura adding to their excitement.

Chapter 1012 - Arise

Under the command of the banner holders, soldiers gathered in the fields outside Shangjing.

There were lots of people, but everything unfolded with meticulous order thanks to the White Lotus Sect's enforcement and the constant stream of directives from their superiors. Banner holders on horseback zipped around the soldiers, ensuring coordination.

At the forefront, Li Huowang stood and saw nothing but an ocean of people. The ground was covered with a dense crowd that extended as far as the eye could see.

A specific ritual was required to summon Jiang Xiangshou. While the Chief of the Liang Kingdom's Surveillance Bureau had died, the Deputy Chief was still alive and fit to conduct the ceremony.

Gao Zhijian, clad in his robes, held onto a special tiger seal. As the murderous aura continued to condense, the tiger seal glowed in a red light and even started to tremble. A faint roar could be heard emanating from it.

He split it in two, keeping one half while handing the other to four Deputy Chiefs.

They bowed ceremoniously before running down to make the final preparations.

The pounding of war drums and the blare of horns filled the air, echoing as everyone's hearts thumped rapidly. Eunuchs distributed jars of potent wine, prepared in advance for this moment.

Everyone was given a single bowl of strong wine, and no one wasted a single drop. They drank it all in one gulp with eyes filled with conviction, including the children and the elderly.

Li Huowang's heart ached when he looked at the people. He had never imagined the cost of the help he sought back in the Baiyu Capital.

Everything had a price. Some payments were required upfront, while others could be paid later.

Bai Lingmiao, on the other hand, was calmer now. Maybe it was because she would be going up with the others too...

The devotees brought up a massive floating lantern fashioned into a grand lotus throne. Six of the White Donkeys were seated on the outer edge of the lotus throne, just like lotus seeds.

The time was up. Gao Zhijian and the four other emperors stood at the forefront. The light gust rippled their robes and black beards.

Were this a conventional battle, Gao Zhijian would have delivered a rousing speech to inspire the troops, but this was no ordinary war. He hesitated, unsure of what to say. The people before him were marching to certain death.

However, silence wasn't an option—not for a good emperor. A good emperor had to bear the weight of the people's lives, even when there were a million of them.

“My warriors!”

Li Huowang froze as Gao Zhijian's voice covered every corner of Shangjing. “My warriors! My brothers! If we live, we live. If we die, we die. Today is the day when we determine the survival of our people!”

Gao Zhijian chose honesty over pretense and revealed the truth, including secrets about the Baiyu Capital known only to the highest ranks of the Surveillance Bureau.

Suddenly, the ground shook and the sky split apart. A massive upside-down tree slowly crashed onto the ground. “The sky is falling.”

The people filled with murderous aura grabbed their blades and glared at the broken sky. “Kill! Kill! Kill!”

The murderous aura swirled upward, engulfing their bodies. They faced the enormous tree without a trace of fear.

Li Huowang averted his gaze as they raised their blades in unison. The sight was too unbearable for him to watch.

Footsteps approached. He looked up to see Chun Xiaoman, who was wearing new clothes on purpose.

As she cried, she looked at Li Huowang, Bai Lingmiao, and Gao Zhijian. Her voice trembled with despair. “Why? Why is this happening?! I need to know!”

“Xiaoman...” Bai Lingmiao gently extended an arm to Chun Xiaoman, aware of how painful this must have been for her.

The White Lotus Sect was Chun Xiaoman’s home. Everyone in there was her family, and now her family was gone.

However, Chun Xiaoman slapped Bai Lingmiao’s arm away. She looked at the heads of her family members tumbling down and wept, her gaze fixed on the hole in the sky.

“Chun Xuan! Gou Zi! Wang Kunsheng! They were people—real, living people! Just like you! They weren’t beggars anymore. Their life had finally improved, and they could finally eat their fill!”

In her despair, Chun Xiaoman unsheathed the sword that Li Huowang had gifted her. Then, she cut off her own head with one swift motion.

“Xiaoman!” Bai Lingmiao shouted, her tears streaming down her face.

Chun Xiaoman’s head fell among the soldiers’ lifeless bodies, her blood spraying across the earth.

Gao Zhijian stepped forward but stopped, clenching his fists as he bit his lips. Unable to bear the sight, he turned away.

The solidified murderous aura soared upwards and formed into two roaring heads.

With the two Jiang Xiangshous completed, the other living humans in the area gradually went crazy from the murderous aura. Their bloodlust rapidly increased while the range of effect slowly expanded.

“Senior Li! Jiang Xiangshou has been completed! We must send it up, or there will be more trouble down here!”

Still sobbing, Bai Lingmiao clutched Li Huowang’s hands.

“Senior Li, I will go now. Send me up, please.”

Li Huowang nodded painfully, clenching his fists incredibly tightly. He trembled as he escorted Bai Lingmiao to the lotus throne.

Seated on the throne, Bai Lingmiao clasped sacred artifacts in her four hands. Her face glowed with a pure white light, the lotus mark on her forehead shining brightly as it resisted the murderous aura.

The Twelve Merit Jade Lotus glowed brightly, and the sky above Bai Lingmiao opened up. A single lotus seed descended, embedding itself into her body.

At that moment, she understood everything that was happening and why it had happened. She finally smiled, but it was devoid of any sadness or joy. It was a serene smile.

She made a lotus seal with all four hands and floated upwards with the six White Donkeys. They floated past the two Jiang Xiangshous, who were fighting with each other. Then, they dragged them to the Ox Tail Gate.

The pressure from the two Jiang Xiangshous soon subsided, but Li Huowang continued to pant as he watched Bai Lingmiao disappear into the sky.

Despite repeatedly punching himself in the chest, even to the point of caving it in, nothing changed.

Li Huowang fished out the bronze mirror in his pocket and shouted, “Ji Zai! Everyone is gone! They are all gone! You must send her back! You must! You promised me!”

Chapter 1013 - Truth Or Lies

Burning tears streaked down Li Huowang's cheeks, dripping onto the floor. He stared at the unmoving Yang Na in despair. There was nothing he could do.

Wu Qi sighed and spoke gently, "You used to live in a mental asylum, didn't you? Then you should recognize what's happening to her. Severe depression often ends like this. I can't even imagine how she managed to find us here."

"Nana?"

Li Huowang shook her gently, but her unfocused pupils remained vacant. The timeline had reset, but something was different this time.

Yang Na had always asked about his missing eye when she first saw him in the past.

Now, she looked like an empty husk.

Trying to shake her out of her stupor, Li Huowang suddenly recalled something. "Nana, is this because I took your Heavenly Dao of Death? Is that why you're like this?"

He repeated the question, his conviction growing as he did. He nodded, convincing himself. "Alright, then. I'll give it back to you. I'll return it all!"

Li Huowang kissed Yang Na's lips and bit his tongue hard. Blood flowed freely, which he funneled into her mouth.

But it wasn't enough. He tore chunks of flesh from his mouth and fed them to her.

Holding her tightly, he murmured in her ears, "Nana, come back. I've returned the Heavenly Dao of Death to you. You're the Heavenly Mater again. You've reclaimed it, so please come back. I need you. I need your help to deal with Qing Wanglai."

Wu Qi pursed her lips and quietly slipped out of the room, leaving the couple to themselves.

Li Huowang talked incessantly to Yang Na, who finally replied after thirty minutes.

She placed her emaciated hand on his back. "Huowang? What's wrong? Why are you crying? Is it because I'm not good enough?"

Li Huowang released her, noticing the light return to her eyes.

"Huowang... What happened to your eye? Why do you only have one? Is it because of me?"

Li Huowang sighed in relief after hearing those words. Yang Na had returned to normal.

Relief washed over him as he hugged her tightly. "As long as you are fine... As long as you are fine..."

Knock, knock. The lovely atmosphere was interrupted by the knocking on the door.

Li Huowang turned to see Yi Donglai standing there, his face anxious.

"Talk. Nana is an ally."

Yi Donglai entered, locking the door behind him. He opened his mouth to speak, but Li Huowang interrupted, "Wait."

Li Huowang stood up and started rummaging around the furniture in the room.

The room didn't have many things, making it easy for him to search. He quickly found what he was looking for: a black microphone.

"Damn it! I knew it! Qing Wanglai always has a backup plan. Of course he didn't leave this room unmonitored!"

Li Huowang removed the black SD card from the microphone, chewed it up, and swallowed the pieces.

Yi Donglai and Yang Na froze in alarm. The discovery prickled their skin as if there were still unseen gazes watching them. They rummaged around the room to help Li Huowang search for extra cameras.

They soon found a second microphone concealed inside a stool's leg and a third wedged atop a cabinet. Qing Wanglai had been very careful.

Li Huowang crushed all of them. "What a despicable bastard."

Qing Wanglai had never intended to work with them. He had intended to execute his own scheme from the beginning, monitoring them in secret. That was how Qing Wanglai had always managed to seize the initiative.

But now it was different. The timeline had been reset, and Li Huowang already knew Qing Wanglai's plans. Now, Li Huowang had the initiative.

"Huowang, what's going on? Why are these here? Who placed them?"

Glancing at Yi Donglai and Yang Na, Li Huowang gently guided Yang Na to a stool. "Nana, there's something I need to explain. A lot has happened, but you've forgotten."

He proceeded to tell her about Qing Wanglai's betrayal. Li Huowang needed as many allies as possible to kill Qing Wanglai later.

"Nana, do you understand what I'm talking about? Qing Wanglai is the Three Ancient Ones. He's gone mad, and we need to find a way to control him. We need to devour his Heavenly Dao."

Yang Na nodded without hesitation. "I understand. What do we do next?"

Li Huowang pondered momentarily and said, "We need to find Zhao Shuangdian first. We can't fight Qing Wanglai yet—it's too risky. He could turn others against us if we're not careful."

Having taken the initiative, it was simpler to formulate a plan. Li Huowang felt confident that the Three Ancient Ones and Shai Zi wouldn't threaten the Simings of Baiyu Capital this time.

"Wait," Yi Donglai interrupted. "Little Li, you need to tell me what's going on. What's happening?"

With so much chaos, Yi Donglai was utterly lost.

Frustration flashed across Li Huowang's face. "What do you mean you don't understand? I'm saying that I'm not ill and that everything I've said is real. Everything you've written in your thesis is true too!"

But Yi Donglai couldn't believe it, "But... even if everything you've said is true... what does that have to do with me?"

"Everything! You said it yourself—you're Da Nuo! You're a Grand Siming!"

Yi Donglai's face visibly turned red from anger.

"That's because they're holding my sister hostage! I only said that to fool them. It's all a lie!"

"A lie?" Li Huowang laughed bitterly. "Do you think something becomes a lie just because you call it one? I thought the pill recipe I gave Dan Yangzi was fake too, but he became an Immortal! There's no truth or lies here. You are a Grand Siming. You were Da Nuo from the moment you said you were Da Nuo."

Chapter 1014 - Start

Yi Donglai leaned against the wall, bringing a cigarette to his mouth with trembling hands. He lit the cigarette and took a deep drag.

He coughed violently, likely because it had been a long time since his last smoke.

After a few seconds of coughing, he wiped the tears off his cheeks and looked at Li Huowang.

“No, I can’t trust you. What you’re saying doesn’t make sense—not in this world and not in that other world you keep talking about. There’s no proof the timeline resets, except for your words. What if you’re wrong? Maybe it’s not what you think.”

Li Huowang sighed. “Is logic really that important? Not everything is logical. Also, what does that have to do with our situation right now? We just need to deal with the problem at its roots! Do you want to get poisoned by Qing Wanglai again?”

Yi Donglai remembered the pain he suffered the last time, and his expression twisted. Clutching his hair, he stammered, “Why... Why is this happening?”

Li Huowang exhaled sharply and opened the door to check that no one was eavesdropping from the outside. “Doctor Yi, you don’t need to overthink it. You don’t have to understand my perspective—you can stick to your own. What matters is that you’re Da Nuo in my world. Whether or not I’m Ji Zai in yours doesn’t matter. The crucial point is that our enemy is the same.”

Yi Donglai took another drag. This time, he didn’t choke. White smoke obscured his face as he carefully considered Li Huowang’s words.

Yi Donglai carefully considered Li Huowang’s words. “Then, did you experience this so-called timeline reset before?”

“You’ve seen my medical records and even wrote a thesis about me. Shouldn’t you understand me better than anyone else?”

“But this is different! You were ill last time, and now... I don’t know what you are!”

Li Huowang’s voice rose. “I wasn’t ill! You just couldn’t understand my world!”

Noticing Li Huowang’s growing agitation, Yi Donglai tried to calm him down. “Calm down. I didn’t say I won’t help you. I’m just trying to understand here. I don’t want to go through the timeline reset again.”

Li Huowang chuckled darkly. “You think resetting the timeline is bad? Wrong. Every time, I had to sacrifice so much! Without those resets, we’d all be dead! Qing Wanglai would’ve absorbed all our Heavenly Daos!”

“I... I need more evidence...” Yi Donglai muttered, pacing around the room in circles and clutching his hair.

Li Huowang grabbed him out of frustration. “Fine! Find your evidence! But before that, we need to act! Fu Shengtian is closing in, and we don’t have time to waste.”

A long silence followed before Yi Donglai quietly said, “Fine. Bring Zhao Shuangdian first.”

Li Huowang knew that Yi Donglai was now officially an ally, although he was struggling to cope with it.

“I called her while I was on the way here. The Heavenly Dao she controls is the key to defeating Qing Wanglai. We can’t let him catch wind of our plan. We need her to shoot him from a distance before he has the chance to poison us.”

From the previous timeline, Li Huowang was already aware of Qing Wanglai’s plans and how he would carry them out.

“Does she trust you?” Yi Donglai asked out of worry.

“She might not, but I know how to earn her trust. I’ve lived through this enough times to know.”

Turning to Yang Na, Li Huowang continued, “Nana, you control the Heavenly Dao of Death. It’s crucial, and I need your help—no matter what.”

“Alright!”

Yang Na nodded spiritedly. With her energy restored, her eyes seemed to gleam.

Li Huowang trusted her completely. He didn’t need to explain much—she was his Yang Na, after all.

After laying out the plan, he glanced at Yi Donglai, who decided not to complain. Instead, he asked a peculiar question. “If I’m Da Nuo in your eyes, what would Da Nuo do now?”

Li Huowang smiled. “Follow me and find a way to treat me.”

They descended the stairs together, joining the others lounging in the hall. Everything looked identical to how it had been in the previous reset.

They sat down and watched the television together like they did in the previous reset.

The weather report came on after the program they were watching ended.

“Good afternoon. This is your weather update. Hurricane Manao is expected to make landfall from the southeast. Coastal residents are advised to take precautions. Here’s the projected path...”

Crunch crunch. Chen Hongyu munched on chips, mumbling, “So the hurricane will pass by our place...”

She then noticed that Yang Na had recovered and offered some chips. “Eat up. It’ll help you recover.”

Yang Na glanced at Li Huowang, who was glaring at the door. Then, she took one of the chips and ate it. Her eyes lit up with delight. “Wow, these tomato-flavored chips are amazing!”

She plopped down beside Chen Hongyu, eating chip after chip.

Wu Qi emerged from the kitchen, sighing. "It's not that they're amazing. You just haven't eaten in days, and your body is starving for nutrition."

She turned to Li Huowang. "Hey, Li Huowang! Aren't you her boyfriend? Shouldn't you be doing something about this?"

But Li Huowang did not answer her. His sharp gaze slowly swept across the room. "Where's Qing Wanglai?"

"He's cooking in the kitchen. Do you want to help him?"

Chapter 1015 - Change

Li Huowang shook his head after learning that Qing Wanglai was in the kitchen.

The familiar roar of an engine echoed from a distance. Li Huowang gave a signal to Yang Na and Yi Donglai.

BAM! The door was kicked open violently, revealing a completely transformed Zhao Shuangdian.

“Where is Li Huowang?”

Li Huowang was stunned. Zhao Shuangdian’s usually smooth, lustrous hair now looked greasy, as if she hadn’t showered in days. She looked disheveled, with baggy, ill-fitting clothes and no makeup.

He remembered her as a beautiful and intelligent woman, but now she appeared to be someone entirely different.

Zhao Shuangdian locked eyes with Li Huowang and laughed before approaching him.

Yang Na wanted to stop her, but Zhao Shuangdian pushed her away. “Li Huowang, why were you looking for me? Is there something that you can only say to me face-to-face?”

“Wha... What?”

Li Huowang was taken aback because her change had disrupted his plans.

But there was no time to waste. He needed to adjust his plans quickly, so he hastily brought Zhao Shuangdian away from Qing Wanglai’s mansion.

They reached the bamboo forest, and Li Huowang turned to face her, his shock evident. “Why are you like this? How did you become like this?”

Zhao Shuangdian, clearly irritated, crossed her arms and scoffed. “What are you talking about, you crazy lunatic?”

Li Huowang understood what was happening when he recalled Yang Na’s situation.

“Is it because I consumed your Heavenly Dao? Here, let me return it to you!”

Li Huowang attempted to cut into his flesh to offer it to Zhao Shuangdian, but she forcefully pressed down on his shoulder to stop him.

Li Huowang struggled. “Why? I’m trying to return it. Why don’t you want it? Why don’t you want your Heavenly Dao? I don’t know how to use your Heavenly Dao!”

Yi Donglai ran over to help them. “Little Li, she won’t understand what you’re trying to do or say if you keep talking like this.”

Li Huowang sighed when he observed Zhao Shuangdian’s expression. “Fine. Let me go. I’ll explain everything to you.”

“Explain what?” A familiar voice cut in.

Zhao Shuangdian let go of Li Huowang and waved toward Qing Wanglai. “Don’t worry. Li Huowang just wanted to explain something to me.”

Li Huowang turned to see Qing Wanglai approaching them with his trademark smile.

“Let’s talk in the mansion.”

Once they had returned to the mansion, Zhao Shuangdian questioned Li Huowang again, saying, “What do you need to tell me? Go ahead.”

Li Huowang looked at her and then at Qing Wanglai. He didn’t know how to explain things right now.

The Three Ancient Ones were more vigilant than he had thought. Although Qing Wanglai didn’t recall the events of the previous resets, he was still closely monitoring everyone.

Right now, Li Huowang couldn’t reveal that Qing Wanglai intended to steal all of the Heavenly Daos. His previous efforts would be entirely wasted if he did.

Apart from alerting Qing Wanglai, there was the risk that Zhao Shuangdian wouldn't trust Li Huowang anyway, given how much she'd changed.

At that moment, the sound of the television caught Li Huowang's attention, and an idea struck him. He pointed to the screen. "Look! Fu Shengtian is coming!"

Everyone turned to see footage of the hurricane on the television. A shard of glass from a skyscraper fell and shattered on the ground, causing the reporters to flee in panic.

The others looked at Li Huowang in confusion. He explained, "Fu Shengtian is attacking us and heading closer. We need to find a way to deal with it as soon as possible!"

Qing Wanglai blinked and pushed his glasses up. "Is this the major news you were talking about?"

"Isn't it important? Fu Shengtian will reach us in eight days! I had to risk my life to get this information! We'll all be dead if we don't come up with a plan before it arrives!"

"Six days." Someone interrupted Li Huowang.

He turned to see Chen Hongyu, who was staring at the television. "Huh?"

Chen Hongyu explained, "Not eight days, but six."

She turned up the volume, and the announcer's voice echoed across the room. "Weather reports say the hurricane will reach us in six days. We urge everyone..."

Li Huowang's face paled when he heard the news. Fu Shengtian hadn't been affected by the resetting timeline—it was still approaching them.

Qing Wanglai had said they had eight days, but now they only had six.

"Wait, doesn't that mean..."

Suddenly, Li Huowang recalled something. He pulled out his phone with trembling hands. His fear was palpable, but he dialed Sun Xiaoqin's number.

—Sorry, this number is no longer available.

The recording left him crestfallen. Refusing to give up, he tried Li Jianchen's number. However, he heard the same message.

“This... How... how could this be... Why...”

Li Huowang cried and called his parents repeatedly, but no one answered.

Fu Shengitan was immune to the timeline reset. Its actions affected future timelines.

Fu Shengtian had altered the past, so the deaths of his parents—Sun Xiaoqin and Li Jianchen—had been set in stone.

“Why! Why! Why involve them? Attack me instead!” With a cry of anguish, Li Huowang smashed his phone against the ground.

The others were surprised by his outburst, stepping back in shock.

Ba Nanxu worriedly approached Zhao Shuangdian. “Why don't we send him back?”

Yi Donglai clenched his fist and whispered, “Little Li! Calm down! Don't forget our plan! Things aren't over yet!”

Li Huowang took several deep breaths before collapsing onto the sofa with Yi Donglai's help.

Only then did he realize the others were seated at the dinner table, whispering among themselves while occasionally glancing in his direction.

Chapter 1016 - Clash

Li Huowang could already guess what they were discussing. After resetting the timeline so many times, it was obvious—they were talking about how his condition had worsened.

But that worked in his favor. He could use it as a smokescreen to deceive Qing Wanglai.

Thankfully, he still held the initiative despite how much the situation had changed.

Li Huowang took a deep breath and approached them.

“You guys must think I’m lying, but I’m telling the truth. We need to work together to overcome this crisis.”

Chen Hongyu replied, “But where is your proof? We need more than words to believe you. We need evidence.”

“Proof?” Li Huowang pretended to think deeply before shaking his head. “I don’t have any, but I’m telling the truth!”

Ba Nanxu rolled her eyes. “You think you’re telling the truth? Every lunatic believes that.”

“Now, now. There’s no need to attack him like that. He’s our ally, after all. He must have his own logic,” Qing Wanglai said, surprising everyone by defending Li Huowang.

However, Li Huowang ignored him and turned his attention to Zhao Shuangdian. “Where’s your laptop?”

Zhao Shuangdian was confused. “What laptop? I don’t even have a phone. Why would I need a laptop?”

Qing Wanglai stood up and walked into the kitchen. “We can revisit this topic later. Our food will be ready soon. Wu Qi, come and help me in the kitchen.”

Li Huowang knew this couldn’t go on much longer. He needed Zhao Shuangdian’s help if they were going to kill Qing Wanglai. If he couldn't convince her, there was a good chance Qing Wanglai would use Zhao Shuangdian against him.

Li Huowang had an idea. He motioned Yang Na to follow him. As Qing Wanglai entered the kitchen, Li Huowang and Yang Na made their way up to the third floor.

Once they were alone, Li Huowang unsheathed his blade and cut a piece of his flesh from his arm.

"Huowang!"

Yang Na's face turned pale with shock. In a hurry, she used her hair tie to stem the bleeding on his arm.

"Don't worry. I'm just separating the Heavenly Dao from my body. We need to return it to Zhao Shuangdian so she can understand what I'm saying," Li Huowang said.

He handed his flesh to Yang Na. "Help me. I can't do this myself since Qing Wanglai is monitoring me. I need you to put my flesh into one of the dishes. She loves spicy food, so I need you to mix it with the stir-fried meat and green chili."

Yang Na hesitated, looking at the bloody flesh with teary eyes. "But... I don't know how to cook."

"Let me handle it," a voice said.

Yi Donglai appeared, looking at Li Huowang's wound with a complicated expression. He felt confused, unsure of what he was supposed to do in this situation. Eventually, he let out a sigh and decided to take Li Huowang's flesh, making his way towards the kitchen.

As Yi Donglai entered the kitchen, Li Huowang called out to Qing Wanglai to distract him. "Qing Wanglai, come out. I need to talk to you."

"Me?"

Qing Wanglai complied. He washed his hands and took off his aprons before heading outside.

Li Huowang needed to keep Qing Wanglai away from the kitchen for Yi Donglai to succeed.

Qing Wanglai flashed his trademark fake smile. “Is there something wrong? Is it about your girlfriend?”

Li Huowang looked at Qing Wanglai carefully, recalling every atrocious action he had taken in the past. Li Huowang had to suppress his anger to stop himself from killing Qing Wanglai on the spot.

He couldn’t kill Qing Wanglai just yet. Killing the Three Ancient Ones required extreme caution.

For now, he knew that the Three Ancient Ones had the Heavenly Dao of Secrets, the Heavenly Dao of Growth, and a part of Li Huowang.

More importantly, Li Huowang didn’t know if Qing Wanglai had other secret allies. Li Huowang had to be very careful now.

Li Huowang decided to distract Qing Wanglai with some obvious questions. “Why didn’t you save me when I was captured at White Tower Hospital?”

He wasn’t truly interested in the answer. His focus remained on Yi Donglai. He watched as Yi Donglai worked quickly in the kitchen, finishing the dish.

The dish was served, and Zhao Shuangdian ate it happily.

Chen Hongyu noticed the stir-fried meat with green chili and salivated. “Looks delicious.”

She tried to grab some, but Yang Na pulled her back. “Auntie, where did you buy those potato chips? They’re so tasty. I want to buy more.”

With the distraction from Li Huowang and Yang Na’s help, Zhao Shuangdian finished most of the dish herself.

Zhao Shuangdian stood up to head back with the others, but Li Huowang stopped her. “You should play some computer games when you get back. They’re really fun. A boring life without computer games would be a shame.”

Zhao Shuangdian stared at Li Huowang like he was an idiot before she left. But she had just walked past Li Huowang when he whispered a peculiar term to her, “Topology...”

Li Huowang sat back down after Zhao Shuangdian left. This time, he wasn't worried.

He felt his phone vibrate and smiled. Someone had sent him a message.

A few minutes later, Qing Wanglai ran out of his room and shouted, “We need to move out now.”

“Where are we going?”

Qing Wanglai was abnormally serious. “To Zhao Shuangdian's house. She encountered some trouble.”

Everyone hopped into their vehicles. Li Huowang even went down to the basement to rev his motorcycle. Soon, the RV, sports car, and motorcycle roared across the countryside.

They took a winding path before stopping in front of a mountain. The area was rural, with only a dirt path leading the way.

No one would have guessed that Zhao Shuangdian lived in such an isolated place. Li Huowang gripped his blade and began climbing the mountain with the others.

Climbing a mountain without a path was exhausting. After two hours, everyone was panting.

Chen Hongyu struggled to breathe because of her fatigue. “Are we not there yet? How tall is this mountain?”

Li Huowang, carrying Yang Na on his back, passed Chen Hongyu without saying a word.

Qing Wanglai answered, “We are almost there! She lives somewhere nearby! But something isn't right... There weren't this many trees when I came here last time. Can someone call her?”

Wu Qi pulled out her phone but quickly put it away. “There's no signal here.”

Li Huowang made a decision. “Spread out! We’ll have a better chance of finding her this way.”

However, Qing Wanglai stopped him. “No. We’d be walking to our deaths if she’s in danger. We’re too vulnerable alone.”

Li Huowang huffed and glared at Qing Wanglai. “Then what do you propose?”

Qing Wanglai took out a tissue to wipe the sweat off his neck. “Retreat. It’s too dangerous here.”

“Aren’t we here to save Zhao Shuangdian?”

Li Huowang was about to argue further when he saw a red laser dot appear on Qing Wanglai’s forehead.

The next moment, a gunshot rang out, the bullet grazing past Li Huowang’s head and flying toward Qing Wanglai’s forehead.

Chapter 1017 - Three Ancient Ones

Qing Wanglai somehow sensed the attack and twisted his body at an unnatural angle. Though he avoided a fatal wound, the bullet still ripped through his ear.

Qing Wanglai's shattered glasses had barely touched the ground when Li Huowang's blade swung toward his neck. The cold flash of steel reflected the broken glasses.

Li Huowang followed up his attack flawlessly after the first shot from Zhao Shuangdian. Li Huowang and Zhao Shuangdian orchestrated this ambush to kill Qing Wanglai.

Ding! Somehow, Qing Wanglai managed to use his watch to stop Li Huowang's blade.

But it was futile. With his left hand, Li Huowang unsheathed a second blade and slashed again at Qing Wanglai's neck.

Qing Wanglai stared at him in disbelief. Li Huowang was attacking even though Qing Wanglai hadn't set his plan in motion. Why?

Blood sprayed in all directions, but Qing Wanglai remained eerily calm, his mind racing for ways to fight back. He grabbed Li Huowang's wrist and shouted, "Help! Li Huowang's gone crazy!"

The other Simings rushed over to help, but Yi Donglai and Yang Na blocked them. "Qing Wanglai is fooling you all! Li Huowang is sane. Qing Wanglai is using all of you!"

Another gunshot rang out. Once again, Qing Wanglai miraculously dodged it.

Li Huowang roared and exerted more force to cut down Qing Wanglai's head. However, Qing Wanglai managed to withstand it, preventing Li Huowang from driving his blade closer.

Bam! Qing Wanglai kicked Li Huowang's abdomen. The blow caused his organs to shift around.

"Junior Li, what are you doing?"

To Qing Wanglai's surprise, his words had no effect whatsoever on Li Huowang.

"Everything is your fault!" Li Huowang jumped, aiming to bite Qing Wanglai's face.

Qing Wanglai wanted to evade but couldn't. Another red laser targeted the back of his head. Forced to choose, he dodged the bullet, allowing Li Huowang to sink his teeth into his face.

Li Huowang bit down forcefully and tore apart a huge chunk of Qing Wanglai's face.

The searing pain of the wound and the gash on his neck drove adrenaline through Qing Wanglai's veins. Summoning all his strength, he shoved Li Huowang back, stopping the assault for a moment.

Clutching onto the wounds on his neck, Qing Wanglai chuckled. "You've uncovered something with your 'special techniques,' haven't you? Disagreeing with my plan already?"

Li Huowang had no intention of negotiating with Qing Wanglai. He tightened his grip on the blades, still thinking about how to kill Qing Wanglai.

Noticing that Li Huowang had no intention of talking, Qing Wanglai turned to the hesitant Wu Qi. "Wu Qi, come and help me."

Wu Qi clutched onto her first aid kit and hesitated. Her gaze darted between Li Huowang and Qing Wanglai.

Qing Wanglai shouted, "Wu Qi, come here!"

At last, she drew a scalpel, fending off Yi Donglai before rushing to Qing Wanglai's side to treat his wounds.

"What are you doing? There's no reason to fight! We can sit down and talk!"

While Wu Qi stitched his wounds, Qing Wanglai used her as a shield against the gun aimed at him.

He turned to the others. “Do you all trust Li Huowang? I haven’t harmed him at all—I’ve been helping him all this time. I won’t take revenge on a patient, but we need to get him under control for now. He’s being reckless, and he could injure other people.”

“Is that so? Then tell us, what’s in the three test tubes behind you? Who are you planning to kill with that poison?” Li Huowang replied.

Li Huowang stomped hard and charged at Qing Wanglai, firmly gripping his blades to kill Qing Wanglai for good.

Qing Wanglai naturally had different plans in mind. He shoved Wu Qi toward Li Huowang, creating a distraction.

Li Huowang had to catch Wu Qi. The brief moment of distraction gave Qing Wanglai the chance to flee.

“Zhao Shuangdian, he’s getting away! After him!” Li Huowang roared, pushing Wu Qi aside to pursue.

Qing Wanglai was already wounded—Li Huowang couldn’t let him escape, not when he’d finally gained the upper hand by resetting the timeline.

The mountain’s dense forest made pursuit difficult. Thankfully, Li Huowang could track Qing Wanglai thanks to the blood-red secrets on the ground.

After chasing for some time, Li Huowang finally saw Qing Wanglai’s back. He hurled one of his blades, unexpectedly lodging it in Qing Wanglai’s leg.

Li Huowang pushed the branches away and inspected Qing Wanglai. At this point, Qing Wanglai panted while lying under a tree. The blade Li Huowang had thrown protruded from Qing Wanglai’s leg, his blood seeping into the soil.

Li Huowang grabbed his other blade and snarled at Qing

Wanglai. “Any last words?”

Qing Wanglai raised his right hand, still missing its pinky finger, and pushed his bloodied glasses up. “Hehehe... What are you thinking of doing?”

Despite his dire state, Qing Wanglai showed no fear.

Li Huowang bared his teeth. “I’m going to devour your Heavenly Dao.”

The sound of approaching footsteps alerted Li Huowang. He knew it was Zhao Shuangdian.

“Li Huowang, are you sure this is the time to turn on our allies? The real enemy is right in front of us,” Qing Wanglai said, pointing at the clouds approaching from the horizon.

“Stop trying to deceive me.” Li Huowang said. “I learned what you’re planning in the previous timeline. Your tricks won’t work.”

“Hehehe...”

Qing Wanglai continued to chuckle. This was the first time Li Huowang had seen him like this. An unexpected temperature plunge cast a chilling, eerie atmosphere over the forest.

“You think I’m afraid of you?” Qing Wanglai sneered. “You’re just a deranged patient with some know-how. Do you really think you can win against me, even in an ambush?”

Clack. Qing Wanglai aimed his gun at Li Huowang’s forehead and removed the safety.

“You’re wrong, Li Huowang. Even like this, you can’t win.”

In Li Huowang’s eyes, Qing Wanglai’s body turned big and split into strands of invisible threads.

Li Huowang now stood in the chaos of the Baiyu Capital. After all his effort to find the Three Ancient Ones, he was now slipping away.

“Three Ancient Ones!”

Chapter 1018 - Eyes

Ji Zai roared, unsheathing his spine sword and swinging it furiously.

A gust blew past the area. Li Huowang's cultivation as a Strayed One affected the Three Ancient One's secrets. The chains of secrets started to distort.

Ji Zai seized three chains of secrets and severed them with a decisive strike. The fractured secrets split apart, disappearing into the Baiyu Capital.

As Ji Zai prepared to attack again, strands of secrets phased through his body, shaving away fragments of his Bewilderment.

Even so, Ji Zai did not relent. He continued severing chain after chain.

The scattered chains of secrets around them became denser. The edges of Ji Zai's body began turning into secrets, rendering him increasingly translucent.

"Not enough! This isn't enough. I'm too slow!"

Ji Zai grabbed a mirror and shouted at his reflection, "Help! I need as many allies as possible! Victory or defeat depends on this!"

A blood-red light erupted beneath him, drawing his attention. He looked down to see three Jiang Xiangshous fighting each other while five Dragon Veins towed them closer to him.

Ji Zai reached out to grab them, but the Three Ancient Ones cast a large net woven from secrets, seeking to trap the Jiang Xiangshous.

At the last moment, the Heavenly Mater intervened. As her sleeves brushed past, the living beings stained by the karma within the chains of secrets died rapidly.

The chains of secrets were now riddled with dead beings. Ji Zai capitalized on the opening, tearing through the weakened net and seizing the three Jiang Xiangshous. He devoured them in one swift motion.

His eyes turned blood-red, his teeth sharpened into fangs, and the spine sword in his grip turned even sharper. The essence of the Jiang Xiangshous coursed through him, altering his very nature.

Ji Zai roared and swung the spine sword covered in a solidified murderous aura.

The attack was so powerful that it nearly shattered the chaos in the Baiyu Capital. Not even the Three Ancient Ones would be able to survive it.

Sensing impending destruction, the Three Ancient Ones disassembled himself at the last moment. The chains of secrets comprising his body scattered like writhing gray snakes, narrowly evading Ji Zai's devastating strike.

The Heavenly Mater seized the opportunity and spread a large wave of Death, enveloping most of the Three Ancient One's secrets.

Ji Zai and the Heavenly Mater almost killed the Three Ancient Ones when an unexpected ally stopped them. It was the Five Dhyani Buddhas.

At the critical moment, she chose to help the Three Ancient Ones.

Under her aid, the Three Ancient Ones began to heal. Only then did Ji Zai notice chains embedded in the back of the Five Dhyani Buddhas.

The Three Ancient Ones used the Five Dhyani Buddhas as a shield.

"Stop hiding!" Li Huowang roared while the Three Ancient Ones changed again.

The Five Dhyani Buddhas liquefied, and her flesh covered the chains of the Three Ancient Ones. Soon, the Three Ancient Ones and the Five Dhyani Buddhas disappeared from the Baiyu Capital, replaced by a massive clump of flesh and chains.

The strands of flesh-covered chains interlocked with each other, pumping like a heart as sticky blood dripped down continuously.

“Damn! The Three Ancient Ones plundered the Heavenly Dao of the Five Dhyani Buddhas!”

At that moment, Li Huowang remembered that he once erected Zhuge Yuan statues, claiming he was the Buddha. That might have been how the Three Ancient Ones took over the Five Dhyani Buddha’s Heavenly Dao.

At this point, the wounds he had inflicted on the Three Ancient Ones had healed.

The other Simings in Baiyu Capital arrived, floating around the place.

When they saw the Three Ancient Ones’s appearance, they realized that Ji Zai had been telling the truth. Now, they chose to work with Ji Zai without hesitation.

“Attack from a distance! Don’t let Qing Wanglai get close—he uses poison!” Ji Zai shouted, although he wasn’t sure if the warning would be enough.

The Three Ancient Ones didn’t run. Now covered in flesh, he rammed against Ji Zai and the others.

Ji Zai attempted to flee, but several scattered chains of secrets emerged from within his body. They were even denser than the ones on the Five Dhyani Buddhas.

The Three Ancient Ones chose not to fight against the other Siming and instead targeted Ji Zai. He wanted to devour Ji Zai’s Heavenly Dao first.

He realized too late that the Three Ancient Ones had laid a trap inside him. The chains within Ji Zai’s body rearranged themselves, forming the character “Wang.”

The chains were pulling Ji Zai closer to the Three Ancient Ones. If this continued, Ji Zai would end up like the Five Dhyani Buddhas.

The Heavenly Mater tried to envelop the chains on Ji Zai with Death, but she stopped at the last moment.

She sensed that most of the karmic living beings within the chains belonged to Li Huowang and Zhuge Yuan. If she enveloped the chains with Death, she would be killing Li Huowang's real body as well.

The other Simings were attacking simultaneously, but their attacks proved ineffective. There appeared to be something blocking off the other Heavenly Daos.

Bam! Another bullet pierced through Qing Wanglai, yet it changed nothing. Qing Wanglai used the chance to propel himself closer to Li Huowang.

Ji Zai's anger rose as the Three Ancient Ones closed in on him. He ignored the chains on his body and tightly gripped his spine sword.

"Come here, Three Ancient Ones!" Li Huowang roared, charging toward the Three Ancient Ones without fear.

The two of them were on the verge of colliding when their bodies suddenly fragmented into pieces of varying sizes. They swiftly passed each other before reforming behind each other's backs.

Ji Zai turned around, opening his fanged jaws as he prepared to devour the Three Ancient Ones. He swore to swallow the Three Ancient Ones today.

The Three Ancient Ones used the flesh-covered chains to stop Ji Zai from biting down. As more and more chains appeared on Ji Zai's body, his body slowly liquefied, just like how the Five Dhyani Buddhas did.

"You want to swallow my Heavenly Dao? Dream on!"

Li Huowang raised his arm towards the chaos of the Baiyu

Capital. “Eye!”

Chapter 1019 - Pollute

A bloodied eyeball appeared in Ji Zai's hands. It was the Divine Mountain Ghost Eye—the same one brimming with chaos.

Ji Zai crushed it, unleashing the Heavenly Dao of Chaos in a violent explosion. The chaos radiated outward with Ji Zai at its epicenter, affecting everything except him.

Even the Baiyu Capital, the place perpetually surrounded by chaos, was affected by it. Naturally, the Three Ancient Ones bore the brunt of it.

Due to the Heavenly Dao of Chaos, the Three Ancient Ones' karmic chains of secrets started to break as the flesh was separated from them.

The Heavenly Dao of Chaos caused the karmic chains of the Three Ancient Ones to snap, with the flesh connecting them being ripped away.

Li Huowang heard Qing Wanglai's anguished scream as the wounds on his body began to rot. Pain intruded into his body as the other Simings joined in.

"Fucker! So you can finally feel the pain!"

Li Huowang grabbed a rock and smashed Qing Wanglai's left hand. Qing Wanglai's fingers cracked open, leaving a thin veil of flesh clinging to his broken bones.

Qing Wanglai reached into his robes with his other arm, but Li Huowang anticipated the move. Swinging his blade, he severed Qing Wanglai's hand.

Li Huowang reached behind Qing Wanglai and grabbed the test tubes filled with poison before tossing them far away. Qing Wanglai no longer had any other methods of retaliating.

"Qing Wanglai, you are dead!"

Li Huowang stepped on Qing Wanglai's neck and smashed a rock onto his head forcefully.

Only when blood pooled beneath the rock did Li Huowang allow himself a breath of relief.

But a chill crept over him. Looking up, he saw droplets of rain falling from the dark clouds.

“Hahaha...”

A deep laugh came from underneath the rock. Ji Zai looked down to find that the Three Ancient Ones' scattered bodies were merging once more.

This was thanks to Zuoqiu Yong's Heavenly Dao of Growth. The Three Ancient Ones would continuously revive as long as that Heavenly Dao remained in his possession.

“Li Huowang, oh Li Huowang. Why must you get the way of my plans? Don't you see? You've become the villain—the destroyer of worlds!”

The body of the Three Ancient Ones started to expand once more.

“And you think you're righteous? Your plan was to murder everyone! Fuck you!” Li Huowang snapped back, bringing his blade down on the bloody tentacles of the Three Ancient Ones.

Even so, the Three Ancient Ones' body continued to heal, this time even faster.

Just then, Chen Hongyu appeared behind Qing Wanglai, holding onto a half-rotten corpse as she tried to push Qing Wanglai back down.

With a violent spasm, the dying Qing Wanglai's power returned.

“You don't understand! None of you understand what we're up against!” Qing Wanglai's voice cracked with desperation. “We'll all die if we do nothing! I tried to shoulder this despair alone, but you're leaving me no choice! Since you won't grasp what I've endured, I'll make you see it for yourselves!"

The chains of the Three Ancient Ones scattered again. After one brushed against Chen Hongyu, she released the corpse, trembling violently. Her eyes filled with an incomprehensible fear.

Ji Zai knew what was going on. The Three Ancient Ones had embedded some unfathomable secret into the Siming of Rot. He didn't know what it was, but it had to be deadly to terrify even a Siming.

"Stay back!" Ji Zai warned the others. "Attack from a distance!"

Despite his warning, Qing Wanglai lunged forward, nearly reaching Yang Na before Li Huowang intercepted him with his blade.

The bloody chains snapped again, but this time, instead of dispersing, they converged on Ji Zai. It had been a ruse—the Three Ancient Ones had been targeting Ji Zai all along.

As the secrets invaded Ji Zai's body, horrifying knowledge flooded his mind.

Fear. A primordial fear from an unknowable source. Fu Shengtian was no ordinary Siming; he wielded the Heavenly Dao of Fear.

The Heavenly Dao it controlled was not ordinary either—Fu Shengtian was a Grand Siming.

No—it was something beyond the Heavenly Dao of Fear. It was a pure, primordial terror that nurtured the other Heavenly Daos.

Even the Three Ancient Ones couldn't comprehend it fully. And from that ignorance, fear was born.

Li Huowang could feel fear welling up uncontrollably in his heart the moment he obtained the secret. For the first time, he was afraid.

The fear he felt was suffocating, clinging to his bones and resisting any attempts to shake it off. It washed over him in relentless waves, a constant presence that never ceased.

Qing Wanglai grabbed Ji Zai by the head, glaring at him with bloodshot eyes. “Do you see now? Do you understand what I’m up against? Do you think you can face this alone? You’re wrong! The only way we can survive this is by following my plan! Ji Zai, you need to die. Why are you still alive?”

Li Huowang watched despair and terror flicker in Qing Wanglai’s gaze, and a memory surfaced—the tombstone he’d glimpsed in a half-dreaming state. The more he stared, the clearer it became. Qing Wanglai was like a single stroke from one of the tombstone’s characters—one that another character had plucked for itself.

“I understand now!” Li Huowang shouted, reaching for one of Qing Wanglai’s bloodied tentacles before chewing on it. As he consumed its karma, understanding dawned on him. “I finally understand now!”

Qing Wanglai laughed, offering another tentacle. “Do you? Do you truly understand now? Do you agree with my plan now? Do you finally agree to abandon the two projections to save our true selves?”

Li Huowang grabbed the other tentacle with glee and ate it. “No! I just learned why Da Nuo went crazy. It was all because of you! As the Siming in control of the Heavenly Dao of Secrets, you were polluted by Fu Shengtian a long time ago!”

Chapter 1020 - We Will

"NO!"

The Three Ancient Ones forced a multitude of tentacles into Li Huowang's head and squeezed his brain apart.

Qing Wanglai yelled, "You idiots! My plan is the only chance we have to escape this calamity!"

Li Huowang gripped Qing Wanglai's tentacles tightly, refusing to let go. "No! You were right when you said someone betrayed us—it was you! Qing Wanglai, your fear of Fu Shengtian made you mad! And in your madness, you've turned the entire world crazy! The Liang Kingdom, the Qi Kingdom, the Tianchen Kingdom—everything that happened to them is all your fault!"

Qing Wanglai froze, as though a memory had resurfaced.

Li Huowang continued, "Three Ancient Ones, you weren't always like this! Zhuge Yuan was your Twisted One, don't you remember? The compassion you once had was twisted into cruelty, and it was all because of Fu Shengtian's influence!"

Indeed, a Twisted One and a Siming were supposed to mirror each other, with the same personality. However, the Three Ancient Ones had taken a completely different path.

Qing Wanglai's pupils contracted as he stared at his bloodstained hands. A strange feeling tugged at his heart, but he quickly shook it off.

"You lunatic! You incomprehensible madman! Everything I've done has been to save the world! Why can't you see that?" Qing Wanglai roared.

Black karmic chains of secrets swiftly pierced into Li Huowang's body, gradually causing him to become translucent.

As more and more secrets about Fu Shengtian poured into Li

Huowang, the fear within his heart began to bloom and impact his behavior.

The other Simings rushed to help, but the Three Ancient Ones self-detonated, scattering more karmic chains everywhere. Each chain carried secrets about Fu Shengtian, infecting the Simings with fear and despair.

Only then did Li Huowang realize that Fu Shengtian's attack had begun long ago, and Qing Wanglai was its agent. Every action he took had been a calculated move to spread the despair and fear of Fu Shengtian.

"No... I cannot," Li Huowang said.

Fighting back the suffocating dread, Li Huowang reached for the mirror, but the fear and despair shattered it into shards.

"Li Huowang, help me!" Ji Zai shouted at his reflection in one of the mirror's shards.

Li Huowang's reflection shouted back, "Promise me, Ji Zai! Promise you'll bring them all back! Too many have died. There's no one left down here!"

On the edge of being consumed by fear, Ji Zai replied, "I promise! I'll change everything! I'll fix everything! I'll bring them all back!"

From the depths of Baiyu Capital, a roar erupted. Tens of Jiang Xiangshous appeared, their murderous aura repelling the pervasive fear like lanterns piercing the dark.

It wasn't just the Jiang Xiangshous. Li Huowang saw several Dragon Veins flying towards him. All of the Dragon Veins were here.

"Senior Li, we're here to help!"

Gao Zhijian charged through the fear, crashing into Li Huowang and reinforcing him with solidified murderous aura. The Heavenly Dao of Order prevented Li Huowang from turning transparent.

However, Li Huowang still felt that something was missing.

He didn't know what it was, but he laid his eyes on the shards of the mirror. He sunk his hands into the shards of the mirror and pulled. At that moment, Ji Zai plundered everything from him.

The mirror vanished. Only Ji Zai remained in the Baiyu Capital.

As the fear disorientating him disappeared, Li Huowang regained his freedom, but it wasn't over. The Baiyu Capital was still shrouded in fear.

Li Huowang looked up at the Three Ancient Ones and understood that he wasn't fighting against the Three Ancient Ones. No, he had been fighting against Fu Shengtian from the very beginning.

Under his gaze, the bloody fleshy tentacles enveloping the karmic chain of secrets expanded and morphed into a fleshy hand. Li Huowang knew that this was Fu Shengtian's hand.

The hand reached out to grab him. Its numerous tentacles wriggled, attempting to instill fear into his very being.

The indomitable murderous aura scattered everything, but it merely delayed the inevitable. Ji Zai realized that if this continued, he would succumb to terror, just like the Three Ancient Ones did when the murderous aura emanating from his body dissipated.

Seeing how fear consumed the other Simings, Ji Zai had an idea. If he couldn't do it alone, he could use the powers of the other Simings.

Li Huowang, still shrouded in murderous aura, approached the Siming of Rot. Just as he was going to act, he paused.

There was a familiar face on the rotten corpse—Abbess Jingxin. The maggots had formed her visage. She smiled and nodded at him kindly.

“Abbess... Thank you...” Li Huowang cried and swallowed the Heavenly Dao of Rot whole. He tried not to chew and hurt her.

Jiang Xiangshou's murderous aura quickly dispelled the fear gripping the Heavenly Dao of Rot. Li Huowang absorbed the Heavenly Dao of Rot once it had returned to normal, and the wounds on his body started to rot.

Ba-Hui and the Sacrificial God stabbed into Li Huowang like two sharp blades, delivering the Heavenly Dao of Pain in a flood of agony.

He yelled, “Ba-Hui, you motherfucker! It hurts!”

Li Huowang turned and saw Zhao Shuangdian standing still. She passed the sniper rifle to him.

Zhao Shuangdian stood cold and calculated, just like her former self. “I accept your model. You are very special indeed.”

He nodded and swallowed both the rifle and Zhao Shuangdian.

With this, he finally learned what Siming Zhao Shuangdian was. She was the Heavenly Immortal.

Still, he didn’t know what kind of Heavenly Dao she held onto. He only knew that his body had become much more robust.

As he absorbed more Heavenly Daos, the entirety of the Baiyu Capital started to crumble. Li Huowang picked up the pace.

His body became bigger and bigger, to the point that even the Baiyu Capital could not contain him.

The fleshy tentacles oozed fear as they tried to suppress Li Huowang. The Three Ancient Ones made repeated attempts to pierce Li Huowang with his tentacles, but the murderous aura got in the way.

Li Huowang consumed all of the Heavenly Daos and finally laid eyes on the Heavenly Mater. He paused, but the Heavenly Mater smiled at him.

“Don’t give up, Huowang. I believe in you. We’ll bring Suisui back, and we’ll go to university together.”

Pain stabbed through his heart, amplified by the Heavenly Dao of Pain. Li Huowang’s physical form started to crumble.

He didn’t want to do it, but he had no choice. If he didn’t, Fu Shengtian's fear would corrupt the Heavenly Dao of Death. Li Huowang had to prevent Fu Shengtian from obtaining the Heavenly Dao of Death, no matter what.

“Don't worry. I won't give up,” Li Huowang promised, his voice trembling. “I will do it. I definitely will. I'll do whatever it takes.”

He embraced the Heavenly Mater—and swallowed her whole.

Chapter 1021 - Past

The Baiyu Capital crumbled as Li Huowang chewed. The chaos started to tear apart, revealing the unending darkness before him.

Still chewing, he raised his sword and spat on it, covering his spine sword with Death.

Turning, he glared at the Three Ancient Ones, who continued scattering Fear around.

“Qing Wanglai!”

Li Huowang raised his blade and swung it down. Death swept away everything, cutting off the source of the fear and despair.

Li Huowang found the Heavenly Dao of Growth within the Three Ancient Ones’ body. He tore it apart and swallowed it. Then, he did the same with the Heavenly Dao of Secrets.

After devouring everything, he uncovered a bone inscribed with the character “Wang.” When he touched it, the character returned to his name, reuniting with him.

Li Huowang finally learned what Qing Wanglai had taken away from him.

It was the counterpart of Bewilderment, the Heavenly Dao of Clarity. Every Heavenly Dao had its counterpart. He hadn’t known because the Three Ancient Ones had taken Clarity before he became the Siming of Bewilderment.

With his Clarity restored, Li Huowang’s thoughts sharpened. He was fully awake now, and even his way of thinking changed.

He sensed something above and turned his gaze to the crumbling Baiyu Capital.

Tearing through it, he shot upward like a chick breaking free of its eggshell. Outside, he crushed the remnants of the Baiyu Capital and shoved them into his mouth.

Li Huowang looked up and finally saw Fu Shengtian's true form.

It was massive—like a suffocatingly enormous planet bearing down on him, crashing toward everything. Fu Shengtian wasn't just attacking; it had attacked a long time ago, its actions transcending time.

Fu Shengtian raised a bident made from fear and despair. The weapon's tips bore the heads of the Three Ancient Ones and Qing Wanglai. With a mighty thrust, it shot the bident, piercing Li Huowang's chest.

Li Huowang grabbed the bident and pulled it out, wrestling it away from Fu Shengtian's control.

He swung the bident to scatter the fear on it. He raised the cleaned bident and pointed it at Fu Shengtian. "Come at me!"

Fu Shengtian attacked again, forming a new bident and flinging it straight at Li Huowang. This time, it had the heads of Wang Changxu and Tong Guchang.

Li Huowang blocked the attack and broke the bident with his spine sword cloaked in Death. Unlike before, the bident did not pierce him.

To Li Huowang's surprise, Fu Shengtian created even more weapons. However, they were much more bizarre than bidents.

Each weapon's tip was steeped in fear and despair. They rained down upon Li Huowang. Though he tried to deflect them all, he failed.

A trident bearing the heads of Shangguan Gedeng, Kouyin Liangong, and Zhu Cuifeng pierced Li Huowang's eyes, pinning him to the void.

In that instant, an archnemesis called Kouyin Liangong appeared in Li Huowang's past. It had two Twisted Ones—Shangguan Gedeng and Zhu Cuifeng. Its existence marked Li Huowang's past with even greater despair.

Taking advantage of the opening, more and more spears stabbed into Li Huowang, forcing their way into his body and starting to squeeze out his insides. The spears were overwhelming him!

“Fuck off!”

Summoning his strength, Li Huowang swung his spine sword and splintered the spears, shattering their shafts. However, their tips remained lodged in his body, altering his past and future.

He panted with all of his strength, but he saw another rain of spears flying towards him. Fu Shengtian was too strong. He couldn't win.

As soon as the seeds of despair grew in his heart, they began to flourish uncontrollably, growing and giving birth to more spear tips aimed directly at him.

As more and more spear tips pierced his body, he finally realized he could not win against Fu Shengtian. He lost the moment he became aware of Fu Shengtian's existence.

The moment he felt fear was the moment he became part of Fu Shengtian. He would become Fu Shengtian's pawn, just like the Three Ancient Ones.

The Three Ancient Ones, who held the world's secrets, succumbed to madness from knowing too much.

“Is this it? Is this all I'm capable of? I refuse to yield! I refuse to give up! So many people died—why can't I win?”

Li Huowang shouted, kneeling as despair consumed his heart. It started to destroy everything in his body.

Under such intense despair, he held onto Death and pointed at himself.

“Daoist, don't give up!” A voice cut through the darkness of the void.

Li Huowang raised his head and saw the illusion of the old monk beside him again. “Daoist. You are a good Daoist. You cannot die now.”

Another voice joined in—Jin Shanzhao. “Young Daoist, you made a promise. That’s why I left.”

“You want to kill yourself? Don’t be an embarrassment to the others!”

The illusions appeared one after another until even Jiang Yingzi and Dan Yangzi appeared.

Li Huowang saw Zhuge Yuan’s illusion once more. “Junior LI, don’t give up. Don’t lose to yourself.”

Li Huowang looked at them as he despaired. “Who are you people?!”

“It doesn’t matter who we are. What’s more important is who you are.”

“Me? I’m Li Huowang!”

His own declaration made him pause. He searched through his fragmented memories, looking for something important.

“Yes, that’s right! I’m Li Huowang. I was mentally ill!”

He stood up, shaking his head as he surveyed the chaos. “No! This isn’t me. This isn’t me!”

Li Huowang began to tear off his own Heavenly Daos, one by one. He even tore off the last character of his name: “Wang.”

He forced everything into Yi Donglai, who had somehow appeared beside him, helping him stand up. “Take it! Take all of it! Everything is yours!”

After forcing everything into Yi Donglai’s mouth, Li Huowang swallowed him whole, hiding him in his stomach.

Then, Li Huowang closed his eyes and shouted, “None of this is real! This is all an illusion! Wake up!”

Only the purest form of Bewilderment remained within Li Huowang. At that moment, a faint voice echoed in his ears.

Li Huowang had once rejected the voice, but he was now embracing it with open arms. He followed the voice, and gradually, it became clearer.

“Li Huowang, wake up! Li Huowang, wake up! Everything you’re enduring is fake! It’s all a lie!”

The voice shattered the darkness. It reached the ears of Li Huowang, both past and present.

He opened his eyes. Bright light filtered through white curtains as a sharp wailing sound echoed beside him.

Li Huowang glanced down. White hospital beds, an electric wall fan, and the pungent scent of disinfectant surrounded him. It felt surreal yet familiar.

He remembered where he was.

He was in ward number thirteen of the White Tower Hospital.

Chapter 1022 - Cured

Li Huowang lay on the clean hospital bed, his single eye wide open as he took in his surroundings. His gaze swept the room before settling on himself. A realization dawned on him—yet, at the same time, it didn't fully make sense.

The ringing sound disappeared, replaced by a familiar voice. "Li Huowang? Are you finally awake? That's good!"

He turned to see Yi Donglai staring at him with worry etched across his face.

Li Huowang's lips curled into a faint smile. "I'm... awake. I'm finally awake. The hallucinations were too frightening, but thankfully, they were all fake. None of it was real."

Yi Donglai frowned, his expression unusually tense. "What do you mean 'fake'? Everything you saw was real! The timeline has been reset, but we've been placed at a different time. Haven't you noticed you're missing an eye?"

"Don't worry. I'm awake now. I won't mutilate myself anymore."

The room suddenly transformed. The once bright light gave way to darkness, and Yi Donglai grew in size until he reached the ceiling. Terrifying laughter echoed from his mouth.

"Hahaha. Do you think you've succeeded? You fool."

The scene around Yi Donglai twisted and morphed. Black water seeped from the floor, and the walls of the ward crumbled away, revealing a vast void and the horrifying visage Li Huowang had seen just now.

"You've abandoned your powers, so now you're completely defenseless against my fear! You're dead! Da Nuo is dead too! The Baiyu Capital is mine!"

A wave of fear and despair emanated from Yi Donglai, making its way toward Li Huowang.

Despite the dreaded atmosphere, Li Huowang merely looked at the strange form of Yi Donglai. “Doctor Yi, you don’t have to test me anymore. I am cured.”

The moment he spoke, everything around him melted away like snow under the sun. Yi Donglai shrank back to his normal size, though he continued snarling.

Yi Donglai smiled and nodded with satisfaction. “Not bad. You’ve passed the test. Congratulations, Little Li. You’re cured. All my efforts weren’t in vain, after all.”

Just as he finished speaking, the door burst open, and a crowd of people surged into the room, clapping and cheering for Li Huowang.

Among them were Zhao Shuangdian, Wu Qi, and Chen Hongyu, all dressed in white doctor’s coats.

They clapped as they announced, “Congratulations! You’re finally cured.”

“What?” Yi Donglai froze, his face twisting in shock as he stared at the unfamiliar faces. He had never seen these colleagues in White Tower Hospital before, and it was impossible for all of them to be doctors.

“Impossible. How are you...”

His voice faltered, his gaze fearfully snapping back to Li Huowang. “Unless you were telling the truth?”

Yi Donglai’s reaction unsettled the crowd. They tried to console him, but the more they spoke, the more violent he became. Terror consumed his eyes.

In the end, several nurses had to restrain him with a straitjacket. They wheeled him out as he screamed and thrashed.

Qing Wanglai sighed as he watched Yi Donglai being carted away. “What a terrifying patient. We managed to cure you but at the expense of driving one of our doctors to madness.”

Li Huowang looked at Yi Donglai disappearing at the corner of the corridor and smiled. “Don’t worry. There are a lot of good doctors here. I’m sure he’ll recover quickly in the Baiyu Capital.”

Qing Wanglai patted Li Huowang’s shoulder warmly. “Little Li, come with me. I will prescribe you some medicine. You’re finally ready to go from the intensive care ward to the general ward. You’ll regain some freedom, too.”

They soon entered Qing Wanglai’s office. He took out a disposable white cup and brewed Li Huowang a cup of tea.

“The hospital’s a bit basic, so I hope you won’t mind oolong tea bags,” Qing Wanglai said with a laugh.

“I’m not much of a tea person, so I wouldn’t know the difference.”

“Hoho, you’re quite the frugal person. Give me a moment,” Qing Wanglai said, starting to rummage through the drawers.

“Don’t worry. I have a lot of time now,” Li Huowang said.

Li Huowang took a deep breath and smelled the disinfectant in the air. A newfound serenity washed over him, unlike anything he had ever felt before.

Qing Wanglai teased Li Huowang, saying, “You sound like an old man. Once you’re discharged, go home and focus on your studies so you can get into a good university.”

“Doctor Qing, what will you do while I’m studying?”

“What else? I will continue to work in this hospital. I’ll try to write a thesis about you and see if it gets published. Being a doctor in this field is a headache, you know? Not only do we often have to stay up late and work extra shifts, but we also need to play along with our patients.”

He scratched his ear with the pen from his chest pocket before scribbling something on a piece of paper.

Li Huowang grabbed his teacup and tried to decipher the paper's contents. "Doctor, can you do me a favor?"

Qing Wanglai stopped writing and looked at him. "Sure. We're all friends now. What do you need?"

Li Huowang sat in a car some time later, watching the scenery blur past. He called his mother.

"Hi, Mom. I'm cured. Yes, this time it's for real. I won't relapse anymore. You can come pick me up next month."

Two hours later, Qing Wanglai and Li Huowang stepped down from a sports car. They had arrived at the entrance of the Sixth Public Hospital. Using Qing Wanglai's connections, they quickly found an isolated ward.

Inside was none other than Yang Na, lying motionless on the bed.

Li Huowang entered the room alone. Qing Wanglai grabbed her medical file, noting the diagnosis: severe depression.

Li Huowang reached the bedside and sat down on a stool. He looked at Yang Na, whose eyes held the vacant stare of a doll.

"Nana, I've kept my promise. Look, I'm really cured. I'll stay by your side until you're also better. Once you're cured, we'll take our exams together and enter university again. This time, I'll be with you every step of the way."

Li Huowang gently held Yang Na's skeletal fingers, noticing the scars on her wrists. He spoke to her nonstop for a full day and night.

Finally, Yang Na's fingers twitched, and she gripped his hand weakly.

Li Huowang smiled.

He leaned forward, wrapping Yang Na in a tender embrace.

Chapter 1023 - Epilogue

It was once again the Qingming Festival in Cowheart Village.

Even though it was night, the streets bustled with people burning paper ingots and money. Most of the villagers were migrants without ancestral altars to honor their dead. They could only afford to draw circles on the ground, leaving an opening in the direction of their ancestors' graves.

White smoke floated upwards. The moonlight cast a soft glow, making Cowheart Village look like a paradise.

A lone figure in red walked past the white smoke.

It was Li Huowang. He clutched a large amount of paper money and ingots as he passed through the village and made his way to the Bai family estate, which was now devoid of any residents aside from himself.

He stood still at the entrance and stared at the white lantern hanging from the large door. He saw the two yellow couplets and let out a hoarse chuckle. "Hehe... I've truly become... The moon is both full and empty. Several remaining stars circled around the incomplete moon. A bright lantern is lit in front of the house, but the house is empty throughout spring and autumn. Ahh..."

Li Huowang stepped inside and slammed the doors shut. He drew a large circle on the ground, leaving evenly spaced openings instead of a single one.

He tossed the paper money and paper ingots into the circle before setting them alight.

"Qingming... Come... Take your money!"

Li Huowang's hoarse voice rang out like the lonely cry of an old crow, echoing through the empty Bai family estate.

As the fire burned, he mumbled the words he wanted to say to his dead family.

“Suisui, buy whatever you need down there with the paper money. You can buy as many toys as you want. If they don’t have what you want, you can meet me in my dreams and let me know. I will find some paper dolls to burn so that they can accompany you.

“Miaomiao, are you alright down there? I miss you...”

As the paper money continued to burn, the fire flared higher and brighter. Halfway through the bundle of paper money and ingots, Li Huowang broke down.

He stood up and shouted at his shadow vehemently, “Ji Zai! You liar! You promised me! You promised you’d bring them back! Why didn’t you keep your word?”

The world had survived. The Natural Disasters were gone, and there were no more evil entities. The world had sixteen divisions again. Sanity had returned to the world.

Huowang had achieved his goal of changing the world, but bringing back the dead remained beyond his reach.

“Everything impossible has disappeared. We overcame so many difficulties, so why can’t you revive a few people? What good are you, Ji Zai? You’re useless!”

He refused to admit it, but he knew it was impossible. Reviving them went against the laws of the world. Now that the world was normal again, impossible things couldn’t happen. If he revived them, the world would go crazy again.

His anger dissolved into despair. He slumped to the ground and cried. “Why? Why! Why me? Why am I the only one alive?!”

A wave of despair engulfed him, suffocating him under the weight of a mountain. He couldn’t breathe, and the feeling was more agonizing than death itself.

Li Huowang reached into his bag of torture tools and retrieved a dagger. He sliced open his abdomen. Next, he took out three dolls made from the skin of Strayed Ones and threw them onto the ground.

Raising the dagger, he slashed his own neck, pulling the blade with such force that he decapitated himself. He grabbed his severed head and smashed it onto the ground.

But it was futile. He couldn't die.

When Ji Zai used the mirror to strip everything away from him, he had taken even Death. Ji Zai had plundered everything, including his status as a Strayed One too.

Li Huowang understood that he was Ji Zai's Twisted One. He was fated to become Ji Zai. The world had returned to sanity, and the past could no longer be rewritten. Everything in the future had been set.

Just as despair threatened to consume him entirely, Li Huowang's sharp ears noticed a slight movement from the stool he'd been sitting on.

He stopped and approached the stool. There was something there.

He carefully felt the air above the stool but couldn't sense anything. Still, he needed to make sure. "Is that you? Is that really you?"

Li Huowang looked around and saw the burning paper money twirling in the circle. He remembered something and ran into the house.

He grabbed an umbrella and opened it, bending down to look between his knees.

At that moment, he saw Suisui's smiling face. For the first time in a very long time, Li Huowang smiled. The despair in his heart gave way to joy.

"Hahaha! You are all here! That's good! Don't go away! Don't get reincarnated! You might've become ghosts, but that's fine! Even ghosts can cultivate to become immortals! Wait here. I go to the Surveillance Bureau's archives to find a method for ghosts to cultivate! Hahaha!”

Placing his head back onto his neck, Li Huowang rushed out of the Bai family estate and toward the village entrance.

“There are ghosts in this world! Hahaha! Ji Zai, I was wrong about you! The moon is both full and empty, with several scattered stars circling around! Hahaha! Ghosts are fine too! Ghosts are fine, too! Hahaha!”

Hearing the commotion, Puppy poked his head out the door, his daughter beside him. He sighed as he watched Li Huowang.

“We endured so many hardships throughout the year. In the end, Senior Li still went crazy.”

“Father, what happened to Uncle Li?”

“Nothing. Don’t scold Uncle Li or make fun of him the next time you see him. Let me know if any kids throw stones or spit at him. He’s our Village Protector from now on.”

“Father, what’s a Village Protector?”

“A Village Protector is someone who shields us from disasters. Because of him, we in Cowheart Village can live in peace.”

Puppy was going to close his door when he noticed a light coming from the village entrance. Unfortunately, he couldn’t see what it was due to the smoke.

Though the smoke obscured his view, he soon saw Lu Xiucan running through it with his nephew, Lu Tongsheng, cradled in his single remaining arm.

Lu Xiucan saw Puppy and pointed at the village entrance excitedly. “Puppy! Come quick! Look! Master has ascended and become an immortal!”

Chapter 1024 - Epilogue, Qing Wanglai's Pov

Qing Wanglai opened his eyes. He looked at the rising sun and waited for his seven o'clock alarm to ring.

He looked down and admired his mansion. The mansion was small, approximately three hundred square meters. It was simple and minimalistic, with white as its main color.

For someone accustomed to living alone, the house was enough. It felt comfortable, and he had no desire to push beyond his comfort zone.

Ring ring ring~ His alarm rang, marking the start of his day. He took a bath and got dressed.

He departed at exactly seven twenty in the morning. He drove for thirty minutes and bought breakfast along the way, reaching White Tower Prison at eight in the morning sharp.

Though not as chaotic as a typical hospital, working there was far from simple.

As Qing Wanglai prepared to eat breakfast after making tea, someone came into his office. It was a large man with a huge beard. "Doctor Yi, the VIP is here. Come take a look."

"What?"

Qian Fu explained, "It's that person who went viral a couple of days ago. We're lucky he got assigned to us."

Qing Wanglai remembered the news he read a couple of days ago. His interest was piqued. "Sure, let's go see him."

They made their way to the intensive care ward and saw Li Huowang.

"Doctor Qing, this is the medical record of patient number thirteen. Please have a read. He was transferred here from An Ding Hospital.”

Qing Wanglai accepted the file and read through it. “So this is him?”

Although news channels hadn’t disclosed Li Huowang’s real name, he had long since become famous among psychiatrists. They had been monitoring Li Huowang’s movements for a long time.

“Yes, that’s Li Huowang—the guy who went viral. The lunatic who swung a knife around to rescue his girlfriend.”

Qing Wanglai continued reading while occasionally glancing at Li Huowang through the one-way mirror. He saw the youth shouting in despair while being restrained by a straitjacket. Qing Wanglai carefully listened as Li Huowang rambled incoherently.

“No.” Qing Wanglai closed the medical records and said grimly, “He wasn’t there to save her. He was there to kill her. His condition is too severe.”

“What? How could that be? That’s his girlfriend! She’s such a pretty young lady too!” Qian Fu asked in confusion.

“I’m also trying to figure out his motive. How could he want to harm his own girlfriend? Why? What’s his reasoning?”

“We aren’t detectives. Couldn’t insanity be enough to explain it? Isn’t that motive enough?”

Qing Wanglai scoffed at Qian Fu. “Doctor Qian, your words would devalue our professionalism. Even mentally ill patients would need a motive to kill someone. They might believe their reasons are perfectly rational, even when others see them as madness.”

“Sigh,” Qian Fu stroked his beard. “Why do they always send the crazy demons to us?”

“Stop complaining and focus on a treatment plan,” Qing Wanglai sighed. “He’s been given the standard medications in the previous hospital, but they’ve had little effect.”

“And what do you suggest we do? To be honest, this place is technically a prison. As long as he’s locked up and can’t hurt anyone, that should be enough.”

Qing Wanglai side-eyed Qian Fu. “Well, everyone should have aspirations to chase in life. Do you want to stay here forever babysitting the patients?”

“Pssh. What are you planning, then? Treat him and publish your thesis so you can get a promotion?”

Qing Wanglai reached for the metal door at the side. “We should at least try, regardless of the outcome.”

Qian Fu hurried along. “Then you should be careful. I’ve heard that patient thirteen somehow drove his previous doctor insane too.”

Qing Wanglai decided against revealing himself to Li Huowang just yet. Instead, he eavesdropped on the patient while the other doctors entered to begin treatment.

The prison's upper management was very careful because Li Huowang was a famous troublemaker. They immediately checked on Li Huowang and ordered the doctors to devise a treatment plan.

Qing Wanglai quietly listened to the other doctors discussing a treatment plan.

Ultimately, they chose to use a simple yet safe treatment plan. They prioritized safety above all else.

Qing Wanglai could understand their intentions. Li Huowang was a high-risk patient—essentially a hot potato no one wanted to handle.

While Qian Fu munched on his leftover breakfast, he remarked, “He’s highly resistant to treatment. It’s probably because he’s been subjected to so many attempts before. I’m fairly certain that he’s even built up resistance to some medications.”

“Hmm... Indeed. It’s very tricky.”

Qing Wanglai nodded. After some thought, he said, “I think we have a chance. Still, I'll need to analyze all our footage of him first."

"What are you thinking?"

"I need to find a fake doctor to masquerade as his main doctor. The fake doctor will try fake methods to treat Li Huowang while we pretend to be the characters from Li Huowang's hallucinations. We will secretly administer the treatment plan when Li Huowang's guard is at its lowest. We can't do this with the other patients, but we might have a shot here. Li Huowang's hallucinations are not only coherent but also very complete."

Qian Fu frowned. "Us? Why me again? You want me to act like a patient again?"

Qing Wanglai patted Qian Fu's blue-and-white striped hospital gown. "What do you mean act? You are a patient! Look at how well you fit in your hospital gown. Don't worry. I will shoulder all responsibilities if anything happens."

"Fine, as long as you take the blame. I will also round up other actors for you."

Qian Fu then took out his phone to make several phone calls.

"But... won't this make his condition worse?"

Qing Wanglai waved off the concern. "Don't worry. It won't."

"Let's talk to the chief warden first."

"Alright."

The two headed to the chief warden's office, finding the door already ajar. Inside, the balding chief was in conversation with someone else.

"Chief, I need to discuss something with you."

Qing Wanglai explained his treatment plan to the chief.

The chief took out a cigarette and lit it up. "Alright. Go ahead and try."

Qing Wanglai passed a piece of paper and a pen to him. "Could you sign here?"

However, the Chief did not sign it. "I'm an open person. You can use whatever treatment plan you have, but I won't sign it. If it works, all the glory will be yours. As your superior, I'll never take credit for your efforts."

Qing Wanglai knew what the Chief meant. That meant Qing Wanglai's treatment plan would be secret and administered without approval. The prison would have nothing to do with it.

Qing Wanglai chuckled and walked out with Qian Fu. He wasn't like the others.

Qian Fu asked, "Qing Wanglai, I can act as a patient, but who will be his doctor? I doubt that the others would follow your plan."

"We don't have doctors, but we have patients."

Qing Wanglai pushed his glasses and looked at Yi Donglai. Yi Donglai was earnestly trying to treat another patient.

"Hoh. You smart rascal. A patient acting as the doctor while the real doctors stay in the background."

"How can we treat patients if we don't explore the unknown a little?"

Qing Wanglai approached Yi Donglai and said courteously, "Doctor Yi, we have a new patient admitted into our hospital. Please assist me in curing that patient."

Yi Donglai leaned back, propping up his legs cockily. "Didn't you already have an assistant?"

Qian Fu grumbled. "What assistant? We went to the same university, so we're closer than the others."

Yi Donglai scoffed. "You know the other doctors too. Why me?"

"Just say yes or no."

"Fine, I will agree to treat Li Huowang. I must, if I have to say so."

"Good, then let me explain to you. Li Huowang isn't always stuck in his hallucinations because they occur in stages. Our treatment plan is as follows..."

Everything was ready. Yi Donglai put on a white robe and entered Li Huowang's room.

As Li Huowang woke up, Yi Donglai greeted him with a smile. "Hello, Li Huowang. Nice to meet you. I'm your doctor, Yi Donglai."

Qian Fu raised his thumb at Qing Wanglai. "Look at that bastard acting like a doctor."

"Shh. Be serious. Record everything Li Huowang says about his hallucinations. We'll need it later."

"You can record it yourself. I'm just gonna make one up. Why should his perspective matter more than mine? I'm a patient, remember?"

Qing Wanglai nodded. "That's fine too. That way, you won't reveal too much when you communicate with him later on."

Qian Fu paused. "Wait, when should I show up?"

"Shh. Just follow Yi Donglai's rhythm for now. We will determine the time ourselves."

The two of them continued to eavesdrop on their conversation.

While Li Huowang was hallucinating, the three of them exchanged notes and started to analyze Li Huowang's psyche.

It didn't go well initially. Li Huowang rejected everything vehemently, but after some new developments, Li Huowang started to believe Yi Donglai.

There was some trouble during their treatment plan, but in just a few months, they saw progress. One day, Li Huowang stood atop the slide, pulling a dice from the top of a lamp. Everyone cheered.

Qing Wanglai smiled as Qian Fu nudged him. "Hey, your treatment plan is working."

"Now, we need to start stage two. It's your turn now. You will become the projection of the one buried beneath Qing Qiu, the Siming of Death."

"Do you really need to say it out loud? That's so childish." Qian Fu rolled his eyes. "Nevermind, I will go and get changed now."

Qian Fu left, heading toward the intensive care wards. "Chen Hongyu and the others should show up soon if it's my turn to act. Make sure to contact them first."

"I've already contacted them."

The treatment plan had been going smoothly, but something changed halfway through.

Qing Wanglai stormed into the chief warden's office, anger evident on his face. "What's going on? Why is he being transferred? He hasn't recovered yet!"

Everything was going well, but the higher-ups decided to transfer Li Huowang.

"Wasn't he cured yet? I thought he could already differentiate between the real and fake worlds. We should send him away now. What if something happens while he's in our custody?"

"But that's just a fabricated scene! Our goal is to fully cure Li Huowang, not trap him in it! His family would never agree to it."

"Sigh..." The chief warden lit another cigarette and said, "Doctor Qing, you should know that I'm not the boss here. The one controlling this place is Xie Qiuquan. Don't forget that while we are a hospital, we are also a prison."

Qing Wanglai clenched his fists tightly. "Li Huowang is still a high-risk patient. He has killed before! What if he kills again after the transfer?"

The chief warden reclined in his chair, which creaked under his weight. "Then it won't be our problem. The director and I haven't had a good night's sleep since Li Huowang got here. Doctor Qing, Doctor Qing, I know you're ambitious and capable, but I'm fifty-two. I'll be retiring in a few years, so please don't trouble me further."

Qing Wanglai furiously stormed out of the office and slammed the door shut. Yi Donglai and Qian Fu quickly followed him. "So what's going on?"

"There's no chance. He's determined to transfer Li Huowang," Qing Wanglai replied.

“What should we do, then?”

“What else? If Li Huowang is being transferred, we’ll follow him,” Qing Wanglai said decisively.

Yi Donglai was confused. “But I still have work here. How can I go out and treat Li Huowang?”

Qing Wanglai smiled when he heard Yi Donglai. “Don’t worry. You can continue your work. It’s my turn to step in now.”

Sitting in the canteen, Qing Wanglai positioned himself carefully. Hearing footsteps approach, he turned toward the source of the sound.

Setting his food aside, he approached Li Huowang. “Long time no see. How are you doing?”

Although Qing Wanglai had been observing Li Huowang for months and was his main doctor, to Li Huowang, this was their first meeting.

“Hello, Qing Wanglai. I am Li Huowang.”

The second stage of the treatment plan started.

With Qing Wanglai’s involvement, things returned to normal. Qing Wanglai gradually took control of the situation. The treatment progressed smoothly, and he even managed to sneak medicine into Li Huowang’s food from time to time.

In fact, Qing Wanglai could even persuade Li Huowang to take the medicine on his own by earning his trust. It was much easier than forcing the medicine down Li Huowang’s throat.

This was a vast improvement—previously, it had taken more than four men to restrain Li Huowang and force the medicine down his throat.

Li Huowang’s condition improved, and everything seemed to be going well—until something unexpected happened.

“What’s going on? What is happening?”

Everyone stared at the bloody eyeball before them, their faces pale. As a doctor, Qing Wanglai knew all too well what it meant for a patient to dig out their own eye.

Chen Hongyu muttered, “Whose fault is this? Should we draw lots?”

“There’s no time to assign blame!” Qing Wanglai declared. “This is a necessary cost! We need to focus on treating him. As long as we succeed, everything can be explained. If we fail, I’ll shoulder all the consequences!”

He then looked at Zhao Shuangdian. “Call Li Huowang and figure out what’s going on with him.”

Zhao Shuangdian nodded. She placed the call, but when she hung up, her expression was one of confusion.

Qing Wanglai asked, “What did he say?”

Zhao Shuangdian answered with a confused look. “He said topology. That’s it.”

Qing Wanglai sighed in relief. “Good. The situation is still under control. Everyone, let’s move. We need to keep pushing forward to treat him.”

The treatment continued, with everyone proceeding cautiously toward the final stages of the plan. Qian Fu and the others, who had supposedly died, weren’t slacking off either. They were renting out houses and vehicles while preparing treatment sites as needed.

Finally, with everyone’s help, Li Huowang was once again admitted into the ward of White Tower Hospital.

Li Huowang struggled against his restraints as Qing Wanglai, with sweat dripping from his forehead, whispered repeatedly, “Li Huowang, wake up. Li Huowang, wake up. Everything you’ve experienced is a lie! Everything is fake!”

Li Huowang’s eyes suddenly fluttered open. Bright sunlight shone past the white curtains while a loud buzz deafened him.

“I feel... I feel... Something from both worlds superimposed...”

Li Huowang looked at his own skeletal hands as he muttered.

Yi Donglai sighed in relief when he heard Li Huowang.

“Good. This is normal. That meant my treatment worked. Remember to take your medicine on time. You will be cured in no time.”

The doors burst open as a group of doctors rushed in, clapping to celebrate Li Huowang’s recovery.

Qing Wanglai felt the heavy burden of the past few months lift from his shoulders. He took a deep breath, letting out a long sigh.

As the clapping died down, Qing Wanglai extended his arm and patted Li Huowang.

“Little Li, let’s go. I will prescribe you some medicine. You can finally transfer from the intensive care ward to a regular one. You’ll have more freedom now. Once you’re discharged, work hard and study to get into a good university.”

Li Huowang’s happiness also brought joy to Qing Wanglai. He could write several theses based on Li Huowang’s medical records and treatment plan alone.

“Doctor Qing, can you help me?”

“Is it your girlfriend?” Qing Wanglai had expected that.

“Yes. I want to see her.”

“You should call your mother first to let her know that you are cured. I’ll bring you to see her later.”

Qing Wanglai long knew that Li Huowang’s girlfriend was sick too. He doubted she could remain sane with a partner like Li Huowang.

But this was a minor issue for him. He had managed to cure Li Huowang. The other illnesses were nothing to him.

It took time, but Qing Wanglai managed to stabilize Yang Na’s condition with treatment and medication.

Now he sat in his brand new office. It was larger than his previous office. He sipped his tea as he admired the banner on the wall.

The God of Medicines Reincarnated with a burning compassion that matches a familial bond. Gifted by Li Huowang and Yang Na.

Pride swelled within him as he read the words. He had chosen the right path in life. He was wealthy, but no amount of money could buy the satisfaction he felt now. Indeed, everyone needed a passion to truly feel alive.

His phone suddenly rang. He opened the drawer and fished out his cellphone. "Hello? Auntie Sun? What's wrong? Did Huowang relapse? No, I'm not from this prefecture. Yes, I was born in 1989 and have a house here... Its size? It's not big. Auntie Sun, why are you asking me this?

"No, no, that's alright. Thank you, but I don't need any introductions, not anytime soon. I'm not interested in arranged marriage meetings... What? I know she's a good woman. That's not what I meant."

After a lengthy conversation, Qing Wanglai finally convinced Sun Xiaoqin to drop the matter. Tossing his phone back into the drawer, he took another sip of tea, a smile tugging at his lips as he glanced at the red wedding invitation inside the drawer.

"Heh, she's such an interesting auntie. Now that she doesn't have to worry about her son's marriage, she's already trying to play matchmaker for others."

-Epilogue, Qing Wanglai's POV, End-
